
(2001/C 180 E/32)

(Submitted by the Commission on 27 March 2001)

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Article 95 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Central Bank,

Having regard to the opinion of the Economic and Social Committee,

Having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions,

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty,

Whereas:

(1) Directive 98/26/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 19 May 1998 on settlement finality in payment and securities settlement systems (1) constituted a milestone in establishing a sound legal framework for payment and securities settlement systems. Implementation of that Directive has demonstrated the importance of limiting systemic risk inherent in such systems stemming from the different influence of several jurisdictions, and the benefits of common rules in relation to collateral pledged to such systems.

(2) In its Communication of 11 May 1999 to the European Parliament and to the Council on Financial Services: Implementing the Framework for Financial Markets: Action Plan (2) the Commission undertook, after consultation with market experts and national authorities, to work on further proposals for legislative action on collateral urging further progress in the field of collateral, beyond the Directive 98/26/EC.

(3) A Community regime should be created for the provision of securities and cash as collateral under both pledge and title transfer structures including repurchase agreements (repos). This will contribute to the integration and cost-efficiency of the financial market as well as to the stability of the financial system in the Community, thereby supporting the freedom to provide services and the free movement of capital in the single market in financial services. This Directive focuses on the provision of collateral between two parties to a collateral arrangement.

(4) In order to improve the legal certainty of collateral arrangements, Member States should ensure that certain provisions of insolvency law do not apply to such arrangements, in particular, those that would inhibit the effective realisation of collateral or cast doubt on the validity of current techniques such as close-out netting, the provision of additional collateral in the form of top-up collateral and substitution of collateral.

(5) The principle in Directive 98/26/EC, whereby the law applicable to book entry securities provided as collateral is the law of the jurisdiction where the relevant register, account or centralised deposit system is located, should be extended in order to create legal certainty regarding the use of such securities held in a cross-border context and used as collateral under the scope of this Directive.

(6) In order to limit the administrative burdens for participants using book-entry securities as collateral the only perfection requirement should be that the interest be notified to, and recorded by, the relevant entity maintaining the account, while for bearer securities the perfection requirement should be delivery of the collateral.

(7) The simplification of the use of collateral through the limitation of administrative burdens will promote the efficiency of the cross-border operations of the European Central Bank and the national Central Banks of Member States participating in the Economic and Monetary Union, necessary for the implementation of the common monetary policy. Furthermore, the provision of limited protection of collateral arrangements from some rules of insolvency law will in addition support the wider aspect of the common monetary policy, where the participants in the money market balance the overall amount of liquidity in the market among themselves, by cross-border transactions backed by collateral.

(8) The lex rei sitae rule, according to which the applicable law for determining whether a collateral arrangement is properly perfected and therefore good against third parties is the law of the country where the collateral is located, including where the location is in a third country, is currently recognised by all Member States. The location of book entry collateral should be determined. If the collateral taker has a valid and effective collateral arrangement according to the governing law of the country in which the relevant account is maintained, whether or not that country is a Member State, then the validity against any competing title or interest and enforceability of the collateral should be governed solely by the law of that country, thus preventing legal uncertainty as a result of other unforeseen legislation.

The possibilities for Community counterparties to conclude collateral arrangements with counterparties from third countries should also be enhanced, by Member States ensuring that certain provisions of insolvency law do not apply to such arrangements. Those exceptions should therefore also apply to a Community collateral provider where the collateral taker is from a third country.

The enforceability of close-out netting should be protected, not only as an enforcement mechanism for title transfer collateral arrangements including repurchase agreements but more widely, where close-out netting forms part of a collateral arrangement. Sound risk management practices commonly used in the financial market should be protected by enabling participants to manage and reduce their credit exposures arising from all kinds of financial transactions on a net basis, where the credit exposure is calculated by combining the estimated current exposures under all outstanding transactions with a counterparty, setting off reciprocal items to produce a single aggregated amount that is compared with the current value of the collateral.

The sound market practice favoured by regulators where participants in the financial market use top-up collateral arrangements to manage and limit their credit risk to each other by mark-to-market calculations of the current market value of the credit exposure and the value of the collateral and accordingly ask for top-up collateral or return the surplus of collateral should be protected. However, there should be no protection for the provision of top-up collateral which is required upon deterioration of the credit rating of the collateral provider because this could contradict the basic insolvency law policy of Member States, which discourages provisions under which a creditor's position is improved as a result of an insolvency-related event.

In order to limit the systemic risk in the Community financial market, the formalities, which may be required for the execution of a collateral arrangement should be limited. Penalties for breach of such formalities should not include the invalidity of a collateral arrangement.

It should be possible to provide cash as collateral under both title transfer and pledge structures respectively protected by the recognition of netting or by the pledge of cash collateral. The collateral provider should therefore be able to retain ownership of the pledged cash and consequently be protected in cases where the collateral taker becomes bankrupt. This is of particular importance in the frequent situations where cash is used in substitution for securities.

Since the measures necessary for the implementation of this Directive are measures of general scope within the meaning of Article 2 of Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission (1) they should be adopted by use of the regulatory procedure provided for in Article 5 of that Decision.

This Act complies with the fundamental rights and follows the principles laid down in particular in the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union as general principles of Community law (2).

In accordance with the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality, the objectives of the proposed action, to create a minimum regime relating to the use of financial collateral, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States and can therefore, by reason of the scale and effect of the action be better achieved by the Community. This Directive confines itself to the minimum required in order to achieve those objectives and does not go beyond what is necessary for that purpose,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Article 1

Subject matter

This Directive lays down a Community regime in relation to financial collateral arrangements between a collateral provider and a collateral taker.

4. This Article is without prejudice to any requirement imposed by applicable law, that the realisation or valuation of financial collateral is conducted in a commercially reasonable manner.
Article 6

Right of use of financial collateral under security financial collateral arrangement

1. Where a collateral taker exercises a right of use, he thereby incurs an obligation to cause equivalent collateral to be transferred so as again to be held subject to the security financial collateral arrangement in the manner referred to in Article 2(3) or, subject to the discharge of the relevant financial obligations, to be transferred to the collateral provider.

2. Where a collateral taker, in discharge of an obligation as described in paragraph 1, causes equivalent collateral to be transferred so as again to be held in the manner referred to in Article 2(3), that equivalent collateral shall be subject to the security financial collateral arrangement to which the original collateral was subject.

3. For the purposes of any rule of law under which any disposition is deemed to be invalid or may be reversed or declared void by reason of or by reference to the time at which it is made, that equivalent collateral shall be treated as having been delivered or disposed of under that security financial collateral arrangement at the time when the original collateral was first transferred so as to be held in the manner referred to in Article 2(3).

4. If an enforcement event occurs while an obligation as described in paragraph 1 remains outstanding, the obligation may be the subject of a close-out netting provision.

Article 7

Recognition of title transfer financial collateral arrangements

If a financial collateral arrangement provides that ownership of financial collateral is to pass to the collateral taker on delivery or payment, subject to an obligation to deliver equivalent collateral, Member States shall recognise that ownership of the financial collateral passes to the collateral taker in accordance with the arrangement.

Article 8

Recognition of close-out netting provisions

1. A close-out netting provision shall be effective notwithstanding the commencement or continuation of winding-up proceedings or reorganisation measures in respect of the collateral provider and/or the collateral taker.

(b) has a right to withdraw financial collateral on providing, by way of substitution or exchange, financial collateral of substantially the same value;

the provision of the financial collateral, additional financial collateral or substitute or replacement financial collateral shall not be treated as invalid, defective or voidable under any such rule of law as is described in paragraph 3 unless, and then only to the extent that, the financial collateral arrangement is itself treated as invalid, defective or voidable.

3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 apply to any rule of law under which a disposition or transfer of financial collateral is or may be deemed to be invalid, or may be reversed or declared void if made within a prescribed period defined by reference to the commencement of winding-up proceedings or reorganisation measures or by reference to the making of any order or decree or the taking of any other action or occurrence of any other event in the course of such proceedings or measures. This includes any rule under which an order or decree made in the course of such proceedings or measures takes effect from a time earlier than the time when it is actually made.

Article 10

Conflict of laws

Any question with respect to any of the matters specified in paragraph 3 arising in relation to the application of a financial collateral arrangement to any book entry securities collateral or cash collateral shall be governed by the law of the country or, where appropriate, the law of the part of the country in which the relevant account is maintained, whether or not that country is a Member State. The reference to the law of a country or part of a country is a reference to its domestic law, disregarding any rule under which, in deciding the relevant question, reference would be made to the law of another country.

2. A relevant account shall be treated for the purposes of this Article as maintained at any given time:

(a) at the office or branch of the relevant intermediary identified in the agreement governing the relevant account, provided that the relevant intermediary allocates the relevant account to that office or branch for purposes of reporting to its account holders or for regulatory or accounting purposes;

3. The matters referred to in paragraph 1 are:

(b) any act or thing necessary to ensure that any title to or interest in the book entry securities collateral arising under the financial collateral arrangement may be asserted generally against third parties;

(c) the steps required for the realisation of the collateral following the occurrence of an enforcement event, including any act or thing necessary to ensure that any disposal of the collateral will be effective generally as against persons who are not parties to the financial collateral arrangement.
