New look and feel for EUR-Lex

EUR-Lex has a new look, updated features and easier navigation.

The way you navigate around the website is clearer, with an easily accessible menu. We've also improved how you access and read documents and information related to them. For example, the home page has a cleaner look with five categories in the navigation: EU law, EU case-law, national law and case law, information and dedicated access to the Official Journal.

The search functionalities remain the same as previously. You will also still be able to access any documents and searches saved in your account.

The website is now mobile-friendly.

We've created a short video to go over the main elements of the update. You can watch it here.

Take a closer look

The main elements of the new design are:

1. There are four main categories in the menu, in addition to the Official Journal: 'EU Law', 'EU case-law', 'National law and case-law' and 'Information'.

2. Some labels have been renamed:

Previous label	New label
EU law and related documents	EU law
EU legislation	Legal acts
Consolidated acts	Consolidated texts
EU preparatory acts	Preparatory documents
Legislative procedures	Lawmaking procedures
Institutions and bodies	EU institutions
Directory of European Union case law	Directory of case law
National transposition measures	National transposition
JURE	JURE case law

3. When accessing a document, the tabs previously displayed at the top of the text (Text, Document information, Procedure, National transposition and Summary of EU legislation or Summary of Case law documents) are now accessible on the left of the text. This menu is dynamic, it travels when scrolling down the page to read the document.

4. Searching for documents remains mostly unchanged with the availability of the familiar features: Find results by, Quick search, Advanced search, Expert search (for signed in users only).

5. The site is now mobile friendly, so adapting to the size of the device's screen.
