MEPs:

First part: Text as a whole without the words: ‘the ‘do no significant harm’ principle, as mentioned in the Commission communication on sustainable carbon cycles, as well as’

Second part: those words

First part: ‘Emphasises that the EU should aim to achieve negative emissions as well as emissions reductions in order to avoid depending on future negative emissions that might never be achieved; insists that net-zero should not be the ultimate EU climate objective, but instead should be a stepping stone on the way to achieving net-negative emissions’

Second part: ‘welcomes the plan set out by the Commission on how carbon removal can contribute to achieving net-negative emissions; calls on the Commission to define a list of practices with the highest absorption potential as an important input for farmers and to further invest in developing accessible and affordable carbon-removal technologies; insists that removals should be counted towards a separate removal target to ensure they do not slow down economy-wide decarbonisation efforts;’

§ 10

First part: Text as a whole without the words: ‘rewetting of drained wetlands and peatlands,’

Second part: those words

§ 12

First part: ‘Stresses that the sequestration of carbon in soils, ecosystem and biodiversity protection and restoration are deeply interlinked and contribute to enhanced soil resilience and climate adaptation by improving soil structure, increasing water retention capacity and having a positive impact on plants and crops, while simultaneously decreasing the risk of soil erosion;’

Second part: ‘calls therefore on the Member States to introduce consistent soil protection in national CAP strategic plans;’

First part: ‘Notes that certain CAP instruments can incentivise carbon sequestration practices;’

Second part: ‘calls for the integration of carbon farming into upcoming CAP national strategic plans (NSPs) in line with Member States’ assessments and needs, to ensure that local natural conditions and other circumstances are adequately reflected; underlines that carbon farming must be implemented in a way that is consistent with existing and forthcoming legislation, nature restoration law, the EU soil health law, as well as the sustainable food systems framework;’

§ 33

First part: ‘Considers that switching from fossil energy sources to industrial use of biomass energy sources has a spillover effect with negative impacts on the amount of carbon stored in the land-use sector; reiterates that, from a climate change perspective, the increase in emissions persists until the payback period is passed, which for an energy crop may be centuries;’

Second part: ‘notes that, in relation to the goals of the Paris Agreement to limit warming to 1.5°C, payback periods of more than a decade have become irrelevant and counterproductive; calls for policy measures which strengthen carbon removals and storage in ecosystems by providing land managers with competitive incentives;’

§ 39

First part: Text as a whole without the words: ‘under CAP’

Second part: those words

recital A

First part: ‘whereas the transition to sustainable food systems in line with the ambitions of the European Green Deal for climate neutrality by 2050 at the latest should be made a central part of agriculture and food policies;’

Second part: ‘whereas carbon farming has the potential to contribute to the EU’s climate and biodiversity objectives, as well as to support sustainable food production;’

Recital B

First part: Text as a whole without the words: ‘whereas nature restoration is critical to respond to multiple global crises;’

Second part: those words
