EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

Subject: The 1987 bilateral agreement between the European Economic Community and the United States of America

1. In 1987 an "Agreement for the Conclusion of Negotiations between the European Economic Community and the United States of America under GATT Article XXIV.6" was entered into between the two parties by which they agreed upon a number of rights and obligations (1). Consultations between the two parties as foreseen in the Agreement subsequently took place in an attempt to find a solution to the disagreement existing between the Community and the United States, on whether or not new actions, if any, might be appropriate.
2. It was not possible to conclude these consultations by the end of 1990, notably in view of the prolongation of the Uruguay Round, and therefore in respect of those rights and obligations which were foreseen to expire on that date an agreement was reached between the Community and the United States to extend these until 31 December 1991. The Community implemented this prolongation by a Decision by the Council to approve an Exchange of Letters between the Community and United States complementing the Agreement (2).
3. The Commission considered it appropriate that on the one hand it was desirable to continue to apply these measures, in particular to avoid a worsening of the disagreement on this issue, and on the other hand that it was preferable to do so on an autonomous basis. Consequently, the Commission submitted to the Council a draft regulation extending these measures from 1 January 1992 for a year. Subsequently, the proposal was adopted by the Council late 1991 and published in Regulation (EEC) No 3919/91 (3).
4. As the negotiations under the Uruguay Round are continuing into 1993, a resolution of this issue is still not possible. The Commission, therefore, proposes to extend these measures for another year with effect from 1 January until 31 December 1993.
