2000-2001 SESSION

(2001/C 121/01)

MINUTESPROCEEDINGS OF THE SITTING

IN THE CHAIR: Mrs FONTAINE

President

1. Resumption of session

The sitting opened at 17.05.

2. In Memoriam

On behalf of Parliament, the President paid tribute to the memory of Mr Pierre Pflimlin, former President of European Parliament, who had died on 27 June 2000.

Parliament observed a minute's silence as the European anthem played in the background.

3. Communication from the President

The President, recalling that the corpses of 58 illegal immigrants had been discovered in the back of a lorry at Dover and that two young people from Guinea had been found dead clinging to the landing gear of an aeroplane the year before in Brussels, stated that the European Union had a duty to step up the fight against modern-day slavery within the framework of its development policy. She added that, at Parliament's request, the Council and the Commission would be making statements on the subject at the following day's sitting (Item 57 of the agenda).

Monday 3 July 2000

The following spoke:

- Helmer who, referring to an article in the British press, which reported that the President of Parliament, following her meeting with Queen Elizabeth II, had made statements which he felt amounted to a breach of protocol, demanded further details concerning the audience in question (the President assured him that she had not given a press conference following the meeting but that she had addressed, inter alia, the issue of the euro);
- Tajani who, drawing attention to the way a number of disabled football fans had been searched on their way in to the previous evening's Euro 2000 final in Rotterdam, while a television crew filming the incident had been arrested, called for Parliament to condemn the incident in the strongest possible terms; he went on to criticise the sentencing of 10 Jewish Iranian citizens to corporal punishment (the President expressed outrage at Mr Tajani's first point and promised to give serious thought to what steps should be taken; with respect to the speaker's subsequent remarks, she informed him she would be writing to the Iranian President to plead for clemency if the court of appeal were to uphold the sentence);
- Napolitano, who supported Mr Tajani's first point and stated that the PSE Group would propose addressing the matter in the topical and urgent debate;
- Oostlander, on Mr Tajani's criticism of the Dutch police force and what he felt was the unwarranted parallel drawn with the Iranian case;
- Swoboda, who pointed out that the Yugoslav parliament was set to debate a draft anti-riot act which was essentially targeted at young Serbs and who called for the EU authorities to do all they could to prevent the bill being adopted (the President noted his request);
- Miller, first on the incident described by Mr Tajani, then to remark on what a success the previous evening's final had been and finally to ask Mr Helmer to join him in welcoming Queen Elizabeth II's support for the euro; (the President stated that she had also been at the match and concurred with the speaker regarding the excellent atmosphere that had prevailed at the ground; she added however that the incident referred to by Mr Tajani would be looked into with the necessary tact);
- Hautala, on the outcome of the previous day's Mexican presidential elections;
- Blak, on the Euro 2000 final.

Monday 3 July 2000

5. Membership of Parliament

The President informed Parliament that Mr Fitto had been appointed president of the Apulia regional government with effect from 21 June 2000.

She congratulated him on his appointment and pointed out, pursuant to Article 6 of the Act on the election of the representatives of the European Parliament by direct universal suffrage, that this office was incompatible with that of Member of Parliament.

She added that the Italian authorities had informed her that Mr Fitto would be replaced by Mr Generoso Andria and that Mr Cacciari would be replaced by Mr Luciano Emilio Cavere, with effect from 21 June 2000.

She welcomed the new Members and drew attention to the provisions of Rule 7(5).

MINUTES

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SITTING

IN THE CHAIR: Mr ONESTA

Vice-President

1. Opening of sitting

The sitting opened at 09.00.

2. Approval of Minutes of previous sitting

The following spoke:

- Miller who referred to his remarks under Item 4 and recalled having asked Mr Helmer, who had spoken before him, to join him in congratulating Queen Elizabeth II for backing the introduction of the euro in the United Kingdom; he wished these remarks, which were absent from the Minutes, to be put on the record.
- Haarder, Matikainen-Kallström, Frahm and Seppänen, on difficulties with flights between Strasbourg and the Member States, in particular on the length of these trips and the haphazard conditions under which they took place, which had led to many Members travelling from northern Member States the previous day arriving too late to take part in the sitting; they all called on the French authorities to take steps to improve the situation.
- Robert Evans who, recalled that the previous day many Members had left the Chamber when the Portuguese Prime Minister began his speech (Item 14), which he felt amounted to an inexcusable lack of respect; he asked that the President of Parliament take the matter up with the political group chairmen and other bodies so that meetings were not scheduled to clash with visits to Parliament by heads of state and government (the President promised to forward his request to the political group leaders).
- Katiforis, Giannakou-Koutsikou, Alyssandrakis, Korakas and Camre on recent developments in Cyprus and in particular on the Turkish army's entry into the neutral separation zone; they called on the President of Parliament and other EU leaders to take the matter up with the relevant authorities, especially the Turkish Government, with a view to reversing this breach of international treaties.
- Blak on problems with flights to Strasbourg.
- Plooi-j-van Gorsel, who complained that visitors to Parliament in Brussels had their ID documents withheld by the security services (the President suggested that the speaker take the matter up with the Quaestors).

The President, noting that certain Members took advantage of the approval of the previous sitting's Minutes to embark upon a political debate, only to leave the Chamber as soon as the scheduled debates began, suggested that Parliament should rethink the way in which sittings were conducted.

The Minutes of the previous sitting were approved.

IN THE CHAIR: Mr WIEBENGA

*Vice-President1. Opening of sitting

The sitting opened at 09.00.

2. Approval of Minutes of previous sitting

Mr Martelli had informed the Chair that he had been present at the sitting of 16 June 2000 but had forgotten to sign the attendance register; Mrs Matikainen-Kallström had informed the Chair that she had been present at the sitting of 3 July 2000 but that she had omitted to sign the attendance register.

The following spoke:

- Marinos who, referring to Item 12 (Question Time) and more specifically to question 16, stated that, contrary to what had been recorded in the Minutes, the President-in-Office of the Council, Pierre Moscovici, had not answered his supplementary question and had, moreover, behaved with scant regard for accepted parliamentary etiquette; he asked for the Minutes to be corrected accordingly (the President took note of his request and assured him that the matter would be looked into);
- Zacharakis who, endorsing the previous speaker's remarks, added that the Council had also declined to answer his supplementary to question 16, once again failing to observe standard procedure;
- Miller who referred to the remarks he had made during the previous two days' sittings (Minutes of 3/4 July, Items 4 and 2 respectively).

The Minutes of the previous sitting were approved.

The following spoke:

- Swoboda, who stated that he understood Mrs Stauner to have withdrawn, in the Committee on Budgetary Control, the explanatory statement to her report on granting discharge to the Commission for its implementation of the 1998 budget (A5-0190/2000); in view of the fact that the report distributed as a session document had in fact contained the explanatory statement, he asked the President to establish whether the explanatory statement had actually been withdrawn;
- Theato who, in response to the previous speaker, confirmed that the previous day she had indeed withdrawn the explanatory statement, in her capacity as Chairman of the Committee on Budgetary Control, and that she would sign the letter, communicating this officially, forthwith;
- McKenna who, in view of the fact that the Irish authorities had directly appointed their own candidate for the post of Vice-President of the European Investment Bank, in breach of EC law, called on the President, after casting aspersions upon the ability and suitability of the candidate in question, to invite the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs to consider the matter (the President suggested that the speaker take the matter up directly with the committee concerned);
- Tajani who, referring to the fire that had swept through an area near Rome on Monday, laying waste to the landscape and destroying homes, called for the Community to take action on summer fires in the Mediterranean.

Recital 5a (new)

The institutions are still urged therefore to make available to everyone easily accessible consolidated versions of legal texts.

Framework Agreement on relations between the European Parliament and the Commission

The European Parliament and the Commission,

- having regard to the Treaty on European Union,
- having regard to the statements made to the European Parliament by the President of the Commission since May 1999,
- having regard to the written and oral statements made by each of the candidate Commissioners in the course of their hearings by the European Parliament's committees, and the assessments of these candidates as presented by the committees' chairpersons following the hearings,

Wednesday 5 July 2000

- having regard to the statement made by the candidate for President of the Commission before the Conference of Presidents on 7 September 1999,
 - having regard to the programme of the nominee Commission submitted on 14 September 1999 by the candidate for President of the Commission,
 - having regard to the European Parliament decision of 15 September 1999 ⁽¹⁾ approving the appointment of Mr Prodi as President of the Commission and the appointment of the Commission for the remainder of the term of office expiring on 22 January 2000 and for the term of office running from 23 January 2000 to 22 January 2005,
 - having regard to Article 214 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to the Rules of Procedure of the European Parliament, and in particular Rules 32 and 33,
- A. whereas the Treaty on European Union seeks in particular to strengthen the democratic legitimacy of the Union's decision-making process,
- B. whereas the European Parliament's approval of the Commission exemplifies the relationship of trust which should bind the two institutions throughout the parliamentary term,
- C. whereas this framework agreement does not affect the powers and prerogatives of the European Parliament or of the Commission but seeks to ensure that they are exercised as effectively as possible within the single institutional framework based on Article 3 of the Treaty on European Union, agree as follows:

General principles

1. In order to update the code of conduct adopted in 1990 and amended in 1995, the two institutions agree on the following measures to strengthen the responsibility and legitimacy of the Commission, to extend constructive dialogue and political cooperation, to improve the flow of information and to consult and inform the European Parliament on Commission administrative reforms. They also agree on a number of specific implementing measures (i) on the legislative process, (ii) on international agreements and enlargement, and (iii) on the transmission of confidential Commission documents and information. Those implementing measures are annexed to this framework agreement.

Extending constructive dialogue and political cooperation

2. The President or a Vice-President of the Commission undertakes to report to the Conference of Presidents every six months, outlining the political implementation of the work programme for the year in question and any updating rendered necessary by topical and important political events.

3. The Commission shall continue to report regularly to the European Parliament on action taken in response to requests by the European Parliament. Such information shall be provided at least every three months.

4. The Commission shall take account of any requests made pursuant to Article 192 of the EC Treaty by the European Parliament to the Commission to submit legislative proposals, and undertakes to provide a prompt and sufficiently detailed reply to any such request within the relevant parliamentary committee and, if necessary, at a plenary sitting of the European Parliament.

5. The Commission, when giving its opinion on the European Parliament's legislative amendments to the Council under Article 251 of the EC Treaty, undertakes to take the utmost account of amendments adopted at second reading; should it decide, on important grounds and following examination by the College, not to adopt or support such amendments, it shall explain its decision before the European Parliament, or in the next meeting of the relevant parliamentary committee.

6. The Commission shall ensure, within its abilities, that the European Parliament is kept informed and is fully associated with the preparation and conduct of Intergovernmental Conferences.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

7. An incoming Commission shall present, as soon as possible, its political programme, containing all its proposed guidelines for its term of office, and shall establish a dialogue with the European Parliament.

8. The Commission shall submit reports at regular intervals to the European Parliament on the implementation of the Budget; the European Parliament undertakes to scrutinise those reports at the level of its relevant committees.

Political responsibility

9. Without prejudice to the principle of Commission collegiality, each Member of the Commission shall take political responsibility for action in the field of which he or she is in charge.

10. The Commission accepts that, where the European Parliament expresses lack of confidence in a Member of the Commission (subject to political support for such a view, in terms both of substance and of form), the President of the Commission will consider seriously whether he should request that Member to resign.

11. The President of the Commission shall immediately notify the European Parliament of any decision concerning the allocation of responsibilities to any of the Members of the Commission. In the case of substantial changes affecting an individual Commissioner (such as the assignment of an entirely new portfolio or an important set of new responsibilities), he or she shall appear before the relevant parliamentary committee at its request.

Flow of information

12. The Commission shall keep the European Parliament fully and promptly informed about its proposals and initiatives in the legislative and budgetary fields, as well as, within its abilities, those in the areas of the Common Foreign and Security Policy and of Freedom, Security and Justice.

In all fields where the European Parliament acts in a legislative capacity, or as a branch of the budgetary authority, it shall be informed, on a par with the Council, at every stage of the legislative and budgetary process.

13. The Commission shall not make public any legislative initiative or significant initiative or decision before notifying the European Parliament thereof in writing, and for politically important topics shall, in agreement with the European Parliament, offer to inform the European Parliament:

- either at a plenary sitting, if the European Parliament is in session;
- or before the Conference of Presidents, which shall be open to all Members of the European Parliament on that occasion;
- or by informing in an appropriate manner the chairpersons of the relevant parliamentary committees, who may convene a meeting of the committee concerned.

Specific provisions will be laid down in Annex 3 concerning confidential information.

14. Each Commissioner shall make sure that there is a regular and direct flow of information between the Commissioner and the chairperson of the parliamentary committee concerned.

15. The Commission shall, within its abilities, ensure that the European Parliament is kept quickly and fully informed at all stages of the preparation, negotiation and conclusion of international agreements, in such a way as to enable the Commission to take account of the European Parliament's views in accordance with the provisions of Annex 2.

16. The Commission, in carrying out its responsibilities under the Treaty in relation to the common foreign and security policy and to police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters, shall take measures to improve the involvement of the European Parliament in those areas, in such a way as to enable the Commission to take account of the European Parliament's views as far as possible.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

17. In connection with the annual discharge governed by Article 276 of the EC Treaty, the European Parliament and the Commission agree that the Commission shall forward all information necessary for supervising the implementation of the budget for the year in question, which the chairperson of the parliamentary committee responsible for the discharge procedure pursuant to Annex VI of the Rules of Procedure of the European Parliament requests from it for that purpose.

If new aspects come to light concerning previous years for which discharge has already been given, the Commission shall forward all the necessary information on the matter with a view to arriving at a solution which is acceptable to both sides.

Parliamentary proceedings

18. If an internal Commission document — of which the European Parliament has not been informed pursuant to Point 13 of this Framework Agreement — is circulated outside the institutions, the President of the European Parliament may request that the document concerned be forwarded to the European Parliament without delay in order to communicate it to any Members of the European Parliament who may request it.

19. The Commission shall ensure, as a general rule, that the Commissioner responsible is present whenever this is requested by the European Parliament at plenary sittings for agenda items falling under his or her responsibility.

20. With a view to ensuring the presence of Commissioners, the European Parliament undertakes to do its best to maintain its final draft agendas.

21. Where the European Parliament amends its draft agenda subsequently to the meeting of the Conference of Presidents that decides the final draft agenda of a part-session, or where it moves items within the agenda within a part-session, the Commission shall use its best endeavours to ensure the presence of the Commissioner responsible.

22. The Commission may propose the inclusion of items on the agenda not later than the meeting of the Conference of Presidents that decides the final draft agenda of a part-session. The European Parliament shall take the fullest account of such proposals.

23. Requests from Commissioners to make a statement at a plenary sitting, pursuant to Rule 37 of the European Parliament's Rules of Procedure, shall be included, where possible, on the agenda of the forthcoming part-session.

24. As a general rule, the Commissioner responsible for an item under consideration in a parliamentary committee shall be present at the relevant committee meeting, when invited.

Any Member of the Commission shall be heard at his or her request.

Where the presence of a Member of the Commission is not explicitly required at a parliamentary committee meeting, the Commission shall ensure that it is represented by a competent official at a senior level.

Administrative reforms

25. The Commission shall establish the appropriate mechanisms to inform the European Parliament, and to hold a constructive dialogue with it, on a regular basis, on the ongoing administrative reform of the Commission.

26. Any code of conduct for Commissioners shall be sent immediately to the European Parliament. Its implementation shall be examined regularly.

Final provisions

27. The European Parliament and the Commission undertake to reinforce their cooperation in the field of information and communication. They may coordinate their respective activities within the framework of the Interinstitutional Working Group on Information and Communication. In this context they may draw up joint actions aimed at increasing citizens' awareness, and shall ensure proper coordination of their information activities while respecting the autonomy and distinctive role of each institution.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

28. A periodic assessment of the application of this framework agreement shall be carried out by the two institutions.

29. All specific measures are set out in the Annexes.

ANNEX 1

Specific agreement on the legislative process

1. In implementation of the above framework agreement, and building on the experience of the 1990 and 1995⁽¹⁾ codes of conduct between the Commission and the European Parliament, the two institutions agree on the following specific provisions as regards the handling of the legislative process.

Legislative planning and the annual legislative programme

2. In drawing up its annual legislative programme, the Commission shall take the utmost account of the guidelines suggested by the European Parliament. The Commission shall present its programme in sufficient time to permit a wide public debate on its contents. It shall provide sufficient detail as to what is envisaged precisely under each point in the programme, in order for the European Parliament to take this into account in its own legislative planning. The Commission shall as soon as possible inform the inter-institutional coordination working group whenever delays are encountered as regards the presentation of any specific proposal or document in the adopted programme, without prejudice to the Commission's competences.

Choice of legal basis

3. The Commission undertakes to inform the European Parliament, at the same time as the Council, of any proposal amending legal bases in the course of decision-making procedures.

4. The Commission shall take the utmost account of all changes to the legal bases of its proposals contained in the European Parliament's amendments. The Commission undertakes to set out in detail the reasons for its position.

General legislative procedures

5. The Commission and the European Parliament shall ensure full implementation of the Joint Declaration on practical arrangements for the new codecision procedure (Article 251 of the EC Treaty) signed by the European Parliament, Council and Commission on 5 May 1999⁽²⁾.

6. The Commission shall keep the relevant parliamentary committee regularly informed of the principal positions emerging from discussions within Council bodies, particularly where they depart from the original proposal, and shall also forward any Commission amendments to the original proposal on the basis of which the Council would continue its discussions. The Commission shall inform the European Parliament as soon as possible if it adopts a favourable opinion on amendments by the Council to its proposals.

7. For legislative procedures not entailing codecision:

(i) The Commission shall ensure that the Council bodies are reminded in good time not to reach a political agreement on its proposals before the European Parliament has given its opinion. It shall ask for discussion to be concluded at ministerial level after a reasonable period has been given to the members of the Council to examine the European Parliament's opinion.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

- (ii) The Commission shall ensure that the Council adheres to the rules developed by the Court of Justice requiring the European Parliament to be re-consulted if the Council substantially amends a Commission proposal. The Commission shall inform the European Parliament of any reminder to the Council of the need for re-consultation.
- (iii) The Commission undertakes, if appropriate, to withdraw a legislative proposal that the European Parliament has rejected. If, for important reasons and after consideration by the College, the Commission decides to maintain its proposal, it shall explain the reasons for that decision in a statement before the European Parliament.
- (iv) In order to improve legislative planning, the European Parliament undertakes:
- as far as possible to appoint rapporteurs on future proposals as soon as the legislative programme is adopted;
 - to consider requests for reconsultation as a matter of absolute priority provided that all the necessary information has been forwarded to it;
 - to take account of the priorities considered by the Commission and Council in planning its activities;
 - to plan the legislative sections of its agendas, bringing them into line with the current legislative programme and with the resolutions it has adopted on that programme;
 - to meet reasonable deadlines, in so far as is useful for the procedure, when delivering its opinion at first reading under the cooperation and codecision procedures or its opinions under the consultation procedure.

8. When an act has been annulled by the Court but continues to produce legal effects, the Commission undertakes to present a modified proposal for a legislative act implementing the judgment of the Court.

The Commission shall inform the European Parliament in full and in advance when it intends to take implementing measures on the basis of an act that has been annulled but continues to produce legal effects, so as to ensure that account is taken of the European Parliament's views.

9. The Commission shall give the European Parliament and the Council prior notification before withdrawing its proposals.

Specific legislative powers of the Commission

10. The Commission shall give full and timely information to the European Parliament concerning acts which the Commission adopts which fall within the scope of its own legislative powers.

Implementing powers

11. The implementation of Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission⁽¹⁾ shall be governed by the agreement between the Commission and the European Parliament on the procedures for implementing that decision⁽²⁾.

The European Parliament and the Commission shall ensure the strict implementation of this agreement.

12. The Code of Conduct on the implementation of structural policies by the Commission (2000-2006) signed on 6 May 1999⁽³⁾ shall continue to apply to implementing acts covering the Structural Funds.

Monitoring the application of Community law

13. In addition to specific reports and the annual report on the application of Community law, the Commission shall, at the request of the relevant parliamentary committee, keep the European Parliament informed orally of the stage reached in the procedure as from the stage when the reasoned opinion is sent and, in cases where procedures have been initiated for failure to communicate the measures implementing a directive, or for failure to comply with a judgment of the Court of Justice, as from the stage of formal notice.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

The two institutions agree to exchange all relevant information relating to legislative planning, and the organisation of legislative procedures, within the inter-institutional coordination working group.

ANNEX 2

Forwarding to the European Parliament information on international agreements and enlargement, and involvement of the European Parliament in this respect

1. In order to enable more specific implementation of the general principle contained in the framework agreement, and building on the experience of point 3.10 in the 1995 Code of Conduct between the Commission and the European Parliament, the two institutions agree on the following measures:

International agreements

2. In relation to international agreements, including trade agreements (the preparation phase for such agreements, draft negotiating directives and the adopted negotiating directives) the Commission shall provide early and clear briefing of the European Parliament in order to be able to take due account of the European Parliament's views in so far as possible.

3. The Commission shall keep the European Parliament, through the relevant parliamentary committee and, where appropriate, at a plenary sitting, regularly and fully informed of the subsequent conduct and conclusion of international negotiations. The information referred to in the previous point shall be provided to the European Parliament in sufficient time for it to be able to express its points of view if appropriate. The European Parliament undertakes, for its part, to establish appropriate procedures and safeguards as regards confidentiality, in accordance with the provisions of Annex 3.

4. The Commission shall take the necessary steps to ensure that the European Parliament is immediately and fully informed of:

- (i) decisions concerning the provisional application or the suspension of agreements, and
- (ii) the establishment of a common position in a body set up by an agreement based on Article 310 of the EC Treaty.

5. At the request of the European Parliament, the Commission shall facilitate the inclusion of Members of the European Parliament as observers in Community delegations negotiating multilateral agreements, on the understanding that the Members may not take part directly in the negotiating sessions themselves, wherever the Commission alone represents the Community.

The European Parliament observers shall, however, be kept regularly informed on the progress of negotiations during the meetings in accordance with the conditions laid down in the exchange of letters between the Presidents of the two Institutions, in order for the Commission to be able to take account of the European Parliament's views.

Enlargement

6. The Commission shall keep the European Parliament fully informed of the progress of enlargement negotiations, so as to enable it to express its views in good time through the appropriate parliamentary procedures.

7. In this context the Commission will, within its means, provide relevant oral or written information to the European Parliament on the major aspects and developments concerning enlargement.

8. When the European Parliament adopts a recommendation on these matters, pursuant to Rule 96 of its Rules of Procedure, and when, for important reasons, the Commission decides that it cannot support such a recommendation, it shall explain the reasons before the European Parliament, at a plenary sitting or at the next meeting of the relevant parliamentary committee.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

ANNEX 3

Forwarding of confidential information to the European Parliament

1. Scope

1.1. This Annex shall govern the forwarding to the European Parliament and the handling of confidential information from the Commission in connection with the exercise of parliamentary prerogatives concerning the legislative and budgetary procedures, the procedure for giving discharge and the exercise in general terms of the European Parliament's powers of scrutiny. 11. Money laundering *I

A5-0175/2000

Proposal for a European Parliament and Council directive amending Council Directive 91/308/EEC of 10 June 1991 on prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering (COM(1999) 352 – C5-0065/1999 – 1999/0152(COD))

The proposal was amended as follows:

TEXT PROPOSED
BY THE COMMISSION

AMENDMENTS
BY PARLIAMENT

(Amendment 1)

Recital 10a (new)

(10a) Whereas it would be desirable for all Member States to establish regulatory authorities with specific responsibility for overseeing the activities of currency exchange offices and money transmitters in order to ensure the proper enforcement of the Directive;

(Amendment 41)

Recital 15

(15) Whereas the Directive imposes obligations regarding in particular the reporting of suspicious transactions; whereas it would be more appropriate and in line with the philosophy of the Action Plan to Combat Organised Crime for the prohibition of money laundering under the Directive to be extended to cover not only drugs offences but all organised crime activities, as well as fraud, corruption and any other illegal activities affecting the financial interests of the Communities, as referred to in Article 280 of the Treaty;

(15) Whereas the Directive imposes obligations regarding in particular the reporting of suspicious transactions; whereas it would be more appropriate and in line with the philosophy of the Action Plan to Combat Organised Crime for the prohibition of money laundering under the Directive to be extended to cover not only drugs offences but all organised crime activities; whereas, moreover, Article 280 of the Treaty provides that the financial interests of the Community should be effectively protected; whereas the Directive should be regarded as forming part of that protection;

Recital 16

(16) Whereas, in the case of such fraud, corruption and other illegal activities, the Member State authorities responsible for combating money laundering and the Commission should cooperate with each other and exchange relevant information;

Deleted

(Amendment 4)

Recital 16a (new)

(16a) Whereas a uniform definition of organised crime does not yet exist at either international or European Union level; whereas a more precise definition of the term should nonetheless be adopted for the purposes of the Directive;

TEXT PROPOSED
BY THE COMMISSION

AMENDMENTS
BY PARLIAMENT

(Amendment 5)
Recital 22a (new)

(22a) Whereas the provisions relating to credit and financial institutions cannot be adopted unchanged in this context;

(Amendment 34)
Recital 23

(23) Whereas notaries and independent legal professionals should be made subject to the provisions of the Directive when performing a limited number of specific financial or corporate transactions where there is the greatest risk of the services of those legal professionals being misused for the purpose of laundering the proceeds of drugs trafficking or organised crime;

(23) Whereas notaries and independent legal professionals, as defined by the Member States, should be made subject to the provisions of the Directive when performing a limited number of specific financial or corporate transactions where there is the greatest risk of their services being misused for the purpose of laundering the proceeds of drugs trafficking or organised crime;

(Amendment 7)
Recital 23a (new)

(23a) Whereas the obligations laid down in the Directive should apply to a lawyer, tax consultant, notary or accountant only if he/she is involved to a significant extent in the activities of his/her client; whereas this means, for example, that the simple act of drawing up a draft contract of sale or draft articles of association would not trigger the obligations laid down in the Directive; whereas those obligations would be triggered only by the representation of his/her client by the lawyer, in which connection representation will cover not only acting as the client's agent, for example in connection with the conclusion of contracts, but any active participation, for example in negotiations;

(Amendment 45)
Recital 24

(24) Whereas, however, where an independent lawyer or law firm is representing a client in formal legal proceedings it would not be appropriate under the Directive to put the lawyer under an obligation to report suspicions of money laundering;

(24) Whereas, however, where an independent lawyer or law firm or legal practice carried out in an integrated form of cooperation with persons outside the legal profession, where this is permitted, is representing a client in formal legal proceedings or engaged in giving legal advice, it would not be appropriate under the Directive to put that lawyer or law firm or legal practice under an obligation to report suspicions of money laundering;

BY THE COMMISSIONAMENDMENTS
BY PARLIAMENT

(Amendment 35)

Recital 25

(25) Whereas the Directive makes reference to 'the authorities responsible for combating money laundering' to which reports of suspicious operations must be made; whereas in the case of independent lawyers and to take proper account of the professional duty of discretion owed by the lawyer to his client Member States should be allowed to nominate the bar association or other lawyers' professional organisation as the responsible authority; whereas the rules governing the treatment of such reports and their possible onward transmission to the police or judicial authorities and in general the appropriate forms of co-operation between the bar associations or professional bodies and the authorities responsible for combating money laundering shall be determined by the Member States;

(25) Whereas the Directive makes reference to 'the authorities responsible for combating money laundering' to which reports of suspicious operations must be made; whereas in the case of independent lawyers or law firms or members of regulated legal professions, in order to take proper account of lawyers' professional secrecy and client confidentiality, Member States may designate the bar association or self-regulatory body of the profession concerned, subject to the approval of that association or body, as the authority responsible for cooperation with the other authorities responsible for combating money laundering so that lawyers' professional secrecy and client confidentiality can be protected;

BY PARLIAMENT

- (ii) The procedures may apply provided there are no reasonable grounds to believe that face-to-face contact is being avoided in order to conceal the true identity of the customer and there is no suspicion of money laundering.
- (iii) The procedures should not apply to operations involving the use of cash.
- (iv) The internal control procedures stipulated in Article 11(1) of the Directive should take specific account of non-face-to-face operations.
- (v) When the counterpart of the institution undertaking the operation ('contracting institution') is a customer, identification may be carried out by the following procedures:
- (a) Using the contracting institution's branch or representative office which is nearest the customer in order to carry out a face-to-face identification.
- (b) If the identification is carried out without a face-to-face contact with the customer:
- A copy of the customer's official identification document or the official number of the identification document should be required. Special attention should be paid to the verification of the customer's address when this is indicated on the identification document (e.g. documents concerning the operation to be sent by registered mail with advice of receipt to the customer's address).
 - The first payment of the operation should be carried through an account opened in the customer's name with a credit institution located in the European Union or in the European Economic Area. States may allow payments carried out through reputable credit institutions established in third countries which apply equivalent anti money laundering standards.
 - The contracting institution should carefully verify that the identities of the holder of the account through which the payment is made and of the customer, as indicated in the identification document (or ascertained from the identification number) are one and the same. In the case of doubt in this regard, the contracting institution should contact the credit institution with which the account is opened in order to confirm the identity of the account holder. If the doubt still remains a certificate from the credit institution should be required attesting to the identity of the account holder and confirming that the identification was properly carried out and that the particulars have been registered according to the Directive.
- (c) In the case of certain insurance operations, identification requirements may be waived when the payment 'is to be debited from an account opened in the customer's name with a credit institution subject to this Directive' (Article 3(8)).

- (vi) When the counterpart of the contracting institution is another institution acting on behalf of a customer:
- (a) If the counterpart is located in the European Union or in the European Economic Area, identification of the customer by the contracting institution is not required (Art. 3(7) of the Directive).
- (b) If the counterpart is located outside the European Union and the European Economic Area, the institution should check the identity of its counterpart (unless it is well known), by consulting a reliable financial directory. In the case of doubt in this regard, the institution should seek confirmation of its counterpart's identity from the third country supervisory authorities. The institution should also take 'reasonable measures to obtain information' on the customer of its counterpart (beneficial owner of the operation) (Art. 3(5) of the Directive). These 'reasonable measures' could go from simply requesting the name and address of the customer, when the country applies equivalent identification requirements, to requesting a counterpart's certificate stating that the customer's identity has been properly verified and registered, when in the country in question the identification requirements are not equivalent.
- (vii) The abovementioned procedures do not preclude the use of other ones which, in the opinion of the competent authorities, may provide equivalent safety for the identification in non-face-to-face financial operations.

13. 2001 budget (conciliation procedure)A5-0184/2000*European Parliament resolution on the 2001 budget in view of the conciliation procedure before the Council's first reading

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Article 272 of the EC Treaty, Article 177 of the Euratom Treaty and Article 78 of the ECSC Treaty,
 - having regard to the Interinstitutional Agreement (IIA) of 6 May 1999 between the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission on budgetary discipline and improvement of the budgetary procedure ⁽¹⁾, and in particular Annex III thereof,
 - having regard to the preliminary draft budget of the Commission for 2001 (COM(2000) 300),
 - having regard to the proposal for a European Parliament and Council decision concerning the revision of the financial perspective (Interinstitutional Agreement of 6 May 1999 on budgetary discipline and improvement of the budgetary procedure) (COM(2000) 262 — 2000/0109(COD)),
 - having regard to its resolution of 30 March 2000 on the guidelines for the 2001 budget procedure — Section III — Commission ⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Budgets and the opinions of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Human Rights, Common Security and Defence Policy, the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs, the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs, the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development, the Committee on Fisheries, the Committee on Development and Cooperation and the Committee on Industry, External Trade, Research and Energy (A5-0184/2000),
- A. whereas the Commission has presented a proposal for revision of the financial perspective and a Preliminary Draft Budget (PDB) for 2001 at the same time, respecting paragraph 20 of the IIA,
 - B. whereas the PDB for 2001 foresees an increase of 3,9% in commitment appropriations compared to the budget for 2000, and, thereof, the increase in commitments in heading 1 (agriculture) is 7,6% while the increase of the other parts of the PDB is less than 1%,

- C. whereas the increase in payment appropriations is 5,0 % compared to the budget for 2000, representing 1,07 % of the Member States' GNP compared to 1,11 % in 2000,
- D. whereas, pursuant to the provisions of paragraph 19 of the IIA, the financial perspective may be revised if unforeseen circumstances arise and the Council, with respect to the IIA, has to make every effort to conclude negotiations on a revision before its first reading in order to define the financial framework for the budgetary procedure 2001,
- E. whereas the conciliation procedure before Council's first reading aims, in particular, to evaluate the needs for agriculture, the common foreign and security policy and the international fisheries agreements,
- F. whereas this procedure also provides an opportunity to evaluate the proposals from the Commission for the forthcoming financial year and the implementation of the current budget,
- G. whereas, at the end of the budget procedure for the year 2000, the two arms of the budgetary authority agreed to proceed to a revision of the financial perspective if the needs for the Balkans were to require a financial effort significantly greater than that already programmed,
- H. whereas the Commission is about to present a legislative proposal for a programme covering the Western Balkans within the financial framework of its revision proposal,

On the financial framework

1. Notes the Commission's initiative to present a proposal for a revision of the financial perspective, in respect of the joint declaration of the European Parliament and the Council on the Balkan situation annexed to the IIA giving the budgetary authority the possibility of defining the financial framework for the 2001 budget;
2. Considers that the revision of the financial perspective is necessary to allow the Union to face the challenges of these commitments in the world and notably for cooperation with less-developed third countries and the stabilisation of the Western Balkans;
3. Underlines that — with its vote of 6 May 1999 on the IIA — the Parliament has already accepted the cut of 22 % made by the European Council in Berlin in respect of the Commission's proposal for heading 4 in Agenda 2000; therefore rejects the idea of a compulsory multiannual redeployment of EU traditional priorities solely through a reduction of the envelopes, to finance new needs;
4. Recalls that the IIA does not provide for any link between the headings and stresses that the reduction of heading 1 for 2001 and 2002 cannot be made through the artificial reduction of the ceiling;
5. Trusts that the Council will cooperate fully with a view to concluding negotiations as soon as possible, in accordance with paragraph 20 of the IIA and Article 10 of the EC Treaty;
6. Considers that its responsibilities as budgetary authority entail taking all necessary steps to guarantee proper funding of EU priorities;
7. Takes note of the proposal for a new multiannual programme for the Western Balkans amounting to € 5,5 billion of which only € 1,86 billion is covered by the financial perspective, according to the estimates of the Commission; in consequence, insists therefore on a multiannual revision of the ceiling of heading 4;
8. Regrets that the Commission has still to provide the budgetary authority with the requested underpinning of the financial needs for the Balkans; considers, therefore, the amounts to be indicative;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

9. Calls on the Council to respect fully the spirit and the provisions of the IIA in line with the Commission who presented its proposal in the timetable foreseen by paragraph 20 thereof, and expects the Council to be consistent with its statement made in the context of its guidelines for budget 2001, in favour of genuine and constructive cooperation;

10. Notes the Commission proposals for re-programming the financial commitments of the Union in headings 3 and 4 – proposals which have only indicative status for the budgetary authority; considers that the Union should honour the financial commitments it makes, both internally and externally, and within the time-scale envisaged for their implementation; warns that it would do the Union irreparable political damage if it were unilaterally to conduct a large-scale withdrawal from its financial commitments either towards its own Member States or towards third states;

11. States, as a general principle of budgetary discipline and sound financial management, that commitments should correspond as closely as possible to real, clearly-identified needs and to the capacity of potential beneficiaries actually to absorb the expenditure within the time-scale foreseen for the action concerned; warns against the growing disjuncture between commitments made and the actual disbursement of payments; declares its openness to work together with the other institutions to find new ways of improving implementation;

12. Regrets the renewed Commission tendency in the PDB to discontinue budget lines originally created at the initiative of Parliament or considered by Parliament to be of particular importance; warns the Commission that it cannot unilaterally reduce or ignore existing commitments in other sectors merely to find a certain quantity of reductions which it might consider necessary in order to finance new commitments, especially in heading 4;

On the ad hoc procedure*Agriculture*

13. Confirms its willingness to review the agriculture forecast in October 2000 and considers it inappropriate to reduce the ceiling of heading 1 for the 2001 budget before a clear situation of market forecasts is available; reminds that the Early Warning Paper No 5/2000 shows an increase of expenditure in 7 sectors;

14. Criticises the Commission for not taking into account Parliament's opinion of 3 May 2000⁽¹⁾ regarding the school milk scheme when presenting the preliminary draft budget for 2001; reiterates its insistence on adequate funding of the measure proportional to the utilisation of appropriations in previous years;

15. Considers that budget allocations to counter future outbreaks of animal disease are difficult to estimate as has been noted during the latest outbreaks of swine fever (1997/1998) and mad cow disease (1996/1998); insists on the creation of a special reserve where appropriations are only called on when necessary; therefore, calls on the Commission to carry out a comprehensive cost-benefit analysis of action to date to combat animal diseases, including the implications of eastward enlargement;

16. Considers that appropriations for the promotion of agricultural products and food quality (B1-380 and B1-406) are not allocated in a coherent way, and the choice of products is arbitrary, and demands that these measures should be strengthened, as requested since the dioxin crisis in 1999;

17. Welcomes the Commission's initiative to budgetise in heading 1b the full amount available under the financial perspective; considers, nevertheless, that the Commission's expectation that all appropriations in heading 1b can be used is too optimistic and invites the Commission to re-evaluate in its Letter of Amendment the financial needs with the most up-to-date information on the presentation of projects by the Member States;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

18. Reiterates its keen interest in the transformation of the nature of the appropriations for heading 1b into differentiated appropriations; recalls that both arms of the budgetary authority agreed to this change during the 2000 budgetary procedure;

19. Asks the Commission before Parliament's first reading to forward a communication on the feasibility of carrying over underspent resources in heading 1b from one financial year to the next;

International fisheries agreements and organisations

20. Allows for the fact that there is a series of fisheries agreements and protocols which have to be renegotiated in 2001 and points out that, in accordance with the provisions of Annex VI(A) of the IIA, the appropriations intended for this purpose will remain in the reserve set aside for B7-8000;

21. Welcomes the amounts earmarked by the Commission in the PDB for international fisheries agreements, since they constitute a very important part of the common policy, and stresses that those appropriations are commensurate with the commitments entered into by the European Union; and asks the Commission to present before the Parliament's first reading revised figures taking into account the most recent forecasts on the state of play of negotiations of the agreements, such as the Commission did in previous ad hoc procedures, when it became clear that the Commission's forecast entered in the PDB was above the real needs;

22. Undertakes not to hesitate to mobilise appropriations needed during the budgetary exercise 2001 in accordance with the third sentence of Annex VI(C) of the IIA, if the appropriations prove insufficient;

23. Points out that the appropriations entered into budget items B7-8001, B7-8001A and B7-8002 of the preliminary draft budget reflect the estimated needs for the Community contributions to the international fisheries organisations and for preparatory work for new international fisheries organisations;

Common Foreign and Security Policy

24. Rejects the Council's proposal to finance the Special Envoys from its own budget; considers the inclusion in the Council budget of appropriations for this purpose, if confirmed in the draft budget, would be a violation of the IIA and would have worrying consequences for the treatment of the CFSP in the general budget; recalls in this connection that the gentlemen's agreement was designed to apply to administrative expenditure only; urges the Council to refrain from taking further decisions on this questions until an agreement is reached with the European Parliament, in accordance with the IIA and the guidelines already identified by the European Parliament;

25. Recalls that the IIA recognises all expenditure on Special Envoys as operational expenditure to be included in the Commission section of the general budget; warns that any move to include operational expenditure in the Council budget would be contrary to paragraph 39 of the IIA and Article 19 of the Financial Regulation and, moreover, would be an extremely serious threat to the institutional balance of the Treaty; notes furthermore that such a decision would call into question Article 274 of the EC Treaty, which confers on the Commission responsibility for implementing operational expenditure, and Article 276, which gives Parliament powers of censure and discharge; accordingly opposes the Council's proposal to finance the Special Envoys in future in its section of the budget;

26. Calls on the EU institutions to monitor closely the Peace and Reconstruction Process in East Timor, by sending a Special Envoy to this area;

27. Insists on the need to clarify the administrative costs of the CFSP before Council's first reading and in accordance with the principle of Activity Based Budgeting (ABB);

28. Calls on the Council to make a formal declaration confirming its willingness to implement paragraph 40 of the IIA, in particular as regards transmitting to the European Parliament immediately after it adopts a decision and in each case an estimate of the costs envisaged (financial statements) including the elements referred to in the second subparagraph of paragraph 40, when transmitting such information, the Council should indicate, whenever necessary, that the confidential procedure will apply;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

29. Welcomes the continuing trend to transfer CFSP actions from the second pillar (B8 in the budget) to the Community pillar (B7); regrets, however, that this trend considerably reduces the amount available under heading 4 for traditional external actions while the annual amount available for CFSP remains constant;

30. Considers that the proposed Rapid Reaction Facility represents a new Community action previously included under CFSP for which no provision was made under the financial perspective; regrets that this is being done at the expense of traditional external actions of major significance to the European Union;

31. Notes the plans of the Member State governments to develop a European security and defence policy (ESDP); is concerned, however, about the consequences which this will have for the rest of the budget and for the financial perspective (headings 4 and 5); demands that the Council and the Commission present a thorough evaluation of the expenditure required for this new policy up until 2006 and proposals on how it will be financed;

32. Believes that preparatory measures (B8-0151) should include a feasibility study, based on the experience gained and models developed when Economic and Monetary Union was established, with a view to the introduction of a European foreign and security policy;

On other aspects of the Preliminary Draft Budget

33. Follows with interest the internal discussions over externalisation; reminds the Commission that a timetable was agreed with Parliament and insists that a global solution has to be found before the adoption of the 2001 budget, based on the principles of the remarks on Part B entered in the 2000 budget by the Parliament;

34. Deplores the fact that by mid-April 2000 the Commission had still not presented its proposals for the legal framework, structure and mandate of the various instruments of externalisation, including the creation of a new category of Community bodies for the implementation of Community programmes and actions as required by the budgetary authority in the remarks on Section III, Part B of the 2000 budget; requests the Commission to present these proposals, for all categories of Community expenditure, as soon as possible and before forwarding, at the beginning of September 2001, its evaluation of requirements in terms of human resources following the banning of the Technical Assistance Offices and the proposed setting up of 'decentralised implementation units';

35. Stresses again that the Commission shall include in its assessment of staff needs what the staff requirements are to maintain core activities and run existing programmes, as well as estimates for additional staff for new activities; reminds the Commission that the Letter of Amendment needs to be presented before mid-September in order to be taken into account in Parliament's first reading; notes that in this connection it needs to be examined how far tasks which are now carried out by the Commission are actually tasks to be carried out by the Member States;

36. Considers that budgetary appropriations for Innovative Actions should be kept at the level agreed in Berlin without any further cuts and draws attention to the fact that in line with the Declaration on the URBAN initiative annexed to the IIA the reduction of € 200 million in the Innovative Actions relating to URBAN should be made up in 2000-2006;

37. Regrets that the Commission has deleted the title B1-5 (Measures in support of the common fisheries policy) and entered the appropriations for the support for the management of resources (gathering of the basic data, studies and pilot projects) under heading 3 (line B2-904), thereby reducing the Parliament's margin of manoeuvre in internal policies;

38. Takes note of the reductions the Commission has made for several sectors in internal policies (heading 3) and will examine closely before the first reading the need for these cuts and their possible effects on the policy concerned;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

39. Welcomes the creation of a new initiative in favour of new technologies for SMEs as requested in its abovementioned resolution of 30 March 2000, even if it considers the amount entered on the line inadequate to comply with this objective, one that was shared by the European Council in Lisbon; undertakes to examine if the content of this initiative corresponds to the objectives of the Parliament to support employment policy, job-creation, the development of financial services markets, especially in regard to risk capital and the dissemination of the new technologies, in particular through micro-enterprises and SMEs with special attention to be given to female entrepreneurship, as expressed in its guidelines for the 2001 budgetary procedure; stresses the need for a co-ordination of the different programmes and actions with the aim of strengthening the policies and making it easier for SMEs to understand and participate in the programmes;

40. Demands the continuation of the information campaign for the euro (Prince) with high priority, since, in the important phase in the run up to the introduction of the euro notes and coins, there will be a high demand for information from the citizens of the European Union;

41. Regrets the reductions in the environment programme LIFE III and considers the justification — a lack of human resources — unacceptable unless it is proven that greater efforts have been made towards a more rational use of resources and awaits the proposals of the Commission concerning the level of human resources needed to effectively implement EU policies;

42. Takes note of the large increase in the allocation for the Fifth framework research programme, especially in the view of the decisions to create new jobs at the European Council in Lisbon through a strengthening of the research and developments activities in the companies, especially in SMEs, and expects to receive detailed information on the implementation of the specific programmes in respect of the agreement concluded in October 1999;

43. Assigns high priority to the reclassification of the appropriations for Cyprus and Malta in Category 7 (Pre-accession strategy) of the financial perspective where they rightly belong given the purpose for which they are intended;

44. Acknowledges the work done by the working group on subsidies, the main purpose of which was more transparency, more accountability, greater simplification of the grant awarding and management process and avoiding duplication and dependence in the search for value for money;

45. Asks the Commission to take on board the main recommendations of the working group in order to implement its requests concerning strict awarding criteria to be respected by the beneficiaries, in particular the rhythm of instalments as well as the level of the last instalment, the inclusion of the contributions in kind and evaluation through regular external audit to maintain value for money and quality; considers that a phasing out process should be systematically applied to organisations which fail to meet the criteria;

46. Is aware that the subsidies granted under this chapter give the Union a public profile and that new beneficiaries should be able to participate; therefore decides that a maximum ceiling of earmarked appropriations should apply to some items on the basis of a global envelope fixed by the European Parliament in the context of the annual budgetary procedure;

47. Draws to the Commission's attention that in general it may raise justified objections to the comments made in the budget concerning earmarking after the European Parliament's first reading, whereas after the European Parliament's second reading, the Commission must implement the budget according to Article 274 of the EC Treaty;

48. Reserves the right to take all appropriate steps as regards its decisions concerning the 2001 budget, in the light of the way in which expenditure entered in the 2000 budget has been effected;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

49. Urges the Commission to present proposals for legal bases to continue successful pilot projects and preparatory actions, in particular concerning the preparatory actions, which are in their second and third year, in order to take them into account in the budget 2001;

* * *

50. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission.

14. Safe harbour privacy principles

A5-0177/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Draft Commission Decision on the adequacy of the protection provided by the Safe harbour privacy principles and related frequently asked questions issued by the US Department of Commerce (C5-0280/2000 – 2000/2144(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to European Parliament and Council Directive 95/46/EC on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data⁽¹⁾, (hereinafter referred to as 'the Directive'), in particular Article 25 thereof,
- having regard to the draft Commission Decision (C5-0280/2000),
- having regard to the opinion (WP 32) on this subject adopted unanimously on 16 May 2000 by the working party provided for in Article 29 of the Directive and to the opinions delivered previously on the same question (WP12 and WP27),
- having regard to the opinion of 31 May 2000 delivered by the Committee provided for in Article 31 of the Directive,
- having regard to Council Decision 1999/468/EC laying down the procedures for the exercise of the implementing powers conferred on the Commission⁽²⁾, and in particular Article 8 thereof concerning implementing measures,
- having regard to Rule 88 of its Rules of Procedure,
- having regard to the report by the Committee on Citizens' Freedoms and Rights, Justice and Home Affairs (A5-0177/2000),

The meaning of data protection in the framework of the competences of the Union

A. whereas:

- (a) the development of the information society and electronic commerce have led at global level to an exponential increase in the movement of data and the risks involved in the misuse of such data;
- (b) such abuses not only act as a brake on the development of e-commerce in that they undermine the confidence of consumers, but also often constitute an infringement of the rights and freedoms of persons and, in particular, an invasion of privacy;
- (c) protecting data means protecting the people to whom the information being processed relates, and such protection is one of the fundamental rights recognised by the Union (Article 8 of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights, referred to in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union and Article 286 of the Treaty establishing the European Community);

Wednesday 5 July 2000

- (d) the Directive, which is modelled on Council of Europe Convention No. 108 (1981) and the OECD (1980) and UN (1990) guidelines, is based on identifying rights for the data subject and corresponding obligations on those who process data or who exercise control over such processing;
- (e) such protection would be useless if it were confined to the territory of the Union and did not also provide adequate protection, as provided for by the Directive, in the third countries to which the data is transferred;
- (f) an adequate level of protection for personal data in all the countries to which data can be transferred is also required, in order to avoid a situation where different levels of protection allow distortions in the use of data and relocation of its processing in violation of the GATS agreements;
- (g) the Commission must ensure, on behalf of the citizens of the Union and its Member States, that 'adequate' protection exists in the third countries;

The role of the Commission and the measures and criteria that it must adopt in order to evaluate the 'adequacy' of the protection provided by third countries

B. whereas:

- (a) in evaluating the 'adequacy' of the protection provided by third countries, the Commission must take account of the varying levels of legal, economic and technological development of the third countries in relation to European standards;
- (b) 'adequate' protection does not mean per se that the third country should have the same rules as the Union but that, regardless of the type of legislative protection in force in the third country, the data subject must be effectively protected;
- (c) in a third country protection should be considered effective when its effectiveness can be measured with reference to objective data, such as the possibility of identifying the person on whom the obligations are incumbent, the type of data processed, the uses that may be made of it and the mechanisms created to guarantee protection;
- (d) in this context, the protection provided by a third country must comply with the following minimum requirements set out by the data control authorities of the EU Member States (opinion WP12 of June 1998):
 1. the purpose limitation principle — data should be processed for a specific purpose and subsequently used or further communicated only insofar as this is not incompatible with the purpose of the transfer. The only exemptions to this rule would be those necessary in a democratic society on one of the grounds listed in Article 13 of the Directive.
 2. the data quality and proportionality principle — data should be accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date. The data should be adequate, relevant and not excessive in relation to the purposes for which they are transferred or further processed.
 3. the transparency principle — individuals should be provided with information as to the purpose of the processing and the identity of the data controller in the third country, and other information insofar as this is necessary to ensure fairness. The only exemptions permitted should be in line with Articles 11(2) ⁽¹⁾ and 13 of the Directive.
 4. the security principle — technical and organisational security measures should be taken by the data controller that are appropriate to the risks presented by the processing. Any person acting under the authority of the data controller, including a processor, must not process data except on instructions from the controller.

⁽¹⁾ Article 11(2) stipulates that when data are collected from someone other than the data subject, information need not be provided to the data subject if this proves impossible, involves a disproportionate effort, or if the recording or disclosure of the data is expressly required by law.

Wednesday 5 July 2000

5. the rights of access, rectification and opposition — the data subject should have a right to obtain a copy of all data relating to him/her that are processed, and a right to rectification of those data where they are shown to be inaccurate. In certain situations he/she should also be able to object to the processing of the data relating to him/her. The only exemptions to these rights should be in line with Article 13 of the Directive.
 6. restrictions on onward transfers — further transfers of the personal data by the recipient of the original data transfer should be permitted only where the second recipient (i.e. the recipient of the onward transfer) is also subject to rules affording an adequate level of protection. The only exceptions permitted should be in line with Article 26(1) of the Directive;
- C. whereas, with reference to the guarantees concerning effective implementation, it is also necessary to secure the following objectives, particularly if the rules relating to the processing of data subject to assessment are based on a system of self-regulation:
- The instrument must have mechanisms which effectively ensure a good level of general compliance. A system of dissuasive and punitive sanctions is one way of achieving this. Mandatory external audits are another.
 - The instrument must provide support and help to individual data subjects who are faced with a problem involving the processing of their personal data. An easily accessible, impartial and independent body to hear complaints from data subjects and adjudicate on breaches of the code must therefore be in place.
 - The instrument must guarantee appropriate redress in cases of non-compliance. A data subject must be able to obtain a remedy for his/her problem and compensation as appropriate;

The data protection system used in the United States

- D. whereas in the United States:
- (a) there is not at present any generally applicable legal data protection in the private sector and virtually all data are currently processed without specific guarantees of judicial protection;
 - (b) there are, however, numerous legislative proposals pending before Congress and the President of the United States himself recently referred to the need for further legislative measures, while the Federal Trade Commission expressed the same opinion in its third report to Congress on the functioning of the system of self-regulation in the electronic marketplace;
 - (c) the guidelines approved by the OECD (signed by the USA in 1980 and ratified at the Ottawa OECD Conference in September 1998) must in any case be applied in the area of personal data protection;

The nature and scope of the enforceability of the safe harbour

- E. whereas, rather than encouraging a legislative approach, the US Department of Commerce intends to propose to companies 'safe harbour privacy principles' (and the Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) arising from such principles), which:
- (a) will apply only to personal data of EU origin, with the status of the voluntary 'standard' suggested to the businesses intending to receive data from the EU, but are binding on those businesses that opt to adhere to them and are enforceable by private dispute resolution bodies and government bodies with powers to obtain relief against unfair or deceptive practices;
 - (b) relate only to firms which fall within the competence of the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Transportation (so that, for example, firms in the banking and telecommunications sectors are excluded);

Wednesday 5 July 2000

- (c) are subject to exceptions (FAQ 15) as regards public record and publicly available data (e.g. land register, telephones, tax declarations, electoral rolls), which are protected by Community legislation;
 - (d) use ambiguous terms such as 'organisation' (which may refer both to businesses and business conglomerates) and 'explicit authorisations' (which allow exemptions to the principles);
 - (e) do not provide a right of effective, personal appeal to a public body (FAQ 11);
 - (f) do not allow it to be concluded with certainty that it will be possible to obtain compensation for individual damage suffered as a result of possible violations of the safe harbour principles;
1. As a preliminary matter, and irrespective of the question of the draft decision submitted to Parliament:
- (a) Notes with concern that, almost two years after the Directive's entry into force, data relating to EU citizens are circulating in third countries without any effective control by the Commission or the Member States;
 - (b) Wonders to what extent data relating to EU citizens may have been misused already;
 - (c) Requests the Member States and the Commission to inform EU citizens of the risks attached to the circulation of data in countries where data protection is not ensured or the Commission has not yet completed the process of assessing the adequacy of any such protection;
 - (d) Considers that the Commission was responsible for a serious omission in failing to draw up, before the Directive's entry into force, standard contractual clauses that EU citizens could invoke in the courts of third countries;
 - (e) Establishes 30 September 2000 as the date by which the proposed standard clauses should be submitted to the Committee set up under Article 31 of the Directive;
 - (f) Reserves the right, in the event of failure to comply, to launch the procedures provided for in the Treaty in respect of failure to act;

The draft decision submitted to the European Parliament

2. Points out that the draft decision does not describe a situation currently in existence in the United States, but is based on a draft of the safe harbour principles (with the relevant explanations) which the US Department of Commerce will issue for the guidance of companies wishing to meet the adequate protection requirement of the Directive;
3. Draws the Commission's attention to the risk that the exchange of letters between the Commission and the US Department of Commerce on the implementation of the 'safe harbour' principles could be interpreted by the European and/or United States judicial authorities as having the substance of an international agreement adopted in breach of Article 300 of the Treaty establishing the European Community and the requirement to seek Parliament's assent (Judgment of the Court of Justice of 9 August 1994: French Republic v. the Commission — Agreement between the Commission and the United States regarding the application of their competition laws (Case C-327/91))⁽¹⁾;
4. Regrets that, in the course of the last two years, there has been no consultation of European undertakings with regard to the risk of discrimination in relation to US undertakings which would be subject to less onerous data protection requirements than those with which European undertakings must comply;
5. Regrets that, in contrast with the US authorities' consultation of NGOs active in the field of consumer protection, the Commission has not embarked on any such consultation of European NGOs;
6. Insists on the importance of providing the best possible level of consumer protection and, in this regard, urges the Commission to ensure and assist continuous monitoring of the safe harbour principles;

Wednesday 5 July 2000

7. Calls into question the existence in the US of two different protection systems depending on whether or not the owners of the data are European, and wonders whether such a dual system complies with the clause prohibiting discrimination on the grounds of nationality contained in the relevant international (OECD) agreements;

8. Considers that the situation in the US as regards privacy protection is likely to evolve rapidly over the coming few years, that new legislation is likely to be enacted there which could introduce standards of protection that are higher than those required by the safe harbour principles and that the safe harbour arrangement will therefore need to be adapted in order not to be overtaken by these developments;

9. Takes the view that, if issued and implemented by individual firms, such principles and the relevant explanations could be considered adequate protection under the terms of Article 25 of the Directive provided that the following changes are made to them:

- recognition of an individual right of appeal to an independent public body instructed to consider any appeal relating to an alleged violation of the principles;
- an obligation on participating firms to compensate for the damage, whether moral or to property, suffered by those involved, in the event of violations of the principles, and an undertaking by the firms to cancel personal data obtained or processed in an unlawful manner;
- ease of identification of the steps to be taken to ensure data are cancelled and to obtain compensation for any damage suffered;
- provision of a preliminary check by the Commission on the proper functioning of the system within six months of its entry into force and presentation of a report on the outcome of the check and any problems encountered to the working party provided for in Article 29 and the Committee provided for in Article 31 of the Directive, as well as to the relevant committee of the European Parliament;

10. Calls on the Commission to ensure that the operation of the safe harbour system is closely monitored, especially but not only as regards the points raised in Paragraphs 8 and 9 above and to make periodic reports to the working party provided for in Article 29 and the Committee provided for in Article 31 of the Directive, as well as to the relevant committee of the European Parliament;

11. Takes the view that the free movement of data cannot be authorised until all the components of the safe harbour system are operational and the United States authorities have informed the Commission that these conditions have been fulfilled;

12. Calls on the Commission and the Member States:

- to provide appropriate information (in the Official Journal and via the Internet) for European citizens on the 'safe harbour', making clear that differences may continue to exist between the 'safe harbour' and European law as regards the processing of personal data;
- to set up help-lines (freephone numbers, advice centres) to the relevant national authorities and the Commission to deal with any practical difficulties encountered (e.g. translations of appeals, forms, etc.);
- to review the decision in good time in the light of experience and of any legislative developments;

13. Insists that the European Commission append this resolution to its transmission letter to the United States authorities, thereby clearly emphasising Parliament's concern about the absence of an individual right of judicial appeal and the failure of an agreement to oblige companies to pay compensation for unlawfully processed data;

14. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission and the Parliaments and Governments of the Member States.

The following spoke:

- Roth-Behrendt who protested at this decision, pressing for the following report (report: Arvidsson A5-0149/2000) to be voted on before the break as it was a legislative text (the President pointed out that there were four more legislative reports still to be voted);
- Goodwill, who, in view of the vote just held on the Papayannakis report (A5-0193/2000), called for the Commission to convene for the following week a meeting of the Conciliation Committee to deal with the subject report so as to be in a position to meet the 1 September deadline (the President replied that convening such a meeting was the responsibility of the European Parliament and the Council);
- Redondo Jiménez, who asked for the vote on his report to be carried over to the following part-session, as she would be unable to attend that evening's voting time (the President replied that the agenda clearly stated that any items left over from the morning's voting time would be voted on after that afternoon's topical and urgent debate);
- Swoboda, who stressed the importance of legislative texts being voted on before other items in future (the President replied that he would forward this request to the Conference of Presidents);
- Roth-Behrendt, who called for the four reports on legislative texts still to be voted on either to be carried over to the September part-session or to a subsequent part-session (the President replied that decisions on postponing votes had to be taken either at the opening of the sitting or at the beginning of voting time; he added that any such request made at the start of that afternoon's voting time would be taken into consideration);
- Roth-Behrendt, on the President's reply;

(Consultation procedure)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission proposal to the Council (COM(1999) 576) ⁽¹⁾,
- having regard to Article 36 of the EC Treaty,

⁽¹⁾ OJ C 56 E, 29.2.2000, p. 19.

Thursday 6 July 2000

- having been consulted by the Council pursuant to Article 37 of the EC Treaty (C5-0281/1999),

 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development and the opinion of the Committee on Budgets (A5-0124/2000),
1. Approves the Commission proposal as amended;
 2. Calls on the Commission to alter its proposal accordingly, pursuant to Article 250(2) of the EC Treaty;
 3. Calls on the Council to notify Parliament should it intend to depart from the text approved by Parliament;
 4. Calls for the conciliation procedure to be initiated should the Council intend to depart from the text approved by Parliament;
 5. Asks to be consulted again should the Council intend to amend the Commission proposal substantially;
 6. Instructs its President to forward its position to the Council and Commission.

2. Structural Funds – Innovative measures (procedure without debate)

A5-0182/2000

European Parliament resolution on the draft Guidelines for the various types of innovative measures in the context of Article 22 of the General Regulation (EC) No 1260/1999 – Innovative Measures under Article 6 of the ESF Regulation (C5-0235/2000 – 2000/2127(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the draft Guidelines (C5-0235/2000),
 - having regard to Council Regulation (EC) No 1260/1999⁽¹⁾ laying down general provisions on the Structural Funds and, in particular, to Article 22 thereof,
 - having regard to European Parliament and Council Regulation (EC) No 1784/1999⁽²⁾ on the European Social Fund and, in particular, to Article 6 thereof,
 - having regard to the decisions of the Berlin European Council of 24 and 25 March 1999 on the financial endowment of the Structural Funds for the period 2000-2006,
 - having regard to the Code of conduct on the implementation of structural policies by the Commission dated 6 May 1999⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs (A5-0182/2000),
- A. whereas innovative measures play an important role in the Structural Funds system by seeking to identify examples of best practice which may subsequently be further circulated under other Structural Fund interventions and under the European Employment Strategy,
 - B. whereas regular evaluation of the results of the measures financed is a precondition for achieving the greatest possible multiplier effect as regards innovative measures,

⁽³⁾ OJ C 279, 1.10.1999, p. 488.

Thursday 6 July 2000

- C. whereas, compared with those allocated for the previous programming period, the resources allocated to innovative measures for the 2000-2006 programming period have been severely cut back, and whereas the appropriations allocated must be used to maximum effect,
- D. whereas, in the relevant provisions of the Structural Fund Regulations, the concept of innovation is inadequately defined, and whereas, therefore, the primary objective of the guidelines must be to define more closely the concept of 'innovative measures' in the context of the Structural Funds,
1. Takes the view that the text submitted by the Commission falls woefully short of fulfilling the criteria set out in the Guidelines and calls on the Commission, therefore, to clarify its text with regard to the substantive definition of innovation, as well as administrative procedures, evaluation of measures carried out and the strategy for circulating results;
 2. Takes the view that the search for innovative approaches in the field of labour market policy requires consultation or the broadest possible spectrum of all involved; therefore opposes the practice of restricted calls for proposals and calls on the Commission, instead, to publish calls for proposals in the Official Journal of the European Communities as part of a more substantial and wider-ranging information policy seeking to mobilise the broadest possible pool of potential participants;
 3. Calls on the Commission, when fixing support priorities and selecting projects, to take into account the following criteria:
 - relevance for the European Employment Strategy,
 - innovative features as regards the objective and implementation of the measure,
 - quality and permanence of the measure,
 - transferability of the results under the ESF;
 4. Calls on the Commission, pursuant to the second and third indents of point 1.3. of the Code of conduct on the implementation of structural policies by the Commission, to forward to it information concerning the pilot projects and studies undertaken, together with:
 - an evaluation report on the implementation of the innovative measures undertaken during the 1994-1999 programming period, including the new jobs created and the quality of these jobs,
 - an evaluation of the measures undertaken in the current programming period in connection with each individual call for proposals;
 5. Calls on the Commission to inform it on an annual basis – for example by means of a presentation to the appropriate committee by the relevant Commissioner – of the Commission's support priorities; reserves the right to submit to the Commission proposals for support priorities in its resolution on the budgetary guidelines;
 6. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission.

European Parliament Decision closing the accounts relating to the implementation of the general budget of the European Union for the 1998 financial year (SEC(1999) 412 – C5-0006/1999 – 1999/2050(DEC))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the budget of the European Union for the 1998 financial year,
 - having regard to the consolidated revenue and expenditure account and balance sheet for the 1998 financial year ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the annual report concerning the financial year 1998 (C5-0266/1999) ⁽²⁾ and the special reports of the Court of Auditors and the Institutions' replies,
 - having regard to the Statement of Assurance as to the reliability of the accounts and the legality and regularity of the underlying transactions provided by the Court of Auditors pursuant to Article 248 of the EC Treaty (C5-0266/1999) ⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to the Council recommendation of 13 March 2000 (C5-0154/2000),
 - having regard to its resolution of 13 April 2000 on the postponement of discharge to the Commission in respect of implementation of the general budget of the European Union for the financial year 1998 ⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to the ECSC Treaty and in particular Article 78g thereof,
 - having regard to the EC Treaty and in particular Article 276 thereof,
 - having regard to the EAEC Treaty and in particular Article 180b thereof,
 - having regard to Rule 93 of and Annex V to its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Budgetary Control (A5-0190/2000),
- A. whereas pursuant to Article 275 of the EC Treaty responsibility for drawing up the revenue and expenditure account lies with the Commission,

1. Notes that the estimated revenue for the 1998 financial year and the resources finally approved for payments amounted to:

	(ECU million)
(a) Revenue	83 652,2
(b) Appropriations for payments	83 833,7

2. Notes the following amounts relating to commitments:

	(ECU million)
(a) Appropriations available	91 257,2
(b) Commitments entered into	88 340,1

Thursday 6 July 2000

3. Notes the following consolidated revenue and expenditure account for the 1998 financial year drawn up by the Commission:

		(ECU million)
(a)	Revenue	84 529,688
(b)	Expenditure	81 637,410
	Outturn for the financial year	2 892,278
	Appropriations carried over from previous year which lapsed	139,888
	Exchange differences	- 9,069
(c)	Balance for the 1998 financial year	3 023,097
	This balance reflects the accounting situation only and does not include expenditure actually incurred during the financial year.

4. Notes the following consolidated balance sheet drawn up by the Commission:

ASSETS

		31.12.1998
I.	Initial costs	0,00
II.	Intangible fixed assets	5 845 764,72

III.	Long-term liabilities	5 445 277 097,45
IV.	Short-term liabilities	7 588 124 501,33
V.	Transitional accounts	450 475 090,68
TOTAL		24 505 797 564,09

5. Recalls that, according to the statements made by the Court of Auditors in the context of its above-mentioned Statement of Assurance, the figures presented in the consolidated revenue and expenditure account are marred by a number of errors and weaknesses:

- (a) the understatement of fixed assets, essentially buildings, by around € 540 million,
- (b) a net overstatement of debtors in the region of € 1 000 million principally resulting from the overstatement of sums likely to be recovered for unpaid customs duties and agricultural levies,
- (c) an understatement of cash and debtors amounting to at least € 600 million because some amounts held on bank accounts, or paid as advances to third parties which act as agents for the Commission, have been omitted from the balance sheet,
- (d) the inaccurate and inadequate presentation of information on advances and payments on account at 31 December 1998,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- (e) the overstatement of commitments still to be settled by some € 660 million,
 - (f) the omission of certain commitments (€ 352,7 million) and potential liabilities (at least € 2 794 million);
6. Approves the closure of the accounts for the implementation of the general budget for the financial year 1998;
7. Instructs its President to forward this decision to the Commission, the Council, the Court of Justice, the Court of Auditors and the European Investment Bank and to have it published in the Official Journal of the European Communities (L series).

III.

European Parliament resolution containing the comments which form an integral part of the decision giving discharge to the Commission for the implementation of the general budget of the European Union for the 1998 financial year (SEC(1999) 412 – C5-0006/1999 – 1999/2050(DEC))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Article 276 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Article 89(7) of the Financial Regulation, pursuant to which each Community institution is required to take all appropriate steps to act on the comments appearing in the decisions giving discharge,
 - whereas pursuant to paragraph 8 of the same article the institutions are also required to report, at the request of the European Parliament, on the measures taken in the light of these comments and particularly on the instructions given to those of their departments which are responsible for the implementation of the budget,
 - having regard to the annual report concerning the financial year 1998 (C5-0266/1999)⁽¹⁾ and the special reports of the Court of Auditors and the Institutions' replies,
 - having regard to the Council recommendation of 13 March 2000 (C5-0154/2000),
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Budgetary Control (A5-0190/2000),
- A. whereas Commission President Prodi took office with the ambition of transforming the European Commission into an efficient and transparent public service conscious of its responsibilities and, in the process, of combating mismanagement, fraud and corruption at all levels,
- B. whereas although the new Commission may not be directly responsible for these cases, it is responsible for the extent to which it succeeds in drawing the requisite conclusions,
- C. whereas the European Parliament has stressed the need for zero tolerance in cases of fraud and other irregularities which cause damage to the financial interests of the Union, while at the same time underlining the need for objective, transparent disciplinary proceedings conducted in accordance with the rules of due process and respect for the rights of the defence,
- D. whereas the discharge postponed on 13 April 2000 can therefore now be granted although Parliament expects the Commission to take further measures, which are outlined below,

Statement of Assurance

1. Points out that in 1998 for the fifth consecutive time the Court of Auditors declined to provide an assurance that the transactions underlying the payments for the financial year were, taken as a whole, legal and regular⁽²⁾;
2. Points out that against this background the Council failed for the first time to make its recommendation unanimously;

⁽²⁾ OJ C 349, 3.12.1999, pp. 168-169.

Thursday 6 July 2000

3. Points out that the figures provided by the Court of Auditors do not indicate a positive trend, that the number of substantive errors is still high and that the expenditure managed directly by the Commission is no less affected than Community expenditure effected by the Member States;
4. Concludes that the SEM 2000 reform of financial management introduced in 1995 by the then Commission has so far failed to produce any tangible results whatsoever in 1998; notes, with a view to future discharge procedures, that in the Court of Auditors' estimation the potential benefits are unlikely to be felt until after the end of the current programme planning period in 2000;
5. Warns of the risk that the current reform could suffer a similar fate and confirms the call made in its resolution of 13 April 2000⁽¹⁾ on the postponement of the 1998 discharge for the Commission to arrive at a positive statement of assurance for the 2003 financial year at the latest;
6. Underlines the need to set verifiable intermediate objectives for this process; calls on the Commission to formulate such objectives by the end of the year;

Own resources

7. Calls on the Commission to initiate a policy to assess the extent of conformity of national VAT legislation and to submit an initial report shortly, limited if necessary to a sectoral investigation;
8. Calls on the Commission to submit to Parliament and the Council a report analysing the Member States' VAT revenue since the transitional VAT system was set up, with evaluations and details of the type of the various frauds which have been detected;

Common agricultural policy

9. Calls on the Commission to ensure that the principle of budgetary universality is respected, in such a way that the sums recovered by the Commission in respect of Member State expenditure are entered as revenue in the Community budget, and that corrections made by Member States concerning an earlier declaration no longer give rise to any offsetings against expenditure for the month concerned;
10. Calls on the Commission to propose suitable amendments to the Financial Regulation and the regulation concerned, to ensure respect for the principle of annuality and allow expenditure to be entered in the accounts for the financial year to which it belongs;
11. Calls on the Commission, in the context of clearance of the EAGGF accounts, in future to continue to assess claims for repayments by Member States on the basis of proven loss to the Union budget and to carry out flat-rate financial corrections only in cases where no precise figure can be put on the loss;
12. Concludes in the specific case of export of butter to the former USSR that in 1994 the Commission's Directorate-General for Agriculture after initial in-house resistance from other Commission departments ultimately suggested to the Irish authorities that the penalty deposit be reduced from ECU 17,6 million to ECU 3 million although, according to the Court of Auditors, there was no specific statutory basis for doing so; furthermore concludes that the handling of this and similar cases by the Commission has been contested by the Court of Auditors;
13. Welcomes the fact that OLAF has opened an investigation to determine why the minutes of the crucial meeting of 7 January 1994 in the private office of the then Commission President are apparently nowhere to be found; calls on OLAF to forward the report of its investigation to Parliament as soon as possible and also to report on whether the firm concerned has since been the subject of investigations by Commission departments or the competent national investigative authorities;

Thursday 6 July 2000

14. Makes clear that consideration of the case and the issue of possible consequences cannot be concluded until
- the results of the OLAF investigation have been assessed and
 - it has been established that the Commission has forwarded to Parliament all available documents relating to the case;
15. Calls upon its Committee responsible to follow-up on the general issues brought up by this case, notably:
- (a) the retroactive application of Community law,
 - (b) the criteria that determine the proportionality of the reduction of financial corrections,
 - (c) the circumstances under which a significant amount of debt (ECU 135 million) is waived annually by the Commission under Article 29 of the Financial Regulation,
 - (d) the extent to which similar cases to the butter exports to the former USSR exist,
 - (e) the question of who holds ultimate responsibility if individual judgments involve potential losses up to a set amount,
- and to report on its findings in the context of the 1999 discharge;
16. Expects the Commission to cooperate constructively in the clarification of these matters;

Structural measures

17. Considers that the responsibility for implementing the Structural Funds should more clearly delineate the role of the Commission (if necessary by amending the implementing regulations), and should give it power to impose penalties which would make it possible genuinely to mitigate any shortcomings;
18. Calls for monitoring of the Structural Funds to be more effective and for mid-term evaluation to be a genuine instrument of sound management;
19. Considers that the Commission must unambiguously clarify what expenditure is eligible for support, particularly with regard to the actual implementation of the Structural Funds as a whole in the Objective 1 and 2 regions for which they are intended under the regulations, and welcomes the development of new data sheets on eligibility;
20. Insists that it be kept informed by the Commission about the effectiveness of the controls by the Member States on the basis of Article 39(1) of Regulation (EC) No 1260/1999;
21. Insists it be informed about general problems in contacts with the Member States relating to the application of Article 39(2) of that Regulation;
22. Considers that an improvement in the advance estimation of the payment appropriations which will be required could prevent the substantial differences between budget allocations and budget implementation in the case of structural measures; regards the persistent attempts by the Council to cut payment appropriations for the Structural Funds as causing unnecessary liquidity shortfalls, as well as problems in their application in regions suffering from both the highest rates of unemployment and the lowest levels of per capita income;
23. Deplores the persistently large number of irregularities identified by the Court of Auditors, particularly with regard to expenditure certificates; calls on the Member States, therefore, to bring their administrative systems into line with the requirements of the Structural Fund regulations in order to ensure efficient administration of structural measures in the new programme planning period, 2000-2006;
24. Observes with some surprise that even at the end of this programming period measures from before 1989 have still not been concluded, and calls on the Commission to close the 1989-1993 programming period more rapidly, making use of the option to cancel commitments automatically;

Thursday 6 July 2000

25. Notes that, despite having been called upon to do so in the past, the Commission still has not ensured that the payment appropriations of the European Social Fund are brought into line with actual needs;
26. Observes that it was not possible for the Commission to implement satisfactorily the allocation for integrated measures through multifund projects, entered in the context of the Community initiatives; now expects cooperation with other Community programmes at the directorates-general responsible to proceed more efficiently once each Community initiative is financed from a single fund;
27. Draws attention to the criticism by the Court of Auditors that the impact of Structural Fund measures on employment cannot be sufficiently ascertained, and calls on the Council and Commission to comply with Parliament's reiterated call for the adoption of appropriate indicators and improved evaluation;
28. Expects the Commission, in the negotiations on the programme planning period 2000-2006, to insist on a better thematic balance in national plans for European Social Fund measures;
29. Hopes that the Commission will adopt more effective measures to eliminate the errors in payments (eligible expenditure) identified by the Court of Auditors in its Annual Report;

Internal policies

30. Stresses that it is of great importance that key policy and financial management tasks are carried out by officials who are fully answerable to the institution for their work and that excessive reliance on external contractors is to be avoided;
31. Recognises that the budgetary authority will have to take full account of the human and financial resource requirements of, and the need for redeployment due to, new initiatives requested of the Commission, respecting the Treaty and interinstitutional limits agreed by the institutions and the Member States in the agreement of 6 May 1999;
32. Calls upon the Commission to establish indicators that will enable programme effectiveness and efficiency to be assessed, taking into consideration the relative significance of administrative costs;
33. Draws the Commission's attention to the fact that Parliament's committees have begun to establish monitoring mechanisms and recalls its demand that they should be provided with the necessary information on a regular basis;

Research

34. Deplores the significant incidence of substantive errors in approximately one third of the payments where the Commission had paid too much, mostly due to ineligible costs having been claimed by the beneficiaries and, in addition, the formal errors which occurred in almost one fifth of the payments;
35. Deplores the errors and inaccuracies, including deliberate overcharging, in almost two thirds of the payments based upon cost declarations, due to misinterpretations, insufficient control by Commission services and the absence of contractually defined penalties in cases of overcharging;
36. Calls on the Commission rapidly to ensure the clarification and simplification of its standard contracts and give precise and unambiguous definitions of 'eligible costs' in order to reduce the risk of overcharging;
37. Calls on the Commission to eliminate defects inherent in the system by revising the legislation and to improve the legality and regularity of payments by improving and intensifying its control of cost claims submitted by beneficiaries;

Thursday 6 July 2000

38. Asks the Court of Auditors for an in-depth examination of the legality and regularity of payments, in particular in the research area, which accounts for almost two thirds of the internal policy budget;
39. Believes that improved management and coordination across the participating directorates-general is essential to ensure the effectiveness of research programmes and that progress should be closely monitored with regular reporting to the committee responsible;
40. Requests from the Commission an in-depth assessment of the Performance Audit of the Joint Research Centre (JRC) of 28 April 1998 and a report on the lessons learnt;
41. Calls on the Commission, when submitting new legislative proposals, to pay closer attention to the following:
- (a) transparency, simplicity and clarity,
 - (b) optimum opportunities for auditing,
 - (c) penalties for violations of the rules and deliberately inaccurate statements of costs to apply to all involved who have made errors in that connection;

External aid

42. Notes that the situation with regard to invitations to tender under the TACIS and PHARE programmes has not changed despite the comments by the Commission Financial Controller and the European Court of Auditors on the 1997 and 1998 financial years;
43. Notes that this situation presents a potential risk of harming the financial interests of the EU in the recipient countries and continues to be harmful to its image with these countries;
44. Repeats its calls to the Commission in its resolution of 4 May 1999⁽¹⁾ when the 1997 budget discharge was postponed, and now expects rigorous measures and a clear response from the Commission;
45. Once more calls on the European Court of Auditors to carry out an audit of the procedures for invitations to tender and on record-keeping in the context of the PHARE and TACIS programmes;
46. Points out that in the selection and supervision of the firm that was responsible for the transportation of humanitarian aid in connection with 'Echo Flight', there were serious omissions;
47. In the case of lessons to be learnt from the ECHO affair, notes that the Commission has stated its readiness to reopen disciplinary proceedings if new evidence comes to light, but is not satisfied that the Commission has not yet made a commitment to introduce an external element in its disciplinary procedure;

Reform of disciplinary procedures

48. Considers that the disciplinary cases raised by the 1998 discharge procedure reinforce its call, made in its resolution of 19 January 2000 on the second report of the Committee of Independent Experts⁽²⁾ (paragraph 37) for the long-standing provisions in the Financial Regulation and the Staff Regulations concerning officials' financial liability for the damage their actions cause no longer to be left to internal Commission bodies, but that instead this task should be entrusted to a chamber for disciplinary procedures for budgetary irregularities in the Court of Auditors or the Court of Justice;

Functioning of control systems

49. Notes with concern that in 1998 the already small number of checks by Commission services in the area of the Structural Funds was significantly reduced;

50. Regards it as a sign of the weakness of the Commission's financial control that despite the high error rate found by the Court of Auditors in 1998, in not a single case did Financial Control withhold approval;

51. Reaffirms its call for the Commission, made in its abovementioned resolution of 19 January 2000 (paragraphs 10 and 11(f)) to strengthen on a lasting basis the role of the financial controller in line with the Court of Auditors' recommendations through the following measures:

- (a) instead of across-the-board prior checks targeted prior checks carried out on the basis of risk analyses or at the request of the authorising officer concerned,
- (b) financial control staff must not be subordinate to the directors-general monitored but independent financial control must be retained and decentralised in accordance with Article 24 of the Financial Regulation;

Parliament's access to information

52. Recalls that the Commission is required, pursuant to Article 276 of the EC Treaty, to submit any necessary information to Parliament at the latter's request in connection with the discharge procedure;

53. Reaffirms the fundamental principles set out in particular in paragraph 26 of its resolution of 19 January 2000 ⁽¹⁾ on the discharge for the 1997 financial year on Parliament's access to information;

54. Notes that the Commission and the European Parliament have concluded an interinstitutional agreement concerning Parliament's access to information; underlines its determination to follow closely the implementation of this agreement, in particular to ensure that the rights of individual Members will not be infringed;

55. Regrets that in the 1998 discharge procedure the Commission has refused to submit reports and minutes concerning administrative investigations that it submitted to the Court of Auditors;

56. Points out that Parliament, as the discharge authority, expects the Commission:

- (a) to inform the competent judicial authorities fully of cases where there is a suspicion of fraud,
- (b) to fulfil its obligation under Articles 73 and 74 of the Financial Regulation, and that Parliament must be granted access to the relevant documents in order to establish to its satisfaction that the Commission is fulfilling its obligations;

57. Recalls that the transmission of confidential information must comply with the provisions governing judicial and disciplinary proceedings;

58. Calls on the Commission therefore to reconsider its position and, as guardian of the treaties, to ensure that Parliament is able to comply fully with its supervisory obligations within the framework of the discharge procedure.

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the balance sheets and accounts of the sixth, seventh and eighth EDF for the 1998 financial year (COM(1999) 227 – C5-0003/1999),
- having regard to the Convention signed in Lomé on 31 October 1979 (sixth EDF, Lomé II) ⁽¹⁾,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- having regard to its resolution of 13 April 2000 on postponement of the decision concerning discharge to the Commission in respect of the financial management of the sixth, seventh and eighth European Development Funds for the financial year 1998 (COM(1999) 227 — C5-0003/1999-2004)⁽¹⁾, pending a commitment to enact a series of recommendations in an Action Plan before 15 May 2000;
 - having regard to the Commission's Action Plan responding to each of the points raised by Parliament adopted formally by the Commission on 10 May 2000 and duly transmitted to the Committee on Budgetary Control;
 - having regard to Article 276 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Rule 93 and Annex V of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Budgetary Control (A5-0167/2000),
- A. whereas external pressure from Parliament has helped the Commission to deal rapidly with a number of cases of negligence and irregularity within its management of the European Development Fund,
- B. whereas in the past Parliament, the Anti-Fraud Office and the Court of Auditors were not systematically informed by the Commission of alleged or prima facie cases of fraud or negligence in development aid programmes, leaving Parliament on a number of occasions to uncover irregularities and alert the other two bodies,
- C. whereas the Commission has announced that in future it will inform Parliament's Committee on Budgetary Control, the Anti-Fraud Office and the Court of Auditors of its audit and evaluation work programmes, detected irregularities and corrective measures taken or planned,
- D. whereas general weaknesses in the use of aid were illustrated in the implementation of Structural Adjustment Support programmes in a number of countries whereby the use of counterpart funds suffered at times from inadequate management, poor supervision and insufficient evaluation,
- E. whereas the Commission intends in future to draw up Memoranda of Understanding with beneficiary governments setting out their obligations, including corrective measures, the first such Memorandum of Understanding having been signed in Côte d'Ivoire on 7 September 1999,
- F. whereas the Commission has undertaken to inform Parliament of the recovery of ineligible expenditure for six other countries as soon as final audit reports have been completed,
- G. whereas when mismanaged funds are recovered from beneficiary country authorities, the Commission should try to ensure equivalent supplementary financing to NGOs operating in this country,
- H. whereas some Commission delegation staff appear, in a number of instances, to have failed to act as an effective first line of control against misuse of funds; whereas the Commission is carrying out a substantial reform which also affects staff and the duties of its delegations,
- I. whereas the Commission is looking to make radical improvements in the speed, quality and impact of external aid programmes by overhauling its approach to assistance and reunifying the project cycle in the hands of a single external body, Europe Aid, which will replace the Joint Relex Service created in July 1998, and by devolving greater power to the delegations,
- J. whereas following Parliament's insistence on zerotolerance of fraud the Commission has promised to recover embezzled funds and launch administrative enquiries into the role of delegation staff in irregularities and has made a commitment to open disciplinary proceedings on the basis of evidence of involvement in or cover-up of the fraudulent use of Community funds,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- K. whereas the central Internal Audit Service created on 1 May 2000 will not be fully staffed before the end of 2000,
- L. whereas the Commission will improve the flow of information to ensure that feedback from often expensive and time-consuming evaluation reports is systematically used in the design of programmes and projects,
- M. whereas the Court of Auditors, in its annual report for 1995 ⁽¹⁾, reminded the Commission that supervision is primarily the task of the delegation in each country concerned and called explicitly for improvements in monitoring by delegations and strengthening of controls in national administrations through the systematic supply of technical assistants,
- N. whereas, in a follow-up enquiry in 1999, the Court of Auditors found that a number of problems flagged earlier were still persisting, with a general failure by the Commission to appraise service providers, to analyse costs or to evaluate technical cooperation,
- O. whereas on 4 May 1999 Parliament gave discharge in respect of the sixth and seventh European Development Funds for the 1997 financial year ⁽²⁾ based on firm commitments that the Joint Relex Service would show a more robust and systematic approach for tendering, executing, audit and evaluations, that delegation staff would carry out more rather than fewer checks, evaluations would measure the quality of impact rather than the quantity of inputs, that a decentralised accounting system would be introduced to ensure a tighter grip on financial controls, and that technical assistance to National Authorising Officers would be reinforced,
- P. whereas the Commission has assured Parliament that it will continually strive to learn from best practice on audit and evaluation systems of Member States in response to the call for a benchmarking exercise,
- Q. whereas its Committee on Budgetary Control and the Committee on Development and Cooperation have worked in close cooperation during the 1998 EDF discharge procedure so that budgetary control and development policy aspects were taken into account during the appraisal of the Commission's performance in 1998, as well as its Action Plan,

Adoption of Action Plan

1. Acknowledges that the Commission has taken a first step in the process of reforming external relations, both at its headquarters and in its delegations, by seeking to address problems in the delivery of external aid and expects, therefore, that this reform will result in the effective management of funds by both the Commission and local authorities and will help final beneficiaries towards the goal of sustainable development;
2. Welcomes the Commission's adoption of an Action Plan and looks forward to receiving a clear timetable on measures initiated by the Commission and, as far as possible, information on steps taken by beneficiary countries;

Ongoing monitoring of Action Plan

3. Welcomes the commitments made by the Commission and asks to be informed every six months about progress achieved as regards implementation of the Action Plan as of October 2000.

⁽²⁾ OJ C 279, 1.10.1999, p. 132.

Thursday 6 July 2000

An output-oriented approach

- (a) An output-oriented approach should be adopted, in which clear and disaggregated targets are set for specific results expected from the aid programme; reporting on EU development co-operation must evolve further towards DAC/OECD standards and shift gradually from input orientation towards results – with OECD standards adopted for reporting by 2001;
- (b) More attention should be devoted to actual disbursement levels and mechanisms should be put into place to increase the rate of disbursement, as this would bring about a real improvement in getting aid to the poor;

Independent administrative and disciplinary procedure

- (c) The Commission is rightly committed to launching administrative and, if necessary, disciplinary proceedings and these should be conducted in a professional and transparent manner, with information provided to Parliament on a case-by-case basis;

Delegations

- (d) As the number of properly qualified staff in certain delegations is not always commensurate with the amount of funds managed in the beneficiary countries, a reallocation of human, administrative and financial resources should be made to ensure that the size of delegations is proportional to the risks involved, with more use being made of locally hired staff, particularly to ensure appropriate levels of qualified professionals;
- (e) A culture of accountability and sense of financial responsibility in delegation staff should be fostered by spelling out clearly the role of officials, local agents and other categories of staff, with particular emphasis on the management powers of heads of delegation and ensuring that delegation staff have a greater degree of autonomy in taking financial decisions;
- (f) As the Commission agrees that decentralisation of responsibilities to delegations will need to be accompanied by a reinforcement of officials with appropriate expertise (e.g. in health, education, gender) and project management abilities, staff with suitable experience should be assigned and provided with induction training during the handover period between outgoing and incoming staff;
- (g) Greater emphasis should be placed on measuring the performance of delegation staff and in particular their management of development aid projects and programmes;

Relations between headquarters and delegations

- (h) Communication between the centre and periphery would be improved markedly with more systematic use of IT tools;
- (i) The operation of the EDF Committee should be refocused on the programming stage of the project cycle, concentrating on issues of policy and strategy rather than on an examination of individual projects; the Committee should only deal with major projects over a certain size;

Evaluations

- (j) Positive and negative lessons drawn from evaluations in the field should be fed back to both headquarters and other delegations to improve planning and implementation of future operations;

Capacity building in beneficiary countries

- (k) The sustainability of aid should be strengthened by promoting ownership of aid projects and programmes by local beneficiaries and by encouraging the participation of local administrations, consultants and NGOs;

Thursday 6 July 2000

- (l) The capacity of local administrations to monitor and control expenditure in a proper fashion should be supported by the European Union along with other donors in order to make assessments of public finances that go beyond a simple analysis of the budget, and include:
- (i) legislation on the budget preparation, expenditure and reporting,
 - (ii) quality of the procedures on the same aspects,
 - (iii) quality of budgetary control at both governmental and parliamentary level;

Improved coordination

- (m) To reduce any possible overlap and improve added value, the Commission must improve coordination with other actors, including officials of Member States in the countries concerned, the European Investment Bank and bilateral and multilateral donors;

Anti-Fraud Office

4. Invites the Anti-Fraud Office to report promptly on cases of alleged fraud or corruption relating to the management of the EDF;

Court of Auditors

5. Invites the Court of Auditors to investigate the audit and control systems used by delegations to monitor Structural Adjustment Support and to make recommendations for improvements to the EDF management before 15 March 2001 and to report on the effectiveness of the EU in implementing international targets on poverty reduction;

Follow-up

6. Informs the Commission that it intends to examine closely in the next discharge procedure progress made on overhauling the management of development aid.

7. European Parliament/European Ombudsman Annex (1998 discharge)

A5-0189/2000

European Parliament decision giving discharge in respect of implementation of the general budget of the European Union for the financial year 1998 – Section I – European Parliament/Ombudsman Annex (SEC(1999) 414 – C5-0008/1999 – 1999/2051(DEC))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its Rules of Procedure, and in particular Rule 184(3) thereof,
- having regard to Article 77 of the Financial Regulation and Article 13 of the Internal Rules for the implementation of the European Parliament's budget,

- having regard to the information provided by its Secretary General in response to the specific instructions contained in paragraph 33 of the aforementioned decision,

⁽¹⁾ Texts Adopted, Item 4.

Thursday 6 July 2000

1. Recalls that:
 - (a) the figures closing the accounts of the institution for the financial year 1998 were adopted in the context of the abovementioned resolution of 13 April 2000;
 - (b) the abovementioned resolution instructed the Secretary General to take a number of steps, aimed at improving financial and administrative management in Parliament; including the following, with deadlines:
 - by 1 June 2000, proposal of concrete measures to reverse the increase in use of the exceptional direct treaty procedure, for which calls for tenders should be substituted, including measures to train and improve the qualifications of Parliament's staff involved in the awarding of contracts;
 - by 1 June 2000, the Committee on Budgetary Control to be informed of progress made in introducing the new inventory system;
 - by 30 June 2000, a report to be submitted on the conclusions from the current reform process in the Commission relating to staffing policy;
 - by 1 July 2000, the Bureau to submit options for an accurate action and financing plan, particularly for the Louise Weiss Building in Strasbourg, including a legal assessment taking account of the state of the negotiations;
 - in good time before the first reading of the 2001 budget, submission of a report assessing whether it is advisable to assign the European Parliament sole responsibility for the management of its freelance interpreting needs;
 - (c) it called on the Court of Auditors:
 - to deliver an opinion in the very near future on whether the procedure adopted for funding the Altiero Spinelli Building is applicable to future projects in the light of the amendments which have now been made to the Financial Regulation and the rules on awarding public service contracts;
 - to submit a special report on the practice of awarding contracts for security services for EP buildings, including an examination of whether it is economically feasible;
 - (d) paragraph 33 of the abovementioned resolution called for the following additional information and action before the discharge was given:
 - that an action plan be presented to reduce dramatically the number of restricted tenders and direct agreements;
 - that the 1998 inventory be completed and presented;
 - that the appropriate bodies be informed about the progress of current disciplinary procedures, especially those linked to cases lost in the Court of Justice;
 - that a long-term buildings policy be presented, including financing, new investments and expected total costs, as well as an action plan to avoid contractual obligations limiting the European Parliament's possibilities for open tendering;
 - that a timetable be presented for the administrative reform of Parliament;
 - that the new contracts authorised for the security and guarding of the buildings in Strasbourg be in full accordance with the rules, especially on calls for tender;
 - that, in the light of the final report of the Court of Auditors on the expenditure of political groups, the latter take specific measures to rectify the disclosed shortcomings within two months of receiving the report;
2. Takes note of the information put at the disposal of the Committee on Budgetary Control outlining the action taken and the undertakings made, which should allow for a more efficient use of appropriations earmarked for the institution; considers its judgment to have been confirmed that postponing the discharge for 1998 had a constructive effect and spurred Parliament's administration on to greater efforts to use taxpayers' money more efficiently;
3. Instructs its Committee on Budgetary Control, when considering the discharge for 1999, to return to the central topics broached in connection with the postponement of the discharge for 1998: shortcomings in tendering, buildings policy, staff policy and the inventory;

Thursday 6 July 2000

Competitive tendering – Awarding Contracts

4. Notes the action plan to facilitate competitive tendering under the terms laid down by the current rules; asks for the optimal planning of awards of contracts and expects a strict monitoring of that planning as well as the introduction of administrative measures which will make this possible; recalls that free competition among providers of goods and services is one of the fundamental principles of Community law, that Parliament must set a good example in this field and that therefore contracts may be awarded by private treaty only in exceptional cases, as indeed the Financial Regulation expressly stipulates; calls for a report on the state of implementation and a first evaluation by 31 January 2001;

5. Strongly supports the notion of inter-institutional co-operation with regard to the awarding of contracts, whenever possible; approves the expressed intention on the part of the Secretary General to take the necessary steps to that effect in co-operation with his counterparts; expects precise information to be provided as part of the Revenue and Expenditure Account and Balance Sheet, including comparable statistical data from the various institutions and advisory bodies, in the interest of increased competition and of the protection of the Union's financial interests;

Inventory

6. Instructs its competent committee to continue to monitor closely the taking of the inventory and to ascertain whether the new system for the management of Parliament's property (ELS) is being operated properly and effectively; asks that, as a part of the Revenue and Expenditure Account and Balance Sheet for every financial year, a detailed account is made of the physical permanent inventory; expects in particular that the Revenue and Expenditure Account and Balance Sheet for 2000 will indicate the completion of measures which are still pending; expects measures to ensure implementation in accordance with the new system;

7. Instructs its Secretary General to take the initiative with his counterparts for the adoption of rules governing inventory management on an inter-institutional basis, including common rules on depreciation;

Lost court cases relating to senior appointments

8. Notes the Secretary-General's statement that at present no disciplinary proceedings are pending within Parliament's administration; welcomes the fact that on 1 December 1999, i.e. even before the deliberations on the discharge for 1998, the Bureau, at the proposal of the Secretary-General, started an administrative inquiry; notes the Bureau decision of 13 June 2000, in connection with the Frederiksen case, not to seek redress as provided for by Article 22 of the Staff Regulations; notes that this decision is based on the consideration that the administrative inquiry did not reveal evidence of 'serious misconduct' by individuals as referred to in Article 22 of the Staff Regulations; points out, however, that the administrative inquiry revealed both problems with internal decision-making procedures and a tendency to neglect risks associated with court cases in relation to alleged considerations of 'principle'; concludes from the course of events that it would have been appropriate to review the case and reappraise the risks associated with legal proceedings at a considerably earlier stage; recalls paragraph 23 of its above-mentioned resolution of 13 April 2000, calling on the Legal Service to inform the Bureau about the risks of court cases before the Bureau takes its decisions, particularly in the light of previous judgements on staff matters; welcomes the Bureau decision of 13 June 2000 instructing Vice-Presidents Lienemann and Provan to examine whether further internal administrative reforms are needed in order to avoid similar outcomes; instructs its Bureau to inform the competent committees about its conclusions on this matter;

Buildings' Policy

9. Regrets the geographical dispersion of Parliament's working places, as well as that of its services, for which the institution itself bears no direct responsibility, as it is a consequence of the Treaty between the governments of the Member States; emphasises the need to minimise further logistical inconveniences in the context of the institution's future building needs in view of the upcoming enlargement; consequently insists that any future decision in the area of buildings' policy be guided by the principle of functionality, particularly as regards the regrouping of Parliament's services in each working place, and the optimal use of financial resources;

Thursday 6 July 2000

10. Expects those countries hosting Parliament's buildings to each make contributions of a comparable value toward the acquisition of immovable property;

11. Reiterates its principled position that the method of financing to be used in future acquisitions, including that of the Louise Weiss building in Strasbourg, be that of direct financing in order to ensure the maximum degree of transparency possible as well as obtaining the best value for the European taxpayers' money; strongly urges the Council to reconsider its position in this matter;

Administrative Reform

12. Welcomes the submitted timetable; instructs its Bureau and Secretary General to keep its competent committees informed of progress in the implementation of the internal administrative reform; emphasises the need for active involvement of staff in this procedure;

13. Reiterates its call for a common buildings budget and common buildings management for the institutions and advisory bodies of the European Union;

Security

14. Notes the Bureau's overruling of the Financial Controller's withholding of Approval No 00/05, in its capacity as the superior authority; regrets that no attempt was made to award the contract for guarding its buildings in Strasbourg for a shorter, transitional period and to make use of this time to rerun the award procedure in full accordance with Community regulations on the award of public contracts;

Financing of the Political Groups and Parties

15. Takes explicit note of the fact that only the political groups themselves have any responsibility for the use of appropriations made available to them under Chapter 37;

16. Notes with satisfaction the answers of the Bureau to the preliminary observations of the Court of Auditors and expects that measures aimed at radically reforming the relevant legal framework be completed without delay in conformity with financial regulations and the principle of transparency;

17. Welcomes the fact that all five political groups currently active in Parliament who had also been active during the previous legislative period have provided their specific responses to the preliminary observations of the Court of Auditors;

18. Regrets the unwillingness of the Court of Auditors explicitly to name those groups whose questionable financial practices are specifically mentioned within the body of the report;

19. Acknowledges the findings of the Court and as a result of these findings:

- welcomes the decision of the Conference of Presidents of 26 February 1999 to enact guidelines for the purposes of defining those information activities which are characteristic of election campaigning and are thus to be excluded from being financed by funds derived from the information campaign budget of the political groups;
- demands that internal bookkeeping procedures be transparent and that these procedures be followed by all groups, and supplemented by specific group financial regulations, which, as the Court points out, is not the case;
- demands that transparency be achieved with regard to the financial operations and internal audit systems of the national delegations of the political groups;

Thursday 6 July 2000

- criticises the failure on the part of certain groups to provide the Office of the President of the Parliament with the certification of their accounts by an external auditor, even if this was not a mandatory provision at the time;
- demands that measures be taken to avoid the possibility that financial assistance could be provided to national political parties or other similar organisations as a result of joint actions undertaken between them and the political groups;
- regrets that one group has only now, in the context of the annual report, informed the President of Parliament of the accumulated capital of a public foundation created under Luxembourg law to which it has allocated funds;
- stresses the need for clarity in regard to work contracts;

The Case relating to the Members' Cash Office

20. Expects the competent authorities, in the light of the judgement dated 29 March 2000 of the Luxembourg Court of Appeal in the case brought by Parliament against Royale Belge S.A., to initiate the procedure provided for in Article 22 of the Staff Regulations with a view towards defining responsibilities in connection with the discrepancy of BF 4 136 125 between the actual cash situation and their corresponding accounts in 1982;

*
* *

21. Gives its Secretary General discharge in respect of the implementation of the budget for the financial year 1998;
22. Authorises the giving of discharge to the accounting officer for the financial year 1998;
23. Instructs its President to forward this decision to the Commission, the Council, the Court of Justice, the Court of Auditors, the Economic and Social Committee, the Committee of the Regions and the European Ombudsman.

12. European Council meeting of 19/20 June 2000 at Santa Maria da Feira

B5-0587, 0588 and 0590/2000

European Parliament resolution on the conclusions of the European Council meeting in Feira on 19/20 June 2000

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its resolution of 15 June 2000 on the preparation of the European Council meeting in Feira on 19/20 June 2000 ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the Presidency report to the European Council on the Intergovernmental Conference (Confer 4750/00),
 - having regard to the Presidency Conclusions of the European Council meeting at Santa Maria da Feira on 19/20 June 2000,
 - having regard to its resolution of 12 March 1999 on the Commission Communication on EU-India Enhanced Partnership ⁽²⁾ and the results of the EU/India summit of 28 June 2000,
- A. whereas the European Council has reaffirmed the priority for the Union of the enlargement process and has reiterated the commitment of the Union to maintaining the momentum of the accession process, which must result in an early enlargement of the Union, thus extending the rule of law, democracy and respect for human rights to a wider Europe,

The IGC and Charter of Fundamental Rights

1. Regrets that the European Council failed to give a new political impetus to the IGC to enable the European Union to prepare fully for the early accession of new Member States;
2. Underlines the absolute necessity of successful negotiations in the IGC on a substantial extension of qualified-majority voting in the Council plus codecision with Parliament, which are the key to preparing the European Union for enlargement;
3. Deplores the fact that the Heads of State and Government have not placed on the agenda the other points proposed by the Parliament, Commission and certain Member States which are, nonetheless, essential in order to enable the IGC to achieve a result which is important for an ambitious institutional reform, which is required with a view to the forthcoming enlargement, including better demarcation of the powers of the Union;
4. Notes that the European Council considers that the provisions on closer cooperation should form part of the future work of the Conference, which has been called for in several of its resolutions; but warns against using either closer cooperation or the prospect of a further IGC as a pretext for not making progress on the widening and deepening of the Union;
5. Welcomes the call, contained in the Presidency Conclusions, for the Convention entrusted with drawing up a Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union to present a draft document in advance of the Biarritz European Council in October 2000; recalls its commitment to the indivisibility of rights and their incorporation in the Treaties;

Common European Security and Defence Policy

6. Welcomes the European Council's decisions concerning the future development of the CFSP, particularly with regard to the civil and military instruments necessary for crisis management; urges the adoption of far-reaching headline goals in the field of civil action with appropriate financial arrangements and in cooperation with civil society;

⁽²⁾ OJ C 175, 21.6.1999, p. 442.

Thursday 6 July 2000

7. Expresses its concern at the increasingly complex interinstitutional relations with regard to foreign and security policy, where the Commission, the Council of Ministers and the Council Secretary-General — High Representative interact with each other and with Parliament, which might undermine common EU competencies established in the Treaty;
8. In any case, urges the Council to involve Parliament fully in defining the priorities regarding the external action of the European Union, and reaffirms its proposals set out in its abovementioned resolution of 15 June 2000;
9. Notes with satisfaction that the commitment to build a Common European Security and Defence Policy capable of reinforcing the Union's external action through the development of a military crisis management capability assumes the functions of WEU with regard to the Petersberg Tasks; stresses that due account must be taken of the corresponding budgetary implications; emphasises the need for a positive outcome of the Capabilities Commitment Conference on 20 November 2000;
10. Welcomes the decision to coordinate closely the building up of an independent European defence capability with NATO and the agreement to invite European member states of NATO that are not EU members to participate in EU-led operations, as well as non-members of NATO, such as Ukraine and Russia;

Taxation

11. Welcomes the agreement on the savings tax and the progress report on the Commission's tax package as an encouraging step towards necessary tax coordination in Europe; regrets that the timetable for the implementation of the savings tax agreement does not reflect the urgency of the matter, and insists on the necessity of finding a workable solution with third countries; requests the Council to adopt concrete measures to counter damaging tax competition on the basis of the Code of Conduct report;

Lisbon follow-up

12. Welcomes the broad consensus on the Lisbon strategy for economic reform and social cohesion which has been achieved across the European Union's institutions and bodies, and with the social partners, as well as the continued momentum of the single market reforms;
13. Emphasises the crucial coordinating role of the broad economic policy guidelines in implementing an effective macroeconomic policy mix with a view to sustainable growth, competitiveness, investment, employment and social cohesion; insists that the position of the European Parliament is respected in these matters via an Interinstitutional Agreement;
14. Welcomes the European Charter for Small Enterprises, but calls for a real commitment to reducing red tape, reforming labour markets and introducing tax systems which reward success; emphasises, however, that easing the burden for such firms must not put at risk workers' rights;
15. Supports the Council's recognition of the importance of public services of general interest and calls for strong services of general interest to be maintained and strengthened by improved Treaty provision; endorses the Council's request for a rapid updating of the 1996 Commission Communication;
16. Reaffirms its commitment to combat poverty by developing a substantive European Social Agenda that supports employment creation, modernises social protection and promotes social inclusion;
17. Underlines the importance of increasing both public and private investment in Europe in order to achieve a higher rate of growth that is environmentally sustainable in accordance with the Kyoto commitments, including investment in human resources directed towards developing a knowledge-based society;

Thursday 6 July 2000

18. Calls on the Commission to strengthen measures to develop consumer confidence in e-Europe, including improving access to justice for the consumer;
19. Welcomes Greece's accession to the euro as from 1 January 2001;

Food Safety

20. Welcomes the importance attached by the Council to the issue of food safety, and the progress made towards establishing a European Food Authority by the end of the year 2000; would remind the Council, however, that it must wait for the opinion of the European Parliament before drawing up detailed plans and timetables, particularly as far as this new Authority is concerned;

Foreign affairs

India

21. Recalls its initial proposal to establish a regular EU-India dialogue at the highest level; warmly welcomes the first EU-India Summit as a milestone in enhancing their relations, based upon democratic values and respect for the rule of law;
22. Supports the decision to hold further regular summits and notes the adoption of a comprehensive 'Agenda for Action', including a dialogue on security matters; welcomes India's call for nuclear disarmament but reiterates its request that India sign and ratify the comprehensive test ban treaty;
23. Urges the Council to work towards the inclusion of India in the ongoing ASEM process;

Western Balkans

24. Welcomes the agreement to intensify cooperation with the states of the Western Balkans and to reconfirm that all the countries concerned are potential candidates for EU membership; supports the conclusion of regional trade agreements; considers that unclear decision-making procedures and duplication of tasks should be avoided at an administrative level as well as in the implementation of all assistance and reconstruction activities in the Balkans;
25. Calls on the Council to begin negotiations immediately with Croatia on a Stabilisation and Association Agreement as a positive signal to the whole region;

Mediterranean

26. 13. Elections in Zimbabwe

B5-0599, 0602, 0604 and 0605/2000

European Parliament resolution on the parliamentary elections in Zimbabwe

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its resolution of 18 May 2000 on the situation in Zimbabwe ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the Council decision of 22 May 2000 to send an observer mission to monitor the elections in Zimbabwe, headed by Pierre Schori, MEP, and its own decision to send a delegation of Members to help in this task,
- A. whereas parliamentary elections took place in Zimbabwe on 24-25 June 2000 in the presence of some 190 EU observers, as well as other observers and monitors from organisations such as the Organisation of African Unity (OAU), the Southern African Development Community (SADC) and the Commonwealth and several thousand local Zimbabwean monitors,
- B. whereas although polling was generally calm and well organised, there were serious problems concerning the electoral registers and obstacles placed in the way of domestic monitors and international observers, notably with regard to accreditation,
- C. whereas the pre-election period and the election campaign were marred by high levels of violence, intimidation and coercion, for which the leadership of the governing Zimbabwe African National Union — Patriotic Front (ZANU-PF) should be held principally responsible, and at least 30 people were killed, most of them opposition supporters,
- D. whereas this contributed significantly to the climate of fear so evident during the election campaign,
- E. whereas in many rural areas the levels of intimidation by ZANU-PF were so intense as to make it virtually impossible for the opposition to campaign,
- F. whereas the government-controlled media, especially radio and television, were used to spread ruling party policies and at the same time prevented opposition views from being fairly presented; whereas, nevertheless, Zimbabwe has a vigorous press which has been able to put forward the opposition's point of view,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- G. whereas the overall conduct of the government failed to uphold the rule of law and undermined law enforcement agencies, particularly in the lead-up to the elections,
- H. whereas the seizure of commercial farms is a further violation of the rule of law in Zimbabwe and whereas the important issue of fair land distribution can only be resolved by a democratic and non-violent process based on the rule of law and ensuring that land will go to the rural poor,
- I. whereas, regrettably, violence and intimidation have continued in the post-election period,
1. Commends the impressive turnout by which the people of Zimbabwe have shown their democratic maturity and determination to influence their own destiny;
 2. Considers nevertheless that the elections cannot be described as free and fair owing to the high level of violence and intimidation which preceded the polling days;
 3. Commends the work of the EU Observer Mission, which helped to curb violence and ensure that elections, though flawed, could take place in an organised manner;
 4. Welcomes Mr Schori's final report and its conclusions, delivered in the European Parliament on 4 July 2000;
 5. Firmly condemns the violence and intimidation during the pre-election period and even to some extent on the polling days as well as the deliberate government policy of polarising race relations through seizures of white-owned farms;
 6. Calls on the Government of Zimbabwe to re-enforce law and order and guarantee respect for human rights and democratic principles; in this context calls for a thorough and independent investigation of all cases of human rights abuses associated with the electoral process;
 7. Deplores irregularities, in particular the inadequacy of the electoral registers, and the lack of clear instructions on polling day which prevented a significant percentage of the eligible population from voting;
 8. Calls on the Government of Zimbabwe to address as a matter of urgency the serious defects in the electoral process and not to try to block any opposition appeals to the High Court;
 9. Calls on the Government of Zimbabwe to comply with the High Court order to end the illegal occupation of farm land, and to proceed to land resettlement within the rule of law and on the basis of the principles and conclusions of the 1998 Land Conference;
 10. Calls on the President of Zimbabwe to consider his strong personal responsibility to actively pursue a policy of national reconciliation and to use his considerable authority to this end;
 11. Considers that, despite the very serious irregularities during the election period, including sometimes lethal violence, the results, whilst certainly not accurately reflecting the will of the people, nevertheless mean that there is now a significant opposition force represented in the parliament, which gives hope for the emergence of a genuine multi-party democratic system;
 12. Notes that the immediate post-election period has not been free of violence and therefore calls on the Government of Zimbabwe, and in particular on its President, to ensure that perpetrators of violence are prosecuted in the courts, to respect court decisions regarding complaints about the conduct of the elections and in particular any court decisions to revise election results or hold new elections in certain constituencies, and to pursue its policies, particularly that on land reform, in a consensual manner;
 13. Stresses the need for persecution of MDC (Movement for Democratic Change) supporters to cease immediately, and condemns in particular death threats made against individuals including Archbishop Pius A. Ncube of Bulawayo,

Thursday 6 July 2000

14. Considers it vital that the Commission and Council pursue an active dialogue with the government, the opposition and civil society in Zimbabwe,
15. Resolves to monitor developments in Zimbabwe over the coming months, and makes it clear that a failure to pursue the above-mentioned policies of reconciliation may lead to a refusal to release the second tranche (of € 30 million) from the 8th EDF when this is considered on 20 September 2000, and also to the application of the consultation procedure under Article 366a of the Lomé Convention, which could suspend all Lomé-derived benefits for Zimbabwe;
16. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the applicant countries for EU membership, the ACP/EU Joint Assembly, the OAU and the Government and Parliament of Zimbabwe.

14. Trafficking in human beings

B5-0596, 0598, 0603 and 0606/2000

European Parliament resolution on illegal immigration and the discovery of the bodies of 58 illegal immigrants in Dover

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 10 December 1948,
 - having regard to the Geneva Convention on the Status of Refugees of 28 July 1951, as modified by the New York protocol of 31 January 1967,
 - having regard to the European Convention on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms of 4 November 1950,
 - having regard to its resolution of 8 October 1998 ⁽¹⁾ on cooperation with Mediterranean countries in the area of immigration,
 - having regard to Title IV, Article 61 et seq of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Articles 2 and 6 of the EU Treaty,
 - having regard to its resolution on the Commission working document 'Towards common standards in asylum procedures', adopted on 15 June 2000 ⁽²⁾,
- A. appalled by the terrible tragedy of the death of the fifty-eight people whose bodies were discovered in Dover on the morning of Monday, 19 June 2000,
 - B. whereas similar incidents occur daily at the Union's frontiers, with countless immigrants and refugees losing their lives while attempting to enter the countries of the Union illegally; having regard also to the hundreds of people who have perished in the course of their journey from Africa to the coasts of Europe, victims, for the most part, of smugglers and traffickers in human beings,
 - C. revolted by the practice of trafficking in human beings, which exploits the despair of people in Eastern Europe, Africa and Asia in order to profit from illegal immigration networks, with a total disregard for the dignity of human life,
 - D. concerned by the resurgence of illegal immigration in Europe, as demonstrated by the number of victims of the odious and unacceptable crime of trafficking in human beings,
 - E. whereas immigrants, whether legally resident in Member States for many years or recently arrived, have contributed significantly to the European economy and its social development,

⁽²⁾ Texts Adopted, Item 12.

Thursday 6 July 2000

- F. whereas the criminals engaged in smuggling illegal immigrants into the EU have the technical and economic means to enable them easily to avoid surveillance at its external borders; and whereas, therefore, this issue must be resolved using whatever preventative and defensive means are necessary,
- G. whereas the inefficiency of asylum legislation and the relevant administrative procedures increase levels of illegal immigration and the involvement of organised crime,
- H. whereas, as a result of these barriers to immigration, refugees often fall victim to organised gangs of smugglers who demand substantial sums for their services,
- I. whereas, according to the International Organisation for Migration, the international trade in human beings has become a fast-growing, well organised and highly profitable business,
1. Expresses its dismay at the events in Dover and its sympathy with the victims' families;
 2. Expresses its grief for all the victims at this intolerable human tragedy;
 3. Regrets that a genuine European policy on asylum and immigration, which should include a European strategy on migration, has yet to be implemented;
 4. Urges the Council to take measures to regulate migration and, in particular, to combat the criminal organisations which traffic in human beings despite the fact that Article 63 of the EC Treaty provides for a period of five years within which the Union is to adopt common legislation in the area of immigration;
 5. Reminds the Council of the commitments made at the European Council in Tampere on 15/16 October 1999 concerning the duty of the European Union to develop common asylum and immigration policies, whilst taking account of the need to exercise coherent and effective controls at its external frontiers in order to stop illegal immigration; calls on the French Presidency to include this issue in its work programme as a matter of urgency;
 6. Urges all bodies involved to enhance cooperation between Europol and the national authorities, in particular as regards the rapid exchange of information, and to ensure that Europol has all the financial and human resources required to combat trafficking in human beings;
 7. Recalls that the definition of Community law on asylum and immigration cannot be disconnected from the setting up of an area of freedom, security and justice in the Union, capable also of promoting democratic values and the rule of law beyond its frontiers;
 8. Recalls the conclusions of the recent European Council in Feira and reiterates the essential need to make progress in the field of cooperation between Member States in order to combat more effectively the odious practice of trafficking in human beings;
 9. Stresses the considerable responsibility of embassies in the countries of origin in taking initial decisions on visa requests, calls for more consultation between the European ambassadors in those countries from which large numbers of illegal immigrants come, and urges those embassies to set up information campaigns warning people about the dangers of the trade in human beings;
 10. Calls on the Member States to tighten their laws so as to make employers liable to more severe punishment, as a means of combating the employment of illegal immigrants;
 11. Calls on the Council and the Commission to formulate specific proposals in order to improve the integration of legal immigrants in the EU on the basis of the best practices in the Member States;
 12. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission, and the governments and parliaments of the Member States.

15. Fiji and the Solomon Islands

B5-0616, 0620, 0629, 0636, 0640 and 0644/2000

European Parliament resolution on the situation in Fiji and the Solomon Islands

The European Parliament,

- A. gravely concerned about the political crisis in Fiji after a coup on 19 May 2000, which led to the suspension of Parliament, the abrogation of the Constitution, the resignation of the democratically elected Prime Minister and of the President, and the imposition of martial law on 29 May 2000 by the Fijian Army,
- B. whereas on 3 July 2000 an Interim Civilian Administration was formed in Fiji under the new Prime Minister Laisenia Qarase, with the military retaining executive authority,
- C. deeply worried about the plight of 27 hostages, including the deposed Prime Minister Mahendra Chaudhry and other cabinet ministers, who are still held in the parliamentary complex as the army declared a military exclusive zone on 2 July 2000 and repeated threats to their life are made by coup leader George Speight,
- D. gravely concerned about the heightening tensions between indigenous Fijians and Indo-Fijians and amongst the indigenous Fijians themselves, and about the anti-Fijian-Indian rhetoric of coup leader George Speight which has already caused mobs to destroy Fijian-Indian shops and troops to rebel on Fiji's second largest island, Vanua Levu,
- E. recalling that Fiji was earlier the scene of a coup d'etat which was led in 1987 by Colonel Rabuka for similar reasons and which caused the country's expulsion from the Commonwealth for 10 years and led to the departure of thousands of Fijian-Indians,
- F. noting that the multi-racial constitution of 1997 was designed to solve the ethnic problems on the islands, including the land issue, and that this constitution was unanimously approved by an ethnic Fijian-dominated Parliament and blessed by the Great Council of Chiefs,
- G. whereas the Solomon Islands also faced an attempted coup in Guadalcanal on 5 June 2000, which led to the resignation of the democratically elected Prime Minister and the collapse of law and order,
- H. whereas on 30 June 2000, by 23 votes to 21, the Solomon Islands' Parliament elected the opposition leader Mannasseh Sogavare as the new Prime Minister, and whereas Sogavare must fulfil his pledge to create national unity and reconciliation,
- I. drawing attention to the key role played by the ACP-EU Joint Assembly's mission to the Solomon Islands which included two MEPs who mediated between the warring factions and helped reduce the level of tension,
- J. whereas the ongoing conflict in the Solomon Islands between the Malaita Eagle Forces and Guadalcanal's Isatabu Freedom Movement is also rooted in ethnic tension and has spread beyond Honiara with renewed fighting breaking out on 2 July 2000 and resulting in a number of deaths,
- K. noting that, since independence from Britain in 1978, the Solomon Islands have tried to create a parliamentary system to bring together a country of over 1000 islands and 70 different languages,
- L. whereas both Fiji and the Solomon Islands are the latest examples of ethnic tensions that are occurring across the South Pacific,
- M. having regard to the measures adopted by the Commonwealth during the Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group Meeting in London on 6 June 2000,

Thursday 6 July 2000

1. Strongly condemns the coup by George Speight and the dismantling of all democratic institutions, including the 1997 Constitution, the Government and Parliament in Fiji;
 2. Urges the immediate and unconditional release of all hostages held by coup leader George Speight in Fiji;
 3. Calls for those involved in the hostage-taking to be brought to justice in accordance with international standards;
 4. Strongly condemns the stirring up of ethnic tensions and the destruction of Fijian-Indian property, noting that Fijian Indians make up 44 % of Fiji's population of 800 000;
 5. Calls on all parties involved in the constitutional and political crisis to ensure the safety and human rights of the civilian population, in particular the ethnic Fijian Indians and indigenous Fijians refusing to support the coup, and for all sides in the Solomon Islands to respect any amnesty or cease-fire agreed;
 6. Welcomes the initiative of the National Council of Women in Fiji, in particular their call for unity and for a peaceful resolution of the crisis;
 7. Notes the appointment of an Interim Civilian Administration by the military in Fiji and expresses concern about the constitutional and democratic status of such an arrangement;
 8. Urges the Interim Civilian Administration and Fiji's new Prime Minister Laisenia Qarase to work towards returning Fiji to full democracy and towards an end to the current crisis which is crippling Fiji's economy: delaying sugar production, dramatically reducing activities in the tourism sector and putting thousands out of work after recent trade bans;
 9. Calls on the Commission to start appropriate procedures to suspend development co-operation with Fiji if there is no return to democracy within a set time frame, even after the release of the hostages;
 10. Strongly condemns the attempted coup by the Malaita Eagle Forces in the Solomon Islands and the recent escalation in violence;
 11. Supports all efforts including those by the new Prime Minister of the Solomon Islands Manasseh Sogavare to create national unity and reconciliation;
 12. Strongly condemns the ethnic tensions and destruction of property in the Solomon Islands and calls for the swift restoration of law and order;
 13. Urges the Commission to keep a close watch on moves towards democracy in the Solomon Islands, particularly in view of the crucial role played by EU funds (which amounted to € 60 million last year) in the Solomons, and warns that EU aid may be suspended if there is not a rapid return to democracy, peace and stability;
 14. Urges all parties in both countries to observe and respect democratic norms and constitutional procedures;
 15. Urges the Commission to monitor developments closely, not only in Fiji and the Solomon Islands but across the South Pacific region in view of the increase in religious and ethnic tensions in the area;
 16. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and the parliaments of the Member States and applicant states, and to the constitutional authorities of both Fiji and the Solomon Islands.

16. Tibet

B5-0608, 0610, 0617, 0621 and 0641/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Western China Poverty Reduction Project and the future of Tibet

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on Tibet,
 - A. considering the lack of progress in the EU-China human rights dialogue,
 - B. whereas on 7 July 2000 the World Bank is expected to take a final decision on its support for the Western China Poverty Reduction Project,
 - C. recalling that Tibet was invaded and occupied in 1949 and 1950 by the Chinese armed forces,
 - D. recalling that, whilst the 'seventeen-point agreement' signed in Beijing under duress by the Tibetan authorities sanctioned the annexation of Tibet by the People's Republic of China, it also guaranteed Tibet's full autonomy and, in particular, the continuity of its political system and full respect for religious freedom,
 - E. recalling the Lhasa uprising against the Beijing regime on 10 March 1959, which resulted in the deaths and imprisonment of thousands of Tibetans and the exile of the Dalai Lama and tens of thousands of other Tibetans,
 - F. recalling the establishment in 1965 of the Tibet Autonomous Region (TAR) by the Beijing authorities and considering that no genuine autonomy has existed there since China occupied the country,
 - G. recalling the repeated attempts at restarting the dialogue with the Beijing authorities made by the Dalai Lama, notably through the 'five-point plan' presented to the US Congress in 1987 and the 'Strasbourg proposal' presented to the European Parliament in 1988,
 - H. concerned that China has shown no readiness to take part in a dialogue to negotiate the future of Tibet,
 - I. recalling the award of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989 to the Dalai Lama and his appeal to the international community to encourage a peaceful settlement of the Tibetan question,
 - J. recalling Tibet's designation in 1992 as a 'Special Economic Zone' and the resulting large-scale transfer of Chinese settlers to Tibet which, in the space of a few years, has made the Tibetans a minority in their own country,
 - K. whereas the proposed Western China Poverty Reduction Project may lead to a further relocation of ethnic Chinese into the Tibetan areas and may violate the World Bank's own policies regarding indigenous peoples, involuntary resettlement and the environment,
1. Calls on the Council, the Commission and the Member States to do all they can to start up negotiations between the Government of the People's Republic of China and the Dalai Lama on a new status for Tibet which guarantees full Tibetan autonomy in all areas of political, economic, social and cultural life, the only exceptions being defence and foreign policy;
 2. Calls on the governments of the Member States to give serious consideration to the possibility of recognising the Tibetan Government in exile as the legitimate representative of the Tibetan people if, within three years, the Beijing authorities and the Tibetan government in exile have not, through negotiations organised under the aegis of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, signed an agreement on a new Statute for Tibet;

Thursday 6 July 2000

3. Asks the Commission and the Council to urge the World Bank to suspend its decision on the Western China Poverty Reduction Project and to examine all the effects this project could have on Tibet's ethnic, cultural and social balance;
4. Urges the World Bank to publish the Inspection Panel report and Recommendation on the Western China Poverty Reduction Project before the vote of the World Bank Board;
5. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the governments and parliaments of the applicant countries, the President and Prime Minister of the People's Republic of China, the Dalai Lama and the Tibetan government and parliament in exile.

17. Human rights: Child soldiers in Uganda

B5-0611, 0622, 0630, 0637 and 0646/2000

European Parliament resolution on the abduction of children by the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Convention on the Rights of the Child, its Optional Protocols, the 1999 ILO Convention concerning the prohibition and immediate action for the elimination of the worst forms of child labour, the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court and the 1977 Additional Protocols to the Geneva Conventions,
 - having regard to its previous resolutions on child soldiers,
- A. whereas an armed rebellion has been raging in northern Uganda since 1986, currently under the name of the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA),
 - B. whereas the LRA is armed by the Sudanese Government army, which also provides it with food and logistical support, as a counter to the support of the Ugandan Government for the SPLA,
 - C. whereas, according to Unicef, the LRA has abducted at least 14 000 children, as young as seven years old, in northern Uganda, particularly in the districts of Gulu and Kitgum; whereas about 5 000 children have since returned or escaped and thousands remain unaccounted for, of whom not more than 2 000 are reported to be still alive,
 - D. whereas these children are taken to camps in southern Sudan from where they are sent to fight both the Ugandan Government army in Ugandan territory and the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) in southern Sudan,
 - E. whereas the children abducted by the LRA are subjected to extremes of brutality and are forced to conduct a reign of terror against their own people — the Acholi population — by killing innocent people or by cutting off limbs, ears and lips; whereas the total number of deaths is estimated at over 100 000 and the total number of displaced people currently at over 300 000,
 - F. whereas girls are often submitted to sexual abuse and brutality by the LRA commanders, the best documented case being that of the girls from Aboke,
 - G. whereas thousands of children have already died in captivity, from hunger and disease, during the fighting, or by being beaten and stabbed to death as punishment for those who tried to escape,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- H. whereas a Peace Accord between Uganda and Sudan was signed in Nairobi on 8 December 1999 which included a commitment by the Sudanese Government to stop its support for the LRA and guarantee the safe return of the abducted Ugandan children held in rebel camps in Sudan,
- I. whereas the political will to implement the Peace Accord has been lacking on both sides, both countries have continued to support each other's armed rebels, and very few abducted children have been returned by Sudan,
- J. whereas despite the Nairobi Peace Accord some 300 children have again been abducted by LRA rebels since the beginning of this year, according to Unicef, 143 of whom have escaped,
- K. whereas an amnesty law was approved by the Ugandan Parliament on 6 December 1999, but its implementation is being seriously delayed; whereas LRA leader Joseph Kony has already rejected the amnesty but some of his soldiers have applied for it,
- L. whereas LRA representatives are allowed to collect funds, make public statements and operate freely on European Union territory, and have been travelling unhindered within the European Union and between the European Union and Sudan,
1. Strongly condemns the continuing abduction of children in northern Uganda by the LRA and the subsequent use of these children in armed combat, which is a flagrant violation of several UN Conventions and international humanitarian law;
 2. Calls on the Government of Sudan to stop supporting the Lord's Resistance Army and to cooperate in the immediate and unconditional release of all the abducted children, as stipulated in the Nairobi Peace Accord;
 3. Condemns the fact that, in Sudan, the use of child soldiers and the enslavement of children continues, and supports the action plan put forward by Unicef to eradicate these practices;
 4. Calls on the Government of Sudan to consider the issue of the abducted children as a humanitarian issue and to separate it from the wider political issues in the region;
 5. Calls on the Government of Sudan to allow free and full access by humanitarian organisations such as the ICRC and Unicef to the LRA camps to ascertain the identities of the abducted children and ensure their safe return to their home communities;
 6. Calls on the Government of Uganda to continue efforts to find a peaceful solution for the conflict in northern Uganda and to speed up the implementation of the Amnesty Act, despite its rejection by the LRA leader Joseph Kony;
 7. Calls on all parties involved in the conflict in Sudan to resume talks to find a peaceful solution to the conflict in southern Sudan;
 8. Calls on international oil companies working in Sudan, such as Talisman Energy Inc. of Canada, to halt their operations as long as abductions of children and slavery continue and a peaceful solution has not been found to the conflict; calls on EU companies to refrain from oil investments in Sudan and urges the EU Member States to exert their influence to this effect;
 9. Calls on the Council to assume a more active role in urging the implementation of the Nairobi Peace Accord;
 10. Calls on the Commission to support all efforts to rehabilitate and reintegrate the returning children and to support the affected communities in northern Uganda;
 11. Calls on the Council to support initiatives that prohibit the use of child soldiers and urges the ratification of the Optional Protocol of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child setting 18 as the minimum age for the recruitment of soldiers;

Thursday 6 July 2000

12. Calls on individual EU Member States to ban LRA operations and travel by LRA representatives within the European Union and between EU Member States and non-EU countries;

13. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the ACP-EU Council of Ministers, Unicef, international oil companies working in Sudan, and the Governments of Uganda and Sudan.

18. Human rights: The Moluccas

B5-0609, 0612, 0623 and 0647/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Moluccan Islands

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its earlier resolutions on Indonesia and on the situation on the Moluccan Islands,
 - A. whereas on 19 June 2000 more than 100 people were killed and several hundred injured in a massacre by Muslim extremists in the Christian-inhabited village of Duma on the Island of Halmahera,
 - B. whereas a boat with 500 refugees on board, over half of them from the ravaged village of Duma, sank on its way to Manado on 30 June 2000,
 - C. whereas the current Indonesian Government has courageously promoted the democratisation process, but is facing strong opposition,
 - D. whereas negative forces from within the old regime seem to be trying to destabilise the Wahid/Sukarnoputri Government,
 - E. whereas the Moluccan Islands have for long been considered a positive example of the peaceful coexistence of Christians and Muslims,
 - F. whereas thousands of Islamic Jihad fighters have moved to the Moluccans, have been armed there and have caused provocations not seen before, which have led to a bloody conflict between the Muslim and Christian population,
 - G. whereas the behaviour of these militias and the ambiguous behaviour of the army and police in the region seem to resemble the patterns recorded in East Timor,
 - H. whereas in the last few weeks again many people, for instance in Ambon, have been killed or wounded, bringing the total number of those killed on the Moluccans in the last 18 months to over 3 000 and the number of refugees and displaced persons to over 100 000,
 - I. whereas the militias have provoked a situation of terror including violent incidents, rape, murder, arson and large-scale damaging of property,
 - J. whereas the Government of Indonesia is still hesitating to accept the aid and intervention of international organisations,
1. Asks the Commission and Council to support the process of re-establishing democracy in Indonesia and to support the present government and its honest efforts to establish democracy and respect for human rights;
 2. Asks the Commission and Council to warn the forces which are trying to destabilise the present government that the international community will not accept a relapse in Indonesia;

Thursday 6 July 2000

3. Asks the Commission and Council to call on the Indonesian Government to do all within its power to put an end to the violence on the Moluccan Islands in order to re-establish peaceful co-existence between the Muslim and Christian population, as has proved possible for many years;
4. Asks the Commission and Council to call on the Indonesian authorities to open humanitarian aid corridors so that assistance can reach people displaced by the fighting and others in need of relief, and to stress in their contacts with the Indonesian Government the importance of strict requirements in ports and airports of the Moluccans, including thorough checks for weapons coming into and out of the Moluccans;
5. Asks the Commission and Council to urge ECHO to increase support for relief efforts, considering the recent deterioration of conditions on the Moluccan Islands;
6. Asks the Commission and Council to examine ways in which the international community can help to restore calm to the Islands, for instance by sending international observers;
7. Asks the Commission and Council to call on the Indonesian Government to suspend from duty members of the security forces suspected of directly or indirectly taking sides in the conflict and to judge and punish all those guilty of these provocations and violence, if necessary by establishing a special national or international court;
8. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission and Council, the governments of the applicant states and the Indonesian Government.

19. Human rights: Death penalty in the USA

B5-0613, 0619, 0624, 0631 and 0638/2000

European Parliament resolution on the death penalty in the United States

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its earlier resolutions to protest against the death penalty in the US and elsewhere, in particular its resolutions of 8 October 1998 ⁽¹⁾, 18 November 1999 ⁽²⁾ and 13 April 2000 ⁽³⁾,
- A. whereas the decision of the General Affairs Council of 29 June 1998 aimed at strengthening the international activities of the European Union in opposition to the death penalty 'as an integral part of its human rights policy' with the universal abolition of capital punishment as a fundamental goal,
- B. dismayed at the execution by lethal injection of Gary Graham in Huntsville, Texas, on 22 June 2000,
- C. noting with dismay that there have been 131 executions in Texas during the past five years,
- D. having regard to the Union's reiterated commitment to seek the adoption by the United Nations General Assembly of a resolution instituting a universal moratorium on capital punishment as a first step towards the permanent universal abolition of the death penalty; deploring the fact, however, that the lack of coordination within the Union and among the Member States contributed to the failure of an initiative to this end during the last United Nations General Assembly,
- E. reiterating its serious concern about the sad record which the State of Texas has built up ever since the US reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and since when Texas has executed 7 more juvenile offenders, more than any other American State,
- F. whereas Derek Rocco Barnabei, sentenced to death in the State of Virginia, USA, in 1993, for the murder of a young woman, is scheduled to be executed in August 2000,

- G. whereas judicial errors often occur, as was recently recognised in the case of Joaquin José Martinez, who was allowed a new trial after waiting for several months for the death sentence to be carried out,
- H. whereas it appears that the investigations failed to furnish clear evidence of his guilt and that Mr Barnabei's defence was flawed and insufficient,
- I. whereas in the opinion of leading US legal authorities a grave judicial error has been made in this case,
- J. noting that for the first time a wide-ranging national debate on the death penalty has been launched during the election campaign in the United States and welcoming the decision by the Governor of Illinois to enact a moratorium on all executions,
1. Reiterates its deep belief that the abolition of capital punishment constitutes a fundamental step towards enhancing human dignity, ongoing developing of human rights and increasing respect for those rights and calls on the Council to renew its efforts to secure a worldwide moratorium on all executions;
 2. Reiterates its call for the abolition of capital punishment and the immediate imposition of a moratorium in countries where capital punishment still exists;
 3. Is dismayed at the execution of Gary Graham, who was sentenced for having shot a man dead in Houston 19 years ago although there were still doubts about the conviction; points out, furthermore, that in more cases serious doubts have arisen with regard to capital convictions after execution has taken place, implying that innocent people may have been put to death;
 4. Calls on the Government of the State of Virginia to suspend the execution order against Mr Barnabei and, given the large amount of evidence that could influence the sentence handed down, calls on the judicial authorities responsible to grant Mr Barnabei the possibility of a retrial, since the interests of justice will best be served by seeking out the truth and making sure that innocent men are not convicted;
 5. Calls on the Presidential candidate to follow the example of the Governor of Illinois, George Ryan, and to introduce a moratorium on executions in his State, in the light of the various judicial errors committed, and reminds the United States Supreme Court of the need to meet its obligations under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and abolish the death penalty;
 6. Urges the US Government again to comply with the request made by the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights on 27 January 2000 that executions should not proceed until the Commission has examined and ruled on the case;
 7. Calls on the Governor of Virginia, the Rt Hon. James Gilmore, to suspend the execution of Derek Rocco Barnabei and to commute his sentence;
 8. Asks the relevant courts to grant Derek Rocco Barnabei a retrial in order to examine new evidence that could prove his innocence;
 9. Accordingly, calls on the Council to step up substantially the political dialogue with the US leadership on the abolition of the death penalty on American territory and invites the French Presidency to come forward with urgent clear initiatives on this matter;
 10. Decides to include the issue of the death penalty as one of the fixed items on the agenda of each meeting of the EU/USA parliamentary delegation;
 11. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and to the governments of the Member States, the Government of the US and the Governors of Texas and Virginia, as well as all governments mentioned in this resolution.

20. Human rights: Hooliganism

B5-0625, 0632 and 0649/2000

European Parliament resolution on Euro 2000

The European Parliament,

- A. whereas the Belgian and Dutch authorities have been able to organise a large-scale football tournament and associated festivities,
 - B. whereas the Belgian and Dutch authorities have shown themselves to be fully in control of public order and able to prevent structural disturbances during the Euro 2000 football festivities,
 - C. having regard to the joint action by the Belgian and Dutch Ministers of Home Affairs to see if a ban on travelling by condemned hooligans to countries other than their home country is possible,
 - D. whereas the vast majority of the soccer fans have through their behaviour supported a peaceful Euro 2000,
 - E. whereas hooliganism seems to be a growing problem, involving a high social cost and taking on totally unacceptable proportions and that all forms of hooliganism should be condemned,
 - F. whereas the EU and its Member States need to radically fight this phenomenon, which at certain moments turns into a cross-border problem and undermines the European idea and solidarity within the EU,
 - G. whereas serious riots took place repeatedly in Brussels during Euro 2000 and on the day of the Germany-England game also in Charleroi, each time involving English supporters,
 - H. whereas the British authorities recognised that there were problems with preventing English hooligans travelling to Belgium and that the authorities of other EU Member States did take the necessary preventive measures to keep their 'hard core' inside their national borders,
1. Welcomes the initiatives taken by the Dutch and Belgian Governments which resulted in a successful Euro 2000;
 2. Welcomes the behaviour of the vast majority of the soccer fans and the practical measures taken by UEFA;
 3. Notes that in many cases hooligans engaged in racist, xenophobic and homophobic violence;
 4. Requests all governments associated with football teams represented in European tournaments to act both to foresee and prevent football hooliganism and to cooperate in bringing effective means to bear in order to combat hooliganism once a tournament has commenced;
 5. Requests that the national governments involved take sufficient preventive measures in the future to prevent hooligans who have already been involved in soccer riots from travelling to countries where their national team or club is playing and supports the Dutch-Belgian initiative for a ban on travelling by arrested hooligans to football matches considered to be a potential risk;
 6. Asks the British Government to consider sharing the cost of transporting English hooligans back home by Belgian C 130 planes;
 7. Calls on UEFA and other organisers to take all necessary measures to ensure that all citizens can attend sporting events in a safe and dignified manner;

Thursday 6 July 2000

8. Deplores the use of force against journalists doing their job and calls on the Dutch authorities to carry out a proper inquiry into the circumstances surrounding these events to determine who was responsible;
9. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Governments and Parliaments of the Member States and of the applicant states, and to the President of UEFA.

21. Human rights: Iraq

European Parliament resolution on Iraq

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its earlier resolutions on Iraq, especially its resolution of 13 April 2000 ⁽¹⁾,
- A. having regard to the Iraqi Government's obligation to continue to accept and encourage UN controls with a view to the destruction of nuclear and chemical weapons, and also to cooperate with the International Committee of the Red Cross, which is responsible for finding and repatriating all those who disappeared in connection with the occupation of Kuwait by Iraq,
 - B. having regard to the tragic situation of the Iraqi people arising from the application of the embargo,
 - C. whereas these sanctions have contributed to the devastation of an ancient civilisation and of the living standards of 22 million Iraqis,
 - D. whereas the intellectual embargo has deprived academic, medical and scientific professionals of advances in technology,
 - E. whereas the social fabric of a traditional society has been ripped apart,
 - F. whereas a no-fly zone has been imposed upon Iraq in order to prevent the use of the Iraqi Air Force against people of Kurdish origin and those of southern Iraq,
 - G. whereas the enforcement of the no-fly zone is giving rise to a series of military actions which cause casualties and suffering to many innocent human beings,
1. Reiterates its position as expressed in its abovementioned resolution of 13 April 2000 and calls upon the UN Security Council to commence a dialogue with a view to lifting the economic embargo while maintaining a strict arms embargo on Iraq;
 2. Proposes sending parliamentary fact-finding delegations with a view to opening a dialogue to establish how the oil-for-food programme can be extended to improve the living conditions of the Iraqi people;
 3. Expresses its belief that EU diplomacy should try to bring about a lifting of the no-fly zone, together with a formal renunciation by the Iraqi Government of the use of military force in dealing with the demands for autonomy of the Kurdish people;
 4. Reiterates the need for the UN, WHO and Red Cross to continue to monitor the importation and equitable distribution of goods and services, so that the benefits thereof reach the most deprived and vulnerable people in Iraq;
 5. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the Member States and of the applicant countries, the Secretary-General of the UN and the Government of Iraq.

B5-0615, 0627, 0634, 0642 and 0652/2000

European Parliament resolution on reconstruction and rehabilitation of the areas affected by the catastrophic floods of December 1999 in Venezuela

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its resolution of 20 January 2000⁽¹⁾, calling on the Commission to examine Venezuela's most pressing needs,

- A. having regard to the sheer scale of the disastrous flooding, as witnessed by an ad hoc delegation which visited Venezuela from 25 to 28 February 2000 and carried out an on the spot assessment of the appalling devastation caused by the disaster, above all in the state of Vargas,

- B. whereas the number of lives lost is still unknown but runs into tens of thousands, and whereas great material losses and damage to infrastructure were sustained,

- C. having regard to the housing, health, food and schooling problems facing the hundreds of thousands who lost their homes and possessions in the disaster,

- D. acknowledging the solidarity displayed by the European Union, which responded rapidly with an initial disbursement of € 400 000 as immediate emergency aid approved by the Commission on 22 December 1999 and channelled through the German and Spanish Red Cross, and the rapid freeing of funds via ECHO to enable NGOs to provide immediate assistance to the victims,

- E. having regard to the enormous efforts made by the Venezuelan authorities to make good the devastating effects of the disaster, and alleviate the suffering and meet the needs of those affected,

- F. whereas a disaster of this kind not only has a terrible impact on the least-advantaged sectors of the population, but also wipes out fledgling economic development and brings poverty in its wake, thus spelling ruin for the middle class and for small and medium enterprises in the areas affected,

- G. having regard to the efforts which the Venezuelan Government is making, once the basic needs of the population have been met via the emergency aid programmes, to draw up a general plan for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the affected areas,

- H. whereas Venezuela and Europe have strong cultural and historical ties,

- I. whereas the EU played a major role in terms of reconstruction aid after other natural disasters such as the hurricane which hit Central America and the floods which devastated Mozambique,

- J. mindful of the importance of fully consolidating democracy in Venezuela at this time, and mindful that its relations with the European Union are framed by a general cooperation agreement which includes a democratic clause,
 - 1. Expresses its horror at the tragedy and its solidarity with the Venezuelan authorities and people, and particularly with the families of the flood victims;
 - 2. Acknowledges the efforts of the Venezuelan authorities to tackle the needs of those affected by the disaster and prevent a 'social explosion' and the outbreak of epidemics;

Thursday 6 July 2000

3. Congratulates the Commission, the Member States and the NGOs on the speed with which they reacted and came immediately to Venezuela's help in the face of the human, material and infrastructure losses caused by this natural disaster;
 4. Urges the Commission, on the basis of the Venezuelan Government's identification and evaluation of what is required, to commit € 250 million over a five year period as the European Union's contribution to rehabilitating and reconstructing the country, and as an expression of solidarity with the Venezuelan people;
 5. Calls on the Commission to help the Venezuelan Government in establishing sustainable environmental criteria for reconstruction activities;
 6. Recalls the importance of aiding above all the most-disadvantaged population sectors, who are now utterly destitute, and also the middle classes and small and medium enterprises, which generate employment and wealth and have suffered huge losses and are in a situation of near-poverty; observes that efforts will be made to involve the affected population groups in the measures taken towards reconstruction;
 7. Notes the postponing of the Venezuelan elections because the necessary technical conditions could not be met, and the subsequent mass resignation of the ten members of the National Electoral Council; believes that it is essential that transparent and democratic elections be held, with all necessary guarantees that all political parties will be able to take part under identical conditions;
 8. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission, the governments of the Member States and the Venezuelan Government.

Recital 13a (new)

(13a) Without prejudice to the possibility of reviewing the financial perspective ceiling to ensure that the MEDIA programme will be in a position to implement its objectives, the Commission should arrange for additional funding to support European audiovisual projects, including funding to cover training programmes for professionals. The sources of such funding include in particular cooperation with the European Investment Bank and the European Investment Fund, and networking with the Fifth Research Framework Programme and the 'e-Europe' initiative, the Commission's relevant action plan and the Structural and Regional Funds. Information about these possibilities aimed at professionals in the audiovisual sector should be presented in a comprehensive form.

(Amendment 63)

Recital 13c (new)

(13c) In accordance with the conclusions of the Lisbon Extraordinary European Council, the Council and Commission are to report by the end of 2000 on the ongoing review of EIB and EIF financial instruments in order to redirect funding towards business start-ups, high-tech firms and micro-enterprises, as well as other risk capital initiatives proposed by the EIB. (Amendment 64)

Recital 13d (new)

(13d) If the European audiovisual industry wants to be competitive, the production value of European audiovisual works need to be increased; in that connection it needs to be considered once again whether the establishment of a European Guarantee Fund, as proposed by the Commission on 16 November 1996 (COM(95) 546), would contribute to achieving this end.

(Amendment 10)

Recital 3d (new)

(3d) Systems to ensure quality vary from one Member State and one educational establishment to another, given the diversity in the sizes, structures, financial circumstances, institutional character and educational approach of different establishments.

(Amendment 11)

Recital 3e (new)

(3e) Quality evaluation and school self-evaluation in particular are tools well suited to the aim of combating the number of young people who drop out of the school system early and social exclusion in general.

(Amendment 12)

Recital 4

(4) In order to achieve the objective of high quality education, a whole range of means are available. Quality evaluation is a method of monitoring and creating learning and improving schools, which are capable of transmitting knowledge and equipping students in the Community with the appropriate skills, qualifications and attitudes which are essential to meet future challenges.

(4) In order to achieve the objective of high quality education, a whole range of means are available. Quality evaluation is one of them and is a valuable contribution to securing and developing the quality of education within schools including, where appropriate, vocational education. The quality evaluation of education must seek to assess the capacity of schools to take account of the use of the new information technologies which are becoming more widespread.

(Amendment 13)

Recital 4a (new)

(4a) The networking at European level of institutions involved in quality evaluation in school education is of fundamental importance. Existing networks such as the European network of policy makers for the evaluation of education systems set up by the Member States in 1995 can provide invaluable aid to the implementation of this Recommendation.

Recital 8

(8) The Commission conducted a pilot project during the academic year 1997/1998 in 101 upper and lower secondary schools in the countries participating in the Socrates programme. An Advisory Working Party that brought together Member States' appointed experts on education evaluation assisted the Commission in the implementation of the project.

(8) The Commission conducted a pilot project during the academic year 1997/1998 in 101 upper and lower secondary schools in the countries participating in the Socrates programme, which raised awareness of quality issues and helped to improve the quality of education in those schools ⁽¹⁾.

Recital 9

(9) The participants in the project, including representatives of the 101 schools, decision-makers from national administrations, researchers, and school stakeholders adopted a declaration during a final conference in Vienna on 20/21 November 1998. That declaration states that 'The Pilot Project has raised the awareness of quality issues in our schools and in almost all our schools, the project has helped to improve the quality of education during the project period' ⁽¹⁾.

Recital 10

(10) All 18 countries (EU Member States and Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein) taking part in the pilot project have written national reports exploring the impact of and their experiences during the pilot project. Those National Reports are predominantly positive and stress the importance of learning from one another internationally through the exchange of experiences and of good practices.

28. Liberalisation of energy markets

A5-0180/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission's second report to the Council and the European Parliament on the state of liberalisation of the energy markets (COM(1999) 198 – COM(1999) 164 – COM(1999) 612 – COM(2000) 297 – C5-0163/2000 – 2000/2097(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the second Commission report on the state of liberalisation of the energy markets (COM(1999) 198), the second Commission report on harmonisation requirements for the internal market in electricity (COM(1999) 164), the Commission report on harmonisation requirements for the internal market for natural gas (COM(1999) 612) and the Commission communication on recent progress with building the internal electricity market (COM(2000) 297 – C5-0163/2000),
 - having regard to the titles on competition and the environment in the EC Treaty as amended by the Treaty of Amsterdam, and Article 6 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Directive 96/92/EC on common rules for the internal market in electricity and Directive 98/30/EC on common rules for the internal market in natural gas,
 - having regard to its resolution of 30 March 2000 on electricity from renewable energy sources and the internal electricity market ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Industry, External Trade, Research and Energy and the opinion of the Committee on Legal Affairs and the Internal Market (A5-0180/2000),
- A. whereas in the electricity market competition relates to generation, transmission and distribution, and in the natural gas market to supply, transmission, storage and distribution,
- B. whereas competition is having a substantial effect on economies and consumers as a whole, such as reducing energy prices, reducing production costs, increased opportunities for new employment and is having a positive medium-term impact on the labour market in general economic terms,
- C. whereas suppliers are beginning to adapt their structures to the European internal market and are consequently prepared to step up their operations on the world energy market,
- D. whereas undertakings which have not adapted to competition in good time are to some extent encountering particular employment problems,
- E. whereas competition is also improving the efficiency of energy production and pricing and tariff systems help to husband resources,
- F. whereas competition does not prevent Member States from imposing public service obligations in the general interest on the parties involved (related to environmental considerations, security, regularity and quality of supply and pricing), whereas there is, however, no uniform definition of these obligations in the Member States,
- G. whereas
- efficient and non-discriminatory access to networks is the central requirement for competition to operate,
 - according to past experience this is best achieved if network owners' interests are strictly separated from the interests of other undertakings involved,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- H. whereas, failing the complete separation of branches of undertakings under company and property law,
- separate management and accounting of electricity networks also improves the opportunities for selling decentrally generated electricity (from renewable energy sources, combined heat and power and fuel cells),
 - the lack of separate management for gas networks could become a considerable obstacle to competition,
- I. whereas the EU internal market in network-based gas and electricity depends on the transposition and application of the requirements of the EC directives concerned in accordance with EC law and in a way that encourages competition,
- J. whereas an EU-wide internal market in network-based energy can be completed only if transmission bottlenecks and discriminatory transfer and transport prices between Member States and network monopolies are eliminated,
- K. whereas in the natural gas market changes of supplier and competition between network-owning and other gas undertakings present no problems when the product is natural gas compatible in terms of safety, utilisation and pricing characteristics (in respect of calorific value),
- L. whereas consumer choice from among various natural gas suppliers is possible even in the case of gas which is incompatible in respect of calorific value where the gas undertaking owning the network is able to mix various qualities of gas (therefore most probably import undertakings), where network separation can be undertaken if appropriate, or where measurements of calorific value may be carried out in various sections of the grid,
- M. whereas the Commission's approach to balancing liberalisation with environment, as now required by Article 6 of the EC Treaty, is in need of clarification,
- N. whereas the Member States should ensure that cooperation between the national authorities and the existing regulators and operators is optimised,
1. Considers that the correct transposition and practical implementation of the directives is an onerous task for the Member States and the Commission;
 2. Looks to the Commission, when dealing with requests for exemptions from competition in the internal market for energy for limited periods,
 - to keep the internal market approach of the directives in balance with the environmental aspects of the Treaties, and
 - to keep the fact that the directives concerned must also seek to ensure that the general service obligations are maintained and developed in accordance with Article 16 of the Treaty firmly in mind,
 3. Believes that delays in implementing internal market directives in some Member States are damaging the entire EU market and are therefore unacceptable; this should also apply to candidate countries which are already exporting electricity to the Member States but keeping their own markets closed;
 4. Regrets that some countries only intend to carry out the minimum liberalisation possible and expresses the hope that they will be more ambitious in the future;
 5. Believes that the candidate countries need additional help if the internal market directive is to be implemented on time, since transitional periods are to be avoided during implementation, primarily because of the accelerated liberalisation of markets for which the European Council called in Lisbon this year;

Thursday 6 July 2000

6. Appeals to the Commission to adopt a detailed timetable for the achievement of accurately defined objectives with a view to gradually but completely liberalising the energy markets;
7. Calls on the Member States to manage in a balanced way the opening up of markets so as to enhance EU citizens' right to freedom of establishment, freedom to provide services and freedom of movement of goods, as well as energy efficiency, security of supply and environmental protection;
8. Stresses that the liberalisation of markets should be seen as a first step towards the creation of an internal energy market and, consequently, calls on the Commission to submit specific proposals geared to overcoming all the existing barriers to intra-Community trade, and to take action specifically against those Member States failing to implement the Directives;
9. Points out that the amalgamation of national markets in network-based energy must be based on the principles of sustainability, non-discrimination, competition and network interoperability, and that this also applies to cross-border trade;
10. Welcomes the conclusions of the Presidency of the Lisbon European Council of 24 March 2000, which 'considers it essential that, in the framework of the internal market and of a knowledge-based economy, full account is taken of the Treaty provisions relating to services of general economic interest, and to the undertakings entrusted with operating such services';
11. Notes the Presidency conclusions stating the intention to speed up liberalisation in the electricity and gas fields and to seek to achieve a fully operational internal market in these areas;
12. Emphasises at the same time that a fully successful liberalisation of these markets will require a harmonisation of the energy policy frameworks within the Member States;
13. Calls for the systematic pursuit and implementation of the process of internalising the external costs of energy production, i.e. ascribing the pollution and damage inflicted on the community or the environment by individual conversion processes and uses to the energy sources responsible in order to achieve fairer competition between the various energy sources;
14. Calls, in order to protect consumers, for the development of new supplier monopolies and anti-competitive state aid to be systematically prevented, i.e. national and EU competition law to be strictly applied and, in particular, the placing of legal obstacles in the way of access for new market participants to be avoided;
15. Notes that small consumers can most effectively take part in competition if regulators in the Member States have ensured that, where there is a change of supplier, the necessary technical processes and contracts are standardised so that customers can provide any supplier with the essential information about their domestic meters from an individual supply number;
16. Calls for consumers to be able not only to change their energy supplier but also, through the provision of information on the energy source, to purchase electricity on the basis of its original source;
17. Notes that the price reductions achieved through competition erode the profits made by former monopolies to the benefit of consumers, but do not remove the original price differences for the use of different energy sources;
18. Stresses that the Member States must ensure that competition is not achieved at the expense of security of supply;
19. Calls on the Commission to consider whether the low prices at which electricity is supplied to the EU from the eastern European countries do not arouse a suspicion of dumping;

Thursday 6 July 2000

20. Calls on the Commission to submit proposals for Community legislation to speed up this process; further calls on the Commission to include in those proposals mechanisms to stimulate start-ups in new energy services and to provide consumers with the necessary information, certification and labelling systems in the Internal Electricity Market;
21. Points out that the creation of the internal energy market must be combined with increased penetration of renewable energies in our societies and must ensure equal conditions for undertakings from the various Member States in the future European energy market;
22. Welcomes the intentions announced by the Commission in its communication COM(2000) 297 and especially
- the preparation of a communication before the European Council's meeting in Stockholm in March 2001, describing measures taken by the Member States to protect consumers where public services are concerned,
 - the preparation of a study on the effects of liberalisation on employment,
 - the development of indicators to enable the degree of true competition in the national and Community markets to be assessed,
 - the preparation of a study before the European Council's meeting in Stockholm on the Member States' pricing systems for network access;
23. Calls on the Commission to inform the committee how energy imports from candidate and other third countries are to be evaluated (WTO, Energy Charter Treaty, prospect of accession) and how this is to be treated in market economy terms;
24. Welcomes the fact that the Commission has been asked to revise its 1996 communication on services of general economic interest to bring it in line with the Treaty;
25. Calls for measures to ensure that the existing systems of public service obligations in the Member States continue to operate in the competitive context, while being applied to all competitors on a transparent and public basis in accordance with the internal market directives on electricity and gas;
26. Notes that European-level energy network utilisation (in the case of natural gas including all other plant required for auxiliary services: storage facilities, mixing, compensation buffer arrangements and 'Line-pack') is the main instrument for launching competition between energy suppliers;
27. Calls therefore for:
- terms for network use to be non-discriminatory for all, not only on a national basis,
 - but that network access must in general be possible for all suppliers and consumers without discrimination across Member States' borders and across traditional catchment areas, where any exceptions are transitional and well justified on either social or environmental grounds;
28. Notes that non-discriminatory conditions governing network access are most likely to be achieved if in vertically integrated undertakings transport is not only unbundled from production and distribution in the accounts but, where appropriate, acts independently in company law and even property law terms;
29. Calls therefore for the conditions for using networks in the Member States not to hamper cross-border trade in electricity and gas, and stresses the important role and great responsibility of network operators in promoting this cross-border trade;
30. Calls for special attention to be paid to the interconnectors between continental Europe and Scandinavia and continental Europe and the United Kingdom in order to create a single European electricity market and to avoid distortion of cross-border trade;

Thursday 6 July 2000

31. Calls on the Commission, where no exception has been justified, to prohibit under competition law any remaining national tariff and pricing systems which are barriers to trade or to propose that the Council and Parliament adopt Community legislation to that effect (directive);

32. In this context believes that transitional arrangements are necessary in the new Directive for the development of renewables, given the existing market distortions caused by the non-internalisation of external costs, where an appropriate tax mechanism is required, as well as the extensive direct and indirect subsidies to fossil fuels and nuclear power, which need to be made transparent for the purposes of re-examining them; furthermore, given the growing disincentive caused by liberalisation, believes that mechanisms need to be incorporated into these markets to oblige Member States to ensure that energy efficiency and saving meet defined targets;

33. Calls on the Commission to oblige all Member States to establish fully independent National Regulatory Authorities with the appropriate powers to enforce full competition and promote the interests of consumers in a liberalised energy market;

34. Welcomes the fact that:

- the Member States, the national regulators, the independent transmission system operators (TSOs) and representatives of the various parties in the market and the Commission are pressing on with their work for a genuine internal market in electricity (the Florence process),
- the national TSOs have formed a European association (ETSO),
- under the Florence process solutions have been reached on the principles of cross-border pricing and tariffs and bottleneck management for the trade in electricity,
- the Member States' regulators are also involved in the Florence process;

35. Recommends the trial and, where appropriate, improvement of these Florence decisions in the light of experience; calls on the Commission and Council to provide greater price transparency, to formulate structures to enable regulators in the Member States to exchange information and access data and harmonise their activities; also calls for a role in the Florence process for the European Parliament;

36. Calls on the Commission to come forward with proposals as a matter of urgency to regulate third country access to the Internal Electricity and Gas Markets, so as to avoid energy 'dumping'; in particular, insists that those proposals should specify that any importation of electricity into the Internal Market must be subject to production and transmission standards similar to those in the EU, in particular as far as social and environmental criteria are concerned;

37. Considers that there is no point in laying down rules for pricing and tariffs for the cross-border use of networks by Community legislation (directive) if practical solutions are devised under the Florence process;

38. Calls on the Commission to encourage, together with the Member States and the operators of transmission networks, studies to evaluate innovative technical solutions that can significantly increase the capacity of existing transfrontier electricity lines;

39. Calls for the mandatory adaption of the capacity of transmission networks and the technical requirements for them to be framed so that there are no obstacles to the internal European market in energy in that respect;

40. Asks the Commission to come forward with proposals for increasing the capacity of sub-sea connectors for electricity and gas so that fully free movement of these energy resources can be available also to/from those Member States separated by sea crossings from the rest of the EU;

41. Welcomes the fact that in Madrid the Member States, the national regulators, the gas undertakings owning networks and representatives of various parties in the market are working with the Commission to establish the internal market in gas (Madrid process);

Thursday 6 July 2000

42. Expects that under the Madrid process practical and non-discriminatory solutions in respect of cross-border pricing and tariffs, bottleneck management, access to other auxiliary services and interoperability will be devised for the internal market in gas; believes this should be followed by implementing legislation, which would also remove the discrimination against CHP in the Internal Gas Market, as well as facilitating fair and transparent network access for CHP;

43. Recommends that an association of European gas network system operators be set up;

44. Calls on the Commission to publish a six-monthly report on final electricity and gas prices in the European Union in order to have a direct measure of the impact on the consumer of the liberalisation of energy markets; calls also for guidelines to be drawn up for the harmonisation of criteria for compiling price surveys and processing the data collected so as to ensure that comparisons between the situations in the various Member States are as meaningful as possible;

45. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the Economic and Social Committee, the Committee of the Regions and the Parliaments of the Member States.

29. ECB Annual reportA5-0169/2000*European Parliament resolution on the 1999 Annual Report of the European Central Bank (C5-0195/2000 – 2000/2118(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the 1999 Annual Report of the European Central Bank (C5-0195/2000),
 - having regard to Article 113 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Article 15 of the Statute of the European System of Central Banks and of the European Central Bank,
 - having regard to Rule 40 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to its resolution of 2 April 1998 on democratic accountability in the third stage of EMU⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 27 October 1999 on the 1998 Annual Report of the European Central Bank⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs (A5-0169/2000),
- A. whereas the Annual Report submitted by the European Central Bank is the first to cover the period after the introduction of the euro and at the same time the first full calendar year after the establishment of the European Central Bank,
- B. whereas the mean annual rate of inflation in 1999 was just over 1% and thus fell well below the upper limit of 2% which the ECB regards as compatible with the objective of stability,
- C. whereas the single currency has brought about a lasting improvement in transparency of pricing and convergence of prices in the participating Member States,

⁽²⁾ OJ C 154, 4.6.2000, p. 60.

Thursday 6 July 2000

- D. whereas pursuant to the EC Treaty the ESCB enjoys political independence in pursuing its task of maintaining stability and whereas the ECB and national central banks may be given no instructions on this subject,
- E. whereas independence is not to be equated with inadequate accountability but instead presupposes ample information and a high degree of transparency,
- F. whereas freedom from instruction is justified on the grounds that the ECB has a clear task to carry out, namely that of maintaining monetary stability,
- G. whereas both the rise in oil prices and the fall in the value of the euro pose increasing risks to price stability,
- H. whereas the ECB's contribution to promoting growth and employment lies primarily in adopting credible and lasting measures to ensure price stability and whereas the EU's arrangements for coordinating economic policy must not result in any blurring of political responsibilities,
- I. whereas an important reason for the creation of the euro was to insulate the euro area economy from the effects of volatile exchange rates, and noting that the trading range for the euro's predecessor currencies has been as low as USD 0,69 in 1985 and as high as USD 1,70 in 1979,
- J. whereas pursuant to the EC Treaty the ESCB bears special responsibility for the stability of the financial system, which is closely linked to its task of maintaining price stability,
- K. whereas supervision of individual financial institutions, which remains a national responsibility, is increasingly relevant to certain aspects of the system's stability,
- L. whereas the EC Treaty provides for the possibility of conferring on the ECB 'specific tasks concerning policies relating to the prudential supervision of credit institutions and other financial institutions with the exception of insurance undertakings', and whereas the ECB could usefully play a greater role in coordinating prudential supervision,
- M. whereas the increasing use of electronic money must not jeopardise the maintenance of price stability and whereas banks of issue must therefore have a measure of control over issuers of electronic money, including those which are not banks,
- N. whereas the Commission and the European Parliament are in favour of Greece's participation in monetary union as of 1 January 2001,
- O. whereas a recently established institution such as the ECB particularly needs the public to trust it to pursue a consistent stability policy and whereas winning the public's trust is a decisive precondition for both the internal and external stability of the euro,
- P. whereas the ECB's accountability to the European Parliament is particularly valuable because, among the institutions referred to in the EC Treaty, Parliament is the only one which possesses direct democratic legitimacy,
- Q. whereas the monetary dialogue between the President of the ECB and the European Parliament's Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs has developed into one of the cornerstones of the ECB's accountability and thus provides a democratic guarantee of the Bank's independence,
1. Congratulates the ECB on its convincing stability policy, as a result of which in the first year of its existence the rate of inflation in the euro area has already fallen to an all-time low;
 2. Notes that the success of the ECB's policy in meeting its objective of price stability and establishing market credibility is demonstrated by the continued low interest rate at which euro area governments are able to borrow money over a ten-year period, a rate which has consistently been a full percentage point below the rate required by the financial markets from the US Government;
 3. Welcomes the fact that the ECB does not interpret its responsibility for stability policy one-sidedly but that, in addition to inflation, it also monitors any deflationary tendencies;

Thursday 6 July 2000

4. Welcomes the improvement in information policy through the publication of discussion documents and reports on selected topics;
5. Welcomes the commitment made by the ECB both to publish economic forecasts, including an inflation forecast, on a regular basis, and to publish details of its econometric model or models of the euro area economy, and urges the ECB to proceed quickly to meet these commitments;
6. Urges the ECB to adopt the two further transparency measures supported by the European Parliament: the publication of minutes as soon as possible after each meeting giving arguments for and against monetary policy action (although not covering votes), and the publication of a regular report on the economic situation (including productivity growth and sustainable earnings increases) in each euro area Member State;
7. Considers it desirable to step up the direct dialogue with the public in order to foster a tradition of stability throughout Europe;
8. Calls on the ECB to continue to strive for stability in order to avert the risks of inflation;
9. Calls on the euro area Member States, in accordance with their obligations arising from the Stability and Growth Pact, to use the cyclical upturn to reduce budget deficits consistently and to accelerate the reduction of debt and to support the ECB's stability policy by speeding up structural reforms in the markets for goods, services and capital, labour markets and social insurance systems;
10. Calls on the euro area Member States, in this connection, to take the opportunity afforded by the currently favourable revenue situation to achieve balanced budgets or surpluses in the coming year, i.e. earlier than originally planned;
11. Is concerned not so much about the fall in the value of the euro in itself, but about the reasons for the weak euro, such as structural problems within the euro area economy; attributes the weakening of the euro to structural problems and a lack of dynamism within the EMU economy; stresses moreover that the competitiveness of the euro area must be increased;
12. Welcomes the so far moderate wages policy within the euro area and calls on the two sides of industry to continue on the same course in order to use the current growth phase to create new jobs and to prevent a wages/prices spiral from being triggered;
13. Welcomes the progress that Member States within the euro area have made in reducing their short-term indebtedness and hence their vulnerability to any financial shock and urges those countries with high levels of short-term debt to continue to reduce it to the low levels of most euro area Member States;
14. Calls on the ECB to keep a careful eye on possible risks to stability, such as trends in energy prices, the euro exchange rate and share and real estate prices, while at the same time, taking account of a possible easing of pressure as a result of increased efficiency in the field of the 'new economy' and improvements in price transparency and market liberalisation (particularly in energy, transport and telecommunications);
15. Calls on the ECB, in order to promote public acceptance of the euro, to work actively to improve international mass and retail payment transactions, if no lasting progress is achieved by the end of the year, and reiterates its call for regular progress reports to be submitted;
16. Points out, in conjunction with EU enlargement, that joining EMU is a three-stage process, comprising in turn EU membership, participation in the exchange rate mechanism and full participation in monetary union, and that progress from one stage to another is not automatic but depends entirely on compliance with the convergence criteria laid down in the EC Treaty in the same spirit in which transition to the third stage of EMU took place in 1998;

Thursday 6 July 2000

17. Stresses, in connection with EMU enlargement, the desirability of a high level of convergence in the real economy in order to limit the strain involved, both for the Community and for the applicant countries;
18. Welcomes the precautions taken by the euro system to deal with crises of liquidity in the euro area, and endorses the ECB's view that, in view of the risk of moral hazard, temporary injections of liquidity by the central bank to overcome a short-term liquidity squeeze should be granted only in exceptional cases and after case-by-case examination;
19. Observes that various international bodies constantly work to improve exchanges of information through multilateral cooperation; considers, nonetheless, that a further stepping-up of multilateral cooperation is called for, particularly with reference to the increasingly important issue of stability of the system;
20. Welcomes the reports by the ESCB's Banking Supervisory Committee, which make clear the links between the microprudential and macroprudential aspects of banking supervision, and calls on the ECB to extend its work in accordance with the mandate pursuant to the EC Treaty in the field of macroprudential analysis in order to contribute to the stability of the financial system;
21. Considers that there is a need to further intensify cooperation between the supervisors and central banks of all EU States — including the ECB — in order to be able to exploit mutual synergies on the one hand between the operations of the central bank as the body responsible for stability of the system as an observer of the market and supervisor of payment transaction systems and on the other hand the work of supervisors of banking systems; considers it necessary for the ECB to be assigned a role in coordinating prudential policies at European level;
22. Calls on the ECB to advocate vis-à-vis the Basle Committee on Banking Supervision that the new version of the Capital Accord should take account of the heterogeneous structure of the European banking system, that neutrality from the point of view of competition should continue to be assured both for banks in different countries and for smaller institutions operating locally and regionally, and that the planned new rules should not result in a deterioration of financing conditions for small and medium-sized businesses;
23. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the European Central Bank, the Commission and the Council.

30. Implementation of EMU

A5-0170/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission communication to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions on communications strategy in the last phases of the completion of EMU (COM(2000) 57 — C5-0104/2000 — 2000/2019(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication (COM(2000) 57 — C5-0104/2000),
- having regard to its resolution of 13 January 1998 on the euro and the consumer⁽¹⁾,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- having regard to its resolution of 16 December 1998 on information strategy on the euro ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 2 December 1999 on the length of the transitional period for the introduction of the euro ⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to its opinion of 17 February 2000 on the draft Council framework on increasing protection by penal sanctions against counterfeiting in connection with the introduction of the euro ⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 18 May 2000 on the annual assessment of the implementation of the stability and convergence programmes ⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to its opinion of 18 May 2000 on the proposal for a Council decision in accordance with Article 122(2) of the Treaty for the adoption by Greece of the single currency on 1 January 2001 ⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to Commission Recommendation 98/287/EC concerning dual display of prices and other monetary amounts ⁽⁶⁾,
 - having regard to the agreements on information about the introduction of the euro entered into by 13 Member States, the Commission and the European Parliament,
 - having regard to the hearings on the practical aspects of the introduction of the euro and on information policy held by the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs on 22 February, 3 April, 17 April and 5 June 2000,
 - having regard to the information campaign carried out by the European Central Bank,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs and the opinions of the Committee on Budgets, the Committee on the Environment, Public Health and Consumer Policy and the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport for their opinions (A5-0170/2000),
- A. whereas the European single currency is an essential, identity-building factor in the process of European integration,
- B. whereas since the introduction of the euro on 1 January 1999 there have been demonstrable positive effects on the European single market, price and currency stability, and growth and employment,
- C. whereas since its introduction the euro has also proved its worth as a stabilising factor in a number of international monetary crises,
- D. whereas every EU citizen, including those living in countries not taking part in monetary union, will be significantly affected by the introduction of the euro banknotes and coins, as will people in the applicant countries,
- E. whereas the exchange rate of the euro against the dollar has psychological effects on the public's confidence in the single currency,
- F. whereas many EU citizens are still insufficiently informed about the implications of the introduction of euro banknotes and coins,
- G. whereas the euro is still being underused by businesses and private individuals,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- H. whereas the majority of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) have not yet made the necessary technical adjustments to the euro, and are often still unaware of the need to adjust in time and whereas they underestimate the strategic challenges of the euro,
- I. whereas the aim of the European Union's information campaign is to raise public confidence in the euro and ensure the smooth introduction of the euro coins and banknotes with effect from 1 January 2002,
- J. whereas certain categories of the population with particular difficulties of access to information such as the elderly, blind people or people with impaired sight or hearing, people with a mental disability or illiterates and the socially disadvantaged must continue to be targeted in special ways by the information campaign,
- K. whereas young people, and schoolchildren in particular, are an important target group because of their great capacity for learning and absorbing information, and their role as channels of information and enthusiasm,
- L. whereas the information campaign will be conducted at national level through agreements between the Commission and Member States, in order to respond to national and cultural features,
- M. whereas application of the subsidiarity principle will ensure that there is effective cooperation with regional and local operators and channels of information such as business and consumer groups and trade unions, and organisations working with those categories of the population with particular difficulties of access to information,
- N. whereas use of the euro by public administrations in most Member States is progressing only slowly, and preparations for thorough information and communication are also lagging behind,
- O. whereas with the approach of the introduction of euro banknotes and coins interest in practical aspects of the euro will increase enormously,
- P. whereas the applicant countries are also affected by the single currency — although they cannot join the EMU at the same time as they join the EU — and there is consequently a great need for information,
- Q. whereas even after the introduction of the euro notes and coins many people will continue to be in great need of information and whereas the information campaign must therefore be continued until mid-2002,
- R. whereas the euro campaign creates an opportunity for Parliament to forge closer ties with the public by making sure that citizens' questions are adequately answered and their concerns addressed,
- S. whereas the interinstitutional working group that includes Members of the European Parliament and the European Commission will be coordinating the information campaign in its concluding stages,
- T. whereas the final phase of the euro information campaign by Parliament, the Commission and the Member States will run in parallel with the European Central Bank's information campaign, the aim of which is to familiarise the public with the euro notes and coins and to guard against risks of counterfeiting,
- U. whereas to ensure that the messages of the two campaigns are consistent, and for reasons of cost-effectiveness, timely coordination is necessary,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- V. whereas the number of staff made available in the Commission for a campaign of this significance does not appear to be sufficient to guarantee professional, well-coordinated organisation or the necessary controls on its financing and content,
- W. whereas in view of the importance of the euro for Europe's identity and the successful continuation of the process of integration, the campaign's budget for 2001 and 2002 must be increased appropriately,
1. Welcomes the Commission communication, with its aim of stepping up the euro information campaign in the final stage of changeover to the euro;
 2. Welcomes the work carried out hitherto by the Commission, Parliament and the Member States through the Prince programme on informing the public and preparing them for the euro;
 3. Welcomes the proposed objective of placing emphasis on increasing awareness of the euro in small businesses (SMEs) and the general public;
 4. Supports the sequencing of the campaign, the emphasis of which will be SMEs in 2000, because of their longer preparatory time, all target groups in 2001 and, specifically, the general public after September 2001;
 5. Welcomes the fact that the EU's information strategy also addresses those Member States not taking part in monetary union and the applicant countries, since they will also be affected by the introduction of the common currency and will, therefore, require access to adequate, factual information;
 6. Stresses that the campaign should also include information on the economic and monetary policy of the Union;
 7. Calls for special attention to continue to be devoted to preparing for the euro certain categories of the population with particular difficulties of access to information such as the elderly, blind people, people with impaired sight or hearing, people with a mental disability, illiterates and the socially disadvantaged, since these categories require a form of education rather than mere information; recommends stepping up, with immediate effect, the training of trainers; and providing them and the manufacturers of coin-operated machines, from the last three months of 2001, with the appropriate sample sets of euro notes and coins, in accordance with the relevant security measures;
 8. Underlines in this context the importance of informing women, as another specific target group, through women's organisations and women's magazines, as they are the ones who still have serious concerns about the euro's introduction;
 9. Calls on the Member States to ensure in the information campaigns they conduct that they take account of these groups of people, along the lines of the work done by the Commission throughout the process;
 10. Calls, in this respect, for the Commission programme 'The euro made easy' to be continued and for both organisations active in the fields of social affairs and health and NGOs and foundations to be involved in the campaign;
 11. Calls for greater efforts to be made this year to promote in SMEs the requisite technical changeover, and consideration of the strategic implications of the euro for specific industries;
 12. Recommends that the main channels for informing and supporting businesses should be professional associations such as industrial, trade and economic associations and accountants and auditors, since they are best acquainted with the needs of businesses;
 13. Suggests that regular events take place for the exchange of information and experience, between opinion-formers from different countries, and between businesses that have already completed the euro changeover and those in which the changeover is still to come;

Thursday 6 July 2000

14. Considers that the abovementioned sectors should be extended to include organisations representing cultural, youth and sports associations, which play a very important role in acting as multipliers and disseminating information;
15. Stresses the important role which children and young people can have in disseminating information; recommends therefore that in the 2000/2001 and 2001/2002 academic years there should be activities in all schools in the in-countries geared to the introduction of the euro, that it should be an integral part of teaching and syllabuses and that, in particular, no later than the commencement of the 2001/2002 academic year all school books should be brought in line with the new currency;
16. Recommends that in the academic years in question competitions on the euro should be organised in schools, for example essay-writing, public speaking, painting and drawing competitions, at local, national and ultimately EU level so that as many pupils as possible apply themselves to the subject of 'changing to the euro'; prizes should be awarded publicly at the different levels with, ultimately, a prize at European level;
17. Recommends reviving the working group for euro training, with the aim of devising a comprehensive strategy for the euro campaign in the education sector. Teachers' associations and organisations, as important communicators, should be involved in this process;
18. Broadly welcomes the Commission's specific measures to prepare the tourism sector for the change-over to the euro, but believes it is just as necessary for the hotel and catering trade to be thoroughly prepared for the euro since such businesses will be the first to be confronted directly with the new currency;
19. Recommends, in the context of the world savings week introduced by the banks, the introduction of a 'euro savings day' when comprehensive information on the euro would be provided, together with encouragement for opening a euro savings account; savings accounts could also be given automatically to all children born in the year 2001;
20. Recommends, in order to relieve the pressure of an increased volume of conversion transactions in the first few days of 2002, efforts to ensure that members of the public wind up their cash deposits by paying them into a euro savings account from Autumn 2001 or by purchasing euro starter kits with effect from 15 December;
21. Recommends, with a view to reassuring the public, giving them guidance and encouraging familiarity, that in the year the euro is introduced all mail order and marketing chains draw up and distribute a summary table of prices in euros and the national currency of the 50 most important items of food, drink and consumer goods;
22. Welcomes the fact that the Commission's information campaign also takes account of the need for the public to be confident that they are not cheated when prices are converted; calls on the Commission to table specific proposals based on best practices and to encourage national, regional and local authorities to establish local reporting centres where anyone can report any abuse such as unwarranted price increases;
23. Notes indications that price levels in the Euro area are lower than in other European countries due to increased competition and asks the Commission to draw up a study of this phenomenon;
24. Asks the Commission to accelerate its action with a view to preventing high bank charges for cross-border financial transfers and high conversion costs in the Euro area and improving their transparency and in particular to publish in full the findings of the study it has commissioned on bank charges for cross-border transactions, to highlight the serious differences that exist, and to repeat the study in 2001;
25. Stresses the pioneering role to be played by public administrations in using the euro, and calls for appropriate initiatives to guarantee this at both national and local level;

Thursday 6 July 2000

26. Recommends, in view of the broadening debate on the external value of the euro, that the campaign should with immediate effect put across, in tangible and clear terms, the demonstrable effects of the common currency on the European internal market, on price and currency stability and growth and employment;
27. Calls on the Commission to react appropriately and rapidly in its information campaign to topical developments, such as major exchange-rate fluctuations in order to maintain public confidence in the euro;
28. Recommends that particularly the EMU Member States bordering on applicant countries should enter into cooperation partnerships with those countries;
29. Reminds the Commission and the authorities of the Member States that because of their democratic legitimisation Members of the European Parliament can play an important role in transmitting information on the euro, for example to visitor groups in the places where the European Parliament meets;
30. Recommends to the Commission and the national authorities that all public office holders at national and regional level should also be involved in the campaign; to this end all public office holders should be provided with the latest information on the euro campaign via e-mail, so that they can pass on this information directly to the people in their constituencies; this means that all public office holders should have an e-mail address stored in the national parliaments and the European Parliament;
31. Calls for expansion of the present euro home page on the Internet into a detailed, up-to-date and compelling information instrument, in the spirit of efficient use of the new technologies;
32. Calls for a telephone service to be established in all Parliament's offices throughout the Union, which the public would be invited to call and put their questions to; recommends that the answers to the most frequently asked questions are communicated to a wider public;
33. Underlines that, according to paragraph 37(b) of the Interinstitutional Agreement of 6 May 1999, information policy is an autonomous action which needs no legal basis;
34. Recalls that the Prince programme was initiated by the Parliament through budgetary intervention in 1996 with the clear aim of financing information campaigns on priority issues for the EU and has given support to four such measures since then; recalls also that each year, the decision on the breakdown of appropriation and the guidelines for implementation including joint actions, are taken on the basis of the opinion given by the interinstitutional working group referred to in the budgetary remarks of heading B3-306;
35. Calls for funding for the euro information campaign in the year 2001 to be at least € 38 million;
36. Calls for part of the available funds to be used for information events organised jointly by the European Parliament and the Commission;
37. Calls, in the light of the Ecofin Council's decision to shorten the period of parallel currency to two months, for the information campaign to be extended to mid-2002 and for it to have a budget of at least € 20 million in that year;
38. Calls for every directorate-general of the Commission which is affected, in particular the Directorate-General for Education and Culture, to have sufficient numbers of staff capable of coping with the forthcoming tasks;
39. Calls for close coordination of the information campaigns of Parliament, the Commission and the Member States with the ECB's campaign to achieve a clear, cost-effective division of labour and to avoid any contradictory messages being put across at the same time;

Thursday 6 July 2000

40. Recommends, in particular in the last six months before the introduction of the euro, joint action in cooperation between Parliament, the Commission and the ECB, in particular by coordinating the measures for vulnerable groups in the context of the 'Euro made easy' programme;
41. Calls on the Commission to take firm and immediate action to stop the double charging of customers and to bring down the high bank charges for cross-border transfers in the euro area;
42. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission.

31. Committee on Petitions

A5-0162/2000

European Parliament resolution on the deliberations of the Committee on Petitions during the parliamentary year 1999-2000

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Rule 175(5) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to its previous resolutions on petitions, most recently that of 15 April 1999 on the deliberations of the Committee on Petitions during the parliamentary year 1998-1999⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to Articles 21 and 194 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to the annual report of the European Ombudsman for 1999 (C5-0303/2000),
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Petitions (A5-0162/2000),
- A. whereas the right of petition is a fundamental right closely bound up with EU citizenship (see Articles 17, 21 and 194 of the EC Treaty,
- B. whereas the right of petition enables the European Parliament to exercise a control on serious failures by EU or Member State administrations to comply with primary or secondary Community law,
- C. whereas both the quality and the quantity of the petitions received illustrates the right of EU residents to be involved in the implementation of Community law, but at the same time means the European Parliament must deal with petitions effectively,
- D. whereas the healthy relationship that has developed between the European Ombudsman and the European Parliament remains a prerequisite for ensuring citizens enjoy full access to the fundamental rights conferred by Union citizenship,
- E. whereas close and effective cooperation with the other Community institutions, in particular the Commission, the Council, the specialised agencies and the various administrations of the Member States, proves to be necessary to ensure that petitions are dealt with expediently,
- F. whereas the Permanent Representations of the Member States to the European Union and the Presidency-in-Office of the European Union do have a particular duty to guarantee to the citizens that secondary Community law, established through the legislative work of the European institutions elected for this purpose, is respected by the national, regional and local administrations,

Thursday 6 July 2000

1. Reaffirms that the Committee on Petitions is, alongside the European Ombudsman, one of the most important bodies within the European Parliament for exercising parliamentary scrutiny over the EU institutions, as well as national, regional, local and social administrations, guaranteeing transparency in the implementation of Community law in individual cases;
2. Underlines that the petitions submitted to the European Parliament offer an insight into the difficulties faced by citizens with European and national administrations, illustrating quite often inappropriate use of discretionary powers in decision taking, and bureaucratic behaviour which alienates citizens;
3. Recalls that many petitions show the inadequacies in legislation and the shortcomings in the link between European integration and the involvement of European citizens in an ever closer union among the peoples of Europe;
4. Notes that when petitions uncover infringements of the principles and rules of Community law by the administrative bodies of the Member States, the Commission is obliged to initiate proceedings against the Member State in question for violation of Community law pursuant to Article 226 of the EC Treaty;
5. Underlines the constructive role played by the Commission in the consideration of petitions and regards cooperation with the Commission as broadly satisfactory; asks the Commission to indicate in its annual report on the application of Community law those cases where infringement procedures have been initiated through petitions submitted by European citizens;
6. Acknowledges that the five hundred or so admissible petitions dealt with in 1999-2000, of which some led to proceedings for infringement of Community law, bear witness to the fact that the right of petition is an important link in the relationship between Union citizens and the legislative as well as administrative activities of the European Union and the Member States;
7. Underlines that in order to deal with petitions efficiently in a manner accessible and understandable to the citizens, the effective cooperation between the European Parliament, the other EU institutions and agencies and the competent authorities in the Member States remains one of the most important preconditions for correctly applying Community law;
8. Underlines that, in dealing with petitions, the presence of a representative of the Council of Ministers or the Permanent Representation in question is essential at the committee's meetings, particularly when the petition concerns areas in which secondary law is closely bound up with a given Member State's national law or linked to politically sensitive subjects for the Member State;
9. Considers that it is essential to find at Community level new ways and means of examining and processing the ever increasing number of petitions so as to reduce the time taken to deal with them;
10. Recalls that the lack of speedy replies from Member State institutions or administrations to questions raised on behalf of the Committee on Petitions by the Commission — which within a broadly satisfying relationship examines the aspects of Community law raised by the petition — continues to be a problem and lengthens the whole response process for individual petitions;
11. Acknowledges that as petitions reflect specific concerns of citizens relating to their real rights and their expectations as regards European integration, it is all the more important — as the abovementioned resolution of 15 April 1999 recognised — to introduce within the responsible Directorate General of the European Parliament a modernised database as well as the use of Internet, open to European citizens, and to initiate an information campaign regarding the right of petition;
12. Recommends holding a seminar to review cooperation between Parliament and the other EU institutions, especially the Commission and the Council, on the basis of the revised Interinstitutional Agreement of 12 April 1989⁽¹⁾;

Thursday 6 July 2000

13. Welcomes a European network of the parliamentary Committees on Petitions to examine complaints with a view to exchanging information on petitions received in the Member States and at Community level concerning the application of EU legislation;
14. Underlines the usefulness of regular meetings by a delegation of its Committee on Petitions with their national or regional counterparts, which in April 2000 took place in Berlin with the Petitions Committees of the Bundestag and the autonomous regions of Berlin and Brandenburg, influencing the paragraphs of this resolution concerning the improvement of working methods;
15. Insists on the useful cooperation established thanks to the guidelines adopted on 14 July 1998 ⁽¹⁾ on the treatment of petitions by the standing committees to which the Committee on Petitions forwards certain petitions for: information, further action and/or opinion; recommends that standing committees, when drawing up specific legislation in their sphere of responsibility, ask the Committee on Petitions for its opinion;
16. Favours a meeting twice a year between the Committee on Petitions and the corresponding committees of the Member States, especially at the beginning of a new Presidency of the Council of Ministers, to deal with specific questions raised by petitions from this Member State — to which the Commissioner responsible for relations with Parliament, the representative of the Council Presidency and the European Ombudsman should be invited;
17. Calls on the Committee on Petitions to maintain regular working contacts at its meetings whenever appropriate with the Members of the European Commission responsible for: relations with the European Parliament; Citizens' Europe; the Environment; and Security and Justice, who were questioned by a delegation of the Committee on Petitions when the Prodi Commission came into office;
18. Approves the suggestion that each year in cooperation with the parliamentary committees concerned two initiative reports should be drawn up by the Committee on Petitions on the main areas that are the subject of petitions, namely social security, environmental and consumer protection, freedom of movement, recognition of diplomas and other relevant subjects of Community law;
19. Supports the Committee on Petitions' policy of appointing, for its main fields of activities, general rapporteurs, who should also act as spokespersons of the Committee on Petitions in their main committees, taking advantage of their membership of different parliamentary committees;
20. Shares the idea that the petitioner should be present if the Bureau and the coordinators of the Committee on Petitions so decide and that the necessary travel expenses may be reimbursed;
21. Instructs its services to:
 - (a) make sure that the dates for the meetings of the Committee on Petitions, which is a non-legislative committee, do not clash with those of other committees working in related fields, such as social affairs, the environment, culture or legal and home affairs;
 - (b) create a user-friendly database for citizens, MEPs, political groups, committee secretariats and the European Ombudsman, including in particular the draft agenda and the communications to Members concerning the petitions for the forthcoming meeting of the Committee on Petitions;
22. Thanks the Parliament's mediator for transnationally abducted children for the efficiency of her work;
23. Asks its services, especially DG I — Presidency, DG II — Committees and Delegations, DG III — Information and DG VII — Translation and General Services, to report to the Committee on Petitions at its meeting of February 2001 on the follow-up to this resolution;

24. Instructs its President to forward this resolution and the report of its Committee to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the Member States, the European Ombudsman and the parliaments of the Member States, their petitions committees or other appropriate bodies and their ombudsmen.

32. European Ombudsman

A5-0181/2000

European Parliament resolution on the activities of the European Ombudsman in 1999 (C5-0303/2000)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Annual Report of the European Ombudsman for 1999 (C5-0303/2000),
 - having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community and especially Articles 21 and 195 thereof,
 - having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and, in particular, Article 20d thereof,
 - having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Committee and, in particular, Article 107d thereof,
 - having regard to its resolution of 17 November 1993, particularly the section dealing with the regulations and general conditions governing the performance of the European Ombudsman's duties ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 9 March 1994 on the regulations and general conditions governing the performance of the European Ombudsman's duties and, in particular, Article 3(8) thereof ⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 14 July 1995 on the role of the European Ombudsman ⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 15 July 1997 on the Annual Report for 1996 of the European Ombudsman ⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to its previous resolutions on petitions, particularly that adopted on 16 July 1998 on the basis of the Annual Report on the deliberations of the Committee on Petitions during the parliamentary year 1997-1998 ⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Petitions (A5-0181/2000),
- A. whereas, pursuant to the Treaty establishing the European Community, the duties of the European Ombudsman are to conduct enquiries for which he finds grounds concerning instances of maladministration in the activities of the Community institutions or bodies, on the basis of complaints submitted by him or on his own initiative, with the exception of the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance acting in their judicial role,
- B. whereas citizens will only see European integration as justified if they are given rights enabling them to take an active part in the European Union's civil and political dialogue, such empowerment must include the right to information and access to documents, and that opinions expressed by the citizens are seriously taken into account and registered,
- C. whereas the increase in the number of complaints to the European Ombudsman shows the public's concern for more effective and transparent administration,

- D. whereas the independence of the European Ombudsman is an extremely important principle,
- E. whereas the European Ombudsman's independence implies the right to publish his views on the manner in which the European Union is administered and in which its policies are developed, as his main duty is to promote citizens' rights; whereas close cooperation is needed between the European Parliament, the Commission and the European Ombudsman with regard to the rights of European citizens, as guaranteed by the Treaties,
- F. whereas the European Parliament, while respecting the European Ombudsman's independence, is of the opinion that the amicable settlements, remarks and draft recommendations put forward by the Ombudsman have been extremely useful in developing the principles of good administration in the European Union,
- G. whereas the drafting of a European Union Charter of Fundamental Rights should provide rules giving citizens the right to good administration,
- H. whereas the European Ombudsman should play an important role in applying any future charter of fundamental rights in the institutions, bodies and decentralised agencies,
1. Congratulates the European Ombudsman on his clear, systematic and detailed Annual Report for 1999;
 2. Acknowledges that although his office has been in existence for a relatively short period of time, the European Ombudsman's work has proved extremely useful and effective, especially for citizens and organisations;
 3. Endorses the European Ombudsman's efforts to achieve greater transparency and openness;
 4. Stresses the importance of providing the European Ombudsman's service with the necessary resources to deal with the steadily growing number of complaints;
 5. Reiterates its determination, already expressed in its previous resolutions on this matter, to introduce amendments to Article 3(2) of the Regulations and General Conditions governing the Performance of the Ombudsman's Duties so as to enable the European Ombudsman to have access to all the relevant documents which may need to be consulted in the course of inquiries, and to obtain freely given and hierarchically untrammelled replies from persons whose evidence is necessary to his just and proper assessment of the complaints submitted to him;
 6. Stresses that the interpretation of Community law, as applied by the institutions, forms part of the European Ombudsman's mandate and that the European Ombudsman has a duty to conduct inquiries into cases of maladministration, within the accepted meaning of the term, which is that 'maladministration occurs when a public body fails to act in accordance with a rule or principle which is binding upon it';
 7. Calls on the Commission to follow and apply the definition of maladministration, as accepted by Mrs Gradin, on behalf of the Commission, on 14 July 1998, and as confirmed by the Secretary-General of the Commission in his letter of 15 July 1999;
 8. Stresses the urgent need to draw up a code of good administrative behavior applicable to relations between European Union officials and the general public;
 9. Endorses the principle formulated by the European Ombudsman that good administration requires European institutions to explain the reasons for any decision affecting a particular citizen;
 10. Supports the efforts of the European Ombudsman to persuade all Community institutions and bodies always to provide complainants with all the documents required for examination of the cases to be investigated;
 11. Calls on the Commission to include in its annual report on Community law a section considering those petitions and complaints submitted to the Commission, the Parliament and the Ombudsman that have led to the infringement procedure against Member States;

Thursday 6 July 2000

12. Calls on the Commission, the Council and the Ombudsman to cooperate with the Parliament on a new inter-institutional agreement leading to a more efficient and rapid treatment of petitions and complaints submitted by European citizens;
13. Stresses the need to amend the Regulations and General Conditions governing the Performance of the Ombudsman's Duties to make public access to documents relating to complaints received by the European Ombudsman the general rule and ensure that confidentiality only applies to cases where the protection of complainants so requires;
14. Congratulates the Ombudsman for having developed a good and fruitful cooperation with Ombudsmen and similar bodies both in the Member states and in the applicant countries.
15. Instructs its President to forward this resolution and the report of the Committee on Petitions to the European Ombudsman and to all the institutions and bodies of the European Union, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the national Ombudsmen or analogous bodies and the national parliamentary committees responsible for petitions or analogous bodies in the Member States.

33. Single European sky

A5-0141/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission communication to the Council and the European Parliament – The creation of the single European sky (COM(1999) 614 – C5-0085/2000 – 2000/2053(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission's communication (COM(1999) 614 – C5-0085/2000),
 - having regard to its resolutions of 17 January 1997 on air traffic management – freeing Europe's airspace⁽¹⁾, 16 November 1995 on congestion and crisis in air traffic⁽²⁾, 27 September 1994 on air traffic control in Europe⁽³⁾ and 18 September 1992 on saturation of airspace and air traffic control⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Regional Policy, Transport and Tourism and the opinion of the Committee on Industry, External Trade, Research and Energy (A5-0141/2000),
- A. whereas transport safety is of foremost and paramount importance and whereas many factors such as airport capacity, flight operation procedures, increased airspace usage and air traffic control restrictions could threaten safety standards,
 - B. whereas the EC Treaty states that improving transport safety is one of the main objectives of the common transport policy,
 - C. noting that over 80 % of air accidents take place during take off or landing phases and stressing the increasing importance of action to improve safety in and around airports as air traffic increases,
 - D. noting the relative importance of air traffic management (ATM) as one of the causes of air traffic delays while regretting the lack of investigation into the reason for these delays,

⁽²⁾ OJ C 323, 4.12.1995, p. 92.

- E. whereas successive processes of liberalising air transport have not been accompanied by the requisite changes in the way in which European air space is organised;
- F. considering that the Community should address the causes of air transport delay as a whole, thus including the development of airport and runway capacity, airline planning, passenger and airline behaviour, airport infrastructure,
- G. having regard to the fact that the percentage of 15+ minute delays in European airspace has risen from 12,7% in 1991 to 30,3% in 1999 and is set on a rising scale for the foreseeable future,
- H. considering the current estimated shortage of some 1 000 Air Traffic Controllers in the European Union and the lack of investment in ATC systems,
- I. whereas the ever-increasing demand for transportation by air, expected to double over the next decade, will place unprecedented pressure on air traffic management,
- J. having regard to the mobility of, and economic, financial and social costs caused to, EU citizens by aircraft movement delays,
- K. having regard to the detrimental extra costs to tourism, business and commerce, and the environment caused by airspace congestion,
- L. having regard to the effects on employment and job satisfaction within the aviation industry,
- M. having regard to the fact that Eurocontrol is unable to manage the improvements and changes required to remedy this state of affairs,
- N. having regard to the fact that the military claims vast areas of air space for its own use,
- O. having regard to the proposals enunciated in 'ATM (Air Traffic Management) Strategy for 2000+'⁽¹⁾ being insufficient to improve the position beyond the levels of 1997/98,
- P. whereas the Commissioner responsible for this issue has instituted a High Level Group to develop and advise the Commission on necessary policy changes,
1. Welcomes the Commission's Communication as a major contribution to dealing with the saturation of airspace;
2. Believes however that the creation of the single European sky on the basis of appropriate common rules and a separation of functions should not stand in the way of the public service duties of air traffic control and should leave Member States the choice of status for the operators providing it;
3. Urges the Council to take the political decision that the Commission should develop a single sky over a single market to provide the optimum use of European airspace, whilst maintaining the principle of subsidiarity, as well as equal access to the airspace for all users;
4. Emphasises the request in its resolutions of 18 November 1999⁽²⁾ and 13 April 2000⁽³⁾ on the Intergovernmental Conference for the Treaty of Amsterdam to include provisions for the creation of a single European Air Traffic Control;
5. Makes it clear that this request calls for the transfer to the European Union only of regulatory powers in respect of air traffic control and that the European Air Traffic Control of the European Union should be open to participation by other European States in the European Economic Area;

⁽³⁾ Texts Adopted, Item 7.

Thursday 6 July 2000

6. Considers that air transport has to be seen as a linked system of operators, airports and air traffic management services, in which all components are directly interdependent and that only by analysing the whole chain can the airspace capacity problems be dealt with;
7. Considers that the Commission, should represent the interests of EU Member States on the Council of Eurocontrol and should work in conjunction with all Eurocontrol Member States to reform and re-establish Eurocontrol as a regulatory and technical authority;
8. Believes that Eurocontrol should therefore be divested of its obligation to service provision and that immediate steps be taken to liberalise the provision of air traffic services by inviting the aviation industry to participate in and tender for such provisions and calls therefore on the Member States to:
 - pool regulative competences for air traffic control within the framework of this reformed Eurocontrol,
 - develop progressively a liberalised and fully operational internal market in the provision of air traffic services throughout the European Union's airspace and that of neighbouring European States;
9. Considers that urgent consideration should be given to renewing and renovating the technical infrastructure to support the necessary improvements in ATM methodology and that high priority be given to the interoperability of new technology, and to the launching of European-scale research and technological development initiatives with the support of the Commission and European industry to develop smart air-transport systems relating to flow, information and communications management, such as Galileo;
10. Considers that the capacity problems in ATM should be addressed with priority;
11. Considers that the body that creates the regulations should be separate from the body that applies or enforces such regulations and that there should be provision for appeal against the latter by those affected;
12. Considers that there should be objective and independent criteria by which improvements and success are judged and incentives offered for the achievers but there should be no reduction in maintenance or operational safety standards;
13. Considers that there should be a scale of penalties without a downgrade in safety, to ensure proper enforcement and effective sanctions against airlines and service providers who break the rules; and that there should be a mandatory system of confidential and voluntary incident and accident reporting system and database with the aim of improving the situation rather than incurring extra costs;
14. Considers that passengers should be compensated for unjust delays and that their rights in these cases should be clear and known;
15. Calls on the Commission to urge national governments, who currently allow domestic industrial disputes to disrupt air traffic, to address this issue as a matter of urgency;
16. Calls on the Council to take the necessary measures to ensure that air traffic control decisions are actually applied by all Member States signatory to the Eurocontrol Convention;
17. Considers that the Council should urge the Commission to utilise Paragraph 2.1.1. of Annex 11 of the Chicago Convention — which specifies that any state, by mutual agreement and under Article 28, may invite another state to manage air traffic in part or the whole of its airspace — to maximise the efficient use of European airspace;

Thursday 6 July 2000

18. Urges the Council to commit itself to an urgent review of the delineation, protection and use of military airspace, with a view to achieving smooth cooperation of civil and military air traffic services, and to demand the adoption of civil air transport practices by military transport, wherever possible, and whenever use is made of civil air corridors;
19. Considers that a plan of emergency action should be developed and refined for immediate use in the event of an international crisis (such as the Balkan conflict);
20. Calls on the Commission to oblige national governments to take seriously the grave concerns of the aviation industry with regard to radio frequencies, which are in short supply. Without these frequencies no technological progress to cope with predicted growth in air transport is possible. Most technologies capable of improving ATM problems in Europe depend in one way or another on the electronic transmission of data. Modern navigation by satellites, communication between the flight deck and the ground (via satellite), air to air collision avoidance systems, automatic landing systems all need undisturbed and reliable radio frequencies;
21. Calls on the Commission to evaluate the possible short term measures that are available to alleviate the cause of delays;
22. Considers that all these proposals should be developed and implemented by December 2000, if not sooner;
23. Urges the Council of Transport Ministers to act upon the above proposals at their meeting on 16 June 2000;
24. Considers that such proposals for ATM should be properly developed in conjunction with those for a European Aviation Safety Authority to ensure that the very highest standards of aviation safety are maintained;
25. Calls on the Commission to oblige national governments to take the issue of light aircraft safety seriously;
26. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the Member States, the European Civil Aviation Conference and Eurocontrol.

34. Health and safety of pregnant workers

A5-0155/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission report on the implementation of Council Directive 92/85/EEC of 19 October 1992 on the introduction of measures to encourage improvements in the health and safety at work of pregnant workers and workers who have recently given birth or are breastfeeding (COM(1999) 100 – C5-0158/1999 – 1999/2151(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission report (COM(1999) 100 – C5-0158/1999),
- having regard to Council Directive 89/391/EEC on the introduction of measures to encourage improvements in the safety and health of workers at work⁽¹⁾, the so-called framework directive,
- having regard to Council Directive 92/85/EEC on the introduction of measures to encourage improvements in the health and safety at work of pregnant workers and workers who have recently given birth or are breastfeeding⁽²⁾,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- having regard to ILO Convention No 103 on maternity protection,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs and the opinion of the Committee on Women's Rights and Equal Opportunities (A5-0155/2000),
- A. whereas publication of the Commission's report was long overdue by reference to the timetable laid down in Article 14 of Directive 92/85/EEC,
- B. whereas Article 14.6 of the Directive had been specifically formulated with a view to the Directive being reviewed after five years, that is by October 1997,
- C. whereas the report from the Commission only deals with a technical, factual summary of legal transposition in the Member States, rather than assessing the Directive's effectiveness on the ground in achieving the aim of improving the safety and health of pregnant workers and workers who have recently given birth or are breastfeeding; whereas, therefore, the Commission's report is an insufficient basis on which to carry out a review of the Directive,
- D. whereas the Commission services in the Employment and Social Affairs Directorate General divided responsibility for monitoring the Directive between the Brussels-based unit responsible for equal opportunities between women and men and the Luxembourg-based unit on health, safety and hygiene at work,
- E. whereas Directive 92/85/EEC was one of the first directives in the field of occupational health and safety to include a non-regression clause with minimum requirements to be achieved,
- F. whereas the wording of several articles in the Directive is insufficiently clear, leading to different interpretations in Member States' transposition and subsequent rulings from the European Court of Justice which still leave considerable scope for misinterpretation of the Directive's provisions,
- G. whereas pregnancy and motherhood are not an illness, but social assets and a natural state for women in their role as mothers that must be respected and fostered and protected by society,
- H. whereas in practice many pregnant women are forced to take leave earlier than they may wish in order to protect their safety or health because the adaptations of the workplace and/or work organisation in accordance with Article 5 of the Directive are not properly enforced,
- I. whereas pregnancy and motherhood must not be used as an excuse to remove women from the labour market or discriminate directly or indirectly against women workers,
- J. whereas it should be expressly understood that the fact that a pregnant woman may be prohibited by law from working on account of her pregnancy, and hence unable to do a given job from the outset, should not debar her recruitment, since this would be contrary to equal treatment of women and men,
- K. whereas maternity policies have to be consistent with policies to increase the birth rate and family policies and whereas, in view of the European population ageing crisis, policies in the Member States in all the above areas should be strengthened,
- L. whereas the most dangerous period for the foetus and for the health of the pregnant woman is often in the first weeks of pregnancy, and therefore possibly before the woman herself knows she is pregnant,

Thursday 6 July 2000

- M. whereas, unlike other directives in the field of occupational health and safety, there is no requirement to consult workers' representatives on preventive measures, with the risk, therefore, that protection of pregnant workers' health and safety can be considered as a matter for individuals in an anomalous situation rather than a collective matter for the whole workforce,
- N. whereas, as far as workers in general are concerned, the Directive does not take account of new risks related to the organisation of work, greater intensification of work and reduced job security, but whereas the above factors have a direct and more significant bearing on the health and safety of pregnant women and workers who have recently given birth or who are breastfeeding,
- O. whereas ILO Convention No 103 is currently being revised and whereas the current drafting of the Convention is more favourable to workers than Directive 92/85/EEC in some respects (burden of proof in cases of dismissal during maternity leave; work breaks for breastfeeding) but discussions within the ILO have revealed pressure to relax many provisions of the Convention,
- P. whereas research has shown that children who are breastfed have increased immunity to disease in later life and whereas therefore breastfeeding should be seen as an investment in the future,
1. Regrets the delay in the publication of the Commission's report, especially in the light of the clear timetable laid down in Article 14 of the Directive;
 2. Believes that the Commission's report, by addressing only the legal and technical transposition of the Directive in the Member States, is inadequate in carrying out the necessary assessment of the Directive's practical implementation and effectiveness which was to form the basis of a re-examination of the Directive by Council;
 3. Expresses its dismay that by submitting this report the Commission has, in spite of the facts at its disposal on the need for improvements, instead of submitting an amending proposal delayed the urgently needed legislative process to amend the Directive;
 4. Urges the Commission to complement the report already submitted by publishing a further report by the end of the year 2000, making the proper detailed assessment of implementation and the effectiveness of the Directive so as to ensure that problems which may have arisen in practice on account of the imperfections and inadequacies of the Directive can be accurately identified;
 5. Notes that the Directive contains only very modest provisions intended to prevent standards from declining and therefore maintains that the many Member States which have evolved bodies of legislation particularly suitable to deal with the question of motherhood must serve as a benchmark to enable the less advanced countries to promote legislation of the same kind;
 6. Notes that because of the Directive's unclear definitions and the flawed application of national law, the aim of Community-wide harmonisation of protection for the group of people concerned has been only very inadequately served;
 7. Considers that any specific measure aimed at protecting pregnant workers, workers who have recently given birth or are breastfeeding cannot be seen as an infringement of the principle of equality between men and women, given that motherhood is a function which only women can carry out;
 8. Highlights the great importance of the period since the adoption of the Directive for women's access to employment as well as the growing importance of this legislation in view of the new active employment policies for women; points out, in this context, that the shortcomings and deficiencies of this legislation may have a negative impact on the low birth rate in Europe and may discourage young women from becoming mothers;
 9. Realises that the need to protect this group of persons must lead neither to discrimination against them nor to a reduction in their access to the workplace;
 10. Calls on the Commission to submit a proposal for a revision of Directive 92/85/EEC by the end of the year 2000, given the many shortcomings in its practical implementation;

Thursday 6 July 2000

11. Calls on the Commission to include in its proposal the following improvements in the measures aimed at protecting the health and safety of pregnant workers and workers who have recently given birth or are breastfeeding:
- an increase in maternity leave entitlement to 20 weeks, with a mandatory 8 week post-natal recovery period, where provisions to that effect are not already laid down by national laws; statutory maternity leave shall be extended in the case of multiple births;
 - an increase in the duration of maternity leave to cover the full period required where pregnancy entails particular risks, as attested by a medical certificate and examination, without prejudice to the mandatory minimum 8-week post-natal recovery period;
 - a clearer definition of adequate allowance during maternity leave which should be at least 80 % of the previous salary and be taken into account for the purposes of acquiring pension entitlements;
 - a strict prohibition on dismissal during pregnancy and maternity leave and the requirement to reinstate a woman in her job or an equivalent job at the end of her period of maternity leave, with more effective penalties in the case of infringements and paying particular heed to the circumstances of workers on fixed-term or atypical employment contracts;
 - as regards career advancement and improvement of working conditions, in particular the conversion of temporary contracts into permanent contracts, or admission to more senior positions, safeguards to ensure that pregnancy and motherhood do not give rise to any form of discrimination, not least in cases where a woman, on account of her pregnancy or maternity, cannot take up a new post as soon as her new contractual status has entered into force;
 - a revised hierarchy of options in the event of a woman becoming pregnant, whereby the priority should be on job rotation if necessary in the interests of the health and safety of the woman and the foetus, followed by shorter working hours if the first option is not possible and only if neither are feasible for the woman to be obliged to take leave;
 - a genuinely binding entitlement to work interruptions for breastfeeding, with the provision of appropriate means to ensure compatibility with working conditions, and with a hierarchy of other options only if this is not feasible in a particular workplace; account should be taken of the circumstances of one-parent families, that is to say, unmarried motherhood, separation, divorce or widowhood;
 - stricter controls on night work for pregnant women with no obligation to work nights for 16 weeks before or after childbirth and at least 8 weeks before the expected birthdate; it should be possible to suspend night work without having to submit a medical certificate.
 - specific additional protection for self-employed women workers, especially as regards entitlement to a period of paid leave, linked to cover to be provided by means of national industry-wide contribution-based funds;
 - worker protection should be assured not only in the event of notice being given by the employer but also in respect of deadlines set without objective justification;
12. Calls on the Commission to provide Parliament with up-to-date data, in particular on the conditions and extent of payments under Article 11 to prepare the ground for the proposal for amending Directive 92/85/EEC;
13. Reminds the Commission of the timetable for revision, evaluation and reporting on implementation of all directives already adopted in the field of occupational health and safety many of which have not been adhered to;
14. Calls on the Commission to place greater emphasis on the Member States' use and provision of resources for inspectors responsible for monitoring the practical implementation of the health and safety directives on the ground in the Member States;
15. Calls on the Commission, with reference in particular to Directive 92/85/EEC, to ensure greater coordination between the relevant services so as to achieve the highest level of monitoring of the Directive and, where necessary, the optimum level of synergy between different categories of legislation;

Thursday 6 July 2000

16. Stresses that the provisions of Framework Directive 89/391/EEC are intended to encourage improvements in the safety and health of all workers and that therefore the employers' obligations to carry out risk assessment must apply to pregnant workers;

17. Points out that some Member States, in implementing Directive 92/85/EEC, appear not to have obliged the employer to take any preventive measures until informed of the worker's pregnancy, in apparent contravention of the Framework Directive;

18. Calls on the Commission to publish without further delay, and to make immediately available to Member States, the guidelines on risk assessment for workers covered by this Directive, as these guidelines will be an essential tool for employers uncertain about how to implement the Directive;

19. Regrets that Member States have not spoken with a common EU voice in discussions and votes in the ILO on a revision of Convention No. 103 and regrets further that not all Member States voted at the recent session of the General Assembly to maintain at least the level of protection afforded under Directive 92/85/EEC;

20. Calls on the Commission and the social partners, in discussing future legislation covering atypical work, in particular telework and homeworking, to pay special attention to the additional risks faced in those sectors by pregnant women and women who have recently given birth; notes, however, that provided they are employees, atypical workers are already covered by Directive 92/85/EEC;

21. Calls on the Commission, in its future evaluation reports on health and safety legislation, to take into account the recommendations of the European Committee for Standardisation (ECS/Cenelec) particularly as these have a bearing on ergonomic measures at workstations which can help to improve protection of the safety and health of pregnant women and of the foetus;

22. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to consider possible action to reduce workplace risks which may cause sterility or infertility in both women and men as well as miscarriages and premature births;

23. Points out that, with regard to the applicant countries for membership of the Union, formal transposition of the provisions of the Directive will easily be achieved, but that assessment also needs to take place in the candidate countries on the practical implementation of the Directive;

24. Calls for detailed studies to be undertaken under the heading of 'Quality of Life and Management of Living Resources' forming part of the Fifth Framework Programme of Research and Technological Development in order to determine the potential long-term benefits of breastfeeding for health and immune defences; notes that the World Health Organisation recommends that babies be breastfed for at least the first six months of their lives, primarily to improve the ability of the immune system to protect against many diseases and also to encourage mother and child bonding and boost cognitive development; points out further that breastfeeding also benefits the mother's health because it corresponds to a physiological stage in the reproductive cycle;

25. Calls on the Commission to make a commitment in the forthcoming Social Policy Agenda to come forward with a proposal for revision of Directive 92/85/EEC and calls for further assessment under the forthcoming Fifth Action Programme on Equal Opportunities between Women and Men of the rights of pregnant women as defined by this Directive and Directive 76/207/EEC on the implementation of the principle of equal treatment for men and women as regards access to employment, vocational training and promotion, and working conditions⁽¹⁾ and for the scope of the measures to be proposed to be extended to cover fostering prior to adoption, adoption, and permanent foster care;

26. Urges the Commission, proceeding in line with the revision of the Directive, to draw up a programme to make employers in particular and the community at large more aware of the dignity of pregnant women and women as mothers and of the importance of specific social provisions for their welfare, and to launch a general information campaign on the main measures adopted in this area at Community level;

Thursday 6 July 2000

27. Calls for the special needs of SMEs to be recognised when implementing health and safety legislation;
 28. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the social partners, the ILO and the governments of the Member States.

MINUTESPROCEEDINGS OF THE SITTING

IN THE CHAIR: Mr COLOM i NAVAL

*Vice-President1. Opening of sitting

The sitting opened at 09.00.

2. Approval of Minutes of previous sitting (postponement of approval)

The President announced that the Minutes were not yet available in all languages, mainly on account of the length of voting time the previous day and the high number of roll-call votes which, according to the President, had involved considerable expenditure estimated at BF 4 million. Approval of the Minutes was therefore postponed until later in the day (Item 8).

The following spoke:

- Callanan who complained that a shopkeeper in Sunderland, in his constituency, had had his scales confiscated by the police because they still used the imperial weight system and thus did not comply with current Community legislation (the President took note of his remarks);
- Gebhardt who announced that on arriving that morning she had found her office door unlocked and the computer switched on; she asked for the security service to investigate the matter (the President replied that the same thing had happened to him during the last two days; and undertook to forward her request);
- Maaten who referred to the reply he had received from the Chair in response to the remarks he had made the previous day at 15.00 at the beginning of topical and urgent debate, namely that Rule 146 did not apply to that debate; he questioned the accuracy of that reply and asked for the matter to be looked into (the President informed him that the interpretation to Rule 50 stipulated that 'the provisions of Rules 143, 144 and 146 shall not apply to motions for resolutions included on the agenda for a debate on topical and urgent subjects of major importance', and that the reply he had received from the Chair was therefore perfectly correct);
- Miller on Mr Callanan's remarks.

The President referred to the tragic road accident in Spain which Mr Knorr Borràs had announced the previous day to Parliament (after Item 36 of the Minutes) which had cost the lives of the two drivers and 25 teenagers; he confirmed that the President of Parliament had decided to send a message of condolence to the families of the victims and the Spanish authorities.

The following spoke:

- Vidal-Quadras Roca who asked that the message be accompanied by a request to the authorities calling for strict application of Community legislation governing the transport of persons (the President replied that this would be done);
- Newton Dunn who referred to the cost of publishing roll-call votes and asked that the Committee on Constitutional Affairs look into the problem; he asked that the cost of roll-call votes requested by each political group be deducted from the funds allocated to that group (the President replied that a working group led by Vice-President Provan was currently examining the various problems posed by the organisation of parliamentary business, and that this matter might be included);

Friday 7 July 2000

- Thomas Mann who complained that the verbatim report of proceedings for topical and urgent debate was not available (the President replied that the verbatim report had been available every morning at around 10.00 and that the same would be the case that day).

TEXTS ADOPTED1. Short sea shipping*A5-0139/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission communication to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of Regions 'The Development of Short Sea Shipping in Europe: A Dynamic Alternative in a Sustainable Transport Chain – Second Two-yearly Progress Report' (COM(1999) 317 – C5-0206/1999 – 1999/2164(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication (COM(1999) 317 – C5-0206/1999),
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Regional Policy, Transport and Tourism and the opinion of the Committee on Industry, External Trade, Research and Energy (A5-0139/2000),
- A. whereas there is a serious discrepancy between the old-fashioned image of short sea shipping and the realistic transport alternative now offered by this mode of transport,
- B. whereas short sea shipping is capable of facilitating the re-establishment of a balance between the various modes of transport and of responding to the growing development of just-in-time logistics,
- C. whereas e-commerce will mean a significant increase in the sending of parcels and medium-sized packages, and whereas it is therefore necessary to open up, by means of new types of loading unit (e.g. 'containers within containers'), intermodal transport in general and short sea shipping in particular to the shipment of items of this kind in bundles,
- D. whereas the development of a multimodal transport system covering the whole of the European Union and adjacent territories is vital to ensure efficient, cost-effective and sustainable movement of goods and hence the competitiveness of European manufacturing and distribution in an increasingly competitive global market place,
- E. whereas because short sea including sea/river shipping, means the movement of cargo by sea between European ports or between those ports and ports situated in non-European countries with a coastline on the enclosed seas bordering Europe, short sea shipping is an integral part of the European transport system,
- F. whereas the development of short sea shipping can serve as a means of improving the integration of logistic systems and finding solutions to Europe's overall transport problems,
- G. whereas there is a lack of relevant statistics in tonne/km, including place of origin/final destination and commodity groups, which makes it difficult to assess cargo movements in general and in particular the potential market for short sea shipping,
- H. whereas increasing the amount and proportion of goods transported over short sea shipping routes may lead to considerable improvement, in the efficiency of Europe's transport system,
- I. whereas the introduction of new, faster, cleaner and innovative vessels dedicated exclusively to the transport of goods by sea and river could increase the appeal of sea transport over road transport,

Friday 7 July 2000

- J. whereas, given the overall economic and environmental considerations in favour of this mode of transport, there are currently insufficient short sea services offered either by the private or public sector,
 - K. whereas short sea shipping service providers need to develop best practices in conjunction with all other industry parties in the same way as other industry sectors as this allows all involved to examine and measure their performances, with a view to developing key performance indicators, and should lead to improved overall operational capacity and performance throughout the supply chain,
 - L. whereas there is a need for improvement of various documentation and standardised administrative procedures preferably by electronic means,
 - M. whereas action by all participants, including ports, in the logistics chain is urgently needed in order to promote greater utilisation of short sea shipping,
 - N. whereas, if short sea shipping is to expand and fulfil its economic and commercial roles, national governments, together with regional and local authorities, will have to provide the necessary political, economic and financial support, in association with the industries involved,
 - O. whereas in the USA a series of actions have been proposed to achieve improved coordination, efficiency, and profile for the Maritime Transport System (MTS) and in particular the role of short sea shipping as part of a multimodal transport system,
 - P. whereas a successful short sea shipping sector requires full transparency regarding investments in and by ports and other operators in relation to state aid,
 - Q. whereas in order to promote short sea activities, support at national, regional and local as well as European level is needed,
 - R. stressing that, in view of its environment-friendly and cost-effective potential, short sea shipping is capable of becoming an important link in Europe's intermodal transport system chain, provided a series of public and private measures are taken at EU, national, regional and local level in order to develop its promising future fully,
 - S. having regard to the importance of short sea shipping to the social and economic development of outlying maritime regions and, consequently, to Community cohesion,
 - T. whereas it welcomes the Commission's Second Progress Report on Short Sea Shipping and its presentation of the position of short sea shipping as an integrated transport mode in the logistical systems and takes note of the recommendations of the Commission in the Second Progress Report,
 - U. noting the conclusions of the Transport Council held on 8 December 1999 in respect of the policies required to develop short sea shipping and the priority to be afforded to short sea shipping by national governments,
 - V. whereas appropriate measures should be taken by both Council and Commission to increase the contribution of short sea shipping to the European transport system, particularly in view of the traffic congestion, expensive infrastructure, and the high environmental costs associated with other transport modes,
1. Commends the analysis undertaken by the Commission in its communication and welcomes the fact that, during the two years under consideration, the short sea shipping sector has made favourable progress, which should be further encouraged, along the lines of the network of round tables organised since 1997 within the framework of the Forum of Maritime Industries and the strengthening of the European dimension in assessing and developing potential in all EU Member States involved in cabotage;

2. Proposes the further development of best practices which, where appropriate, lead to key performance indicators (KPIs) for short sea shipping, as the development of best practices and key performance indicators can make a very important contribution towards enhancing the performance of short sea shipping; once established, KPIs can be used to compare performance between operators and other modes of transport and will help to identify infrastructure bottlenecks and highlight where improvements can be made;
3. Calls on the Commission to consider more closely the question of the links between short sea shipping and river transport or other means of transport such as railways or infrastructures for access by land, so as to ensure that both the industrial and commercial sectors enjoy the infrastructures necessary to sustain their economic activities properly;
4. Stresses that the links between maritime and river transport should be given greater weight in order to ensure uniformity between transport systems in the north and south of the Union and thus an improved economic balance between European operators, since links between river and maritime transport are more extensively developed in the northern Member States than in the south;
5. Therefore, welcomes the Commission's initiative to identify bottlenecks and best practices in the establishment of short sea shipping services and calls for broad circulation of the results of the investigation;
6. Insists that, although the safety record of shipping is generally excellent when compared with other transport modes, the safety and environmental protection aspects of its integration into multimodal transport systems must be paramount, both at sea and at ports;
7. Calls on the Commission to take appropriate measures in the near future to eliminate the environmental shortcomings of short sea shipping (cf. paragraph 7.1 of the two-yearly progress report), i.e. emissions of NO_x and SO₂; such measures could include:
 - (a) a directive on the permitted emission values of new ship's engines;
 - (b) a directive on minimum quality standards for bunker oil used in old(er) ships' engines;
8. Urges the Commission to pursue an intermodal strategy involving complementarity between various forms of transport and to opt for maritime transport wherever it is competitive, for reasons of environmental sustainability and safety and in order to ease congestion on the roads;
9. Acknowledges the fact that the private sector plays an important role in short sea activities; states however that there are certain aspects of market conditions which require the intervention of public authorities at regional, national and European level; believes it is particularly important for the competent authority to:
 - (i) ensure that there is no distortion of competition;
 - (ii) review and, if necessary, abolish the compulsory use of certain port services;
 - (iii) tackle any abuse of dominant positions in port services;
 - (iv) simplify and streamline administrative formalities and documents;
 - (v) optimise infrastructure for links with the hinterland;
10. Points out that there is a lack of relevant statistics on transports of goods by mode — including multimodal transport — between (sub) regions of origin/destination and by other commodity groups, seriously hampering commercial and public policy initiatives which makes comparison between short sea shipping and other modes of transport more difficult; even reliable figures on general tonne/km transport by mode are currently lacking; asks for relevant, accurate and comparable studies in this area;

Friday 7 July 2000

states however that the work to improve statistical information should go on in parallel with the more urgent task of developing strategies between the industries involved and policy makers at regional, national and European level;

11. Calls on the Commission to draw up a list of ports which are particularly suitable for short sea shipping, an important criterion to be applied being ports' intermodal transport links;

12. Believes that short sea shipping is an environment friendly and safe alternative to road transport and therefore that an increase in the proportion of goods transported by short sea shipping is essential; calls on national governments to introduce effective measures to increase the proportion of goods carried by short sea shipping, including investment aid to launch short sea shipping projects demonstrating the contribution which this transport mode can make to the overall efficiency of multimodal transport systems and the removal of all kinds of barriers; calls on the Commission also to promote short sea activities by providing some launching aid from the already existing European funds and to organise schemes to assist combined transport in such a way as to enable them to be applied without difficulties to short sea shipping;

13. Calls for joint investment programmes to be drawn up in the Mediterranean area, in the Adriatic and in the ports of the Canary Islands, the Azores and Madeira, taking account in particular of:

- incentives for short-sea shipping lines;
- simplification of customs and embarkation procedures;

14. Stresses that necessary fiscal measures and incentives to support the development of new short sea shipping services of harbours should be based on the principle of complete transparency; believes it is particularly important for existing short sea shipping services not to be disadvantaged compared with the newly developed services;

15. Calls on the European Investment Bank and the Commission to ensure that port infrastructure investment projects are adequately represented in the establishment of TENs;

16. Stresses the need for greater efficiency in port operations and for the length of time which vessels spend in port to be reduced by investing in the construction of suitable facilities for cabotage (pre-embarkation terminals and adequately sized wharves) and by encouraging the introduction of new technologies incorporated into port design and installations;

17. Draws attention to the low general awareness and poor image problem of the short sea shipping sector, despite the active use of new information and communications technologies by the sector, and recommends urgent action by the private and public sectors to address this problem; to improve the image problem it is crucial to capture the imagination and interest of all involved, including the general public, in order to create a climate in which short sea shipping is recognised as a green and cost-effective way to transport goods in the context of the complete logistics chain;

18. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to encourage the development of modern, time-saving transshipment capacity and techniques which are cost-effective and which ensure that road, rail and maritime transport are connected effectively, in particular for short sea shipping;

19. Stresses the need for technological research in the field of maritime industries to be encouraged with a view to increasing the flexibility and the attractiveness of short sea shipping;

20. Stresses the need for encouragement to be given to the exchange of electronic data between all involved in short sea shipping by means of systems geared to cooperation via computer applications and to electronic commerce;

21. Urges manufacturing and distribution companies to examine the contribution which short sea shipping can make to the cost-effectiveness of their logistics chains for inward and outward transportation of goods within Europe and between Europe and nearby non-European countries;

Friday 7 July 2000

22. Draws attention to the need for a 'one-stop-shop' approach to the offer of transport logistics services to end users which would cover multimodal provision, thus redressing current fragmentation in service provision; in this respect asks for launching aid for demonstration projects and states the importance of encouraging all involved to work together;
23. Welcomes the efforts of a number of organisations to apply modern ICT techniques to the logistics issues involved in improving overall transport systems, including short sea shipping, and calls for the Commission's support where appropriate;
24. Urges the public sector to promote the use of short sea shipping in practical terms, i.e. through the establishment of round tables on short sea shipping and/or promotion bureaux and, where appropriate, regional centres; in this respect, obstacles and their impact must be clearly defined and addressed, primarily on a local/national basis;
25. Welcomes the trends that are becoming evident in the market towards private sector integration and provision by the same company of road, rail and seaborne transport services and ownership of port and other land-based terminals; recommends that the Commission studies the evolution of the market;
26. Calls on the Member States and the competent authorities to include short sea shipping in syllabuses for those undergoing vocational training or further training in the transport industry, the carrying trade or the forwarding industry;
27. Welcomes and wishes to be associated with the Commission's initiative for a definitive study in coordination with the national short sea focal points of the pricing of short sea shipping services to provide an accurate picture of the relative price of short sea shipping in different situations and its impact on overall costs in a multimodal context;
28. Calls for administrative requirements to be harmonised and applied effectively by the national port authorities, for more precise application of European customs legislation and for closer cooperation between all parties involved (customs and transport services);
29. Calls on the Council, the Commission and the Member States, in connection with the standardisation of loading units by the competent international committees for the establishment of standards, to seek in future to bring about standardisation of containers used in deep-sea transport and inland waterway transport;
30. Asks the public authorities at local, regional, national and European level to encourage ports to provide separate and specialist short sea shipping handling activities;
31. Calls on the competent authorities of the Member States and ports to exempt short sea shipping from charges for waste disposal at port reception facilities if it can be demonstrated that they are able to dispose of the waste at another port and to lay down relevant rules in such a way that routes which are in the process of being established and which are not yet used on an entirely regular basis are still able to benefit;
32. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to submit a uniform European framework so that, once the experience of the captain has been verified, the exemption of short sea shipping from pilot services may be requested, and calls on the competent authorities of the Member States and ports to implement this swiftly in accordance with the respective prevailing conditions;
33. Welcomes the fact that Member States have appointed National Focal Points on short sea shipping; encourages the cooperation which has been established between the different parties involved, i.e. the Commission services, the National Focal Points and the industry (Maritime Industries Forum); asks for enhanced coordination by the National Focal Points and the European Commission and wishes to be kept informed of the initiatives being developed;

34. Stresses the need for encouragement to be given to a sea corridor interconnection strategy which would further the overall economic development of outlying maritime regions and island regions; in this regard, asks the Commission to include in its proposals on short sea shipping the transport by sea between ports situated in the outermost regions of the Union and the neighbouring countries in their respective regions;

35. Stresses that short sea shipping is a way of achieving closer coherence within the EU and points to potential gains in terms of employment;

36. Emphasises the need for reciprocity in relations for short sea shipping and sea/river shipping in the EU and Russia as a means of creating new market opportunities for developing short sea shipping; regrets in this respect the fact that the Russian waterways system is still inaccessible to ships flying an EU flag; calls on the Member States and the Commission to negotiate a prompt opening up of the Russian waterways system as provided for in the Partnership and Cooperation Agreement with Russia;

37. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the European Investment Bank and the governments of the Member States.
