13. Order of business

The next item was the order of business.

The President announced that the final draft agenda for the September I and September II 2000 sittings had been distributed (PE 293.719/PDOJ) and that a number of changes had been proposed (Rule 111):

(a) Sittings of 4 to 8 September 2000

Monday 4

- the PPE-DE Group had asked for the vote on the Valdivielso de Cué report on MEDA (A5-0204/2000) (Item 3) to be postponed to the sittings of 20 and 21 September.

The following spoke: Poettering who, on behalf of the PPE-DE Group, explained the request and pointed out that not all the amendments were available yet; he pointed out that the vote could either be postponed, in accordance with the request, to the sittings of 20 and 21 September or taken later during the current part-session, and Terrón i Cusí who insisted the vote should take place during the current part-session.

The President proposed holding the vote on Wednesday on the understanding that the amendments would be available Tuesday morning.

Mr Poettering agreed to this proposal.

The President said that she would forward the request to Mr Verheugen, pointing out that the most suitable time would be Tuesday.

The following spoke: Barón Crespo who, on behalf of the PSE Group, explained the Group's request, Cox, on behalf of the ELDR Group, Lannoye, on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group, and Liese.

Parliament rejected the request by EV (112 for, 176 against, 15 abstentions).

Thursday 7

Topical and urgent debate:

- Items III 'Human rights' and IV 'Burma'

The Verts/ALE Group had asked for Item IV 'Burma' to be replaced by a new item 'Temelin nuclear power plant' and be placed instead under Item III 'Human rights' in the place of 'Fundamental rights in Iran'.

Mrs Hautala explained the request on behalf of the Verts/ALE Group.

Parliament approved the request.

Monday 4 September 2000

- Item III 'Human rights':

The TDI and PPE-DE Groups had called for 'Turkish bombing in northern Iraq' to be replaced by 'higher education and universities in Macedonia'.

(Amendment 2)

Recital 2b (new)

(2b) This transitional measure should serve not only to ensure compliance with the commitments entered into by the Commission before the expiry of Regulation (EC) No 213/96 but also to lay the foundations for a future, integrated programme for the promotion of investment in all developing countries.

TEXT PROPOSED
BY THE COMMISSION

AMENDMENTS
BY PARLIAMENT

(Amendment 3)
Article 2a (new)

European Parliament legislative resolution on the proposal for a European Parliament and Council Regulation regarding the closure and liquidation of projects adopted by the Commission under Council Regulation (EC) No 213/96 on the implementation of the European Communities investment partners financial instrument for the countries of Latin America, Asia, the Mediterranean region and South Africa (COM(1999) 726 – C5-0062/2000 – 2000/0034(COD))

 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Development and Cooperation and the opinions of the Committee on Budgets and the Committee on Budgetary Control (A5-0202/2000),
1. Approves the Commission proposal as amended;
 2. Asks to be consulted again should the Commission intend to amend its proposal substantially or replace it with another text;
 3. Instructs its President to forward its position to the Council and Commission.

3. MEDA (annual report 1998)

A5-0205/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission report: Implementation of the MEDA programme – 1998 annual report (COM(1999) 291 – C5-0117/1999 – 1999/2120(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission report (COM(1999) 291 – C5-0117/1999),
- having regard to the reports 'Evaluation of the MEDA Final Report Regulation, Euronet Consulting, February 1999' and 'Evaluation of the structural adjustment facilities in the countries of the Southern Mediterranean, CERDI-CNRS, April 1999' requested by the Commission,

Tuesday 5 September 2000

- having regard to Special Report No 1/96 of the Court of Auditors on the MEDA programmes⁽¹⁾ and Special Report No 1/98 of the Court of Auditors on bilateral financial and technical cooperation with Mediterranean third countries⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to the Barcelona Declaration of November 1995 adopted by the Euro-Mediterranean Conference,
 - having regard to the Århus Convention of 1998⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the presidency of the Euro-Mediterranean Summit of Stuttgart (April 1999),
 - having regard to the conclusions of the Euro-Mediterranean Conference of Ministers of Helsinki on the environment (November 1997),
 - having regard to the declaration of the Euro-Mediterranean Conference of Ministers of Turin on management of local waters (October 1999),
 - having regard to the conclusions of the civil forums of Barcelona (November and December 1995), Malta on intercultural dialogue (April 1997), Naples (December 1997) and Stuttgart on the environment and human rights (April 1999),
 - having regard to its resolution of 30 March 2000 on Mediterranean policy⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to Article 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Industry, External Trade, Research and Energy and the opinions of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Human Rights, Common Security and Defence Policy and the Committee on Regional Policy, Transport and Tourism (A5-0205/2000),
- A. whereas the 1998 report of activities gives a synthesis of MEDA I which serves as a point of departure for tabling reform proposals for the proper functioning of the future MEDA II programme,
- B. believing that a renegotiation of MEDA is an exceptional opportunity for drawing up a balance sheet on the past and for extending the dialogue between all the operators, both governmental and non-governmental, on the future of MEDA,
- C. restating its firm belief that the political stability and prosperity of the Mediterranean region are of strategic importance to all concerned, and mindful of the importance of Euro-Mediterranean cooperation as a means of promoting policies which help guarantee the stability and economic and social development of that region,
- D. whereas the MEDA programme is the keystone of the financial cooperation in the Euro-Mediterranean partnership underpinning the huge task of coping with a non-homogeneous region and establishing horizontal dialogue,
- E. whereas MEDA is the financial instrument of the partnership and should therefore be used to put in place measures in the framework of the three aspects of the Barcelona Declaration: political, economic and socio-cultural,
- F. whereas any form of cooperation is based on respect for human rights, and whereas the purpose of this cooperation is not simply progress in economic respects but also, and more importantly, in respect of democracy, freedom, peace, the removal of inequalities and sustainable development,
- G. whereas bilateral cooperation (90 %) far outweighs regional cooperation (10 %), and stressing the fundamental importance of the latter in establishing an atmosphere of dialogue, exchange and cooperation, which is the principal objective of the partnership,

Tuesday 5 September 2000

- H. whereas the Commission has proposed a major simplification of MEDA management procedures aimed at overcoming the delays and malfunctioning found under MEDA I; whereas the signatories to the Barcelona Declaration and the European Parliament should nevertheless retain a major say in the management of MEDA for the sake of transparency and democracy,
- I. mindful of the fact that actual expenditure in this implementation period has been low,
- J. whereas the Euro-Mediterranean Parliamentary Forum for exchange and dialogue between national representatives, civil society and the Community Institutions should play a major role in following up implementation of MEDA,
- K. whereas a large proportion of MEDA I funds has been devoted to establishing the Euro-Mediterranean free trade area provided for in Barcelona, including structural adjustment measures and support for economic transition,
- L. whereas the creation of a free trade area should not be regarded as an end in itself but as a means of improving the quality of life in all the partner countries, and regretting that the increased pace of implementation of the economic measures has not been accompanied by equivalent support for other areas of the partnership, in particular the social, cultural, environmental and political dimensions,
- M. whereas the overall nature of Euro-Mediterranean cooperation must be respected, thus making it essential to ensure the genuine synergy of its political, economic and human components,
- N. stressing the decisive role which decentralised cooperation can play in the Mediterranean in promoting democracy and in supporting the emergence of a civil society; regretting that the MED programmes have been blocked since 1997 despite appeals by Parliament and the Ministers of Foreign Affairs meeting in Stuttgart in April 1999,
- O. whereas only the active and equitable participation of civil society in all MEDA operations can guarantee democracy, sustainable development and, in the final analysis, the success of the partnership,
- P. whereas, in order to guarantee the effectiveness of Euro-Mediterranean cooperation and promote democracy and respect for human rights in the area, it is necessary to strengthen the role of non-governmental organisations and encourage the participation of civil society in all MEDA operations,
- Q. believing that this participation is impeded in certain partnership countries by excessive state control of the management of MEDA, and whereas there are no genuine consultative processes when the indicative programmes are drawn up,
- R. having regard to the six priorities of the partnership: the environment, water policy, industry, energy, transport and the information society,
- S. whereas the long-term objectives of Euro-Mediterranean cooperation include fostering lasting socio-economic development, improving the living conditions of the population, increasing employment levels and protecting the environment,
- T. whereas some of the priority areas have received no real political or financial support under MEDA, as was the case with the environment and the short-term action programme (SMAP) adopted in Helsinki in 1997 which has encountered major start-up problems,
- U. whereas water is a problem of fundamental importance in the region which deserves special attention from the MEDA programme; concerned at the degree of overutilisation of water resources in the Mediterranean and at the risk of a reduction in quality, in particular because of demographic changes, urbanisation, the development of tourism and inappropriate economic policies,

Tuesday 5 September 2000

- V. whereas in the energy sector the construction of new infrastructure and interconnections is aimed at promoting the use of fossil fuels, which are more costly and which cause more pollution; whereas decentralised networks of renewable and alternative energy would be better suited to improving living conditions in the beneficiary countries,
1. Considers that, given the strategic importance of the EU's relations with the countries in the MEDA programme as a whole, mere consultation of the European Parliament is not in keeping with the latter's significance in institutional terms. For this reason, it is clearly essential for the Commission and the Council to reach a political agreement to take greater account of the European Parliament's views;
 2. Welcomes the adoption of the MEDA regulation but calls for the programme's implementing rules to be simplified;
 3. Calls for a more equitable breakdown of funds between the three dimensions of the partnership and for more political dialogue in each of these areas;
 4. Calls on the Member States' parliaments which have not yet ratified outstanding association agreements (notably that with Jordan) to do so as a matter of urgency;
 5. Points out that the strengthening of political and economic links with the Mediterranean countries is increasingly becoming one of the European Union's political priorities (see also the most recent Commission statements); the strategic importance of the economic and social development of the Mediterranean region is recognised by all the institutions and is just as great a challenge as enlargement of the Union. For this reason it is necessary to establish a substantial indicative budget for the years 2000-2006;
 6. Considers that the economic links between the European Union and the beneficiary countries should be based on ensuring sustainable development in those countries;
 7. Wants MEDA to have a more strategic and integrated approach aimed at sustainable development, and calls for MEDA to give specific support to drawing up and implementing national sustainable development plans for the partnership countries;
 8. Calls for interregional cooperation to be stepped up, so that wide-ranging horizontal programmes can be put in place;
 9. Stresses the need to boost interregional economic and energy projects that will result in a fully-fledged common free-trade area by 2010;
 10. Believes that, if the Barcelona process is to be an overall success, it is essential to speed up the negotiation of association agreements with Algeria, Lebanon and Syria;
 11. Calls on the Commission to speed up the process of negotiating the association agreements which are still outstanding, while ensuring that sustainable development remains the prime objective;
 12. Stresses that, as regards the programme for Turkey, it is particularly necessary that the Turkish Government should end the State's legal, political, cultural and social discrimination against the Kurdish population. The granting of EU funds to Turkey should therefore be linked with steps to resolve the Kurdish issue in Turkey and, in particular, with efforts to overcome economic and social underdevelopment in the regions in which the Kurdish population lives;
 13. Notes that, in the case of Cyprus and Malta particularly, the MEDA programme has essentially not yet been implemented. Those countries must therefore remain within the programme so that MEDA complements any other funding decided during the preaccession process;
 14. Calls for a substantial increase in the MEDA funds intended for regional programmes and projects with a south-south dimension, to be defined in dialogue with local governmental and non-governmental operators;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

15. Considers that a significant part of the MEDA programme must be devoted to promoting cooperation between countries, and between ethnic and religious groups historically beset by conflict and hostility;
16. Calls, as a follow-up to the conclusions of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs meeting in Stuttgart, for a broad consensus to be established with civil society on the economic reform programmes which hitherto have been the priority objective of MEDA;
17. Regrets the complexity of the implementation of Mediterranean policy and the lengthy administrative procedures. Given the high political stakes and sums of money involved, the Commission should guarantee that a sufficient number of officials work on MEDA;
18. Considers that even though the low disbursement rate remains a problem, the quality of project preparation and the efficiency of the projects are of utmost importance in MEDA; urges the Commission to make its project management procedures more efficient while maintaining high accounting standards;
19. While welcoming the objective of establishing a free trade zone in the Mediterranean area, points out that the non-EU partner countries will only fully benefit when they can have full and free access to the European Union market for their agricultural and food products and that progress to this end should be accelerated, but with compensation within the Common Agricultural Policy for those regions of the European Community which will be directly affected by any increased competition;
20. Calls for the reforms provided for in the new MEDA II Regulation and the simplification of the procedures to become operational as soon as possible;
21. Believes that the low take-up of expenditure commitments under MEDA should constitute grounds for tackling and resolving the problems behind this under-utilisation of available resources, rather than for reducing budget lines;
22. Supports an increase in Commission staff assigned to management of the MEDA programme and all the Mediterranean initiatives in which the Commission participates;
23. Seeks better and regular information on the effects of the MEDA programme on the stability and expansion of jobs, raising of the poverty line and changes in the social strata of the different countries concerned;
24. Calls on the Commission to draw up and make available to Parliament and the public an annual report, both hard copy and on the web, detailing the use of funds and the political strategies adopted;
25. Calls on the Commission and the EIB to forward to the Parliamentary Forum their annual evaluation report on MEDA and any other document permitting regular monitoring of implementation;
26. Points out that the countries which are the beneficiaries of the programme must guarantee, especially with regard to women and children, observance of democratic principles and human rights, which are the keystone of cooperation with Europe; compliance with this aspect must be carefully followed up by the Commission, which must report to the European Parliament thereon at regular intervals and must not hesitate, if necessary, to propose measures to suspend assistance to a given country;
27. Calls on the Commission to draw up an annual report specifically on human rights in the Mediterranean; this report should form one of the bases of the process of deepening cooperation;
28. Welcomes the new proposals for MEDA II, which seek to develop the MEDA programme further; supports the programming approach and indicative programmes instead of individual projects, although this does not mean an end to cooperation between the European Union and the social interlocutors in the Mediterranean area;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

29. Is aware of the fact that the preparation of regional projects is very time-consuming because of the consultations needed among different partners; considers, however, that the regional projects are a very important part of the MEDA programme; considers that there should be joint cross-border projects between the Mediterranean coastal and island regions;

30. Calls, furthermore, for information on the process of programming, adoption, implementation and evaluation of the projects to be made available in due course to permit genuine public consultation; these requirements should apply both to projects managed by the Commission and to projects managed by the European Investment Bank;

31. Suggests that actions aimed at small and medium-sized enterprises should be further strengthened; points out that the main goal should be to facilitate the exchange of information and contacts between potential partners by making available to SMEs in the Mediterranean non-member countries existing Community instruments and programmes originally created to assist European SMEs;

32. Believes there is a need to redefine the concept of 'civil participation' so that it is not limited simply to free participation in calls for tender, and to give a real dimension to the concept of 'partnership' in accordance with the Convention of Aarhus;

33. Stresses that, in order to strengthen democracy and civil society in the Mediterranean countries, it is of the utmost importance that non-governmental organisations are also given an opportunity to participate in the programme;

34. Calls for the criteria of democracy and sustainable development to be integral features of the programming process, and for compliance by the partner countries with international agreements on human rights and the environment to be considered a criterion for eligibility for MEDA funds;

35. Calls for the new process of consultation with the Commission to take into account these priorities, in particular:

- support for investment;
- support for decentralised cooperation;
- support for a joint management policy with regard to migration;

36. Calls for MEDA to be subject to the same social and environmental standards as those already in force under other Community policies and instruments, in particular the structural funds or Agenda 2000;

37. Asks the Commission to ensure that the environmental and social dimension are integrated into each national and regional indicative programme;

38. Stresses that support for structural adjustment programmes should be linked more closely with the objective of improving socio-economic balance in the countries concerned; highlights the importance of reducing inequalities between the two shores of the Mediterranean basin to avoid excessive migratory flows, which would help to improve the situation as regards illegal immigration in the area. This needs to be dealt with urgently;

39. Requests the Commission to start, before the end of 2000, a participatory process of strategic evaluation of the social and environmental impact of the Euro-Mediterranean free trade area, as promised by the Commission at the Stuttgart environmental forum in April 1999;

40. Notes that special attention should be focused on urban areas; considers that action should be taken in order to improve quality of life in urban areas, promote the development of local democracy and decentralised cooperation between local authorities in Mediterranean non-member countries and their counterparts in the European Union;

41. Calls for specific measures to be financed by MEDA aimed at strengthening cooperation in agriculture and rural development in order to improve the quality of life of the countryside and to reduce food dependency;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

42. Underlines the need to support and promote technical assistance projects and programmes for small and medium-sized enterprises and to bolster vocational training programmes for skilled workers and employers alike;
 43. Calls on the Commission, as a matter of urgency, to relaunch the MEDA programmes under a more appropriate formula, while ensuring that they are accessible to all sectors of civil society, including NGOs, and guaranteeing, in particular via the delegations, that access to funding is open on an equitable basis to all representatives of civil society regardless of belief, sex or political affiliation;
 44. Calls in particular for the gender dimension to be taken into account in all initiatives undertaken under MEDA projects, and calls for it to be made an assessment criterion in future reports;
 45. Calls for MEDA funds for training actions in all areas of the partnership to be increased substantially and for them to be able to benefit all societies in the beneficiary countries;
 46. Calls for special attention to be focused on cooperation programmes in the social, cultural and human sphere, so as to help create a better understanding of cultural and religious diversity and thus nurture tolerance and mutual respect;
 47. Calls for the eligibility criteria of projects to be revised so that they are simplified and procedures for the allocation and payment of funds (bank guarantees) are more flexible, with the possibility of reducing the scope of projects, in particular by reintroducing MEDA micro-actions;
 48. Strongly supports micro-projects, especially those involving exchanges of experts and students;
 49. Calls for the short and medium-term environment action programme (SMAP) adopted in Helsinki in 1997 to be reinforced so that it can become a consolidated and operational structure before the end of 2000;
 50. Welcomes the Euro-Mediterranean regional indicative programmes introduced in 1998; considers that programmes such as the Euro-Mediterranean Information Society (Eumedis) programme will play a significant role in setting up and supporting information technology networks and in co-financing pilot projects for the application of information technology;
 51. Calls for a regional cooperation programme for the management of water, with annual appropriations of at least € 10 million, to be established before the end of 2000 in order to implement the action plan adopted in Turin in October 1999;
 52. Calls, furthermore, for water to be an integral part of all MEDA programmes and projects, using a participatory and precautionary approach;
 53. Calls for water protection and purification projects to be afforded priority treatment;
 54. Calls for regional cooperation projects aimed at combating marine pollution, an environmental challenge which is crucial to the protection of the Mediterranean, to be stepped up;
 55. Stresses that aid and rescue networks should be set up to respond to natural disasters such as earthquakes;
 56. Calls for action in the area of renewable energy to be given priority in 2010, with annual energy savings of 2,5% for all sectors of energy consumption;
 57. Encourages the continuation and development of the Euro-Mediterranean Transport Forum; considers that this Forum should in the near future draw up an action plan for transport, including proposals for measures and the means of implementing them, as well as a timetable;
 58. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council and the parliaments of the Member States.

4. Common Community diplomacy

A5-0210/2000

European Parliament resolution on a common Community diplomacy (2000/2006(INI))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Article 3(2) of the Treaty on European Union,
 - having regard to Article 20 of the Treaty on European Union,
 - having regard to its resolution of 18 May 1995 on progress in implementing the CFSP (November 1993-December 1994) ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 18 July 1996 on progress in implementing the CFSP (January-December 1995) ⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 12 June 1997 on progress in implementing the CFSP (January-December 1996) ⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 28 May 1998 on the role of the Union in the world: implementing the CFSP in 1997 ⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 5 May 1999 on the role of the Union in the world: implementing the CFSP in 1998 ⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 163 of the Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Human Rights, Common Security and Defence Policy (A5-0210/2000),
- A. whereas since the 1950s the Community's external activity has expanded continuously, gradually moving from being strictly economic in nature to increasingly involve the political and diplomatic spheres,
- B. whereas the many Council and Commission officials working on external relations are technical specialists but do not in general have the diplomatic training which this increasing external activity demands,
- C. whereas external relations require specialised staff with a solid technical and diplomatic training and, despite the progress made by the Commission in training its officials to work in the field of external activities, the situation is still not satisfactory,
- D. welcoming the efforts made by the Political Committee in adopting on 26 November 1999 the 'European Diplomatic Programme', which is open to national diplomats and Commission and Council officials and aimed at helping to establish a European foreign policy identity, but which needs to be redefined and given fresh impetus, given the scant progress made in this area,
- E. whereas a professional, permanent Community diplomatic service needs to be established fully capable of dealing with today's changed circumstances and contributing effectively to achieving the Union's goals in the international arena,

Tuesday 5 September 2000

- F. whereas, given the very nature of the external service, the responsibilities it involves and the long tradition existing in this field in the Member States, it is essential that diplomats from the Member States be closely involved with the nascent European diplomatic service, to enable the Union to benefit from the wealth of experience which they have,
- G. whereas, despite the progress made, the Commission delegations continue to operate in different ways and whereas there is a need to clarify and enhance their legal situation, role and relations with the European Parliament and the Council,
- H. whereas, although from a formal point of view the delegations are answerable solely to the Commission, in practice they have links with the Council and the European Parliament and actually fulfil a broader representative function on behalf of the Community as a whole, and whereas this situation should be given formal legal recognition,
- I. whereas transforming the Commission delegations into Community delegations would not require a further transfer of powers, since within the framework of the CFSP Community delegations would only act to the extent provided for by the Treaty, with due regard for the responsibilities of the Presidency and the High Representative for the CFSP,
- J. whereas under these new circumstances the Community delegations would need to be given the necessary human and financial resources, with appropriate budgetary provision made for this purpose,
- K. whereas it would be appropriate to set up regional delegations whose duties would extend to various neighbouring states, where circumstances so require, with the proviso that this can only be done if these delegations include staff with specialised knowledge of Community interests in the area, particularly as regards support for democratisation and respect for human rights, which needs to be stepped up,
- L. whereas, despite the degree of integration achieved by the Member States, their external services sometimes suffer from lack of coordination and whereas coordination should be ensured between the Member States' embassies and the delegations, as required by Article 20 of the Treaty on European Union,
- M. whereas coordination is needed in order to maintain cohesion between economic affairs (for whose external representation the Commission is mainly responsible) and political matters (which are the responsibility of the Member States and, in particular, the Presidency); whereas this is vital for ensuring the CFSP operates visibly and effectively,
- N. whereas a system needs to be introduced based on transparency and a spirit of cooperation that will ensure that the Community's diplomatic action complements that of the Member States in order to achieve the objectives laid down in the Treaty,
- O. whereas the objective is certainly not to create a single diplomatic service to replace the foreign services of the Member States with a European foreign service properly speaking, but simply to improve the quality of the Community's joint external service and strive for closer cooperation with the external services of the Member States, thereby responding to the changed circumstances in Europe and the world,
- P. whereas it cannot be ruled out that in future, once the Union's legal personality has been recognised, more ambitious steps may be taken in this field by setting up Union embassies consisting of a Community delegation and the missions of Member States wishing to have a presence in the third country concerned, as repeatedly called for by Parliament,
- Q. whereas, in order to improve the efficiency of the instruments available for the Community's external action, progress needs to be made in three main areas: specialist training of Commission officials to be assigned to the external service; clarification and development of the legal framework governing the functioning of the Commission delegations and their relations with the European Parliament and the Council; and closer collaboration between these delegations and the Member States' embassies,

Tuesday 5 September 2000

Training of Community officials assigned to work in the field of external activity and the contribution of the Member States' diplomatic services

1. Proposes that a College of European Diplomacy devoted specifically to vocational training be set up to ensure that Community officials involved in external activities both at the Commission (in the delegations and the External Relations DGs) and the Council (DG for External Relations at the Council Secretariat and the Strategic Planning and Early Warning Unit) are given not only technical training in Community policies, but also full-blown diplomatic and international relations training; that the College of European Diplomacy could also be open to Member States wishing to provide their diplomats with further training and provide training for diplomats of applicant countries as part of their preparation for accession; and that the College also implements study, research and training programmes in cooperation with European university bodies;
2. Proposes that, for as long as there is no College of European Diplomacy, Community officials and Member States' diplomats who so wish should be able to extend their training by means of in-depth seminars, wherever possible in cooperation with university bodies of recognised standing, particularly those funded by the Community and diplomatic colleges in the Member States;
3. Urges the Council and Commission to consider the various possible procedures for setting up an effective 'bridging' system to link the national and Community external services, allowing for the temporary placement of Member States' diplomats in the Community's external service;
4. Proposes that adequate funding should be provided in the General Budget for the extension of the training of officials and the first step towards the creation of a College of European Diplomacy; and that by the end of this year, a meeting should be convened of the European diplomatic colleges and institutions and the relevant bodies at the European Commission with a view to developing training programmes for Commission officials, setting up the European College of Diplomacy and developing a 'bridging' system to link the external services of the Community and the Member States;

Clarification and development of the legal status and role of the Commission delegations and their relations with the Community institutions

5. Considers, that, although Parliament has previously called for these delegations to be made into Union embassies, bearing in mind that the Union does not have legal personality and with a view to ensuring that the changes take place gradually, the Commission delegations should become Community delegations (the latter having legal personality), so as to build up their legal ties with Parliament and the Council Secretariat while maintaining their position as part of the Commission's establishment plan;
6. Proposes that relations between the delegations and the parliamentary committees and interparliamentary delegations should be regulated in such a way as to promote a better flow of information and improved political control and ensure that the heads of delegations actually appear before parliamentary bodies when political circumstances so require;
7. Proposes that provision be made for heads of delegations to appear before the European Parliament's Committee on Foreign Affairs as a matter of course before taking up their duties, in order to outline and discuss their work programme;
8. Proposes that the EU delegation be systematically jointly responsible for visits of official EP missions and be required to provide assistance in connection with official visits/missions of individual MEPs;
9. Requests that the Commission submit an annual report to the European Parliament and the Council on the functioning of the delegations;
10. Proposes that rules be introduced governing relations between the delegations and the High Representative for the CFSP, including the requirement that the delegation should assist the High Representative and Members of the European Parliament when they visit the area concerned in the course of their duties;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

11. Proposes that the Commission submit to Parliament for debate a redrawn map of its external delegations, as part of the process of converting them into Community delegations, with due regard for the Community's interests in the various states concerned;

Coordination between delegations and the Member States' external services

12. Proposes that joint reports be drawn up by the embassies of the Member States (particularly that of the Presidency-in-Office) and the delegation concerned, as a joint statement of their views;

13. Takes the view that joint Community diplomacy should guarantee the European Union's coordinated representation in international bodies such as the UN, the IMF, the OSCE, the Council of Europe and similar organisations and in regional fora in South America, Central America, Africa, etc.;

14. Proposes that the High Representative for the CFSP present an annual report to the Council and the European Parliament on the results of coordinating the positions of the Member States in international organisations;

15. Proposes that information to the Council and, thus, through the Council to the national governments, and to the European Parliament, be supplied on a joint basis (particularly in the case of representations to international organisations where duplication of effort could be reduced);

16. Proposes that arrangements be made for combining the diplomatic missions of states which so desire with the Commission delegations, resulting in improved coordination of external activities and lower costs deriving from the sharing of infrastructures;

17. Proposes that Member States which so wish be encouraged to use the current Commission delegations in third countries in which they have no diplomatic representation and assign to them one of their own diplomats who, in addition to contributing to the development of the Community's external policy, would be responsible for maintaining bilateral relations;

18. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission and the Council.

5. Community humanitarian activities

A5-0191/2000

European Parliament resolution on the communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament: Assessment and future of Community humanitarian activities (Article 20 of Regulation (EC) No 1257/96) (COM(1999) 468 – C5-0044/2000 – 2000/2016(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the communication from the Commission (COM(1999) 468 – C5-0044/2000),
- having regard to the evaluation report on Community humanitarian aid operations provided for by Article 20 of Regulation (EC) No 1257/96,
- having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
- having regard to the report of the Committee on Development and Cooperation and the opinion of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Human Rights, Common Security and Defence Policy (A5-0191/2000),

Tuesday 5 September 2000

- A. whereas the assistance and aid required by peoples in distress and victims of natural disasters or conflicts or other similar events represents an essential part of the European Union's identity as perceived from outside,
 - B. whereas the profile of the European Union has shifted from that of 'donor' to 'responsive organisation' looking for a more direct involvement in disaster response,
 - C. whereas in the 1990s serious crises — both natural and man-made disasters — have multiplied, and catastrophes have in particular affected the most vulnerable sections of the population, especially women, elderly people and the very young,
 - D. whereas the European Union has increased its humanitarian aid significantly, and is currently the largest donor worldwide and the main provider of funds for United Nations organisations; whereas there is, however, a considerable imbalance in the distribution of resources to the disadvantage of countries outside Europe, particularly developing countries,
 - E. whereas the European Union's humanitarian office (ECHO) is the only department in the Commission that is actually able to react flexibly to emergency needs,
 - F. whereas, according to the summary and conclusions of the evaluation report drawn up pursuant to Article 20 of Regulation (EC) No 1257/96, ECHO's interventions have been relevant and useful; whereas ECHO can be proud of achievements which are quite satisfactory in the view of other bodies operating in the humanitarian and rehabilitation fields,
 - G. whereas, in the absence of sufficiently flexible alternative instruments within the Commission, in recent years ECHO has become more and more involved in post-emergency ('grey zone') interventions of a longer duration; whereas, without a restructuring and clarification of the duties of the departments involved, this type of intervention is likely to prove increasingly unsustainable for the Office,
 - H. whereas, more generally, the powers and responsibilities of Commission departments for external affairs (including development and humanitarian aid) must be clarified as a matter of urgency, and there must be increased coordination between departments,
 - I. whereas more consistency and coordination is required in ECHO's management and an adequate system for monitoring the quality of results is needed, specifically one that makes use of performance indicators,
 - J. whereas ECHO has proportionately smaller staff numbers than other Commission departments and Member States, inadequate for the scale of the tasks it has to accomplish,
 - K. whereas disaster preparedness and conflict prevention, indispensable elements of humanitarian policy, should play a more prominent role in ECHO's operations,
 - L. whereas the humanitarian aid provided by ECHO is almost unknown among the general public in Europe and is not associated with the European Union by beneficiaries, particularly when used to fund programmes implemented via United Nations agencies,
1. Calls on the Commission to overcome confusion and uncertainty by unambiguously opting for a strategy for the future of stepping up the humanitarian aid policy entrusted to ECHO;
 2. Asks the Commission to submit to Parliament and the Council a clear strategy on the role that the humanitarian aid supplied by ECHO should play within external and development policies; stresses that this strategy should specifically include a general but not inflexible definition of ECHO's tasks and its framework of activities, as well as those of the Commission's development and external affairs departments, in order to ensure consistency, complementarity and coordination in the field of foreign policy and its implementation and to avoid duplication of effort and parallel structures;
 3. Requests in particular an increase in the administrative and financial capacities necessary for carrying out reorganisation and rehabilitation tasks in post-emergency situations, and immediate clarification of ECHO's responsibilities, bearing in mind the need both for flexible rapid reaction instruments and also long-term planning;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

4. Calls on the Commission and the Council to create a system for overall coordination of all the donors involved in humanitarian aid at an international level;

5. Asks the Commission and the Council to give ECHO the function of a coordinating platform for all the Member States' emergency aid services at times of major natural disasters or other serious crises; similarly, asks the Commission and the Member States to endeavour to make their humanitarian aid more complementary;

6. Considers that disaster preparedness is a horizontal element which must be integrated into all European development and technical cooperation programmes; takes the view in this context that the Commission should give increased priority to encouraging capacity building in vulnerable countries;

7. Notes that the funds available for conflict prevention and disaster preparedness (DIPECHO) are inadequate to achieve their aim;

8. Asks the Commission and the Council to review the distribution of humanitarian aid funds in order to achieve a better balance in favour of developing countries;

9. Asks the Commission, with regard to the management of ECHO, to take the following specific steps:

- increase internal coordination and coordination with the other Commission departments involved in crisis situations,
- set clear and measurable objectives for all operations,
- make systematic use of performance indicators in programming, planning and managing projects, and also in internal administration,
- set up a systematic procedure for monitoring the quality of results,
- carry out a restructuring of personnel using more flexible, ad hoc recruitment rules, enabling experienced staff to be taken on and more responsibility to be given to staff not covered by the staff regulations,
- introduce a training programme in humanitarian assistance and rehabilitation, making use of the lessons learnt to improve staff skills and enhance institutional expertise,
- decentralise responsibility towards staff located in the field and ensure that delegations are strengthened in countries facing major humanitarian crises, so as to provide administrative support and closer monitoring of operations while ensuring an adequate level of representation on the part of the Commission;

calls on the Commission, in this context, to take account of gender-related factors, particularly in relation to the use of performance indicators, the assessment of project results and the knowledge required at recruitment and in professional training;

10. Considers that preference should be given to the NGO system and the associations of civil society which promote human rights and efforts towards a lasting peace when partners are chosen to carry out humanitarian intervention tasks, since these organisations have proved to be efficient and effective;

11. Considers that, with regard to cooperation with partners, ECHO must maintain a flexible approach, taking into account the relevant capacities of the organisations involved and avoiding encouraging cooperation with a limited number of major partners; supports the incorporation of international humanitarian law and human rights into the design and implementation of humanitarian aid, placing particular emphasis on the fundamental rights of women and children; stresses, however, that incorporating this dimension by no means amounts to introducing any conditionality on humanitarian aid; asks the Commission to coordinate the activities of the humanitarian aid and human rights departments and to promote cooperation with NGOs in this field;

12. Urges the Commission to take the appropriate steps to put a stop to the increased politicisation of humanitarian assistance and the way this is taking the place of European Union foreign policy, because humanitarian assistance should essentially address the effects of crisis, be they the result of a natural disaster or a conflict, and not its causes;

Tuesday 5 September 2000

13. Considers it necessary to carry out research on the interdependence between mankind's interference in the ecological system, military and civil conflicts, economic and social inequity on the one hand and the frequency, intensity and regional distribution of natural disasters, civil wars and military conflicts on the other hand;
 14. Requests a strengthening of ECHO's strategy for communicating with the outside; suggests that the Commission carry out an information campaign to ensure that the humanitarian aid supplied by ECHO is recognised by the general public as one of the European Union's strengths; urges that this campaign should be given a special budget for this purpose;
 15. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to back the efforts made to ensure that the European Union's presence and influence in international organisations are more representative of its political strength and the extent of its contribution to humanitarian aid;
 16. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission and Council.

9. EU external action priorities

B5-0659, 0662, 0668 and 0671/2000

European Parliament resolution on EU external action priorities

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the conclusions of the informal meeting of the General Affairs Council of 2 and 3 September 2000 in Evian,
 - having regard to the provisions of the TEU on the common foreign and security policy and development policy, and the standing international commitments of the EU,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the European Council meeting in Santa Maria da Feira,
 - having regard to the communication from the Commission on the strategic objectives 2000-2005: 'Shaping the new Europe' (COM(2000) 154),
- A. considering the ever-growing importance of EU foreign policy since the fall of the Berlin Wall, which changed the whole landscape of Europe, and, linked to this, the growing responsibility of all the European institutions, the failure of a European foreign policy that was based exclusively on an inter-governmental system and the need for a combination of intergovernmental contacts and a proper common foreign and security policy,
- B. whereas Parliament has not thus far been consulted on the priorities for EU external action,
- C. whereas the financing of these priorities will have serious implications for the EU budget,
- D. whereas it remains unclear what the respective roles of the Commission and the High Representative will be in the definition and implementation of these priorities,
1. Notes the conclusions of the informal meeting of the General Affairs Council regretting that inter-governmentalism has been chosen, for the moment, as the common denominator of European external policies, and asks the Council to associate Parliament fully with the definition of the priorities for EU external action;
 2. Stresses that it will not accept the setting of new priorities which require the allocation of financial provisions from the EU Budget without a clear indication of the estimated cost of the action envisaged, the source of financing and, wherever necessary, an adequate revision of the financial perspective; expresses its commitment to using its political and budgetary instruments to the full to achieve these goals;
 3. Urges the Council to address matters relating to parliamentary scrutiny of the European security and defence policy (ESDP) and clearly structure the timing, the modalities and the discussion of any developments or decisions in this field;
 4. Deplores the decision by the Council to exclude ESDP documents from application of the Council's decision on access to documents,
 5. Underlines the duty of the Commission and Council, in cooperation with Parliament, to fully coordinate action in the area of foreign policy in order to improve and guarantee the consistency, effectiveness, transparency and democratic accountability of EU foreign policy, and believes that a sensible and sensitive partnership between the institutions of the Union and the Member States is needed;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

6. Underlines the need for improved coordination in the area of external action and calls for clarification of the respective roles of the Commission and the High Representative in order to improve the effectiveness and accountability of EU action;
 7. Recognises the respective roles of the Vice-President of the Commission/Commissioner for external relations and the Secretary-General/High Representative for foreign affairs and defence as complementary, where the Commission coordinates the foreign affairs aspects of EU policy according to the TEU and the High Representative is in charge of the CFSP within the Council;
 8. Calls on Member States to undertake even greater efforts to contribute to a truly European foreign and security policy, by acting jointly in international bodies, and by continuing along the lines of the Cologne, Helsinki and Feira European Council conclusions aimed at a European Security and Defence Policy;
 9. Believes that adequate funding must be allocated to supporting the further development of the common European Security and Defence Policy with regard, in particular, to its civilian dimension and conflict prevention;
 10. Draws attention to the need, in accordance with the perspectives outlined by the Treaty, to associate Parliament fully with the evolution and definition of the common defence policy;
 11. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission and Council.

10. Monitoring centre for industrial changeB5-0656/2000*European Parliament resolution on a monitoring centre for industrial changeThe European Parliament,*

- having regard to the Presidency Conclusions of the European Councils of 23/24 March 2000, and of 19/20 June 2000, and to its own resolutions thereon,
- A. whereas neither the European Council nor the Commission retained the idea of a Monitoring Centre on Industrial Change for the exchange of best practices for the management of change with the involvement of the social partners and enterprises in general,
 - B. whereas the European Council instead stated that to achieve the new strategic goal no new processes were needed and that a fully decentralised approach based on subsidiarity will be applied,
 - C. whereas the European Council set out various tasks both for the Council in its various formations and its subsidiary bodies (such as the High-Level Working Party on Social Protection), and for the Commission, including inviting the Commission to draw up an annual synthesis report on progress on the basis of agreed structural indicators,
 1. Endorses the position of the European Council and the Commission in not retaining the suggestion to set up a Monitoring Centre on Industrial Change;
 2. Considers that the European institutions are sufficiently well-equipped in their different ways to evaluate developments on the ground;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

3. Recognises the need to give attention to the propagation across the EU of best practices in matters such as the alleviation of the adverse effects of industrial change, preventing long-term unemployment, and on territorial employment strategies, and therefore invites the social partners jointly to develop the appropriate structure and organisation for this purpose;
4. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, Council, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and the social partners.

11. Community audiovisual policy in the digital age

A5-0209/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Communication from the Commission to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions 'Principles and guidelines for the Community's audiovisual policy in the digital age' (COM(1999) 657 – C5-0144/2000 – 2000/2087(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication (COM(1999) 657 – C5-0144/2000),
 - having regard to Articles 157 and 151 of the Treaty and the Protocol on the system of public broadcasting in the Member States annexed to the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to the Council Conclusions of 27 September 1999 concerning the results of the public consultation on the Convergence Green Paper (in particular the aspects relating to the media and the audiovisual sector)⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the Council Conclusions of 16 May 2000 on the principles and guidelines for audiovisual policy,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the opinions of the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs and the Committee on Legal Affairs and the Internal Market (A5-0209/2000),
- A. whereas the issues relating to the audiovisual sector have already been comprehensively addressed and discussed over the last few years, at the Birmingham Conference in 1998, following on from the consultation on the Convergence Green Paper (COM(1997) 623), and alongside the revision of the directives on telecommunications,
 - B. whereas the audiovisual sector, in addition to being one of the most important sources of new jobs, will continue to play a fundamental role in upholding democracy, freedom of thought and pluralism, as well as safeguarding and promoting cultural and linguistic diversity in Europe; whereas it is more important to promote European content than to protect it artificially in a global context which makes this impossible,
 - C. whereas, in view of the development of digital technology, the existing Community rules governing the audiovisual sector should swiftly be amended in order to achieve the correct balance between the application of the basic principles which are currently in force and the technological and market changes which are taking place,
 - D. whereas vigilance will be needed to ensure that the regulatory separation between infrastructure and content takes place in such a way that the technological and market aspects do not predominate to such an extent that they pose a threat to pluralism and cultural diversity,

Wednesday 6 September 2000

- E. whereas European rules relating to the audiovisual sector do not cover global dissemination systems such as the Internet, nor do they cover the transmission of the same or similar content by means of different technological platforms,
 - F. whereas the public must be guaranteed access to audiovisual services in accordance with the criteria of universality, affordability and non-discrimination,
 - G. whereas the introduction of a European forum on content might create worthwhile synergies between the Commission, the relevant national authorities, operators and users,
 - H. whereas competition policy must be able to constitute an appropriate, effective instrument for preventing the emergence of dominant positions, as regards both the concentration of media ownership in the new digital environment and the safeguarding of pluralism, but must not lead to a situation where the development of a competitive and varied supply of European audiovisual content is frustrated by restrictions on state aid to such productions,
 - I. whereas coordination between the Commission and the relevant national authorities seems to be particularly desirable in the audiovisual sector,
 - J. whereas, as stated in the above Protocol, public service broadcasting plays a central part in safeguarding pluralism, and whereas, however, it is for the Member States to determine how public service broadcasting is funded; whereas the legitimate functions of public service broadcasting should include not only experimental work and research but also the potentially unrestricted use of new technical resources and forms of marketing in order to give public service broadcasting the prospect of competing on the market on an equal footing,
 - K. whereas rules on content in respect of programme and supply responsibility should apply equally to public service and private or commercial operators,
 - L. whereas the Member States are gradually preparing the instruments for the move to digital terrestrial television,
 - M. whereas the specific characteristics of the medium of radio must be safeguarded and the move to digital broadcasting must be facilitated,
 - N. whereas the European film industry is in need of massive funding and a marketing and distribution structure capable of meeting the challenge of the global market and supporting cultural diversity; whereas the Media programme is a useful, but inadequate, instrument for the hoped-for growth of the European audiovisual sector and in particular independent art cinema,
 - O. whereas compliance with the principle of separation between advertising and artistic, editorial or entertainment content must be assured in the new multimedia environment,
 - P. whereas copyright, the effectiveness of which is in jeopardy in the digital environment, must be protected; whereas respect for intellectual property is a source of vitality in the audiovisual and cinematographic sector and the proposal for a directive on copyright and associated rights in the information society must therefore be speedily adopted, both to protect created works and to ensure that they are accessible and can circulate freely,
 - Q. whereas, on the international scene, the distinction between medium and content must be safeguarded, so as to avoid the latter being equated in every respect with any other service which may be sold on line; whereas the local dimension and cultural diversity are key elements in international negotiations on audiovisual services,
1. Endorses, in general terms, the Commission's guidelines for audiovisual policy in the digital age and notes that the timetable for action covering the next five years does not include any major innovations by comparison with what is envisaged in current legislation;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

Revision of the 'Television without Frontiers' Directive

2. Calls on the Commission to ensure that, in order to take account of technological developments and of the services offered by digitalisation, the work leading up to the revision of Directive 89/552/EEC⁽¹⁾ should nonetheless enable the formal revision thereof to be implemented in the course of 2002;
3. Calls on the Commission to ensure that, as part of the revision of the legislation on audiovisual services, a core of key principles for all audiovisual services, irrespective of the method of transmission to users, is identified, or that directives (or, at least, specific regulatory instruments) are drawn up for the purpose of laying down general rules for each type of audiovisual service, irrespective of transmission or broadcasting technique;
4. Considers that the data-collection and assessment criteria and methods used for the purpose of drawing up reports on the application of Articles 4 and 5 of Directive 89/552/EEC must be standardised so that comparable, accurate and objective analyses can be produced;
5. Calls on the Commission, the Council and the Member States to ensure that the rules governing the new digital services offered via convergent networks reaffirm the specific nature of audiovisual services by comparison with all the services of the information society;
6. Agrees with the Commission's aim of providing operators in the audiovisual sector with a clear and predictable policy environment; takes the view that the introduction of digital technologies in the audiovisual sector will call for adjustment of the regulatory framework, in which priority should be given to a differentiated and flexible approach, on the basis of existing law; considers that when introducing new provisions or adjusting existing ones, their impact on employment and growth needs bearing in mind;

The principles to be safeguarded and the regulatory arrangements for the new digital services

7. Endorses the principle of separate legislation for transmission and content, and reiterates the principle that, in the information society, users should effectively be guaranteed the right of access to networks under infrastructure regulation in accordance with the criteria of universality and affordability, and access to their content under content regulation in accordance with criteria of universality, affordability, non-discrimination and transparency;
8. Maintains that regulation must be confined to what is strictly essential and must be applied only where competition is inadequate; such regulation must always be minimal, clear, simple, predictable and consistent and enable the market in the Member States to operate in accordance with the competition rules;
9. Reiterates that some specific technical aspects concerning consumer access to content (electronic programme guides and conditional access, and any technical system interposed between access to the medium and choice of content, including both television and interactive services) require appropriate rules for ensuring pluralism and cultural and linguistic diversity and for protecting users' freedom of choice;
10. Calls on the Commission to recognise the importance of universal service as a means of preventing social exclusion by ensuring that consumers have affordable access to communications services;
11. Reaffirms that the protection of minors and human dignity in audiovisual and information services is essential in order to promote harmonious personal development and ensure an appropriate social balance, as well as being essential in order to create the climate of trust needed in a sector where the number of programmes on offer is increasingly large;
12. Calls on the Commission, the Member States, public broadcasting services, private broadcasters and all major operators in the audiovisual sector to step up experiments with systems for filtering programmes and other methods of parental control for the protection of minors and, if applicable, to create the appropriate legal framework in the Member States;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

13. Approves the use of self-regulation in the rules on audiovisual content, but such rules should be taken to be a set of principles, preferably accompanied by shared codes of conduct, laid down by the relevant national and Community authorities;
14. Supports the principle espoused by the Commission that the allocation of scarce spectrum should aim for optimum efficiency whilst stressing that the approach to broadcast spectrum cannot be considered in isolation from other public policy objectives which public service broadcasters are required to meet;
15. Notes the conclusions of the Lisbon seminar on digital terrestrial television and the activities relating to digital video broadcasting (DVB), and calls on the Council and the Member States to take steps in order to achieve a gradual and agreed move to digital television, in particular digital terrestrial television;
16. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to take the lead in organising an appropriate European consultative forum to discuss aspects relating to the content of audiovisual and multimedia material (cinema, television, Internet, video games, webcasting, DVD, UMTS telephone, etc.) and related social and economic aspects;

Competition and the audiovisual market

17. Calls on the Commission and the relevant national authorities to ensure, with a view to safeguarding pluralism, that measures are taken to prevent the emergence and maintenance of dominant positions in the audiovisual sector; calls on the Commission to assess the dominant position of audiovisual services on the basis of both economic and general criteria, looking at the functioning of the markets vertically, horizontally and intersectorally and not only in percentage terms, and taking into account the impact on European languages and cultural identity (Article 151(4) of the Treaty);
18. Calls, therefore, on the Commission to assess carefully whether it would be advisable to put forward appropriate initiatives on media ownership in the new digital environment, with particular reference to vertical mergers;
19. Calls on the Commission to ensure Europe-wide coordination between the national regulatory authorities and the audiovisual sector regulators; calls on the Commission to promote the creation of a European body to safeguard Europe-wide transparency in all areas of the audiovisual and multimedia market and to counter market concentrations which may pose a threat to pluralism,
20. Calls on the Commission to take into account the cultural uniqueness and the weak economic position of the European audiovisual sector when defining its competition policy for this sector and to ensure that there are strong European groups capable of competing worldwide;

Functions of public service broadcasting

21. Considers that the provisions of the above Protocol concerning the role of public service broadcasting in safeguarding pluralism are of fundamental importance; reiterates that it is for the Member States to define the tasks of public service broadcasting and to determine how public service broadcasting is funded in accordance with the Protocol;
22. Stresses that public service and private broadcasting must play an innovative role at the forefront of the digital audiovisual industry;
23. Invites the Member States, the relevant national authorities and those responsible for managing public service broadcasting to provide such broadcasting free to air, ensuring universal transmission and access and to provide legal guarantees for it through must-carry rules; stresses, in this connection, the crucial role of public digital terrestrial television and the need to make this platform as attractive as possible in the run-up to analogue switchover, through increasing capacity and improving coverage;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

Other initiatives concerning the audiovisual sector and related sectors

24. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to take steps to safeguard the balanced development of the digital audiovisual sector and the European music and digital broadcasting sectors;
25. Calls on the Commission to embark on a study of the socio-economic impact of radio in Europe, focusing in particular on the role of local broadcasters, and to promote a move to the use of the DAB standard;
26. Calls on the Commission to propose further initiatives to develop cyber-cinema and to promote the simultaneous distribution of European cinematographic works in the Member States, on the basis of the experience acquired in connection with the MEDIA Training and MEDIA Plus programmes;
27. calls on the Commission to take steps to encourage additional financing for European cinema, including the establishment of a guarantee fund; welcomes, in this connection, the call made at the Lisbon Summit for the EIB to support European audiovisual production;
28. Calls on the Commission, the Council and the Member States, each within its own field of competence, to recognise and promote high-quality content, not least with tax measures;
29. Calls on the Commission to conduct a thorough examination of the advantages and possibilities of enacting an appropriate tool, e.g. a film directive, in order to strengthen support mechanisms for the film sector in the various Member States and to improve the way in which they are coordinated, with a view to creating a genuine internal European market for films;
30. Agrees with the Commission that it is necessary to amend the legislation on advertising in connection with the innovation brought about by digitalisation, particularly with regard to interactivity;
31. Calls on the Commission and the Council to ensure that, in reforming the legislation on advertising, the principle of demarcating between advertising and editorial content is safeguarded;
32. Calls on the Commission and the Council to promote the creation of and access to works, and also the circulation thereof, in the digital environment, whilst at the same time ensuring that intellectual property rights are adequately protected by means of a strengthening of the directive on copyright and associated rights in the information society; considers that this need has become even more apparent as a result of the fact that the Internet, in its various forms, is one of the main new media for the dissemination of audiovisual works;

The international scene

33. Hopes that the Community, in developing audiovisual policy, will take account of the international dimension in relation to globalisation, and of the local dimension in order to promote cultural diversity, and will ensure that the scale of the broadcasting medium does not determine the type of content, to the detriment of pluralism;
34. Calls on the Commission to ensure that, in international negotiations, the Community insists on the distinction between regulating the medium and regulating content, so as to avoid the risk of audiovisual services being included among those which follow the rules of the networks and/or electronic commerce;
35. Stresses the importance of the European dual system of broadcasting in which general public service broadcasters, of which the public service remits are freely defined by Member States, can continue to develop further in the information society and to coexist with commercial broadcasters, and reiterates that this European model has to be safeguarded in future WTO negotiations;
36. Calls on the Commission as a matter of urgency to create, by means of an appropriate audiovisual policy, an environment which favours entrepreneurial talent and investment in order to secure a presence for the audiovisual industry in the global economy, whilst promoting cultural diversity;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

37. Calls on the Council and the Commission to ensure that the Community and its Member States retain the ability to determine and to transpose their policy in the cultural and audiovisual sector so as to guarantee cultural diversity;

12. Socio-economic background of Erasmus students

A5-0199/2000

European Parliament resolution on the report from the Commission – ‘Survey into the socio-economic background of Erasmus students’ COM(2000) 4 – C5-0146/2000 – 2000/2089(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission report (COM(2000) 4 – C5-0146/2000),
 - having regard to Article 149 of the EC Treaty, which requires the Union to contribute to the development of quality education by encouraging cooperation between Member States, while fully respecting the responsibility of the Member States for the content of teaching and the organisation of education systems and their cultural and linguistic diversity,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to Decision No 253/2000/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 January 2000, establishing the second phase of the Community action programme in the field of education ‘Socrates’⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 25 January 1991 on the European dimension at university level, with particular reference to teacher and student mobility⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 12 March 1997 on the Commission’s White Paper on Education and Training – teaching and learning – towards the learning society⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 14 May 1997 on the Commission’s Green Paper ‘Education – Training – Research: the obstacles to trans-national mobility’⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to its resolution of 13 May 1998 on the Commission Communication to the Council, European Parliament, Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions ‘Towards a Europe of Knowledge’⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the opinion of the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs (A5-0199/2000),
- A. whereas the Erasmus programme aims to encourage student mobility by developing the European dimension of education, in particular, by enabling students to undertake part of their studies in another Member State,

- B. whereas Erasmus can make a positive contribution to encouraging student mobility, provided that not only the European Union but also the national governments make the necessary efforts, by means of an adequate system of government support; whereas the loss of existing social rights at national level when students go abroad runs counter to promoting mobility,
 - C. whereas the main purpose of Erasmus should be to provide equal treatment for Erasmus students regardless of their country of origin or country of destination; whereas this is not so at present, because existing government support varies markedly; more particularly, countries with a high level of government support for students are tending to spread their support over as many students as possible, with relatively small study grants for each individual, while countries with little or no additional government support are concentrating it mainly on a relatively small number of students,
 - D. whereas the growing success of the Erasmus programme illustrates the vital role of Community action in the sphere of higher education,
 - E. whereas it is essential, in an information and knowledge-based society, to continue to encourage the learning of foreign languages, the spirit of initiative and openness to other cultures, and this should become common practice in tomorrow's enlarged Europe,
 - F. welcoming the fact that 80 % of Erasmus students are the first in their family to study abroad and that more than 9 out of 10 have said that they are very satisfied with the period they spend abroad, from both the educational and the socio-cultural point of view,
 - G. whereas, however, the Commission survey shows that only 1 % of students took part in Erasmus mobility schemes in the year in question and that a great deal remains to be done to reach the programme's stated objective of a participation rate of 10 %,
 - H. regretting also that during the period under review the overall participation rate was barely above 50 % and whereas measures are therefore required – in financial terms and in terms of student information – to remedy this situation by ensuring a more balanced participation of Erasmus students between the various host countries,
 - I. sharing the Commission's regret that there are no coordinated and comparable European statistics which would give a more accurate and precise picture of the situation and would therefore allow more useful conclusions to be drawn, if for instance they also take account of the fact that Erasmus students have to work in the host country as well as at home in order to finance their studies,
 - J. believing that it is necessary to improve transparency and academic recognition of qualifications and studies at European level and convinced that the future success of Erasmus measures depends on broader implementation of the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) and not on confirmation of the number of hours per week spent at universities or other institutions taking part in the Erasmus programme,
 - K. noting that, as exclusion arises from structural and cultural as well as economic factors, measures are required to ensure greater diversity in the social backgrounds of Erasmus students in future,
1. Welcomes the high quality of the Commission report but regrets that it was published so long after the formal adoption of the Socrates II programme, so that its findings could not be taken into account; hopes that in future similar surveys will be carried out at more frequent intervals, also with a view to investigating and analysing the reasons for the failure of many European higher education students to apply for Erasmus, and insists that in any event further statistics should be available before the mid-term review scheduled for 2004;
 2. Calls on the Commission to submit a report on the reasons why many students do not feel encouraged to take part in the Erasmus programme;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

3. Calls for suitable administrative procedures to be established to ensure that the Commission has data on Erasmus students and results with a view to preparing statistics and monitoring the programme;
 4. Acknowledges, records and draws attention to the worrying financial problems encountered by more than 57 % of Erasmus students, particularly those from countries where State funding of students is lowest, who normally live with their parents in their home country — about one third of Erasmus students — and are thus largely dependent on their parents' contributions; condemns any internal discrimination practised in Member States' higher education systems, in particular by national agencies through the criteria applied when selecting students in higher education;
 5. Points out that the Socrates II programme can put such financial deficiencies right, by granting financial support that takes account of students' social and economic situation;
 6. Notes that despite all the efforts to provide equal opportunities for all social groups, financially better-off groups continue to enjoy greater access to higher education;
 7. Notes that within the framework of Erasmus it has hitherto not been possible to give special support to groups that are less well-off in socio-economic terms but that, on the contrary, the programme is used mainly by students whose parents have a high level of qualifications;
 8. Notes also the major disparities highlighted by this survey with regard to the respective participation rates of countries of origin and host countries, and the disparities in participation between various cultural and social backgrounds, and stresses the need to organise more targeted information campaigns, with the support of student organisations;
 9. Supports the Commission in its efforts to launch a public debate on how Erasmus students could represent a broader spectrum of cultural backgrounds than is at present the case, so that all the national Erasmus offices take social and economic criteria into account when allocating Erasmus grants;
 10. Calls on the Member States to optimise coordination between national student financial support and Erasmus grants with a view to ensuring the widest possible take-up of the Erasmus programme and promoting social equality in access to the programme;
 11. Calls on the Commission to adopt measures to strengthen European and national helplines to assist students with problems and overcome the obstacles to mobility as far as possible, and to create a Web page for Erasmus students to consult, which should include information on their rights and the obligations and commitments incumbent on their home and host universities;
 12. Calls on the Commission to consider, within the total sum of money already available for this scheme, other forms of indirect support (reductions in fares, accommodation allowances, systems of loans to cover the cost of mobility, etc.) in addition to the present Erasmus grant to make it more effective; notes the comments already made by the Portuguese Presidency on this matter and expects appropriate action to be taken;
 13. Calls on the Commission to press for implementation of the measures approved by the European Council at the Feira summit, to further encourage mobility in the education and training sector, by targeted information and promotional activities;
 14. Hopes that the detailed proposals to be submitted by the Commissioner responsible in autumn 2000 will really help to make the Erasmus programme more accessible to all social groups and calls on the Commission to provide for regular monitoring and assessment of resources and find alternative methods of funding;
 15. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the governments of the Member States.

13. Movement and residence of EU citizens

A5-0207/2000

European Parliament resolution on the report from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament on the implementation of Directives 90/364/EEC, 90/365/EEC and 93/96/EEC (right of residence) and on the communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament on the special measures concerning the movement and residence of citizens of the Union which are justified on grounds of public policy, public security or public health (COM(1999) 127, COM(1999) 372 – C5-0177/1999, C5-0178/1999 – 1999/2157(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the report and the communication from the Commission (COM(1999) 127, COM(1999) 372 – C5-0177/1999, C5-0178/1999),
 - having regard, in particular, to Articles 14, 17, 18 and 39 of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to the report of the High Level Group on free movement of persons submitted to the Commission on 18 March 1997 (the Simone Veil report),
 - having regard to the second report from the Commission on citizenship of the Union of 17 June 1997,
 - having regard to the Green Paper on supplementary pensions in the single market (COM(1997) 283),
 - having regard to the 1997-1998 report of ECAS (European Citizens Action Service),
 - having regard to the Commission communication: Action plan for free movement of workers (COM(1997) 586 – C4-0650/1997), and to its resolution of 16 July 1998 thereon⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Citizens' Freedoms and Rights, Justice and Home Affairs and the opinions of the Committee on Legal Affairs and the Internal Market, the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs, the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the Committee on Petitions (A5-0207/2000),
- A. having regard to Article 14, concerning free movement of persons, and Articles 17 and 18 of the EC Treaty concerning European citizenship, which entails the right to move and to reside freely throughout the territory of the European Union,
- B. whereas however the Commission report and the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Communities (CJEC) indicate that European citizens of all categories still face numerous obstacles to the exercise of their right of movement and residence,
- C. whereas non-EU citizens legally resident in the Union are excluded from the right to free movement and establishment,
- D. whereas the implementation of Directives 90/364/EEC, 90/365/EEC and 93/96/EEC on the right of residence of students and retired people is still highly unsatisfactory, as the people concerned suffer on account of the slowness and administrative cost of the procedures for obtaining residence permits and are required to renew these documents, often without justification,
- E. whereas in order to obtain residence permits, retired people are required to demonstrate that they have adequate resources, which it is often difficult for them to do, while this criterion is furthermore assessed differently in different Member States and without reference to their real situation, and whereas therefore the existing legislation needs to be revised without delay,

Wednesday 6 September 2000

- F. whereas certain categories of workers, particularly those in 'atypical' employment or employment of very brief duration, part-time workers, temporary workers, seasonal workers and unemployed migrant workers, often encounter major difficulties of residence in the host country because of the formalities for renewal of their permits associated with the production of evidence of adequate resources,
- G. whereas in general the right of movement and residence, which is a major aspect of European citizenship (which itself is a fundamental right which cannot be reserved solely for citizens of the Member States), should wherever possible be viewed without reference to the economic considerations which currently impede its full exercise,
- H. whereas millions of third country nationals are residing legally within the EU,
- I. whereas moreover migrant workers are penalised in that they suffer the pecuniary consequences of the inadequate harmonisation of pension systems,
- J. having regard to the unacceptable violations of the right of residence which are still too often committed by the Member States, which misinterpret the concept of 'public policy' and fail to respect the objectives laid down by Directive 64/221/EEC and the case law of the CJEC in this field,
- K. whereas the full exercise of the right of free movement and residence not only corresponds to the very implementation of the principle of European citizenship but also, by facilitating the mobility of students and workers, promotes dynamism and economic competitiveness,
- L. whereas 50 years after the Treaty of Rome for the first time laid down the principle of free movement of persons, this right is still impeded or even ignored, which makes it necessary to promote genuine European citizenship,
- M. whereas therefore the Commission and Council ought to do everything in their power to impart real meaning to European citizenship and to the 'European area of freedom',
1. Welcomes the report, but calls on the Commission to explain the delay in submitting a report on the implementation of Directive 93/96/EEC to the Council and Parliament;
 2. Notes that the report does not deal with the obstacles faced by workers to the exercise of their right of movement and residence, and covers the situation of third-country nationals only to the extent that they are members of the family of a European citizen;
 3. Stresses the need, on the basis of a complete overhaul of the existing rules, to adopt a framework directive to organise and guarantee the unimpeded exercise of freedom of movement and residence;
 4. Calls on the Member States and the Commission, when implementing this framework directive, to adopt the necessary measures to render the exercise of European citizenship far more effective for the various categories of persons concerned, by putting an end to the existing inequalities of treatment;
 5. Considers, in this context, that the introduction for all applicants of a residence permit valid for one year would be a first step in this direction;
 6. Deplores, in a 'European area of freedom', the abusive use by Member States of public policy as grounds for expulsions; considers it essential, therefore, for Member States to endeavour to ensure that they improve their coordination of the interpretation of the concept of public policy, particularly in the context of the Schengen agreements;
 7. Urges the Commission to ensure that the legal remedies provided by Directive 64/221/EEC are not undermined in any way, and that any person covered by this Directive is not deprived of his or her rights of defence and assistance or representation;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

8. Takes the view that systematic or automatic linkage between criminal conviction and deportation is a breach of Community law and the principle of non-discrimination; points out that each and every deportation must be accounted for in terms of the present danger to public order and safety, and carefully assessed in the light of the personal circumstances of the person concerned and the need to protect family life;

9. Believes that citizenship of the Union must be interpreted in a broad sense; is therefore of the opinion that third-country subjects who are born in the country of residence or have lived there since childhood, are long-term residents with cultural, social and family links in the country of residence or who are minors should not be deported;

10. Takes the view that the Schengen Information System must comply with Community law, more specifically,

- in applying the provisions of Directive 64/221/EEC, which expressly states that personal data concerning a measure that comes under the scope of the directive, and is no longer valid or has been repealed, may not be preserved and that such data may not be included in Community lists or automatically passed on, and that refusing to grant access to the Schengen area to persons who are Union citizens, or who have become so, on the basis of registration in the SIS is in conflict with Community law;
- in applying Directive 95/46/EC, which expressly states that personal data obtained for specified, explicitly defined and justified purposes may not be used in a way that is incompatible with such purposes;

calls on the Commission to exercise its responsibility as guardian of the Treaties and take steps to put an end to these infringements of Community law;

11. Regrets that the Council takes no notice of the communications from the Committee on Petitions concerning serious breaches of Community law on the part of the authorities of the Member States, which reveals a negative attitude on the part of the Council towards the right of petition of European citizens, and calls on the Council to pay the necessary attention to the rights of Union citizens;

Movement and residence of students

12. Calls on Member States:

- to ensure, with regard to the right of residence of students, that their national administrations strictly apply the current provisions of Directive 93/96/EEC (enrolment at a recognised institution, a simple statement of adequate means, health insurance cover) to the exclusion of all other conditions;
- to limit in so far as possible the formalities relating to the renewal of residence permits and to consider issuing these documents free of charge;
- to ensure that all students are able to apply for a work permit in the country in which they are studying in order to finance their studies;
- not to make financial assistance to students subject to nationality conditions;

13. Calls upon the Commission to study:

- ways of widening the scope of the Directive to embrace trainees and volunteer workers;
- problems in connection with the recognition of diplomas in certain professions;

14. Takes note of the Commission's intention to extend the scope of Directive 93/96/EEC on students' right of residence to all educational establishments, and to examine how to create more clarity on the scope of students' right of residence, giving special attention to the administrative problems which trainees and participants in voluntary projects encounter, and whether it is possible to make the first issuing and renewal of residence permits for students free of charge; calls on the Commission to submit appropriate amendments to the directive to Parliament and the Council;

Wednesday 6 September 2000

Movement and residence of retired people

15. Welcomes the Commission proposals to the effect that the existing directives should be so revised as to:

- simplify and render as flexible as possible the procedures for providing evidence of adequate means for retired people;
- take account of the impact on the validity of residence permits of the increasingly common practice of living alternately in the host country and the country of origin in the course of a single year;

Movement and residence of migrant workers

16. Calls on Member States to facilitate to the maximum the granting and renewal of residence permits for migrant workers, particularly temporary, part-time or seasonal workers, by granting them a five-year residence permit if they have held jobs for more than 12 months during a period of a residence in the host country exceeding 18 months;

17. Calls on host Member States moreover to allow unemployed workers:

- to extend their right of residence for the period during which they are entitled to draw unemployment benefit in the country concerned
- to renew their residence permit automatically for periods of at least six months while they are genuinely seeking employment;

18. Calls on the Council, in this respect, to resume without further delay its consideration of the three proposals by the Commission on this subject designed to improve the free movement of workers and their families within the Community (COM(1998) 394) ⁽¹⁾;

Status of migrant workers under employment legislation

19. Calls on Member States to carry out the improvement and modernisation essential for social protection in the EU so as to halt the penalisation of migrant workers and posted workers arising from:

- non-recognition of certain pension schemes between Member States and difficulties of transferring acquired rights;
- the restrictive character of the conditions imposed for the acquisition of supplementary pension rights (long periods during which no pension is payable);
- fiscal problems associated with the acquisition of pension rights in numerous Member States;
- difficulties relating to the transfer of early retirement benefits paid from a certain age to workers who are not employed in any form;

Family status in the host country

20. Considers that family reunification must be simplified and facilitated, as it is a vital factor making for integration in the host country; calls on the Commission and Member States, when revising legislation on this subject, to decide:

- that the spouse of a resident student or retired person or, if the law of the Member State concerned treats the situation of unmarried couples as married couples, the unmarried partner with whom the person reuniting the family has a lasting relationship should have a genuine autonomous right of residence conferred upon them on the same terms, as regards resources, as upon the resident student or retired person;
- that in the event of divorce or decease of the person who obtained the residence permit, members of his or her family should have the right to take up or continue to undertake employment or self-employment;

⁽¹⁾ OJ C 344, 12.11.1998, pp. 9, 12 and 16.

Wednesday 6 September 2000

- that the previous provisions should also apply, on the same terms, to members of the family of a Community national originating in a third country and, in general, that visa formalities should be eased or abolished;

Economic, social and cultural context of the right of residence of migrants

21. Considers that the practical exercise of the right of movement and residence presupposes a thorough improvement of the social context (equality of treatment with regard to social and fiscal advantages, greater transparency of the employment market, a greater role for the EURES network), the educational context (access to education and training) and the cultural context (language learning) of migrants and their families; draws attention once more to its request for the introduction of a border impact assessment (the Europe test), to measure the impact of new or amending legislation concerning tax and social security policy on the situation of workers and their families who work in a Member State other than the one in which they live;

22. Considers that steps should be taken to allow the free movement of legally resident third country nationals who have lived within the EU for a period of five years or more;

23. Observes likewise that the European citizens concerned are inadequately informed as to their rights and the means of redress open to them, and that this situation should be remedied, particularly by means of better training of the national administrative staff concerned and information campaigns; calls explicitly for a continuation of the support for the initiatives of NGOs concerning complaint procedures in respect of free movement, legal support for complaint procedures and cataloguing the most frequent complaints, with guarantees of the financial resources required;

24. Urges the Commission to speed up its internal procedures so as to stop more quickly the breaches of Community law;

25. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the governments of the Member States and the Commission.

Vice-President

1. Opening of sitting

The sitting opened at 10.05.

The following spoke:

- Mr Lipietz, who referred to the petrol crisis facing the Union as a result of the sharp increase in oil prices and called for the Commission, and in particular the Commissioners responsible, to make a statement to Parliament as soon as possible concerning the action to be taken (the President replied this would be difficult to arrange as the week's agenda had already been established; he undertook, however, to try to find a solution).

Mrs Reding, Member of the Commission, stated that she would forward Mr Lipietz' request to Commissioners de Palacio and Monti, and that a suitable time for making the requested statement would be sought, together with the President of Parliament.

5. Dangerous substances and preparations (azocolourants) I

A5-0168/2000

Proposal for a European Parliament and Council directive amending for the 19th time Council Directive 76/769/EEC relating to restrictions on the marketing and use of certain dangerous substances and preparations (azocolourants) (COM(1999) 620 – C5-0312/1999 – 1999/0269(COD))

6. Thirteenth International Conference on AIDS

B5-0748, 0750, 0752, 0756, 0757 and 0761/2000

European Parliament resolution on the international AIDS Conference in Durban (South Africa)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on the HIV-AIDS disease,
 - having regard to the United Nations Global Compact signed by business, trade union, human rights and conservation groups in New York on 26 July 2000,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the G-8 Okinawa (Japan) meeting on 22/23 July 2000,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the EU-US Summit in Queluz (Portugal) on 31 May 2000,
 - having regard to the XIIIth International Conference on AIDS and sexually transmitted diseases in Africa in Durban (South Africa) on 9-14 July 2000;
- A. recalling that the UN Security Council in New York on 17 July 2000 adopted the Council's first ever resolution (1308/2000) on a health issue which focussed on the crisis of HIV-AIDS and the impact this has on international peacekeeping operations,
 - B. noting continued efforts by UN agencies to work with governments in developing nations, donor countries, and other international organisations including the European Union to further an International Partnership against AIDS in Africa,
 - C. whereas HIV-AIDS has reached pandemic proportions in the world's hardest hit regions (as every minute five people die in Africa from the disease) and created over 13,2 million orphans, and whereas at least 50 % of the infected persons are women who are likely to pass HIV on to their babies,
 - D. whereas HIV-AIDS is the main cause of death in sub-Saharan Africa; whereas 18,8 million — including 3,8 million children — have died of AIDS worldwide, reversing years of declining death rates with life expectancy in Africa now likely to fall below 45 years by 2015,
 - E. whereas the continued rapid spread of HIV-AIDS poses a direct threat to all development efforts by undermining political, social and economic structures across the developing world since HIV-AIDS hits the most active section of the population,

Thursday 7 September 2000

- F. whereas the AIDS crisis has for too long been underestimated by most African governments, with some cultural and religious traditions posing obstacles to the effective implementation of anti-AIDS measures,
- G. whereas concerted national action in Senegal and Uganda has stopped the spread of the epidemic by massive advertising campaigns and the distribution of condoms free of charge, and these actions prove that the appeals and participation of political and religious leaders are strongly needed,
- H. whereas no provisions are foreseen in most developing countries for quality care for terminally ill people,
- I. whereas in some countries HIV-AIDS-related costs will soon absorb over half the health budgets as four million people in sub-Saharan Africa were newly infected with HIV in 1999,
- J. whereas EU Member States should speed up the writing off of debt for developing countries that are increasing investment in public health and education,
- K. whereas pharmaceutical companies must look at ways to reduce prices since nations in developing countries cannot afford the cost of anti-viral drugs available in the industrialised world, and therefore the issue of intellectual property rights should be subject to an urgent review,
- L. warning that the situation can only deteriorate unless the international community invests far more in prevention efforts as well as programmes to address the social and economic consequences of the HIV-AIDS pandemic,
- M. calling for future policies on HIV-AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis to be based on an increase in and better use of funds by fully involving civil society, non-governmental and private sector organisations,
- N. alarmed that one third of the world's population is deprived of access to existing HIV-AIDS treatment, while other diseases which had been considered under control — such as malaria and tuberculosis — are on the increase,
- O. whereas the Commission and EU Member States should work closely together with other developed countries and international bodies like the UN to create an integrated programme and a financial and technical framework to combat the global threat posed by the sharp rise in HIV-AIDS, malaria and tuberculosis cases,
1. Calls on the Member States and the Commission to give the highest political and financial priority to the fight against the growing pandemic of HIV-AIDS;
 2. Believes that a comprehensive approach to HIV-AIDS is urgently needed in sub-Saharan Africa if the spread of AIDS is to be halted and reversed by 2015;
 3. Recognises and supports the work being done by the United Nations Joint Programme on HIV-AIDS and urges the Commission and EU Member States to cooperate closely with Unaid;
 4. Calls on the different international donors who are active in the fight against AIDS, such as the World Bank, UNICEF, UNDP, UNFPA, UNDCP, UNESCO, WHO and the EU, to coordinate policies so as to avoid wasting resources and ensure that structural adjustment programmes take the HIV-AIDS pandemic into account;
 5. Calls on the Millennium Summit in New York on 8 September 2000 to agree a renewed initiative to fight HIV-AIDS;

Thursday 7 September 2000

6. Calls on the World Economic Forum in Melbourne between 11 and 13 September 2000 to build on the United Nations Global Compact and agree funding for the fight against HIV-AIDS;
7. Believes that the EU AIDS policy must be an integral part of the health and development policies and be consistent with other policies such as family planning, education and health, empowerment of women, employment, alleviation of poverty, and human rights;
8. Urges the Commission and EU Member States to help developing nations finance the fight against HIV-AIDS — as well as malaria and tuberculosis — by reducing developing countries' debts, since Africa alone pays the world's richest nations annually USD 15 billion in debt repayment whilst the total domestic and international spending on AIDS is just USD 300 million;
9. Urges the G-8 to consider a debt-for-AIDS programme to compensate efforts by developing countries in their fight against AIDS;
10. Notes the announcement that the World Bank is establishing a USD 500 million fund to help African governments pay for expanded AIDS programmes but considers that billions would be needed and urges the European Investment Bank and Commission to cooperate with this new initiative;
11. Calls on the Commission to monitor closely the human trials in Britain of a new AIDS vaccine and to encourage EU research into other potential vaccines against AIDS;
12. Calls on the pharmaceutical industry to reduce prices drastically and provide certain quantities of drugs free of charge;
13. Stresses the need for continued research, in particular as regards the development of vaccines, beyond any operational activities in the fight against AIDS;
14. Stresses the need to create global mechanisms and incentives to stimulate research and development into diseases — such as HIV-AIDS and tuberculosis — that affect developing countries disproportionately;
15. Calls on the Commission, the WTO and the WHO to support the International AIDS Vaccine Initiative, to investigate ways of making anti-AIDS drugs available at lower prices in the developing countries and to draw on the Council of Europe's experience in licensing drugs;
16. Stresses that the high price of patented drugs has led to legitimate concerns on the potential impact of the WTO Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) which seeks to enforce global patent protection;
17. Calls on religious, cultural and political authorities to cooperate fully with the implementation of the prevention programmes and to take part constructively in AIDS prevention actions, including education and information programmes;
18. Notes that HIV-AIDS is causing dramatic shifts in demographics and contributing to increased migration as the economies in developing countries collapse with the reduced cultivation of cash crops and food products; calls on the European Union to encourage regional cooperation so that migrant populations have access to basic health and education services;

Thursday 7 September 2000

19. Urges the Commission and EU Member States to ensure that developing governments put in place comprehensive national AIDS programmes over the next five years and strengthen legislation which protects against HIV-related discrimination;
20. Considers that EU funds must be spent on improving primary health care and public education in order to fight not only HIV-AIDS but also other diseases like malaria and tuberculosis;
21. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the UN Secretary-General, the Member States of the Lomé Convention, the World Health Organisation, the World Trade Organisation, the UNDP, UNICEF, UNFPA, UNDCP, UNESCO, the World Bank, the OECD, the Council of Europe, the European Investment Bank and the World Economic Forum.

7. Telecommunications mergers

B5-0654, 0655, 0661 and 0669/2000

European Parliament resolution on mergers in the telecommunications sector

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the statement by the Commission,
 - having regard to Article 81 of the EC Treaty prohibiting all agreements between undertakings, decisions by associations of undertakings and concerted practices which may affect trade between Member States and which have as their object or effect the prevention, restriction or distortion of competition within the common market,
 - having regard to the Commission's June 2000 report to the Council reviewing the merger regulation,
 - having regard to the recent decisions by both the European Commission and the US Department of Justice to prohibit a merger between MCI WorldCom and Sprint,
 - having regard to its earlier resolutions on mergers, restructuring, transfer and closure of undertakings in the EU,
 - having regard to the ILO and UN codes of conduct,
- A. whereas the Treaty on European Union states in its principles that the Community's Member States should develop an economic policy conducted in accordance with the principle of an open market economy with competition and with the guarantee of growth and employment,
- B. whereas the main policy objectives to be achieved by regulation in this fast-moving sector, and the principles and design of the broad regulatory framework, have been set out in the 1999 Communications Review,
- C. whereas the European Union is currently undergoing a number of changes, the consolidation of the Internal Market accelerated by the euro in strategic service sectors, the implementation of new technology, the financial upheaval as well as the forthcoming enlargement and strengthening of globalisation;

- D. whereas since 1990 a fivefold increase in the number of mergers has been notified under the merger regulation which increased to around 300 cases per year; whereas this represents a growth in merger activities of 33% compared to 1998 and whereas the merger cases and control operations have become increasingly complex, including a wider geographical scope and obligatory simultaneous analysis of several different markets,
- E. whereas the future direction and pace of possible sell-offs, acquisitions, mergers, alliances and de-aggregations among companies involved in telecoms operations cannot be predicted with confidence,
- F. whereas US penetration on the European market is very high in particular concerning provision of voice telephony, joint ventures and direct holdings; whereas cooperation between competition monitoring bodies of the US and the European Community is working adequately and satisfactorily,
1. Welcomes the decision of the European Commission and the US Department of Justice to block the merger of MCI WorldCom and Sprint because of its impact on competition in the market for top-level internet connectivity and voice telephony on the US-EU route; is of the opinion that it is a good example of working for the benefit of European consumers and against a dominant position in the telecom market;
 2. Points out that Europe needs to create the conditions for a modern economy, in particular through new information technologies, development of new services and creation of new businesses; strongly believes that in handling industrial change the EU must create sustainable economic development, universal and low-cost internet access for all people in Europe through competitiveness based on quality, initiative and innovation, and a European knowledge-based society based on equality of opportunity, life-long learning, effective social protection, adaptability and employability;
 3. Is of the opinion that effective competition on the European and global scale can only be maintained if there are reasonably comparable competitors in a market without one firm being dominant and reasonably free entry into all segments of the market is ensured;
 4. Calls on the Council and Commission to revise the EEC merger regulation and take-over bids directive in order to guarantee a simplified and consumer-friendly procedure for treatment of such concentrations bearing in mind the requirements for information and consultation of employees;
 5. Is deeply concerned about the proposed appropriations bill of the US Department of Commerce, Justice and State, which limits the transfer of licences to companies which are more than 25% owned by a foreign government and does not allow the use of the existing waivers;
 6. Is of the opinion that the proposed legislation would mean a breach of commitments made by the US under the GATS and the WTO which could set a dangerous precedent for other countries and could lead to new protectionist tendencies;
 7. Reiterates its request for further consideration to be given to the concept of competition in the telecommunications sector, and therefore welcomes the Commission's intention to carry out a more thorough inventory of the merger control system;
 8. Intends to address these complex issues further in its forthcoming consideration of the Commission's competition reports;
 9. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and the Social Partners.

8. Human cloning

B5-0710, 0751, 0753 and 0764/2000

European Parliament resolution on human cloning

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the proposal by the United Kingdom Government to permit medical research using embryos created by cell nuclear replacement (so-called 'therapeutic cloning'),
 - having regard to its resolutions of 16 March 1989 on the ethical and legal problems of genetic engineering ⁽¹⁾ and on artificial insemination 'in vivo' and 'in vitro' ⁽²⁾, of 28 October 1993 on the cloning of the human embryo ⁽³⁾, of 12 March 1997 on cloning ⁽⁴⁾, of 15 January 1998 on human cloning ⁽⁵⁾, and of 30 March 2000 ⁽⁶⁾,
 - having regard to the Council of Europe's Convention for the protection of human rights and dignity of the human being with regard to the application of biology and medicine — the Convention on human rights and biomedicine — and its own resolution of 20 September 1996 on this subject ⁽⁷⁾, and the additional protocol which forbids the cloning of human beings,
 - having regard to Recommendation 1046 of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe on the use of human embryos,
 - having regard to the Community's Fifth framework research programme and specific programmes thereunder,
 - having regard to Directive 98/44/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 6 July 1998 on the legal protection of biotechnological inventions ⁽⁸⁾,
- A. whereas human dignity and the consequent value of each human being are the main aims of Member States, as stated in many modern constitutions,
- B. whereas the undoubted need for medical research resulting from advances in knowledge of human genetics must be balanced against strict ethical and social constraints,
- C. whereas there are other ways than embryonic cloning of curing serious illnesses, such as those that involve taking stem cells from adults or from the umbilical cords of new-born babies, and other external causes of disease which require research,
- D. whereas the Fifth framework programme and Council Decision 1999/167/EC of 25 January 1999 adopting a specific programme for research, technological development and demonstration on quality of life and management of living resources (1998-2002) state 'In the same way, no research activity understood in the sense of the term 'cloning', with the aim of replacing a germ or embryo cell nucleus with that of the cell of any individual, a cell from an embryo or a cell coming from a later stage of development to the human embryo, will be supported',
- E. whereas therefore there is a prohibition on the use of Community funds, either directly or indirectly, for any such research,
- F. whereas aforementioned Directive 98/44/EC states that there is a consensus within the Community that interventions in the human germ line and the cloning of human beings offends against ordre public and morality,

- G. whereas an attempt is being made to use linguistic sleight of hand to erode the moral significance of human cloning,
- H. whereas there is no difference between cloning for therapeutic purposes and cloning for the purposes of reproduction, and whereas any relaxation of the present ban will lead to pressure for further developments in embryo production and usage,
- I. whereas Parliament defines human cloning as the creation of human embryos having the same genetic make-up as another human being, dead or alive, at any stage of their development, without any possible distinction as regards the method used,
- J. whereas the proposals of the United Kingdom Government require the assent of the Members of both Houses of the United Kingdom Parliament, who are to be permitted a free vote of conscience on the issue,
1. Believes that human rights and respect for human dignity and human life must be the constant aim of political legislative activity;
 2. Considers that 'therapeutic cloning', which involves the creation of human embryos solely for research purposes, poses a profound ethical dilemma, irreversibly crosses a boundary in research norms and is contrary to public policy as adopted by the European Union;
 3. Calls on the UK Government to review its position on human embryo cloning and calls on its honourable colleagues, the Members of the United Kingdom Parliament, to exercise their votes of conscience and reject the proposal to permit research using embryos created by cell nuclear transfer when it is laid before them;
 4. Repeats its call to each Member State to enact binding legislation prohibiting all research into any kind of human cloning within its territory and providing for criminal penalties for any breach;
 5. Urges maximum political, legislative, scientific and economic efforts to be aimed at therapies that use stem cells taken from adult subjects;
 6. Reaffirms its support for biotechnological scientific research in medicine, provided that is balanced against strict ethical and social constraints;
 7. Renews its call for human artificial insemination techniques that do not produce an excess number of embryos in order to avoid generating superfluous embryos;
 8. Calls on the appropriate national and Community authorities to ensure that the ban on patenting or cloning human beings is reaffirmed and to adopt rules to this end;
 9. Calls on the Commission to guarantee full respect for the terms of the Fifth framework programme and all specific programmes thereunder, and points out that the best way to implement this decision is to ensure that no research institution that is in any way involved in the cloning of human embryos gets money from the EU budget for any of their work;
 10. Repeats its insistence that there should be a universal and specific ban at the level of the United Nations on the cloning of human beings at all stages of formation and development;
 11. Considers that any temporary committee set up by this Parliament to examine the ethical and legal issues raised by new developments in the field of human genetics should take as a starting point the views already expressed in resolutions of this House. The committee should examine questions for which Parliament has not yet expressed a clear position. Its powers, composition and term of office shall be defined on a proposal from the Conference of Presidents, without any limitation of the powers of the permanent committee responsible for matters relating to the monitoring and the application of Community law on these issues;
 12. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the Member States, the Members of the UK Parliament, and the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

9. Air transport and the environment

A5-0187/2000

European Parliament resolution on the communication from the Commission to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions – Air Transport and the Environment: Towards meeting the Challenges of Sustainable Development (COM(1999) 640 – C5-0086/2000 – 2000/2054(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication (COM(1999) 640 – C5-0086/2000),
- having regard to Article 2 of the EU Treaty, which makes sustainable development an explicit goal of the EU,
- having regard to Article 6 of the EC Treaty, which obliges the Community to integrate environmental concerns into all policy areas,
- having regard to the fact that safety has always been the air transport industry's top priority, which has been an important factor in its success; safety levels must continue to be protected – whatever environmental strategies are required,
- having regard to the fact that the EU Treaty clearly states that the principles of sustainable development should be applied to all modes of transport (road, rail and air),
- having regard to the economic and social importance of the aviation industry in EU Member States in which air transport has brought work, prosperity, increased trade and new travel and tourism opportunities,
- having regard to the fact that the EU should not create unnecessary differences where global standards exist; where new rules need to be created for example in environmental protection, there must be an international approach for such a universal industry as air transport,
- having regard to the Fifth environmental action programme of the European Union which recommends the use of fiscal instruments for environmental policy in order to ensure that natural resources are used in a responsible manner by consumers and suppliers and its resolution of 17 November 1992 on a Community Programme of Policy and Action in relation to the Environment and Sustainable Development ⁽¹⁾,
- having regard to the the OECD Council of May 1999 where ministers stated that sustainable development requires the integration of economic instruments for environmental protection, namely the internalisation of external costs ⁽²⁾,
- having regard to the European Conference of Ministers of Transport (ECMT) which published a comprehensive in depth review of the state of the art of internalisation policies with a range of concrete proposals for the introduction of environmental levies in all transport sectors ⁽³⁾,
- having regard to the Commission White Paper 'Fair payment for infrastructure use: a phased approach to a common transport infrastructure charging framework in the EU' (COM(1998) 466), which contained a new framework for infrastructure charging, in which the marginal social costs of transport are taken into account, and Parliament's resolution thereon of 15 April 1999 ⁽⁴⁾,
- having regard to the final report on 'options for charging users directly for transport infrastructure operating costs' issued by the High Level Group on Transport Infrastructure Charging on 9 September 1999,

- having regard to the Cardiff process of environmental integration, started in 1998, during which the internalisation of external costs in the transport sector has been put forward by Ministers on numerous occasions⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the IPCC (Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change) Special report on Aviation and the Global Atmosphere, which recognises that the effects of some types of aircraft emissions are well known, but which also reveals that there are a number of key areas of scientific uncertainty that currently limit the ability to project aviation impacts on climate and ozone,
 - having regard to the World Health Organisation Guidelines for Community Noise, adopted March 2000, and the World Health Organisation Charter on Transport, Environment, and Health, June 1999,
 - having regard to the fact that the EU is represented through certain of its member states in ICAO and is itself an observer to the ICAO committee on Aviation Environmental Protection (CAEP) where these global environmental standards are developed,
 - having regard to its resolutions of 30 March 2000 on hush-kitted aircraft⁽²⁾ and of 14 April 2000 on night flights and noise pollution near airports⁽³⁾, and of 4 May 2000 on the European Airline Industry: from Single Market to World-wide Challenges⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Regional Policy, Transport and Tourism (A5-0187/2000),
- A. whereas Principle 16 of the UN Conference on Environment and Development's Rio Declaration calls on member states to promote the internalisation of environmental costs and the use of economic instruments, taking into account the approach that the polluter should, in principle, bear the cost of pollution, with due regard to the public interest and without distorting international trade and investment,
- B. whereas Annex 4.2b of the Convention to Combat Global Warming commits Annex 1 Parties to 'adopt national policies and take corresponding measures on the mitigation of climate change, by limiting its anthropogenic emissions of greenhouse gases and protecting and enhancing its greenhouse gas sinks and reservoirs',
- C. whereas the Kyoto Protocol to the UNFCCC in Art. 2.2 requires Annex 1 parties to strive to limit or reduce greenhouse gases from aviation,
- D. whereas at the 32nd ICAO Assembly, at the request of the Member States of the European Union, decisions were taken aimed at continuing and accelerating the work of ICAO in the area of aviation environmental protection,
- E. whereas CAEP formed a specific working group to identify and evaluate the potential role of market-based options, including emissions charges, fuel taxes, carbon offset and emissions trading regimes,
- F. whereas ICAO is the specialised agency with global responsibility for the establishment of standards, recommended practices and guidance on various aspects of international civil aviation, including environmental protection and its standards and recommended practices are global in scope, providing benchmarks for both regional and national legislation,

- G. whereas air passenger traffic both within the Community and between the Community and third countries increased by nearly 40 % between 1993 and 1997; whereas passenger numbers are expected to double over the next 15 years in the European Union, leading to a negative impact on the environment which must be limited,
- H. whereas ICAO is expected to agree new noise certification standards and associated measures in January 2001 and to establish the global parameters for new market-based options, including emission charges,
- I. whereas other efficient means of surface public transport must be treated as an alternative to air transport over shorter distances,
- J. having regard to the current work of ICAO/CAEP to reduce the impact of aircraft noise and gaseous emissions, and having regard to the 33rd ICAO Assembly to be held in 2001, which will aim to introduce stricter worldwide aircraft noise standards,
- K. hoping that, for this Assembly, in matters of EU competence Member States will give the Commission a clear negotiating mandate which reflects the Treaty obligation to integrate environmental protection requirements into all policies,

General

- 1. Welcomes this important initiative from the Commission; considers that there has been a major policy gap and so believes that the introduction of appropriate policy measures is urgently needed;
- 2. Considers it essential that targets are set and dates introduced, in order to enable the aircraft industry, airlines, and users to adapt to legislative measures in good time;
- 3. Considers that one of the factors which separates air transport from other modes is that it requires common world wide business practices and international regulatory framework;
- 4. Calls on the Commission to put forward an EU strategy to feed into the ICAO process before the CAEP 5 meeting in January 2001;
- 5. Welcomes the introduction in May 2000 of the Working Radiation Directive, for airline crew, which is now being implemented by all EU airlines;

Aircraft noise

- 6. Considers that the Community should support and strengthen the ICAO process of revising noise stringency levels in order to meet as far as possible the particular needs of the densely populated, industrialised EU and to take account of the particular needs of third country airlines from the developing world who operate into the EU; this could include a global system of airport classification agreed under ICAO auspices and therefore calls on the Commission to pursue complementary measures to be implemented if ICAO cannot reach appropriate agreement;
- 7. Welcomes the approach adopted by the Commission of insisting on transitional rules allowing the noisiest categories of Chapter 3 aircraft to be phased out;
- 8. Urges the Commission to develop a common definition of average noise level at ground level, which must serve as a basis for developing noise standards at European airports;
- 9. Recommends setting a new and ambitious time frame for phasing out aircraft within a 5d BA margin of the Chapter 3 threshold and other Chapter 3 aircraft as and when new standards have been formulated;

Thursday 7 September 2000

10. Recommends that to safeguard the health of citizens living near airports, the EU should develop community-wide guideline values taking into account e.g. the WHO guidelines for Community Noise and all sources of environmental noise;
11. Further recommends that the EU adopt Community-wide noise exposure targets that ensure that nobody is exposed to unacceptable noise levels at night; these noise levels should be based on the WHO Guidelines;
12. Asks the Commission to create a Community-wide framework in order to provide member states with the necessary guidelines in order to achieve the targets referred to in paragraphs 7 and 8; considers that a reduction in the noise pollution around airports can best be achieved by a combination of measures;
13. Asks the Commission to develop targets to define the concept of 'noise sensitive airports';
14. Encourages the Community to continue to actively contribute to the work of the ICAO in identifying and evaluating market-based mechanisms and new emission parameters for the climb and cruise phases of flight;

Gaseous emissions

15. Regrets the vague wording adopted by the Commission regarding this issue; and calls on the Commission to define clear objectives for gaseous emissions, particularly in the context of the examination of this issue under the CAEP/5 work programme;
16. Considers that there should be a level playing field between the demands made on international aviation and the demands made of other industrial and transport sectors, and therefore considers that an ambitious but feasible target for Annex 1 (developed) countries would be the same target as that set out for other sectors under the Kyoto Protocol;

Air traffic management

17. Asks the Commission to develop a new policy framework to allow slot allocation also to be linked to the environmental performance of aircraft and operations, including the prioritisation of slot allocation for journeys where high speed rail alternatives do not exist;
18. Supports the current efforts of the Commission to re-structure Air Traffic Management in Europe since, according to the IPCC Report, ATM improvements could help to reduce fuel burn by 6 to 12 %;
19. Calls on the Member States to adopt the necessary measures to develop a coherent airports policy, seeking to create complementarity between regional and national airports;

Kerosene tax

20. Considers it necessary, for reasons of environmental policy, to introduce a kerosene tax on all routes departing from the EU (paragraph 26, Option A), if international and/or bilateral rules permit this; the Commission should investigate the introduction of such a measure, only if it is proven that such a solution is technically feasible, economically reasonable and environmentally beneficial; encourages cooperation between the Member States and the Commission, in their discussions on this subject within the ICAO framework;

Thursday 7 September 2000

Environmental charges

21. Considers that if international agreement is not reached on a kerosene tax, or on other economic instruments to ensure sufficient environmental improvements, a Community-wide environmental charge should be introduced, based on the polluter pays principle, and therefore supports the Commission's proposed actions in this field; such a charge should ensure a fair competition between modes of transport; while the charge would be introduced at EU level, the revenue should be returned to member states to be invested in further reducing the environmental damage caused by aviation;

Direct Subsidies

22. Calls on the Commission urgently to examine the economic impact of the zero-rating of VAT on air tickets, kerosene, and the purchase of new aircraft, as well as the exemption of kerosene from excise duty, and direct subsidies to airports and airlines, in the context of ensuring fair competition between modes, and to bring forward a report by the end of 2000;

Land-use Planning

23. Supports the Commission proposal to establish, in close cooperation with Member States, recommended best practice on land-use planning in the vicinity of airports;

24. Asks the Commission to develop guidelines on land-use planning in order to standardise national legislation and to co-ordinate Member States' action; Member States should prevent the development of urbanisation in the vicinity of airports so as to safeguard citizens' health and airports' long-term expansion opportunities;

Traffic reduction and modal shift

25. Notes the Commission's recognition that encouraging a modal shift from air travel to rail alternatives may be an important part of the strategy to reduce the environmental problems associated with aviation; asks the Commission to produce a report by the end of 2001 setting out the scale of likely environmental gains under a range of different scenarios;

Environmental auditing

26. Urges the aviation sector, in cooperation with the Commission, to examine in greater detail the legality and practicability of awarding an environmental performance certification mark, along the lines of EMAS, which can be used by aircraft manufacturers, airlines, airports and the tourist industry to promote their performance;

Concluding remarks

27. Calls on the Member States to give the Commission a clear mandate for negotiation for the 33rd ICAO Assembly in 2001, so environmental and transport policy objectives are able to be vigorously pursued and carried through at the assembly;

28. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the Governments of the Member States.

10. Community support plan to combat doping in sport

A5-0203/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission communication to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions on Community support plan to combat doping in sport (COM(1999) 643 – C5-0087/2000 – 2000/2056(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication (COM(1999) 643 – C5-0087/2000),
 - having regard to Article 152(1) of the EC Treaty,
 - having regard to Council Directive 94/33/EC of 22 June 1994 on the protection of young people at work⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to Declaration No. 29 on sport, appended to the Amsterdam Treaty,
 - having regard to the Council of Europe Anti-Doping Convention adopted on 16 November 1989,
 - having regard to its Resolution of 13 June 1997 on the role of the European Union in the field of sport⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions on the 'European Model of Sport'⁽³⁾,
 - having regard to the opinion of the Economic and Social Committee⁽⁴⁾,
 - having regard to the Presidency conclusions of the Vienna Council of 11/12 December 1998 on doping in sport,
 - having regard to its Resolution of 17 December 1998 on urgent measures to be taken against doping in sport⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the European Union Conference on Sport in Olympia in May 1999,
 - having regard to the Report from the Commission to the European Council with a view to safeguarding current sports structures and maintaining the social function of sport within the Community framework – the Helsinki Report on Sport (COM(1999) 644),
 - having regard to Rule 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the opinion of the Committee on the Environment, Public Health and Consumer Policy (A5-0203/2000),
- A. whereas more than half of the citizens of the European Union participate in sporting activities on a regular basis and whereas almost two million teachers, instructors and voluntary workers spend their working or leisure time organising sporting activities,
- B. whereas, in addition to its economic significance, professional and amateur sport has an important educational and social function, fostering a spirit of friendship, solidarity, and fair play, and helping to overcome xenophobia and racism,
- C. whereas sportsmen and women set an example to many Europeans, especially the young,

Thursday 7 September 2000

- D. whereas the over-commercialisation of sport, overcrowding of the sporting calendar, and the growing physical and mental demands made of sportsmen and women, have led to ever-greater competitive pressure,
- E. whereas there is evidence not only that such pressure is damaging to sportsmen and women's health but also that this pressure causes an increase in the use of doping products,
- F. whereas the use of doping products by sportsmen and women contradicts the spirit of honesty, solidarity and fair play which should characterise sport,
- G. whereas the use or consumption of doping products by sportsmen and women can damage their health and cancel out the positive health benefits of participating in sport,
- H. whereas more and more of the time sportsmen and women are travelling and competing within the EU and outside their Member States,
- I. whereas most Member States have their own legislation to combat doping,
- J. whereas this is a supra-national problem, which cannot be overcome by states acting in isolation,
- K. whereas, while there is no legal base in the Treaty for Community action in the field of sport as such, a host of Community policies and instruments at European and national level can be mobilised in the fight against doping,
- L. whereas commercial sponsors also have an interest in avoiding doping,
- M. whereas the pharmaceutical industry cares about the health of sportsmen and women,
- N. whereas it should be acknowledged that not all doping is intentional and whereas it does not always necessarily enhance the performance of the sportsman or woman,
- O. whereas doping exists not only in professional sports and at professional level, but also in amateur sports and at amateur level,
- P. whereas one of the principles protected by the charter on human rights is that of defence, a principle based on the right to the presumption of innocence and to the principle of contradiction,
- Q. whereas a sportsman or woman must have the right to prove his or her innocence in the same way as he or she may in respect of any other punishable act inside or outside sport;
- R. whereas the protection and the confidentiality of data relating to the taking of samples and the conduct of disciplinary proceedings must be increased under Community law in order to protect sportsmen and women's honour and their right to privacy;
- S. whereas just as there is a very high level of protection for the work of children in employment, so too should the health of child and adolescent sportsmen and women be protected;
1. Calls for the inclusion in the Treaty of a legal basis for Community action in the field of sport;
 2. Recalls that recent rulings by the European Court of Justice have confirmed that sport does have specific characteristics which allow special treatment in the application of EU law, making obvious the need for a legal basis for sport in the Treaty;
 3. Welcomes the Commission's Communication and the proposed action set out in it, but calls on it to analyse the causes of doping in different sports and at different levels;

Thursday 7 September 2000

4. Urges the Commission and the Member States to give careful consideration to possible measures to combat doping in sport outlined by the European Group on Ethics;
5. Calls on the multinationals associated with sport to reinvest a proportion of their profits in the fight against doping, in whichever ways they consider most appropriate;
6. Calls on the Commission to urge the IOC to review the list of doping substances periodically, and at least once a year;
7. Notes that the use of performance-enhancing drugs is not confined to professional sports but is also very common in amateur sports (e.g. fitness, bodybuilding, etc.), which makes the use of performance-enhancing drugs a public health problem, a new form of drug dependency and a serious threat to the ethics of sport;
8. Urges the Commission, therefore, to give in-depth consideration to the problem of the use of performance-enhancing drugs as part of the new Public Health Action Programme;
9. Calls on the Commission, within the Fifth framework programme, to intensify research into doping substances, detection methods, the impact of the use of doping substances on health, and the limits of natural hormones produced by the human body;
10. Welcomes the Commission's plan to mobilise the European Union's education, vocational training and youth programmes to inform young people about the hazards of doping products, but urges the Commission to undertake with well-known athletes an information campaign based on setting good examples in all fields of sport;
11. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to step up scientific research into the mechanisms underlying doping itself, with a view to taking preventive action against it;
12. Takes the view that information policy, particularly in the media, should inform the general public about athletes' training programmes, and not simply the results of sports competitions, and should provide useful information about the adverse effects that the taking of performance-enhancing drugs may have on health;
13. Welcomes the intention of the Directorate-General for Education and Culture to support an information and awareness-raising campaign about doping in sport;
14. Notes that the production and distribution of performance-enhancing drugs has become an international business run by well-organised criminal networks;
15. Welcomes the Commission's plan to use Community programmes to improve police and judicial cooperation between Member States;
16. Urges the Commission to make full use of its powers under Article 12 of Council Directive 92/27/EEC to explore the feasibility of placing on the packaging of pharmaceutical products a standard 'traffic-light' logo aimed at sportsmen and women and accompanied by the five Olympic rings, which would indicate at a glance whether a particular product would definitely/might/definitely not lead to a sportsman or woman testing positive in an anti-doping test;
17. Calls on the Commission, using Article 152 of the Treaty, to strive for greater coordination of policies on doping in sport; and to put forward a proposal for a Council recommendation on prevention of doping in sport, especially amateur sport;
18. Welcomes the provision under budget line B3-2020 of funding for pilot projects to assist campaigns to combat doping products in sport in Europe;

Thursday 7 September 2000

19. Calls on the Commission, under Article 152 of the Treaty, to include in its information campaigns about the dangers of doping products information about the possible harmful effects of 'nearly-doping products', as well as discouraging department stores, sports shops, gymnasia, etc. from selling these products;
20. Calls on the Commission to put pressure on sports organisations to introduce 'gender mainstreaming' and insist on the involvement of women in all decision-making processes and the anti-doping agency;

 - having regard to the report by the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the opinion of the Committee on Legal Affairs and the Internal Market (A5-0208/2000),
- A. whereas sport is an ideal platform for social inclusion and cohesion and as such should be an integral part of existing Community programmes, which should make use of it to combat social exclusion, violence, inequalities, racism and xenophobia,
- B. whereas there is widespread concern regarding the reprehensible outbreaks of forms of violence, racism and xenophobia at sporting events,
- C. whereas Member States and sporting organisations, in organising sporting events, have a duty to provide their citizens with protection in an area of freedom and justice,
- D. having regard to the increase in doping and the alarming infiltration of this sector by organised crime, with serious consequences as a result of the ongoing legislative vacuum; having regard to the increasing abuse of pharmaceutical products which is seriously damaging the health of sportspersons; having regard to the need for European sporting authorities to draw up a common set of rules to be applied to the issue of doping,
- E. having regard to the economic imbalances in professional sport between clubs and athletes, not to mention the problems in training young athletes, which have arisen in the wake of the Bosman judgment,
- F. whereas professional sport and the marketing of professional sport have become a business; whereas, therefore, competition law and the four freedoms must apply to the commercial aspects of sport; whereas, further, in applying the Treaty rules to sport, the special characteristics of the sector must be taken into account, as already indicated by the European Court of Justice,
- G. having regard to the position adopted by the Commission, and Parliament's aforementioned resolution of 22 May 1996, concerning the granting of exclusive broadcasting rights to non-encrypted channels, with a view to enabling the majority of the population to participate in sporting events of general interest,
- H. having regard to the enormous expansion of sport in economic terms, which has led to an increase in the value of television rights, sponsorships, merchandising and all other ancillary activities, and to the multiplication of international competitions, with a consequent increase in jobs in the sector,
- I. whereas the pursuit of sports-related economic activities by both organisations and individuals is subject to the rules of the EC Treaty and Community law,
- J. whereas sport can be of enormous benefit to all social groups, both educationally and in terms of social integration, and this should be reflected in national and Community policies,
- K. whereas the practice of sport has very positive implications for the development of European health policy,
- L. whereas the work and status of sportspersons should be properly appreciated and safeguarded and taken into consideration by Member States and by national and international sporting federations,

Thursday 7 September 2000

- M. having regard to the importance of establishing, in each Member State, a sporting federation to supervise the growth of sport amongst the disabled and the less advantaged sections of the population and to encourage them to become involved in it; whereas greater attention should be paid to sporting programmes and events geared to the needs of such groups,
1.  2. Underlines the need for the Community to take account of the autonomy and competence of recognised sports bodies both at national and international level with regard to the governance and organisation of the sports concerned;
 3. Calls on the Commission to involve the existing work of the European Network of Sport Sciences in Higher Education (ENSSHE) and the subjects of vocational training and qualifications for sportspersons in the EU's Socrates and Leonardo Programmes, together with the reintegration of sportspersons in the labour market when their sporting activity comes to an end;
 4. Welcomes the Commission's willingness in the Helsinki Report to come forward with accompanying, coordination or interpretation measures at Community level to strengthen the legal certainty of sport and its specific social and educational functions;
 5. Underlines the importance of sports education at school; calls on the Member States to attach due importance to the teaching of physical education in the curricula of all schools and to encourage young people to take part in amateur sports;
 6. Takes it for granted that the Commission acknowledges the principles laid down in the Bosman judgment as firmly established ones, and therefore calls on the Commission to support structures of self-government within sport that promote solidarity and the training and development of players, as much in smaller local clubs as in great internationally recognised ones; reminds the Commission that such structures and aims are fully compatible with the opinion of the EC Court of Justice in the Bosman case; and calls on the Commission to refrain from taking measures or putting forward proposals which might call into question the principle established in the Bosman judgement;
 7. Calls on the sports federations to revitalise their internal democracy and take account of the different needs and management methods of professional and amateur sport, by setting up the appropriate representative structures;

Expresses its respect for those persons who perform voluntary work in sports clubs set up to offer sport as a leisure activity, in particular work with young people and minority groups in sports and society; reiterates the need for special coordination to be given to the particular characteristics of amateur sport;

Thursday 7 September 2000

15. Warns about the major differences which may emerge between elite sport and smaller sports clubs and between professional and amateur sport; points out that, in both these cases, the one cannot do without the other, so that efforts must be made to ensure that mutual support continues to be provided;
16. Calls for the establishment of sporting associations to be encouraged, wherever this is intended to support amateur sport and show solidarity with the less-advantaged sections of society;
17. Acknowledges the European Communities' framework for sport, but asks the Commission, in accordance with the spirit of declaration 29 in the Amsterdam Treaty annex, to take due account of the national and regional character of sports structures and the historic tradition of sport in Europe;

Calls for the Member States and sporting federations to protect sportsmen and women under the age of eighteen and to envisage strict arrangements for their care and education which might even include a ban on any commercial transactions involving them and to conduct a study into the 'trade' in young sportsmen and women, focusing in particular on the effect on young athletes under the age of 18 who enter into professional sport;
20. Urges the International Gymnastic Federation not to encourage extreme thinness, by penalising gymnasts and other sportspersons;
21. Calls on sporting bodies to establish principles whereby all young athletes who are being trained to participate in high-level sporting competitions also receive an education and vocational training to complement their sports training; calls on the Commission to incorporate these aspects in the Socrates and Leonardo Programmes;
22. Reminds sporting bodies and the Member States of the European Union's objective to provide its citizens with protection in the areas of freedom and safety and asks the responsible authorities to step up their cooperation in order to prevent violence at sporting events;
23. Calls on the Member States to transpose the Council recommendation of 22 April 1996 relating to the prevention and control of disturbances in connection with football matches into their national legislations as soon as possible and to adopt the tightest possible sanctions against those responsible, in accordance with the handbook for international police cooperation approved by the Council resolution of 21 June 1999 ⁽¹⁾;
24. Calls on the Member States to adopt practical measures in their legislation to encourage private investment in sport;
25. Urges those Member States that have not yet done so to establish a sporting federation for disabled people, both the physically disabled and those with learning difficulties, recognised and assisted by official sporting bodies; calls on the Member States to give particular attention to the development, funding and promotion of sport for disabled people and to safeguard their special needs as a part of sports culture and to provide exchanges between disabled and non-disabled sportspersons; and calls on the Member States and the Commission to encourage sport and physical activities for people with disabilities through the Community programmes;

Thursday 7 September 2000

27. Calls for television rights to be granted in compliance with the antitrust law and to companies which take responsibility for the risks involved in preparing the sporting event; calls also for transparency in the granting of television rights;
28. Draws attention to the need to comply with Community law, in view of the enormous economic importance of the manufacture of sports articles and clothing, and — particularly in the area of development cooperation — the need to prevent imports into the Community of products whose manufacture does not comply with ILO and environmental standards;
29. Calls on the Commission, bearing in mind the conclusions of the Portuguese Presidency and the European Council of Santa Maria da Feira, to submit a Communication on the integration of sport into the various Community policies and ways of acknowledging the work of the sports organisations, the extent of sports education in the curricula of the individual Member States, and sexual harassment and abuse in sport;
30. Insists that consumers must be allowed a fair share of the resulting benefit, and in particular that European citizens should not be deprived of the opportunity to view important sporting events live through public service broadcasting, or through other channels that are free at the point of delivery; therefore calls on the Commission to give favourable consideration to practices which bring this about and, pursuant to Article 81(3) of the EC Treaty, to clear the way for some exemptions from competition rules;
31. Reiterates the call it issued to all the Member States in paragraph 4 of its aforementioned resolution of 13 June 1997 to make use of the right provided for in Article 3a of the television directive in order to ensure that a substantial proportion of the public is not deprived of the possibility of following events of major social importance because the latter are broadcast on an exclusive basis;

12. Nuclear submarine accidentsB5-0704, 0709, 0717, 0725, 0736 and 0738/2000*European Parliament resolution on the sinking of the Kursk submarine and the danger of nuclear pollution in the former Soviet UnionThe European Parliament,*

- having regard to its previous resolutions on the danger of nuclear pollution in the successor states of the former Soviet Union,

- B. concerned about possible radiation leaks from the nuclear-powered submarine,
- C. highly aware of the ecological danger posed by at least 110 laid-up nuclear submarines with 135 nuclear reactors with spent fuel in 72 submarines whose reactors could poison the Arctic with radioactive material,

Thursday 7 September 2000

- D. regretting the fact that Russia's President Putin and the Russian Government gave no information about the accident for four days and subsequently withheld many facts, which compromised an international rescue operation and also gave a wrong impression of the nuclear threat to the Barents Sea and its European neighbours,
- E. deeply worried by the ongoing charges against Alexander Nikitin, an ex-naval officer and former prisoner of conscience who denounced the ecological threat to the region and was subsequently accused of leaking state secrets; and by the harassment of environmental scientists and the media,
1. Shares the deep mourning of the families of the victims, who suffered not only from the disaster itself but also from the way the Russian authorities dealt with it, as a result of their poor information policy;
 2. Thanks the Russian, British and Norwegian experts who took great risks in trying to rescue the crew of the Kursk;
 3. Calls upon the Russian authorities to take seriously the ecological danger posed by disused nuclear submarines in the region and to lay them up more safely;
 4. Calls upon the Russian authorities to carry out a comprehensive analysis of the wreck, and a proper risk assessment in cooperation with a civilian institution in Russia and international experts before taking the decision to lift the Kursk from the seabed;
 5. Urges the Russian authorities to use all the resources available, including their own specialists on the subject;
 6. Calls upon the Commission to increase aid earmarked for Russia to decommission its ageing nuclear submarine fleet in the wake of the Kursk disaster;
 7. Urges the Commission to do everything it can, in international cooperation and regulatory assistance programmes, to ensure that the Russian spent nuclear fuel facilities do not pose any threat to man or the environment;
 8. Calls on the Commission to participate actively in the work and meetings of the Arctic Council, which provides an ideal forum for coordinated action on issues of this kind in the Arctic region;
 9. Calls upon the Council and Member States, taking into consideration the fact that the EU's budget does not have the necessary funds, to reflect on the possibilities for financing assistance to the former Soviet Union Republics in order to make our common environment safe;

B5-0660, 0711, 0718, 0726, 0734 and 0739/2000

European Parliament resolution on the situation in Burundi

The European Parliament,

- recalling its earlier resolutions on the situation in Burundi,
 - having regard to the statements by the EU Presidency and the President of the European Commission on 29 August 2000,
 - having regard to the peace accord signed in Arusha,
- A. whereas an internal conflict has been raging in Burundi since 1993, in which more than 200 000 people have been killed and over 800 000 people displaced, the majority of them facing famine and disease,
- B. whereas after protracted negotiations and thanks in particular to the relentless efforts of former South African President Nelson Mandela a peace protocol was finally signed in Arusha on 28 August 2000, which represents a new and important step on the way to national reconciliation,
- C. whereas the peace protocol was brokered by Nelson Mandela, and witnessed by a representative of the EU, a number of regional state leaders, and US President Bill Clinton,
- D. whereas all Hutu delegations present and four Tutsi parties signed the protocol, but other hard-line groups did not,
- E. whereas the accord does not make provision for who will govern the country during the transition period,
- F. whereas a minority still maintains control over state institutions, particularly the army,
- G. committed to the democratic principle of a multi-party system,
- H. deeply deploring the fact that the parties could not agree on the procedure for a ceasefire prior to the signing of the protocol and that the fighting continues in the country, the main victims being innocent civilians,
- I. whereas the peace protocol seeks to establish a fairer share of power between the minority Tutsi and the majority Hutu population,
- J. whereas the peace process and national reconciliation must also be based on justice and on prosecution of those responsible for the ethnic violence,
- K. whereas there can be no lasting peace in Burundi without peace in the Great Lakes region and in the Democratic Republic of the Congo,
1. Welcomes the signing of the peace protocol at the Arusha Summit and congratulates President Mandela, the mediation team and the Burundian negotiators for this achievement, which represents an important step forward in the peace process;
 2. Welcomes the announcement of a meeting with a view to signing an eventual ceasefire, which is scheduled for 20 September in Nairobi;

Thursday 7 September 2000

4. Calls on the parties which refused to sign to review their positions and make the vital compromises;
5. Calls upon all Burundians to abandon violence, and in particular calls upon the armed groups to suspend hostilities and join the negotiations;
6. Calls on the neighbouring countries to support the peace process in Burundi by ensuring that their territory is not used in any way to threaten the security of the Burundian people;
7. Stresses that structural aid to Burundi should resume gradually once the following conditions are met: active engagement of the political parties in the peace process and improvements in human rights and in the security situation;
8. Calls for the transition period to be administered collectively with responsibilities being shared within a government of national unity;
9. Calls for free elections to be organised, in accordance with the Arusha agreements;
10. Welcomes the process of closing the Hutu regroupment camps;
11. Points out that a free and responsible press can have a major role to play in the process of peace, reconstruction and national reconciliation;
12. Welcomes the freeing of political prisoners, provided that those who have committed crimes against humanity are held criminally responsible for their actions;
13. Calls for protection to be organised for civilians who are assisting in the return of refugees and guaranteeing free access to humanitarian aid for the people;
14. Considers it vital that an army which is representative of the nation as a whole should be phased in;
15. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, President Mandela, the OAU and the Governments of Burundi, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Tanzania and Uganda.

14. Human rights: Bhutanese refugees in Nepal

B5-0673, 0712, 0719, 0727 and 0740/2000

European Parliament resolution on Bhutanese refugees in Nepal

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its resolution of 14 March 1996 on the plight of Nepali-speaking refugees from Bhutan ⁽¹⁾,
- A. having regard to the visit to Nepal on 21/22 April 2000 by the European Parliament's Delegation for relations with the countries of South Asia and the SAARC, which incorporated an on-the-spot assessment of the continuing plight of the almost 98 000 Bhutanese refugees who are accommodated in seven refugee camps in eastern Nepal,
- B. recalling that both Bhutan and Nepal have given assurances to the European Parliament that bilateral negotiations would be speedily concluded and that actual verification in the camps would begin by July 2000,

Thursday 7 September 2000

- C. aware that the growth in the population of Bhutanese refugees, which is a natural process, means a demand for resources including additional huts and associated facilities in already cramped camps and that, similarly, food and non-food supply is another area in which demand continues to rise each year,
- D. conscious of the vital role played by the World Food Programme (WFP) and the UNHCR, who are assisting the refugees, and that the European Union and other donors have provided funds for the two organisations, and welcoming the fact that the EU has also been supporting the refugees and refugee-affected areas through NGOs,
- E. stressing that, while the EU remains one of the major donors, both the UNHCR and the WFP are finding it increasingly difficult to raise funds to run the camps and that in recent months the WFP has been facing the real and very serious possibility of a future food shortage, and expressing disquiet, furthermore, that donors are more and more concerned at the lack of progress being made,
- F. welcoming the talks on the problem of the Bhutanese refugees held by the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, Mrs Sadako Ogata, with the Bhutanese and Nepalese authorities during her visit to these countries at the end of April and beginning of May 2000,
1. Reiterates its call to the Governments of Bhutan and Nepal, in cooperation with all other parties involved, to reach an agreement which will allow the early and voluntary repatriation of these Bhutanese refugees to their country of origin;
 2. Regrets the officially instituted and illegal occupation of the homes and lands of those who have been driven out, as this complicates possible future repatriation and makes a just settlement more difficult to achieve;
 3. Welcomes the latest round of bilateral talks between Nepal and Bhutan in Thimphu in May this year; also welcomes the fact that Nepal has accepted the UNHCR compromise on the crucial definition of the 'family' unit for verification purposes and calls on the Bhutanese authorities to accept the UNHCR compromise so that the commitment to field verification for the early and time-bound repatriation of the refugees can begin immediately;
 4. Welcomes the Bhutanese authorities' commitment, given to the UNHCR High Commissioner for Refugees during her visit to Bhutan and Nepal, to resolve the refugee issue and to display the flexibility necessary for an early solution to the problem of Bhutanese refugees in Nepal;
 5. Considers that international donors should make sufficient funds available to permit the running of the camps during the negotiation and verification process and greatly appreciates the direct support for the camps which, so far, has cost USD 92 million, and calls on the donors, furthermore, to insist that the Bhutanese Government facilitate a rapid repatriation of the refugees;
 6. Recognises the tremendous goodwill of Nepal in accepting the refugees who are the victims of arbitrary deprivation of nationality and forcible eviction and who came to Nepal through India, which consistently refuses to help in resolving the repatriation issue by pretending that it is a bilateral issue of concern only to Bhutan and Nepal;
 7. Considers that the Indian authorities should take full account of the humanitarian situation of the Bhutanese refugees in Nepal and should take political initiatives in order to support the solution of the problem, while noting that there are 25 000 Bhutanese refugees in India;
 8. Calls for and encourages all interests, including international donors, to contribute to finding an early and permanent solution bearing in mind that almost 98 000 people have been denied their human rights for the last eight years;
 9. Welcomes the release of Mr Tek Nath Rizal and 200 other prisoners as a positive indication of Bhutanese goodwill but at the same time regrets the lack of progress in other areas;

Thursday 7 September 2000

10. Welcomes the positive steps in defining the database and procedural aspects for the verification process and points to the important role that can be played by the UNHCR in facilitating the practical implementation of the process;

11. Notes with satisfaction that the Prime Ministers of Bhutan and Nepal will meet very soon in New York and will also meet Mrs Ogata, High Commissioner for Refugees; hopes that these meetings will produce a final political settlement of this long-standing question; if not, calls on the Council to initiate meaningful discussions and consider financial support aimed at encouraging all parties involved to take the necessary political initiatives which will result in a final and durable solution at the highest political level;

12. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments of the Member States, the governments of Bhutan, Nepal and India, the secretariat of the SAARC, the WFP and the UNHCR.

15. Human rights: Burma

B5-0716, 0720, 0728 and 0741/2000

European Parliament resolution on Burma

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on Burma, in particular its resolutions of 16 September 1999⁽¹⁾ and 18 May 2000⁽²⁾,
- having regard to the two declarations of the EU Presidency on Burma (25 August 2000 and 2 September 2000),
- A. whereas it is 10 years since the National League for Democracy (NLD) won 392 of the 485 seats in Parliament in free and fair elections and whereas the elected Parliament, which is now represented by the CRPP, has still not been permitted to convene,
- B. whereas Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi has been trying for many years to restore democracy through peaceful means and has been awarded the Nobel and Sakharov prizes for her efforts,
- C. whereas in late August Burma's State Peace and Development Council officials barred a NLD delegation including Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi from meeting with NLD staff in Kungyangon,
- D. whereas the NLD members first refused to return to the capital and have lived on the roadside for several days, followed by their forced return to the capital, where according to Amnesty International Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi and her colleagues have been held incommunicado since 2 September,
- E. whereas at the end of March the governing body of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) documented the SPDC's maintenance of a system of forced labour without any sign of improvement, and adopted a resolution calling for sanctions against the Burmese Government,
- F. whereas the ILO Conference in Geneva voted on 14 June 2000 by 257 votes to 41, with 31 abstentions, to approve these measures against Burma but gave Burma four months to prove its willingness to abolish forced labour,

- G. whereas the regime agreed to the terms of an ILO mission to the country, which delays the implementation of these measures until 30 November 2000, when they will apply unless the regime demonstrates that it intends to fulfil in full the recommendations of the ILO's governing body,
- H. noting that the EU's efforts towards improving the situation through a dialogue with the Burmese authorities have remained unsuccessful, and regretting the recent readmittance of Burma to ASEAN and EU-ASEAN meetings,
- I. noting that the Council has still not responded to Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi's request to implement economic sanctions and has not taken any significant economic measures against the SPDC, and that the USA has already halted new investment in Burma,

1. Strongly condemns the violation of the freedom of movement, expression and assembly of the Secretary General of the National League for Democracy, the intimidation against her, the threats to the NLD's activities, her de facto house arrest since her return, and the fact that Western diplomats have not yet been allowed access to her;
 2. Requests that the Burmese authorities immediately allow freedom of movement for Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi and all citizens of Burma;
 3. Urges the Commission and the CFSP High Representative to make a determined effort to visit Mrs Aung San Suu Kyi;
 4. Calls on the SPDC to end its widespread practice of forced labour, which has been described by the ILO as a 'crime against humanity', and the associated 'human rights violations';
 5. Calls on the ILO to impose sanctions in November unless and until forced labour has been abolished in Burma;
 6. Urges the Burmese authorities to restore democracy and engage in dialogue with the opposition that could lead to national reconciliation in a united and democratic state;
 7. Calls on the governments of the ASEAN countries to persuade the SPDC to lift restrictions on the country's most prominent opposition leader and on the NLD members;
 8. Reiterates its call on the Commission and the Council, in cooperation with the USA, to implement economic sanctions against Burma and its exclusion from EU-ASEAN meetings, such as the December EU-ASEAN Foreign Ministers' meeting, while making every effort within the UN to isolate Burma until democracy has been restored;

16. Human rights: Violations of human rights in Colombia, particularly the case of Fr. Brendan Forde

B5-0664, 0713, 0721, 0729, 0735 and 0742/2000

European Parliament resolution on the human rights situation in Colombia and the threat to the life of Fr. Brendan Forde and his community

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on Colombia,
 - having regard to the latest reports on Colombia by the UN Commission on Human Rights,
- A. having regard to the implementation of the peace process, and reiterating the firm support of the European Union for the efforts concerning it, in order to reach an agreement among all parts involved in the conflict,
- B. deeply concerned about a pattern of increased political violence in Colombia,
- C. whereas the Peace Communities in the Uraba Region have declared themselves to be neutral in the political conflict in Colombia between guerrilla, paramilitary groups and military forces; whereas, however, the Peace Community of La Unión and the Inter-Congregational Commission of Justice and Peace, including the Irish Franciscan Father Brendan Forde, have continued receiving death threats if they do not leave the area,
- D. whereas the civilian population is defenceless against the violence,
1. Reiterates its support for a peaceful solution to the Colombian conflict and for the processes of dialogue and peace negotiations between the Government of Colombia and the FARC and ELN guerrilla groups;
 2. Firmly condemns the violence, from whatever quarters it originates, and especially the massacre of 8 July 2000 in the Peace Community of La Unión in the Uraba region, and expresses its solidarity with all those working on behalf of the rule of law in Colombia;
 3. Calls on the Colombian authorities to improve their protection of human rights organisations and to support their work wherever they can, and in particular to take immediate action to respect the lives and rights of the members of the Peace Communities, especially in La Unión, and the members of the Inter-Congregational Commission of Justice and Peace, including the Irish Franciscan priest Brendan Forde;
 4. Welcomes the decision taken by the Colombian Government to establish and be part of a commission to investigate the latest massacre in La Unión, the third in this community since 1997, in order to bring to justice those responsible for it;
 5. Reiterates its rejection of the use of arms as a means to solve the problems of Colombian society, and urges all sides to continue the peace negotiations which President Andrés Pastrana is conducting with the FARC and ELN guerrillas;
 6. Calls on the Commission and the Member States, working closely with the UN Human Rights Office, to monitor human rights developments in Colombia and to keep Parliament informed;
 7. Undertakes to encourage the EU to increase its support for the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights' office in Colombia;

Thursday 7 September 2000

8. Considers that the EU must persist with a specific non-military strategy to fight drug trafficking, in such a way that responsibility for combating this evil is not purely a matter for the poorer countries that produce narcotics and there is, rather, cooperation on the part of those countries that receive drugs, given that the international narcotics trade is only possible with the participation of both groups of countries;

9. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the Colombian Government and the authorities of the Peace Community of La Unión/San José de Apartado.

 - C. whereas the kidnapers are asking for their leader Brigadier Bombblast to be released in exchange for the release of the kidnapped soldiers,
 - D. whereas there are precedents for the kidnapping of United Nations Unamsil soldiers or staff, notably the kidnapping of 400 UN employees last May,
 - E. having regard to the Lomé agreements of July 1999, which have unfortunately not been respected, providing for the disarming of all non-governmental forces,
 - F. whereas the British presence has prevented a fresh murderous attack by the rebels on the capital, Freetown,
 - G. whereas the government in Sierra Leone has rejected the demands of the militiamen and refuses to enter into negotiations,
 - H. whereas a peaceful solution for Sierra Leone can be found only through genuine regional cooperation and fighting the diamond smuggling, mostly controlled by the RUF in eastern provinces with connections in neighbouring countries,
 - I. welcoming the statements made after this most recent kidnapping by the former leader of the AFRC and close associate of the West Side Boys, Johnny Paul Koroma, who called for the release of the British soldiers as soon as possible and distanced himself from the militiamen's demands,
 - 1. Demands the immediate, unconditional release of the kidnapped British soldiers by the West Side Boys militiamen, voices its solidarity with the remaining kidnapped British soldiers and their families, and fervently hopes that they will be released in the near future;

Thursday 7 September 2000

3. Urges the Council to continue its efforts to strengthen the peace process in Sierra Leone, despite the many difficulties being encountered, by supporting the action by British forces in the area and taking measures to supplement their activities;

- having regard to its previous resolutions on the situation in Turkey and, in particular, those concerning the Turkish bombardment of northern Iraq,
- A. whereas Turkey has ratified the European Convention on the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms and the International Convention against Torture,
 - B. whereas the European Council meeting in Helsinki in December 1999 conferred on Turkey the status of a candidate country,
 - C. whereas the Turkish army bombarded villages in the Kendakor region of northern Iraq on 15 August 2000, claiming the lives of scores of civilians and wounding dozens of others,
 - D. whereas a delegation of the Turkish Human Rights Association wishing to examine the effects of the recent bombardment has not received authorisation to visit the area concerned,
 - E. whereas the Turkish army's bombardment of Kurdish villages in northern Iraq constitutes a violation of the territorial integrity of Iraq and of international law,
 - F. whereas Turkey, as an EU candidate country, has pledged itself to fulfil the Copenhagen criteria,
1. Expresses its condolences to the families of the victims of the Turkish bombardment of northern Iraq on 15 August 2000;
 2. Calls for respect for the international borders of all countries in the region and, therefore, condemns all Turkish incursions into Iraqi territory as contrary to international law;

 4. Calls on the Member States to comply with the Code of Conduct on arms exports in the case of Turkey as well;
 5. Reaffirms its belief that only a political and peaceful settlement of the 'Kurdish question', which must include remedying the underdevelopment of the south-eastern regions of Turkey, can contribute to the stabilisation and development of the region;

Thursday 7 September 2000

6. Calls on the Council and the Commission to stress that only respect for human rights, the rule of law and international law will enable Turkey to continue to claim the status of a candidate country for accession to the European Union;
 7. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the Turkish Government and the Turkish Parliament.

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission communication on nuclear sector-related activities for the applicant countries of Central and Eastern Europe and the New Independent States (COM(1998) 134 — C4-0314/1998),
 - having regard to the conclusions of the Council on nuclear safety in connection with enlargement of the European Union, dated 7 December 1998,
 - having regard to Special Report No 25/98 of the Court of Auditors concerning operations undertaken in the European Union in the field of nuclear safety in Central and Eastern Europe (CEEC) and in the New Independent States (NIS) (1990 to 1997 period) ⁽¹⁾,

 - C. whereas the reactor was originally Soviet-designed of the VVER 1000 type and has been transformed by a BNFL subsidiary, the US firm Westinghouse,
 - D. whereas this decision to put Temelín on the grid is causing considerable concern among the population of the Czech Republic and neighbouring countries,
 - E. whereas environmental impact assessments concerning the structural modifications of the nuclear power plant in Temelín have, according to some Czech sources, not been fully carried out,
 - F. whereas the activation of block 1 of the nuclear power plant in Temelín before the regular completion of the above-mentioned assessment procedures renders this important instrument meaningless,
 - G. whereas the Czech and international public has not yet been informed in detail about safety standards at Temelín, over which there remain serious doubts,
 - H. whereas in order to protect Europe's population, the highest nuclear safety standards are necessary,

 4. Calls on the Parliament of the Czech Republic to ratify rapidly the Espoo Convention which guarantees the rights of citizens of neighbouring countries within the framework of the environmental assessment procedures with regard to nuclear power plants, and to consider voluntarily applying the requirements of this convention forthwith;

 - having regard to Regulation (EEC) No 2158/92 on protection of the Community's forests against fire and the proposal for amendment currently under negotiation (COM(1999) 379 and its position of 6 July 2000 thereon⁽¹⁾),
 - having regard to its resolutions of 20 January 2000⁽²⁾ and 14 April 2000⁽³⁾ on the consequences of the storms in the winter of 1999 for the forestry industry and the environment,
- A. having regard to the large number of fires which have devastated large areas in Southern Europe, killing several people and burning more than 100 000 hectares of forests and cultivated land, a large number of stock farms and other holdings, and causing wholesale destructions, including serious damages to dwellings and infrastructures,
- B. having regard to the disastrous consequences for the economies of the regions where the fires occurred;

Thursday 7 September 2000

- C. having regard to the importance of Mediterranean forests to the regional economy, regional planning, the living environment and the maintenance of biological diversity and the fact that the surface area destroyed by fire greatly exceeds the area reforested each year, having an extremely serious economic, social and ecological impact,
- D. having regard to the absence of any Community forestry policy and the amendments to Regulation (EEC) No 2158/92, which provide for no more than mere monitoring of the state of forests,
- E. whereas the Member States, especially the poorer ones, are not able to confront natural disasters of this magnitude and need solidarity and assistance,
1. Expresses its sympathy and solidarity to the families of the deceased and to the inhabitants of the stricken areas and pays tribute to the promptness and dedication of the firefighters and voluntary workers, who tirelessly fought the fires, often at the risk of their lives;
 2. Strongly condemns the criminal behaviour of people using fire to benefit from insurance and compensation schemes thus destroying land and putting citizens and firefighters' lives in danger;
 3. Calls on the Commission and national/regional authorities to adapt the relevant legislation in order to ensure that agricultural subsidised schemes do not lead to perverse effects giving incentives to land destruction;
 4. Asks the Commission and the Member States concerned by forest fires to adapt the 2000-2006 regional development programmes financed by the Structural Funds in order to tackle the issues related to forest fires with preventive, restoration and reforestation measures, in particular in the Mediterranean and other South European areas;
 5. Asks the Commission and the Member States to use the 2000-2006 Community Initiative Interreg to develop actions in the field of spacial planning and sustainable land use management in the areas affected by forest fires;
 6. Calls for the policy of reforestation of damaged areas to be conducted showing due respect for local plant species and the diversity of ecosystems, and emphasises once again that special attention should be given to the restoration of rural landscapes; stresses that efforts aimed at introducing ecological management of resources should ensure that the potential of any given area, including its agro-sylvo-pastoral potential, is matched with appropriate activities, which can revitalise the area by providing alternative forms of sustainable development; points out that the existence of such activities in forestry areas can help with surveillance and act as a deterrent against the starting of fires, whether deliberate or accidental;
 7. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to take all the necessary initiatives and measures to introduce forest registers in countries where they do not exist, thereby contributing to the protection, development, ecological recovery and productive exploitation of forests in these countries and calls on the Member States to combat property speculation with a view to protecting and reforesting devastated areas;
 8. Calls for the establishment of inventories of economic activities using up space and for measures to identify techniques for making the best possible use thereof and for preventing fire risks, as well as the compilation of geographical databases enabling a more effective approach to be taken to spatial planning in rural areas and optimum use of natural resources;
 9. Asks the Commission to propose a legislative initiative in order to increase the exchange of technical and investigative information and develop at European level the coordination of police forces specialised in the field of agro-environment and forestry;

Thursday 7 September 2000

10. Calls upon local, regional, national and, when necessary, European institutions to launch joint information campaigns and environmental education programmes in order to raise people's awareness of the risks related to forest fires;
 11. Calls on local authorities to improve forest management and to adopt the necessary land-planning and budgetary measures enabling firefighters to detect and act quickly when a fire starts;
 12. Calls upon the Commission to set up a European Fire Prevention Centre for the systematic study and introduction of new technical methods for the prevention and fighting of forest fires in the Mediterranean and other southern European countries;
 13. Welcomes the initiatives taken recently by the Commission and the Joint Research Centre to develop risk indicators in the Mediterranean Member States, thus enabling firefighters to evaluate possible needs for emergency action, and calls for further initiatives to be taken in this field;
 14. Calls on the Commission to increase resources invested in civil protection at EU level;
 15. Calls on the Commission to promote the creation of European Union specialised mechanisms, which will co-ordinate and actively participate in prevention and intervention during natural and industrial disasters;
 16. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council, the governments of the Member States and the local authorities in the affected areas.

TEXTS ADOPTED1. Situation in Fiji following the coup d'état*B5-0749, 0754, 0758, 0759 and 0760/2000*European Parliament resolution on the situation in FijiThe European Parliament,*

- having regard to its resolution of 6 July 2000 on the situation in Fiji and the Solomon Islands⁽¹⁾,
- having regard to the Communication from the Commission to the Council of 24 July 2000 on the opening of consultations with the Republic of the Fiji Islands under Article 366a of the Lomé Convention (COM(2000) 460),
- A. recalling its condemnation of the suspension of constitutional democratic government in Fiji, following the taking hostage of the Prime Minister of Fiji, Mr Mahendra Chaudry, and 40 members of his Government and of the Parliament of Fiji in May 2000 by George Speight and a group of armed men,
- B. whereas Fiji was the scene of a coup d'état in 1987 led by Colonel Rabuka that resulted in the country's expulsion from the Commonwealth for 10 years and the departure of thousands of Fijian-Indians,
- C. noting that, while Mr Chaudhry is an ethnic Indo-Fijian, 12 of his 18 Cabinet Ministers were ethnic indigenous Fijians and a clear majority of the elected indigenous Fijian MPs supported his coalition,
- D. whereas Fiji's deposed Prime Minister Mahendra Chaudry has met with Members of the European Parliament in Brussels since his release,
- E. noting that, on 27 May 2000, the constitutionally appointed President of Fiji, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, had announced the suspension of the House of Representatives for a period of six months, before stepping aside when the Armed Forces Chief, Commodore Frank Bainamara, assumed executive power and declared martial law, prior to revoking the Constitution on 30 May 2000,
- F. whereas on 3 July 2000 an Interim Civilian Administration was formed in Fiji under a new Prime Minister Laisenia Qarase; whereas the military continues to retain executive authority and is now recruiting an extra two hundred soldiers,
- G. aware that the 'Interim Civilian Administration' led by the new Prime Minister, Laisenia Qarase, who was appointed by the acting President (former Vice-President) Ratu Josefa Iloilo in July, has set in train a new process of constitutional revision, which could postpone a return to democratic parliamentary government by several years;
- H. whereas tensions continue between indigenous Fijians and Indo-Fijians as Fiji's two major Indo-Fijian political parties — the Fiji Labour Party (FLP) and National Federation Party (NFP) — refuse to take part in the interim government until the 1997 multi-racial constitution is restored,
- I. whereas continued uncertainty over the democratic future of Fiji increases the economic crisis in Fiji as unemployment rises and inflation looks set to double by the end of the year 2000,
- J. whereas Fiji benefits from the second largest quota (165 348 tonnes) under the EU's sugar protocol which translates into an estimated financial benefit of around € 55 million, with a further € 35 million in EU aid coming under the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth EDF National Indicative Programmes,

Friday 8 September 2000

- K. highlighting the role played by the ACP-EU Joint Assembly and the European Parliament in seeking a solution to Fiji's crisis,
- L. whereas the Fiji Human Rights Commission estimates that thousands of people still remain displaced on Fiji's two main islands, with over 500 Indo-Fijians in a refugee camp in Lautoka,
- M. whereas the next Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group Meeting in New York on 15 September 2000 must consider applying further sanctions if Fiji does not provide an internationally acceptable plan for the restoration of democracy,
1. Welcomes the release of Mahendra Chaudry and the members of his government and the arrest of George Speight and sixteen aides, along with the decision by Fiji's Chief Magistrate Salesi Temo to keep those accused of treason in prison until the next court hearing on 15 September 2000;
 2. Welcomes the initiative of the Commission in its Communication to enter into consultations with the Fijian authorities, in order to assess the situation in detail and, possibly, to remedy it in order to respect the essential elements referred to in Article 5 of the Lomé Convention;
 3. Urges the Commission in conducting these consultations to take into consideration not only the position of the 'Interim Civilian Administration' but also that of the legitimate and democratically elected government of Mahendra Chaudry, which enjoyed the support of 58 of the 71 members of the now-suspended House of Representatives;
 4. Considers that the Commission, the Council and the EU Member States should impress upon the Fijian authorities the need to respect the deadline set by President Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara for the recall of Parliament by the end of November 2000;
 5. Urges the Presidency of the Council to maintain its strong position of 25 July 2000 and to set a deadline for the restoration of political rights for all elements of Fijian society;
 6. Believes that, in view of recent developments, it may be necessary for a high-level international mediator (or team of mediators) to be appointed to reconcile the positions of the Armed Forces, the Interim Civilian Administration and the legitimate People's Coalition government and that the European Union, which is Fiji's largest trade partner and aid donor, could play an important role here, along with the United Nations and the Commonwealth;
 7. Considers that any further changes to the 1997 Constitution should be undertaken through the procedures for amendment contained in that Constitution, rather than by re-opening the whole question of the constitutional settlement so laboriously negotiated in the last revision process and which had been unanimously adopted by the Great Council of Chiefs and by both Houses of Parliament;
 8. Believes that an exaggerated emphasis on outstanding issues relating to tensions between the indigenous Fijian and the Indo-Fijian communities by members of the 'Interim Civilian Administration' must not be allowed to become a pretext for a further lengthy suspension of democratic parliamentary government in Fiji;
 9. Considers that, if no real progress has been made towards the restoration of constitutional democratic government in Fiji by the end of November 2000, the Commission should give urgent consideration to the imposition of appropriate targeted measures against the present Fijian authorities under Article 366 of the Lomé Convention;
 10. Believes that, if the European Union and other members of the international community do not take firm action to encourage the restoration of constitutional democratic rule in Fiji, this will encourage other similar illegal seizures of power in other parts of the Pacific region and elsewhere, a trend which is already evident;

11. Invites the Commission to report again to Parliament before the end of 2000 on developments in Fiji;
12. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and applicant states, the legitimate government of Fiji as well as the 'Interim Civilian Administration', the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the Secretary-General of the Commonwealth, the ACP-EU Council of Ministers and the ACP-EU Joint Assembly.

2. European Year of Lifelong Learning (1996)

A5-0200/2000

European Parliament resolution on the Commission report to the Council, the European Parliament, the Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions on the implementation, results and overall assessment of the European Year of Lifelong Learning (1996) submitted pursuant to Article 8 of European Parliament and Council Decision 2493/95/EC (COM(1999) 447 – C5-0205/1999 – 1999/2163(COS))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission report (COM(1999) 447 – C5-0205/1999),
 - having regard to European Parliament and Council Decision No 2493/95/EC of 23 October 1995 declaring 1996 the European Year of Lifelong Learning ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the conclusions of the Lisbon and Feira European Councils,
 - having regard to Article 47(1) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Culture, Youth, Education, the Media and Sport and the opinion of the Committee on Employment and Social Affairs A5-0200/2000),
- A. whereas all individuals have a fundamental right to a proper level of education and training in order to develop their potential and achieve economic, social and cultural integration,
 - B. whereas the development of lifelong learning should further the fight against the failure at school level which leads to social marginalisation,
 - C. whereas training should follow the four main lines of action established by the Luxembourg Extraordinary Council, namely improving employability, developing entrepreneurship, encouraging adaptability in businesses and their employees, and strengthening equal opportunities policy,
 - D. whereas the European year is to involve training for women, particularly immigrant women, as members of minority groups with greater needs,
 - E. having regard to the present very rapid growth and development of skills and knowledge in all areas, requiring individuals to adapt constantly to new specialities and demanding the constant adaptation of educational and training systems,
 - F. whereas Europe, if it wishes to be competitive, must promote lifelong training for those working on cutting-edge technologies at the highest academic levels, since they will be responsible for passing on their knowledge and skills to businesses and training centres,

Friday 8 September 2000

- G. whereas the growth in information technology has made it a crucial factor both in the topics and methods of learning and training, and one which should feature strongly in any attempt to further the principle of lifelong learning;
- H. whereas there are still too many rigidities and barriers between education and training, and not enough opportunities to move from one to the other or to experience new forms of teaching on a lifelong basis,
- I. whereas it is necessary to promote improved cooperation at all levels between education and training structures and the world of business,
- J. whereas training should be viewed as an investment and not a matter of current expenditure,
- K. whereas lifelong learning has a far from negligible role to play in the fight against social exclusion,
- L. whereas under the principle of the mutual recognition of diplomas and qualifications institutions and businesses throughout the EU should recognise diplomas issued by and training received in any recognised educational establishment within the European area,
- M. whereas the European Union should encourage the teaching of new technologies in rural and peripheral areas, so as to ensure that equal opportunities are available to all Europe's inhabitants,
- N. whereas lifelong learning should contribute to awareness of the fact that in Europe there is a constant passing-on of knowledge, on the basis of a shared cultural heritage and values,
- O. whereas the European Year should help to integrate policies and initiatives scattered between the various programmes established by the Union with a view to linking the sectors concerned with implementing them in each country, so that all may benefit from a process of mutual enrichment,
1. Observes that training, in all its aspects, should constitute a priority consideration for the Member States when adopting any initiative designed to implement the guidelines laid down for employment policies for 2000;
 2. Stresses that Lifelong Learning is also an efficient way of improving the quality of labour and making work organisations more human and more efficient;
 3. Points out that general education and vocational training are not only of major significance to personal development and to improving one's chances for the future; they also represent a significant factor in the Member States' attempts to meet the challenges of global competition;
 4. Stresses that Lifelong Learning is also crucial in order to secure personal fulfilment, social integration and participation in democratic decision-making processes and can, therefore, not be seen merely in terms of demand and supply;
 5. Stresses that the impact which the year had on businesses and social forces in terms of awareness-raising was positive;
 6. Regrets the slow start of the activities under the European Year and calls upon the Commission to speed up preparatory work and internal procedures in order to allow for a timely launch of Community actions in future;

Friday 8 September 2000

7. Stresses the importance of the necessary attention being paid to the lifelong learning factor in the implementation of the new generation of programmes such as Socrates II and Leonardo;

8. Recalls that the Lisbon and Feira European Councils have called on the Commission and the Member States to define coherent strategies and practical measures to make lifelong education and training accessible to all;

Budgetary aspect

9. Regrets the fact that the budget for the European Year of Lifelong Learning 1996 was only ECU 8,4 million for the fifteen Member States and their three EEA partners;

10. Believes that the fact that the ECU 8,4 million budget was trebled by the cofinancing provided by the participant countries, thus bringing the total budget to ECU 34 million, proves how much interest there is in initiatives of this kind in Europe;

The Commission's report

11. Believes that the general terms in which the request for projects to be submitted was formulated, with no definition of lifelong learning, resulted in an ambiguity which makes it difficult to devise criteria for the quality of the programmes or the aspects which need to be selected when issuing future requests for submissions;

12. Regrets the notorious lack of qualitative data in the Commission's report which makes it virtually impossible to assess whether the programme has been implemented in accordance with the European Parliament's priorities; calls upon the Commission to improve the quality of future evaluation reports;

13. Regrets that the report does not contain sufficient information about examples of good practise, their dissemination at European level and their possible transfer into other Community policies, nor an analysis of the weaknesses of the Community intervention; calls upon the Commission to establish a compendium of projects to be disseminated at European level;

14. Regrets the fact that the report did not offer a basis for a full and detailed assessment of the initiative;

15. Regrets the fact that the report does not evaluate the involvement of democratically elected local and regional bodies;

Requests to the Commission

16. The Commission (following the EU's experience in these matters) and the Member States are urged to define various concepts and aspects of vocational training and lifelong learning more precisely in future programmes, distinguishing between:

- training designed to correct failure at school level, or to provide less-favoured or minority groups with basic teaching,
- training for a first job and for joining the working population, whatever the age of the pupil,
- training for sporting practitioners who, having previously abandoned their studies and/or employment to dedicate themselves full-time to sporting activity, now wish to enter the world of work,
- the acquisition of new qualifications and the adaptation and updating of skills,
- distance learning for adults in areas conducive to both general and cultural education, including new technologies,
- vocational qualifications required for formal and non-formal education,
- lifelong learning for teachers and researchers as a means of updating knowledge and skills;

Friday 8 September 2000

17. Asks that in the requests for submissions the objectives should be clearly defined as regards both designing and assessing the projects, using new technology and the Internet to publish the criteria and including all the projects sought, with those promoting them and the results of the final selection;
18. Observes that under the guidelines laid down by the Luxembourg Extraordinary Council of 1997 training courses should provide adaptable and flexible training which will enable students to develop their entrepreneurial spirit;
19. Calls on the Commission to rapidly implement action programmes and specific measures in the context of a strategy for lifelong education and learning, in coordination with the Socrates II and Leonardo programmes;
20. Urges the Commission and the Member States to devise specific measures to encourage relations between formal education, vocational training and lifelong learning, so as to develop integrated training and open up channels of communication between the various educational models;
21. Asks that the contents of the various professional occupations and training courses be defined, so as to facilitate mutual recognition of professional qualifications and render the labour market more transparent;
22. Asks that lifelong training be applied likewise to the highest levels of excellence and to the university world, as well as to traditional occupations, especially in the crafts sector;
23. Urges the Commission to create European networks of vocational training centres and enterprises with a view to identifying the most frequent technical and professional problems, the content of the key skills required, etc.;
24. Urges the Commission to ensure that the priority projects include vocational training in the sectors where innovation and change are most urgently needed;

Requests to the Member States and the Commission

25. Calls on the Member States to cooperate with the Commission in the collection of data concerning lifelong learning, with a view to ensuring the future comparability of data at European level;
26. Calls on the Member States to extend the information networks so as to ensure wide public access to targeted information on the existing programmes in this field;

27. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Commission, the Council and the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the Republic of Iceland, the Kingdom of Norway and the Principality of Liechtenstein.
