The President made the following statement:

Before I give the floor to Commissioner Dalia Grybauskaitė, I should like to express my amazement that other Commissioners whom we invited to attend are not here. There are various reasons for this. Our invitations were, apparently, sent too late. That may be the case; I will look into the matter.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

However, I would remind the Commission that, under an interinstitutional agreement, the Commission is required to be present at the plenary sessions of the European Parliament. I will look into the matter, and I expect both the Commission and, of course, we in Parliament to honour our commitments under the interinstitutional agreement.

I call on the Commissioner present, Dalia Grybauskaitė, to pass on this message to the Commission. I had, incidentally, also expressed this view in the Conference of Presidents. However, I do not want to make any one-sided accusations here, but I will look into the matter.

Position of the European Parliament adopted at first reading on 23 October 2007 with a view to the adoption of Directive 2008/.../EC of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a framework for Community action to achieve a sustainable use of pesticides

(Text with EEA relevance)

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Articles 152(4) and 175(1) thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission || ,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee ⁽¹⁾,

Having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions ⁽²⁾,

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty ⁽³⁾,

Whereas:

- (1) In line with Articles 2 and 7 of Decision No 1600/2002/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 July 2002 laying down the Sixth Community Environment Action Programme ⁽⁴⁾, a common legal framework for achieving a sustainable use of pesticides should be established, taking account of the precautionary principle.

⁽³⁾ Position of the European Parliament of 23 October 2007.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (2) The measures provided for in this Directive should be complementary to and not affect measures laid down in other related Community legislation, in particular Regulation (EC) No [...] of the European Parliament and of the Council of ... concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market⁽¹⁾, Directive 2000/60/EC of the European Parliament and the Council of 23 October 2000 establishing a framework for Community action in the field of water policy⁽²⁾, Regulation (EC) No 396/2005 of the European Parliament and the Council of 23 February 2005 on maximum residue levels of pesticides in or on food and feed of plant and animal origin ||⁽³⁾, and in the food law provisions pursuant to Regulation (EC) No 178/2002 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 28 January 2002 laying down the general principles and requirements of food law, establishing the European Food Safety Authority and laying down procedures in matters of food safety⁽⁴⁾.
- (3) National action plans aiming at setting quantitative objectives, targets, timetables and indicators for the prevention of both health and environmental risks, at drawing up schedules and indicators of the risks and intensity of pesticide use, at listing the financial resources and budget lines for the implementation of the above within the timeframe set, and at promoting and encouraging the adoption of non-chemical plant protection and pest management should be used by Member States in order to facilitate the implementation of this Directive. The national action plans should be coordinated with implementation plans under other relevant Community legislation and could be used for grouping together objectives to be achieved under other Community legislation related to pesticides.
- (4) The exchange of information on the objectives achieved and the scope of actions Member States lay down in their national action plans is a very important element for achieving the objectives of this Directive. Therefore, it is appropriate to request Member States to report regularly to the Commission and the other Member States, in particular on the implementation and results of their national action plans and on their experiences.
- (5) For the preparation and modification of the national action plans, it is appropriate to provide for the application of Directive 2003/35/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 May 2003 providing for public participation in respect of the drawing up of certain plans and programmes relating to the environment and amending with regard to public participation and access to justice Council Directives 85/337/EEC and 96/61/EC⁽⁵⁾.
- (6) It is desirable that Member States set up systems of training and further training for distributors, advisors and professional users of pesticides whereby those who use or will use pesticides are fully aware of the potential risks to human health and the environment and of the appropriate measures to reduce those risks as much as possible. Training activities for professional users should be coordinated with those organised in the framework of Council Regulation (EC) No 1698/2005 of 20 September 2005 on support for rural development by the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development (EAFRD)⁽⁶⁾.
- (7) The use of illegal (counterfeit) pesticides is jeopardising the sustainable use of pesticides and poses a significant risk to the environment and to human and animal health. This problem needs to be addressed urgently.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (8) Considering the risks from the use of pesticides, in particular their acute and chronic health effects and their environmental effects, consumers and the general public should be informed, particularly through the media, but also through awareness raising campaigns, information passed on through retailers and other appropriate measures, about both the health and environmental risks and short and long-term adverse effects related to the use of pesticides, and about non-chemical alternatives. Member States should monitor and collect data on impacts of pesticide use, including poisoning incidents, and promote long-term research programmes on the effects of pesticide use.
- (9) To the extent that the handling and application of pesticides requires the setting of minimum health and safety requirements at the workplace, covering the risks arising from exposure of workers to such products, as well as general and specific preventive measures to reduce those risks, those measures are covered by Council Directive 98/24/EC of 7 April 1998 on the protection of the health and safety of workers from the risks related to chemical agents at work ⁽¹⁾ and Directive 2004/37/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2004 on the protection of workers from the risks related to their exposure to carcinogens or mutagens at work ⁽²⁾.
- (10) Since Directive 2006/42/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2006 on machinery ⁽³⁾ will provide for rules on the placing on the market of pesticide application equipment that will enable pesticide users to optimise the effectiveness of the treatments, thus ensuring that environment requirements are met, it is appropriate, in order to further reduce the adverse impacts of pesticides on human health and the environment caused by such equipment, to provide for systems for regular technical inspection of pesticide application equipment already in use.
- (11) Aerial spraying of pesticides has the potential to cause significant adverse impacts on human health and the environment, in particular from spray drift. Therefore, aerial spraying shall be generally banned with derogation possible where there are no viable alternatives, the best available technology to reduce drift is used (e.g. low-drift nozzles) and the health of residents or bystanders is not affected.
- (12) The aquatic environment is especially sensitive to pesticides. It is therefore necessary that particular attention is paid to avoiding pollution of surface water and groundwater by taking appropriate measures such as, for example, the establishment of buffer strips or planting hedges along surface waters to reduce exposure of water bodies to spray drift. The dimensions of buffer zones should depend in particular on soil characteristics, geological and topographical features, climate, size of the water-course, as well as agricultural characteristics of areas concerned. Use of pesticides in areas for the abstraction of drinking water, on or along transport routes, such as railway lines, on sealed or very permeable surfaces can lead to higher risks of pollution of the aquatic environment. In such areas, pesticide use should, therefore, be reduced as far as possible, or eliminated, if appropriate.
- (13) Use of pesticides can be particularly dangerous in very sensitive areas, such as Natura 2000 sites protected in accordance with Council Directive 79/409/EEC of 2 April 1979 on the conservation of wild birds ⁽⁴⁾, and Council Directive 92/43/EEC of 21 May 1992 on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora ⁽⁵⁾. The protection measures needed to attain the nature conservation objectives should be taken in accordance with those Directives. In other places such as residential areas, public parks, sports and recreation grounds, school grounds, children's playgrounds and in the vicinity of public healthcare facilities (clinics, hospitals, rehabilitation centres, health resorts, hospices), the risks from exposure to pesticides of the general public are high. Use of pesticides in those areas should, therefore, be reduced as far as possible, or eliminated, where appropriate.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (14) Handling of pesticides, including diluting and mixing the chemicals and cleaning of application equipment after use, and discharge of tank surplus, empty packaging and unused pesticides are particularly prone to unwanted exposure of humans and the environment. Therefore, it is appropriate to provide for specific measures addressing those activities as a complement to the measures provided for under Articles 4 and 8 of Directive 2006/12/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 April 2006 on waste ⁽¹⁾, and Articles 2 and 5 of Council Directive 91/689/EEC of 12 December 1991 on hazardous waste ⁽²⁾. Those specific measures should also encompass non-professional users, since inappropriate handling is very likely to occur in this group of users due to the lack of knowledge.
- (15) The application of general and crop-specific standards of Integrated Pest Management by all farmers would result in a better targeted use of all available pest control measures, including pesticides. Therefore, it would contribute to a further reduction of the risks to human health and the environment and the reduction of pesticide use. Member States should promote low pesticide-input farming, in particular general and crop-specific standards of Integrated Pest Management and the increase of land under organic farming, and establish necessary conditions for implementation of integrated pest management techniques. Additionally, Member States should implement mandatory crop-specific standards of Integrated Pest Management. Member States should use economic instruments for the promotion of Integrated Pest Management to provide advice and training for farmers, and to reduce the risks of pesticide use. A levy on pesticide products should be considered as one of the measures to finance the implementation of general and crop-specific methods and practices of Integrated Pest Management and the increase of land under organic farming.
- (16) It is necessary to measure the progress achieved in preventing the use of pesticides and their risks and adverse impacts for human health and the environment. Appropriate means are harmonised use and risk indicators that will be established at Community level. Member States should use those indicators to manage reduction of pesticide use and risk reduction at national level and for reporting purposes, while the Commission should calculate indicators to evaluate progress at Community level. Until common indicators are available, Member States should be entitled to use their national indicators, which must be in line with the requirements of this Directive and relate to both the health and environmental risks of pesticide use.
- (17) With a view to applying the polluter-pays principle, the Commission should examine appropriate ways of involving manufacturers of pesticides and/or their active substances in the work of dealing with and rectifying damage which may be caused to human health or the environment through the use of pesticides.
- (18) Member States should lay down rules on penalties applicable to infringements of the provisions of this Directive and ensure that the provisions are implemented. The penalties should be effective, proportionate and dissuasive.
- (19) Since the objectives of this Directive, namely to protect human health and the environment from the possible risks associated with the use of pesticides, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States and can therefore be better achieved at Community level, by reason of scale and effects of the action, the Community may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve those objectives.
- (20) This Directive respects the fundamental rights and observes the principles recognised in particular by the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union. In particular, this seeks to promote the integration into Community policies of a high level of environmental protection in accordance with the principle of sustainable development as laid down in Article 37 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (21) The measures necessary for the implementation of this Directive should be adopted in accordance with Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission ⁽¹⁾,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Chapter I

General Provisions

Article 1

Subject matter

This Directive establishes a framework for achieving a more sustainable use of pesticides by reducing the use of and the risks and impacts of pesticide use on human health and the environment in line with the precautionary principle and encouraging the promotion and adoption of non-chemical alternatives to pesticides.

Article 2

Scope

1. This Directive shall apply to pesticides in the form of:
 - (a) plant protection products as defined in Regulation (EC) No [...] [concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market], for use in agricultural and non-agricultural contexts,

2. This Directive shall apply without prejudice to any other relevant Community legislation or to any national fiscal measures to encourage the use of less harmful pesticides.
3. Member States may provide subsidies or take fiscal measures to encourage the use of less harmful pesticides. This may include the introduction of a pesticides levy on all products except non-chemical products or low-risk plant protection products as defined in Article [50(1)] of Regulation (EC) No ... [concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market].
4. The provisions of this Directive shall not prevent Member States from applying the precautionary principle in restricting or prohibiting the use of pesticides.

Article 3

Definitions

For the purposes of this Directive, the following definitions shall apply:

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (2) 'user': means any natural or legal person who carries out the use of pesticides in the framework of his activity, whether he is self-employed, employed or recruited for a special task; regarding 'professional users' Member States may distinguish between those entitled to use pesticides only on their own holdings and those entitled to provide pesticide services on holdings belonging to 3rd parties;
- In addition, golf courses, tennis courts and other leisure facilities, local authorities with public parks, and infrastructure items such as car parks, roads, railways etc. shall be looked upon as users;

- (12) 'pesticide': means a plant protection product as defined in Regulation (EC) No ... [concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market];
- (13) 'use reduction': means reduction of applications of pesticides and is not necessarily dependent on volume;
- (14) 'treatment frequency index': is based on the fixed standard dose of active substance per hectare needed for one treatment against the pest in question. Therefore, it is not necessarily dependent on volume and can be used to evaluate use reduction.

Article 4

National action plans to reduce risks and use of pesticides

1. Not later than ... (*), Member States shall adopt a background report in accordance with Annex III with the objective of identifying national trends in pesticide use and risks and the priority areas and crops to be addressed in the national action plan.

2. Member States shall, after consulting farmers' and winegrowers' associations, environmental protection organisations and the industrial and other sectors concerned, adopt and implement without undue delay national action plans to set up targets, measures and timetables to reduce risks, including hazards, and dependence on pesticides. The national action plans shall as a minimum include:

(a) for other than biological pesticides and low-risk plant protection products as defined in Article [50(1)] of Regulation (EC) No ... [concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market], quantitative use reduction targets measured as a treatment index. The treatment index will be adapted to the specific conditions of each Member State. The treatment index will have to be communicated immediately to the Commission for its approval. For active substances of very high concern the reduction target shall be a minimum 50 % reduction in relation to the treatment index calculated for the year 2005 by the end of 2013, unless the Member State can prove that it has already achieved a comparable or higher target based on another year of reference from the period 1995-2004;

(b) for pesticide formulations classified as toxic or very toxic pursuant to Directive 1999/45/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 31 May 1999 concerning the approximation of the laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States relating to the classification, packaging and labelling of dangerous preparations ⁽¹⁾, a quantitative use reduction target measured as sold volumes. This target shall be a minimum 50 % reduction calculated in relation to the year 2005 by the end of 2013, unless the Member State can prove that it has already achieved a comparable or higher reduction target based on another year of reference from the period 1995-2004.

Member States may also choose to opt for setting the same targets for risk reduction, instead of use reduction targets. Reduction of risks shall be measured using the risk indicators as provided for in Article 15 and Member States opting for risk reduction shall select a year of reference from the period 1995-2005.

National action plans shall include integrated pest management as referred to in Article 14, priority being assigned to non-chemical crop protection measures and encouragement provided to farmers who opt to use non-chemical crop protection products.

3. The baseline year shall be the average use and risks in the last three calendar years 'January through December' before the entry into force of this Directive.

4. When drawing up and revising their national action plans, Member States shall give due consideration to the public health, social, economic and environmental impacts of the measures envisaged, to specific national, regional and local conditions and to all relevant stakeholder groups. Minimum requirements for the national action plans are listed in the guidance document in Annex IV.

The national action plans shall comprise, if necessary, information on the aspects listed in Articles 5 to 14. They shall take into account plans under other Community legislation on the use of pesticides, such as planned measures under Directive 2000/60/EC.

(*) One year after the entry into force of this Directive.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

The measures contained in the national action plans may, in particular, be of a legislative, taxation or voluntary nature and should be based on the findings of relevant risk assessments.

Member States shall establish a mechanism for financing the introduction of the national action plans.

5. Not later than ... (*), Member States shall communicate their national action plans to the Commission and to the other Member States.

The national action plans shall be reviewed at least every three years and, depending on the attainment of objectives, updated. Monitoring shall also include an analysis of whether the risks in the action plan are appropriately taken into account or if they need to be reassessed. Any changes to the national action plans and the essential findings of the monitoring shall be reported to the Commission without undue delay.

Member States shall make the information reported under this paragraph available to the public on a website.

The Commission shall make the information communicated in accordance with this paragraph available to third countries and to the public.

6. The Commission shall draw up every two years a report presenting the results of implementing the national action plans.

The Commission shall establish an Internet portal to inform the public about the national action plans, any changes and the essential results of their implementation.

7. The provisions on public participation as laid down in Article 2 of Directive 2003/35/EC shall apply to the preparation and the modification of the national action plans.

8. Member States shall step up their efforts to monitor and prevent illegal use of pesticides, in collaboration with the relevant stakeholders.

Member States shall report on a regular basis on controls in place regarding illegal use.

 - use of the best available resistant/tolerant cultivars and approved/certified seed and planting material;
 - use of balanced fertilisation based on information concerning nutrients already present in the soil and the soil structure, liming and irrigation/drainage practices to reduce susceptibility to pests and diseases. Use of groundwater for irrigation should be avoided;
 - preventing the spread of harmful organisms through machinery and equipment;
 - protection and enhancement of important beneficial organisms, for instance by using ecological infrastructures inside and outside production sites, setting aside a minimum percentage of total field area, planting of plant species to attract natural enemies of pests.
- (b) Harmful organisms must be monitored with appropriate methods and tools. Such tools should include scientifically sound warning, forecasting and early diagnosis systems, where feasible, as well as professionally qualified advisers, such as those provided for by state and private extension services.
- (c) Based on the results of the monitoring the professional user has to decide whether and when to apply plant protection measures. Robust and scientifically sound threshold values are essential components for decision making. For harmful organisms threshold levels defined for the region must be taken into account before treatment, where feasible.
- (d) Biological, physical, mechanical and other non-chemical methods must be preferred to chemical methods whenever feasible. Against weeds, mechanical weeding or other non-chemical methods such as use of heat should be preferred. Exceptions should be allowed only in case of bad weather conditions during a prolonged period of time that makes mechanical weeding unfeasible.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (e) The pesticide applied shall be as specific as possible for the target and shall have the least side effects on human health and the environment, such as plant and tree extracts, mineral substances for prevention of fungal growth.
- (f) The professional user should keep the use of pesticides and other forms of intervention to levels that are necessary, e.g. by reduced dosage, reduced application frequency or partial applications, bearing in mind that the level of risk in vegetation must remain acceptable and that they may not increase the risk for development of resistance in populations of harmful organisms.
- (g) Where the risk of resistance against a plant protection measure is known and where the level of harmful organisms requires repeated application of pesticides to crops, available anti-resistance strategies should be applied to maintain the effectiveness of the products. This may include the use of multiple pesticides with different modes of action.
- (h) Professional users should keep records of all pesticides used, by field. Based on the records on the use of pesticides and on the monitoring of harmful organisms the professional user should check the success of the applied plant protection measures.

P6_TC1-COD(2006)0136

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Articles 152(4)(b) and 175(1) thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee ⁽¹⁾,

Having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions,

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty ⁽²⁾,

Whereas:

- (1) Council Directive 91/414/EEC of 15 July 1991 concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market ⁽³⁾ provides for rules governing plant protection products and the active substances contained in those products.
- (2) In their conclusions on the progress report ⁽⁴⁾ presented by the Commission under Directive 91/414/EEC, the European Parliament and the Council asked the Commission to review the Directive and identified a number of issues for the Commission to address.
- (3) In the light of the experience gained from the application of Directive 91/414/EEC and of recent scientific and technical developments, Directive 91/414/EEC should be replaced.
- (4) By way of simplification, the new act should also repeal Council Directive 79/117/EEC of 21 December 1978 prohibiting the placing on the market and use of plant protection products containing certain active substances ⁽⁵⁾. However, the main principles of Directive 79/117/EEC should be maintained in the new act.

⁽³⁾ OJ L 230, 19.8.1991, p. 1. Directive as last amended by Commission Directive 2007/52/EC (OJ L 214, 17.8.2007, p. 3).

⁽⁵⁾ OJ L 33, 8.2.1979, p. 36. Directive as last amended by Regulation (EC) No 850/2004 of the European Parliament and the Council (OJ L 158, 30.4.2004, p. 7, corrected version in OJ L 229, 29.6.2004, p. 5).

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (5) To simplify application of the new act and to ensure consistency throughout the Member States, it should take the form of a Regulation.
- (6) Plant production has a very important place in the Community. One of the most important ways of protecting plants and plant products against harmful organisms, including weeds, and of improving agricultural production is the use of plant protection products.
- (7) Various types of crop are of significance in the Community for both large-scale and small-scale production. These various types of production should be protected by allowing the use of different plant protection products.
- (8) Plant protection products can also have non-beneficial effects on plant production. Their use may involve risks and hazards for humans, animals and the environment, especially if placed on the market without having been officially tested and authorised and if incorrectly used. Therefore, harmonised rules should be adopted on the placing on the market of plant protection products.
- (9) The purpose of this Regulation is to ensure a high level of protection of both human and animal health and the environment, and at the same time to ensure the competitiveness of European agriculture. Particular attention should be paid to the protection of vulnerable groups of the population, including pregnant and nursing women, embryos and foetuses, infants and children. The precautionary principle should be applied and ensure that industry demonstrates that substances or products produced or placed on the market do not adversely affect human health or the environment and are not suspected of doing so.
- (10) In order to avoid animal testing, testing on vertebrate animals for the purposes of this Regulation should be undertaken only as a last resort. This Regulation, and the legislation establishing data requirements for active substances, plant protection products, safeners and synergists, should ensure that testing on vertebrate animals is minimised and that double-testing is avoided, and promote the use of non-animal test methods and intelligent testing strategies. Existing results from tests on vertebrate animals should be shared in the process of developing new plant protection products. In accordance with Council Directive 86/609/EEC of 24 November 1986 on the approximation of laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States regarding the protection of animals used for experimental and other scientific purposes⁽¹⁾, tests on vertebrate animals must also be replaced, restricted or refined. Implementation of this Regulation should where possible be based on the use of appropriate alternative testing methods. Not later than ...⁽²⁾, the Commission should review the rules on the data protection of results from tests on vertebrate animals and where necessary change those rules.
- (11) Substances should only be included in plant protection products where it has been demonstrated that they present a clear benefit for plant production and it has been established that they will not have any harmful effect on human or animal health or any unacceptable influence on the environment. In order to achieve a high and identical level of protection in all Member States, the decision on acceptability or non-acceptability of such substances should be taken at Community level.
- (12) To apply the 'polluter pays' principle, the Commission should examine how manufacturers of plant protection products or of the active substances they contain should be appropriately involved in dealing with or rectifying harm to human health or to the environment which may result from the use of plant protection products.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (13) In the interest of predictability, efficiency and consistency, a detailed procedure should be laid down for assessing whether an active substance can be approved. The information to be submitted by interested parties for the purposes of approval of a substance should be specified. In view of the amount of work connected with the approval procedure, it is appropriate that the evaluation of such information be performed by a Member State acting as a rapporteur for the Community. To ensure consistency in evaluation, an independent scientific review should be performed by the European Food Safety Authority established by Article 22 of Regulation (EC) No 178/2002 of the European Parliament and the Council of 28 January 2002 laying down the general principles and requirements of food law, establishing the European Food Safety Authority and laying down procedures in matters of food safety⁽¹⁾ (hereinafter referred to as 'the Authority'). It should be clarified that the Authority performs a risk assessment whilst the Commission should perform the risk management and take the ultimate decision on an active substance. Provisions should be included to ensure transparency of the evaluation process.
- (14) For ethical reasons, the assessment of an active substance or a plant protection product should not be based on tests or studies involving the deliberate administration of the active substance or plant protection product to humans with the purpose of determining a human No Observed Effect Level of an active substance. Similarly, toxicological studies carried out on humans should not be used to lower the safety margins for active substances or plant protection products.
- (15) The development of non-animal in vitro (test tube) test methods should be promoted in order to produce safety data more relevant to humans than results of animal studies currently in use.
- (16) To speed up the approval of active substances, strict deadlines should be established for the different procedural steps.
- (17) In the interest of safety, the approval period for active substances should be limited in time. The approval period should be proportional to the possible risks inherent in the use of such substances and should be limited to a maximum of 15 years for low risk substances, 5 years for candidates for substitution and 10 years for other substances. Experience gained from the actual use of plant protection products containing the substances concerned and any developments in science and technology should be taken into account when any decision regarding the renewal of an approval is taken. After the first renewal, a regular review of substances should take place.
- (18) The possibility of amending or withdrawing the approval of an active substance in cases where the criteria for approval are no longer satisfied or where compliance with Directive 2000/60/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 October 2000 establishing a framework for Community action in the field of water policy⁽²⁾ and its daughter directives may be compromised, should be provided for.
- (19) The evaluation of an active substance may reveal that it presents considerably less of a risk than other substances. In order to favour the inclusion of such a substance in plant protection products, it is appropriate to identify such substances and to facilitate the placing on the market of plant protection products containing them.
- (20) To encourage the development of plant protection products, incentives must be incorporated for placing on the market products with a low risk profile or a risk profile that is lower than that of products already on the market. Clear and objective criteria must be laid down to define which products may claim such a profile.

- (21) Certain substances which are not predominantly used as a plant protection product may be of value for plant protection, but the economic interest of applying for approval may be limited. Therefore, specific provisions should ensure that such substances, as far as their risks are deemed acceptable by all relevant stakeholders, may also be approved for plant protection use.
- (22) Some active substances of particular concern, which are currently approved, should be identified at Community and national level as candidates for substitution. Member States should examine plant protection products containing such active substances with the aim of replacing them by plant protection products containing active substances which require significantly less or no risk mitigation or by alternative non-chemical agricultural practices and methods of crop protection. After a positive check, active substances should be replaced immediately.
- (23) Member States should be entitled to prohibit or not authorise plant protection products in order to take account of their specific natural, agricultural or climatic conditions, or if the use of these products would be in conflict with their national action plan to reduce the risks associated with, and dependence on, the use of pesticides, adopted in accordance with Directive 2008/.../EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of ... [establishing a framework for Community action to achieve a sustainable use of pesticides] ⁽¹⁾.
- (24) In addition to active substances, plant protection products may contain safeners or synergists for which similar legislation should be provided. The provisions necessary for the review of such substances should be established on the basis of a legislative proposal from the Commission. Substances currently on the market should only be reviewed after those provisions have been established.
- (25) Plant protection products may also contain co-formulants. It is appropriate to adopt and make publicly available a positive list of co-formulants which may be included in plant protection products and the reasons therefor. This information should be available to the public. Details of all co-formulants that are included in plant protection products must also be available to the public.
- (26) Plant protection products containing active substances can be formulated in many ways and used on a variety of crops, under different agricultural, ecological and climatic conditions. Authorisations for plant protection products should therefore be granted by Member States.
- (27) The provisions governing authorisation must ensure a high standard of protection. In particular, when granting authorisations of plant protection products, the objective of protecting human or animal health and the environment should take priority over the objective of improving plant production. Therefore, it should be demonstrated, before plant protection products are placed on the market, that they do not have any harmful effect on human health, including that of vulnerable groups, or animal health or any unacceptable influence on the environment and on water resources. Member States should be entitled to prohibit or not authorise plant protection products that do not present a clear benefit for plant production in the specific conditions of their territory.
- (28) In the interest of predictability, efficiency and consistency, criteria, procedures and conditions for the authorisation of plant protection products should be harmonised, account being taken of the general principles of protection of human and animal health and the environment.
- (29) The active substances contained in a plant protection product can be produced by different manufacturing processes, leading to differences in specifications. Such differences may have safety implications. For efficiency reasons, a harmonised procedure at Community level should be provided for the assessment of those differences.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (30) To avoid unnecessary duplication of work, to reduce the administrative burden for industry and for Member States and to facilitate more harmonised availability of plant protection products, authorisations granted by one Member State should be notified to other Member States. Member States should be entitled to confirm, reject or restrict the authorisation granted by another Member State on the basis of their specific agricultural needs or to maintain a higher protection level in line with their national action plans.
- (31) Good administrative cooperation between Member States should be increased during all steps of the authorisation procedure and should be facilitated by a European Helpdesk.
- (32) The economic interest for industry to apply for an authorisation is limited in certain uses. In order to ensure that diversification of agriculture and horticulture is not jeopardised by the lack of availability of plant protection products, specific rules should be established for minor uses.
- (33) In exceptional cases, it should be permitted to authorise plant protection products not complying with the conditions provided for in this Regulation, where it is necessary to do so because of a danger or threat to plant production and ecosystems which cannot be contained by any other means. Such temporary authorisations should be reviewed at Community level.
- (34) To promote innovation, special rules should be established permitting the use of plant protection products in experiments even where they have not yet been authorised.
- (35) In order to ensure a high level of protection of human health and the environment, plant protection products should be used properly, according to their authorisation, having regard to the principles of integrated pest management and giving priority to non-chemical and natural alternatives wherever possible. The Council shall include in the statutory management requirement referred to in Annex III of Council Regulation (EC) No 1782/2003 of 29 September 2003 establishing common rules for direct support schemes under the common agricultural policy and establishing certain support schemes for farmers⁽¹⁾ the principles of integrated pest management, including good plant protection practice and non-chemical methods of plant protection and pest and crop management. A transitional period should therefore be foreseen to allow Member States to put in place the necessary structures to enable users of plant protection products to apply the principles of integrated pest management and non-chemical alternatives to plant protection and pest and crop management.
- (36) A system of exchange of information should be established. Member States should make available to each other, the Authority and the Commission the particulars and scientific documentation submitted in connection with applications for authorisation of plant protection products. Studies and data relevant for toxicological and ecotoxicological assessment of plant protection products should be made available to the public.
- (37) Adjuvants may be used to increase the efficacy of a plant protection product. Their placing on the market or use should be forbidden where they contain a co-formulant which has been prohibited.
- (38) Studies represent a major investment. This investment should be protected in order to stimulate research. For this reason, studies, other than those involving tests on vertebrate animals and other studies that may prevent animal testing, lodged by one applicant with a Member State should be protected against use by another applicant. This protection should, however, be limited in time in order to allow competition. It should also be limited to studies which are genuinely necessary for regulatory purposes, to avoid applicants artificially extending the period of protection by submitting new studies which are not necessary.

- (39) Rules should be laid down to avoid duplication of tests and studies. In particular, repetition of studies involving vertebrates should be prohibited. In this context, there should be an obligation to allow access to studies on vertebrates and other studies that may prevent animal testing. In order to allow operators to know what studies have been carried out by others, Member States should forward to the Authority all such studies even where they are not covered by the above system of compulsory access. The Authority should establish a central database for such studies.
- (40) As different rules are applied by Member States, the Authority or the Commission in relation to access to and confidentiality of documents, it is appropriate to clarify the provisions concerning access to information contained in the documents in the possession of these authorities and the confidentiality of these documents.
- (41) Directive 1999/45/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 31 May 1999 concerning the approximation of the laws, regulations and administrative provisions of the Member States relating to the classification, packaging and labelling of dangerous preparations ⁽¹⁾ applies to the classification, packaging and labelling of pesticides. However, to further improve the protection of users of plant protection products, of residents and bystanders who could be exposed to pesticides from crop-spraying, of consumers of plants and plant products and of the environment, it is appropriate to adopt specific legislation on the basis of a legislative proposal from the Commission which takes account of the specific conditions of use of plant protection products.
- (42) To ensure that advertisements do not mislead users of plant protection products or the public, it is appropriate to provide rules on the advertising of those products.
- (43) Provisions on record keeping and information about the use of plant protection products should be established in order to raise the level of protection of human and animal health and the environment by ensuring the traceability of potential exposure, to increase the efficiency of monitoring and control and to reduce the costs of monitoring water quality.
- (44) Member States should carry out controls and inspections with regard to the marketing and use of plant protection products to ensure compliance with the requirements laid down in this Regulation in order to achieve a high level of protection of both human and animal health and the environment.
- (45) Operators must have the same opportunities in respect of market access, in particular so that small and medium-sized enterprises can operate, in order to ensure that sufficient safe and effective plant protection products are available to farmers.
- (46) Regulation (EC) No 882/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2004 on official controls performed to ensure the verification of compliance with feed and food law, animal health and animal welfare rules ⁽²⁾ provides for control measures for the use of plant protection products at all stages of the production of food, including record keeping on the use of plant protection products. Similar rules should be established on the basis of a legislative proposal from the Commission for the storage and use of plant protection products not covered by Regulation (EC) No 882/2004.
- (47) The bureaucratic burden on farmers should be as limited as possible.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (48) The measures provided for in this Regulation should apply without prejudice to existing Community legislation, in particular Directive 2008/.../EC [establishing a framework for Community action to achieve a sustainable use of pesticides], Directive 2000/60/EC, Regulation (EC) No 396/2005 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 February 2005 on maximum residues levels of pesticides in or on food and feed of plant and animal origin and amending Council Directive 91/414/EEC⁽¹⁾, and Community legislation on the protection of workers and anyone concerned with the contained use and deliberate release of genetically modified organisms.
- (49) It is necessary to establish procedures for the adoption of emergency measures in situations where an approved active substance, a safener, a synergist or a plant protection product is likely to constitute a serious risk to human or animal health or the environment.
- (50) Member States should lay down rules on penalties applicable to infringements of this Regulation and should take the measures necessary to ensure that they are implemented.
- (51) General civil and criminal liability in the Member States of the manufacturer and, where applicable, of the person responsible for placing the plant protection product on the market or using it should remain applicable.
- (52) Member States should have the possibility of recovering the costs of the procedures associated with the application of the Regulation from those seeking to place, or placing, plant protection products on the market and from those applying for the approval of active substances, safeners or synergists.
- (53) Member States should designate the necessary national authorities.
- (54) The Commission should facilitate the application of this Regulation. Therefore, it is appropriate to provide for the necessary financial resources and the possibility of amending certain provisions of the Regulation in the light of experience or of developing technical notes for guidance.
- (55) The measures necessary for the implementation of this Regulation should be adopted in accordance with Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission⁽²⁾. It is appropriate to adopt purely technical, administrative or urgent measures using the advisory committee procedure.
- (56) In particular, the Commission should be empowered to approve active substances, to renew or review their approval, to approve co-formulants, to adopt harmonised methods to determine the nature and quantity of active substances, safeners and synergists, and where appropriate of relevant impurities and co-formulants, to establish rules for resolving disagreement between Member States on the assessment of equivalence, to adopt guidelines on the organisation of compliance checks at the renewal of an authorisation, to adopt detailed rules for allowing derogations from authorisation of plant protection products for research and development, implementing measures to ensure uniform application of record keeping on production, storage and use of plant protection products, technical or other guidance documents for the implementation of this Regulation and the list of approved active substances. Since those measures are of general scope and are designed to amend non-essential elements of this Regulation or to supplement it by the addition of non-essential elements, they must be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny provided for in Article 5a of Decision 1999/468/EC.
- (57) Certain provisions of Directive 91/414/EEC should remain applicable during the transitional period,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS REGULATION:

Chapter I

General provisions

Article 1

Subject matter and purpose

1. This Regulation lays down rules for the authorisation of plant protection products in commercial form and for their placing on the market, use and control within the Community.
2. This Regulation lays down both rules for the approval of active substances, safeners and synergists, which plant protection products contain or consist of, and rules for adjuvants and co-formulants.
3. The purpose of this Regulation is to ensure a high level of protection of both human and animal health and the environment.
4. This Regulation is based on the precautionary principle in order to ensure that substances or products placed on the market do not adversely affect human health or the environment.
5. The purpose of this Regulation is furthermore to harmonise the rules on the placing on the market of plant protection products in order to harmonise the availability of plant protection products between farmers in different Member States.
6. Member States may not be prevented from applying the precautionary principle in restricting or prohibiting pesticides.
7. Member States may establish any pesticide-free zones they deem necessary in order to safeguard drinking water resources. Such pesticide-free zones may cover the entire Member State.
8. Member States may impose a ban on the use and marketing of EU-authorised pesticides where they are found in measurable quantities outside the root zone.

Article 2

Scope

1. This Regulation shall apply to products, in the form in which they are supplied to the user, consisting of or containing active substances, safeners or synergists, and intended for one of the following uses:
 - (a) protecting plants or plant products against all harmful organisms or preventing the action of such organisms, unless the main purpose of these products is considered to be for hygiene reasons rather than for the protection of plants or plant products;
 - (b) influencing the life processes of plants, such as substances influencing their growth, other than as a nutrient;

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (c) preserving plant products, insofar as such substances or products are not subject to special Community provisions on preservatives;
- (d) destroying undesired plants or parts of plants, except algae;
- (e) checking or preventing undesired growth of plants, except algae.

These products are referred to hereinafter as 'plant protection products'.

2. This Regulation shall apply to substances, including micro-organisms and viruses, having general or specific action against harmful organisms or on plants, parts of plants or plant products, hereinafter 'active substances'. It shall, however, cease to apply to micro-organisms, viruses, pheromones and biological products once a specific regulation on biological control products has been adopted.

3. This Regulation shall apply to the following:

- (a) substances or preparations which are added to a plant protection product to eliminate or reduce phytotoxic effects of the preparation on certain plants, hereinafter 'safeners';
- (b) substances or preparations which, while showing no or only weak activity in the sense of paragraph 1, can give enhanced activity to the active substance(s) in a plant protection product, hereinafter 'synergists';
- (c) substances or preparations which are used or intended to be used in a plant protection product or adjuvant, but are neither active substances nor safeners or synergists, hereinafter 'co-formulants';
- (d) substances or preparations which consist of co-formulants or preparations containing one or more co-formulants, in the form in which they are supplied to the user and placed on the market to be mixed by the user with a plant protection product for the purpose of changing its properties or effects, hereinafter 'adjuvants'.

Article 3

Definitions

For the purposes of this Regulation, the following definitions shall apply:

- (5) 'substance of concern': Any substance which has an inherent capacity to cause an adverse effect on humans, animals or the environment **█.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

Such substances include, but are not limited to, substances classified as dangerous in accordance with Council Directive 67/548/EEC of 27 June 1967 on the approximation of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the classification, packaging and labelling of dangerous substances⁽¹⁾, and ■ regarded as dangerous within the meaning of Article 3 of Directive 1999/45/EC.

Any substance that has or potentially has either carcinogenic, mutagenic, endocrine disrupting, neurotoxic, immunotoxic, reprotoxic or genotoxic capabilities should be regarded as a substance of concern;

- (6) 'article': An object which during production is given a special shape, surface or design which determines its function to a greater degree than does its chemical composition;

- (c) it entails, in the light of scientific or technical knowledge, considerably fewer risks to human or animal health or the environment than a comparable plant protection product that is already authorised;
- (d) it is sufficiently active;
- (e) it complies with Article 30(1)(b), (c), (f) and (h) to (j).

2. Applicants for authorisation of a reduced risk plant protection product must demonstrate that it meets the conditions in paragraph 1 and enclose with the application a detailed and a summary dossier for each point of the details required for the active substance and the plant protection product.

3. The Member State shall decide within 120 days whether to approve an application for authorisation for a reduced risk plant protection product.

This period shall be 90 days if another Member State has already granted authorisation for the same reduced risk plant protection product.

If the Member State requires additional information, it shall set a deadline by which the applicant must provide the information. In such a case the period of 120 days shall be extended by the additional period that the Member State has granted.

4. Unless otherwise specified, all provisions relating to authorisations under this Regulation shall apply.

Article 52

Placing on the market and use of plant protection products containing a genetically modified micro-organism

1. A plant protection product which contains a micro-organism falling within the scope of Directive 2001/18/EC shall be examined in respect of the genetic modification in accordance with that Directive, in addition to the assessment under this Chapter.

An authorisation under this Regulation shall not be granted for such a plant protection product unless written consent, as referred to in Article 19 of Directive 2001/18/EC, has been granted for it.

2. Unless otherwise specified, all provisions relating to authorisations under this Regulation shall apply.

Article 53

Comparative assessment of plant protection products containing candidates for substitution

1. Member States shall not authorise for use in a given crop a plant protection product either containing a candidate for substitution or posing a higher risk where a comparative assessment weighing up the risks and benefits, as set out in Annex IV, shows that:

- (a) for the uses specified in the application an authorised plant protection product, or a non-chemical control or prevention method, having equivalent efficacy is already authorised and is significantly safer for human or animal health or the environment;
- (b) the substitution by plant protection products or non-chemical control or prevention methods referred to in point (a) does not present significant economic or practical disadvantages;

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- (c) the chemical diversity of the active substances, where relevant, or methods and practices of crop management and pest prevention are adequate to minimise the occurrence of resistance in the target organism.

While Member States shall not authorise any plant protection product where a comparative assessment shows the existence of safer alternatives, priority in comparative assessment and substitution shall be given to candidates for substitution.

2. By way of derogation from paragraph 1, a plant protection product containing a candidate for substitution shall be authorised without comparative assessment in cases where it is necessary to acquire experience first through using that product in practice.

Such authorisations shall be granted for a period not exceeding three years.

3. Member States shall repeat the comparative assessment provided for in paragraph 1 regularly and at the latest four years after authorisation or renewal of the authorisation was granted.

Based on the results of that comparative assessment, Member States shall maintain, withdraw or amend the authorisation.

4. Where a Member State decides to withdraw or amend an authorisation pursuant to paragraph 3, that withdrawal or amendment shall take effect two years after the decision of the Member State or at the end of the approval period of the candidate for substitution where that period ends earlier.

5. Unless otherwise specified, all provisions relating to authorisations under this Regulation shall apply.

Article 54

Extension of authorisations for minor uses

1. For the purpose of this Article, minor use of a plant protection product in a particular Member State means the use of that product on a crop which is not widely grown in that Member State or on a widely grown crop to meet an exceptional need.

2. The authorisation holder, official or scientific bodies involved in agricultural activities or professional agricultural organisations and professional users may ask for the authorisation of a plant protection product already authorised in the Member State concerned to be extended to minor uses not yet covered by that authorisation.

3. Member States may, after authorisation by the Commission, adopt specific measures to facilitate the submission of applications to extend the authorisation for and the submission of applications relating to minor uses.

4. Member States shall extend the authorisation provided that:

- (a) the intended use is minor in nature;
- (b) the conditions referred to in Article 4(3)(b), (d) and (e) and Article 30(1)(j) are satisfied;
- (c) the extension is in the public interest;
- (d) the documentation and information to support an extension of use has been submitted by the persons or bodies referred to in paragraph 2. The studies necessary in order to determine maximum residue levels may be carried out by scientific institutes or official bodies.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

5. The extension may take the form of an amendment to the existing authorisation or may be a separate authorisation, according to the administrative procedures of the Member State concerned.

Extensions on the basis of this Article shall be separately identified and separate reference shall be made to liability restrictions.

6. When Member States grant an extension of authorisation for a minor use, they shall inform the authorisation holder, who shall change the labelling accordingly.

Where the authorisation holder declines, the Member States shall ensure that users are fully and specifically informed as to instructions for use, by means of an official publication or an official website.

The label shall indicate that such uses have not been evaluated for efficacy or phytotoxicity. Without prejudice to Article 76, the authorisation holder shall not be liable for any losses arising from use in accordance with extensions of authorisation.

7. Member States shall establish and regularly update a list of minor uses. This list shall be made available to the public through official websites of the Member State and of the Commission.

8. Not later than ... (*), the Commission shall present a proposal to the European Parliament and the Council for establishing a European promotion fund for minor uses. The Fund shall also be entitled to finance additional residue tests for minor uses.

9. Unless otherwise specified, all provisions relating to authorisations under this Regulation shall apply.

Article 55

Parallel trade

1. A plant protection product that is authorised in one Member State (Member State of origin) may, subject to an application for a parallel trade permit, be introduced, placed on the market and used in another Member State (Member State of introduction), if that Member State determines that the plant protection product is identical in composition to a plant protection product already authorised in the Member State of introduction (reference product). The application shall be submitted to the regulatory authority in the Member State of introduction (competent authority).

2. A parallel trade permit shall be granted within 90 working days after receiving a complete application. Member States shall on request provide each other with the information necessary to assess identity within 10 working days of receiving the request. The procedure for granting a parallel trade permit shall be interrupted from the day the request for information is sent to the competent authority of the Member State of origin until the complete information required is delivered to the competent authority.

3. Member States shall grant a parallel trade permit under a simplified procedure if the plant protection product to be introduced is identical to the reference product in specification and content of the active substances, safeners and synergists, in type of formulation and in composition of the plant protection product.

4. Active substances, safeners and synergists shall be considered as identical in terms of paragraph 3 if:

(a) they have been manufactured by the same company or by an associated undertaking or under licence according to the same manufacturing process; and

(b) they have either the same specification, or specifications approved to be equivalent under the procedure referred to in Article 39.

(*) One year after the entry into force of this Regulation.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

5. The plant protection product to be introduced and the reference product shall be considered as identical in composition in terms of paragraph 3 if:

- (a) the co-formulants are identical in all respects; or*
- (b) varying co-formulants do not have more harmful effects within the meaning of Article 4(3) with due regard, in particular, to differences which may exist in conditions relating to agriculture, plant health and the environment, in particular climatic conditions, relevant to the use of the product.*

6. The criteria and the procedures for evaluating to what extent the compositions are identical may be described in detail in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 83(3).

7. The application for a parallel trade permit shall include the following:

- Member State of origin,*
- name and address of the applicant,*
- name and address of a contact person in the Member State of introduction, if the applicant is not established there,*
- name to be given to the plant protection product to be distributed in the Member State of introduction,*
- name and registration number of the plant protection product in the Member State of origin,*
- name and address of the authorisation holder in the Member State of origin,*
- original instructions for use with which the plant protection product to be introduced is distributed in the Member State of origin if it is considered as necessary for the examination by the competent authority. The competent authority may require a translation of the relevant parts of the original instructions for use,*
- name and registration number of the reference product,*
- name and address of the authorisation holder of the reference product,*
- a draft label for the product intended to be placed on the market,*
- a sample of the product which is intended to be introduced if it is considered as necessary by the competent authority.*

8. The applicant for a parallel trade permit may demonstrate by means of all available and accessible information that the plant protection product intended to be introduced is identical in terms of paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 to the reference product.

9. A plant protection product for which a parallel trade permit has been issued is to be placed on the market and used in accordance with the provisions of the authorisation of the reference product. To meet the requirements of Article 30 and to facilitate monitoring and controls in terms of Article 71 the competent authority may lay down additional requirements for the product to be introduced.

10. The parallel trade permit shall be valid for the duration of authorisation of the reference product. If the authorisation holder of the reference product applies for a withdrawal of authorisation in accordance with Article 46(1) and the requirements of Article 30 are still fulfilled, the validity of the parallel trade permit will expire by the date on which the authorisation of the reference product would normally have expired.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

11. Without prejudice to specific provisions in this Article, Articles 45 to 47, 58 and 59(4) and Chapters VI to X shall apply to parallel traded plant protection products correspondingly.

12. Without prejudice to Article 45a parallel trade permit may be withdrawn if

— the authorisation of the introduced plant protection product is withdrawn in the Member State of origin for reasons of safety or efficacy,

— the parallel trade permit is misused by the applicant to introduce or place on the market plant protection products which are not authorised in any Member State.

13. Where, with regard to the criteria provided for in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5, the assessment carried out by the Member State of introduction shows that the product intended to be introduced is not identical in terms of paragraph 3, 4 or 5 to the reference product, the Member State of introduction may only grant the authorisation required for placing on the market and use in accordance with Article 29.

14. The provisions of this Article do not apply to plant protection products which are authorised in the Member State of origin pursuant to Article 56 or 57.

Subsection 6

Derogations

Article 56

Emergency situations

1. By way of derogation from Article 29, in special circumstances a Member State may authorise, for a period not exceeding 120 days, the placing on the market of plant protection products, for limited and controlled use, where such a measure appears necessary because of a danger to plant health which cannot be contained by any other reasonable means.

The Member State concerned shall immediately inform the other Member States and the Commission of the measure taken, providing detailed information about the situation and any measures taken to ensure consumer safety.

2. The Commission may ask the Authority for an opinion, or for scientific or technical assistance.

The Authority shall provide its opinion or the results of its work to the Commission within one month of the request.

3. If necessary, a decision shall be taken, in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 83(3), as to

- (a) whether the treated crop may be safely marketed, and
- (b) whether and under what conditions the Member State
 - (i) may extend the duration of the measure or repeat it; or
 - (ii) shall withdraw or amend its measure.

4. Paragraphs 1 to 3 shall not apply to plant protection products containing or composed of genetically modified micro-organisms.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

Article 57

Research and development

1. By way of derogation from Article 29, experiments or tests for research or development purposes involving the release into the environment of an unauthorised plant protection product may be carried out if the Member State in whose territory the experiment or test is to be carried out has assessed the available data and granted an authorisation for trial purposes. Any such experiments or tests must be very strictly controlled to ensure that there will be no immediate or delayed harmful effect on human health, including residents and bystanders and vulnerable groups, such as babies, children, pregnant women, the elderly, people who are ill and those taking medication, or animal health, directly or through drinking water, food, feed or air, including in locations distant from its use following long-range transportation, or consequences in the workplace or through other indirect effects, taking into account cumulative and synergistic effects; or on groundwater. The authorisation may limit the quantities to be used and the areas to be treated and may impose further conditions to prevent any harmful effects on human or animal health or any unacceptable adverse effect on the environment, such as the need to prevent entry into the food chain of feed and food containing residues unless a relevant provision has already been established under Regulation (EC) No 396/2005.

The Member State may authorise a programme of experiments or tests in advance or require an authorisation for each experiment or test.

2. An application shall be submitted to the Member State in whose territory the experiment or test is to be conducted, together with a dossier containing all the available data to permit an assessment of possible effects on human or animal health or the possible impact on the environment.

3. An authorisation for trial purposes shall not be granted for experiments or tests involving the release into environment of a genetically modified micro-organism unless such release has been accepted under Directive 2001/18/EC.

4. Detailed rules for the application of this Article, in particular the maximum quantities of plant protection products that may be released during experiments or tests and the minimum data to be submitted in accordance with paragraph 2, may be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny referred to in Article 83(4).

SECTION 2

Use and information

Article 58

Use of plant protection products

Plant protection products shall be used properly.

Proper use shall include compliance with the conditions established in accordance with Article 31 and specified on the labelling, and application of the principles of good plant protection practice as well as, whenever possible, the principles of integrated pest management **¶.

At the latest by 1 January 2014 proper use of plant protection products shall comply with the principles of integrated pest management, including good plant protection practice and good environmental practice.

Detailed rules for the application of this Article including minimum requirements for these principles may be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 83(3).

Tuesday 23 October 2007

Article 59

Information on potentially harmful effects

1. The holder of an authorisation for a plant protection product shall immediately notify the Member States of any new information concerning that plant protection product, or an active substance, safener or synergist contained in the plant protection product, which suggests that the plant protection product has harmful effects which might mean that the plant protection product or the active substance, safener or synergist no longer complies with the criteria set out in Articles 30 and 4 respectively.

In particular, potentially harmful effects of that plant protection product, or of residues of an active substance, safener or synergist contained in it, on human or animal health or on surface water and groundwater, or their potentially unacceptable effects on plants or plant products and other parts of the environment shall be notified.

To this end the authorisation holder shall record and report all suspected adverse reactions in humans, in animals and the environment related to the use of the plant protection product.

The obligation to notify shall include relevant information on decisions or assessments by public bodies which authorise plant protection products or active substances in third countries.

2. The notification shall include an assessment of whether and how the new information means that the plant protection product or the active substance, safener or synergist no longer comply with the requirements set out in Article 30 and Article 4 respectively.

3. The Member State receiving such notification shall immediately pass it on to the other Member States. Without prejudice to the right of Member States to adopt interim protective measures, the Member State which granted an authorisation shall evaluate the information received and inform the other Member States, where it decides to withdraw or amend the authorisation under Article 45.

It shall inform the other Member States, the Authority and the Commission where it considers that the conditions of the approval of the active substance, safener or synergist contained in the plant protection product are no longer fulfilled and propose that the approval be withdrawn or the conditions amended.

4. The holder of an authorisation for a plant protection product shall report annually to the competent authorities of the Member States any available information relating to the lack of expected efficacy, the development of resistance and to any unexpected effect on plants, plant products or the environment.

Article 60

Obligation to keep information available

1. Member States shall forward to the Authority, who shall make electronically available to the public, information on plant protection products authorised or withdrawn in accordance with this Regulation, containing at least:

- (a) the name or business name of the holder of the authorisation,
- (b) the trade name of the product,
- (c) the type of preparation,
- (d) the name and amount of each active substance, safener or synergist which it contains,
- (e) the use or uses for which it is intended,

Tuesday 23 October 2007

(f) the Member State(s) where the plant protection product has been authorised,

(g) information on basic environmental and health risks,

(h) where relevant, the reasons for withdrawal of an authorisation.

2. The information referred to in paragraph 1 shall be readily accessible and updated at least once every three months.

3. In accordance with the advisory procedure referred to in Article 83(2), a standardised information system may be set up to facilitate the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article.

Chapter IV

Adjuvants

Article 61

Placing on the market and use of adjuvants

An adjuvant shall not be placed on the market or used if it contains a co-formulant which has not been approved in accordance with Article 28.

Chapter V

Data protection and data sharing

Article 62

Data protection

1. Test and study reports shall benefit from data protection under the conditions laid down in this Article.

The protection applies to test and study reports submitted to a Member State by an applicant for authorisation under this Regulation (hereinafter called 'the first applicant'), provided that those test and study reports were

- (a) necessary for the authorisation or an amendment of an authorisation in order to allow the use on another crop, and
- (b) certified as compliant with the principles of Good Laboratory Practice or Good Experimental Practice in accordance with the data requirements for plant protection products referred to in Article 9(1)(c).

Where a report is protected, it may ■ be used, by the Member State which received it, for the benefit of other applicants for pesticides, except as provided in paragraph 3, in Article 65 or in Article 84.

The period of data protection shall be ten years starting at the date of the first authorisation in that Member State, except as provided in paragraph 3, in Article 65 or in Article 84. That period shall be extended to 15 years for pesticides covered by Article 50 and 12 years for those covered by Article 51.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

A study submitted for the renewal or review of an authorisation shall not be protected except where required for the purposes of amending the legislation.

Data protection shall also apply to 3rd parties who submit tests and study reports for the purpose of minor uses.

2. The data protection period for the product concerned shall be extended if the first applicant applies for authorisation for derived plant protection products for restricted uses as defined in Article 54(1). The data protection period shall be extended by three months for each new product for limited use. The data protection period may be extended by a maximum of three years.

3. Paragraph 1 shall not apply:

- (a) to test and study reports for which the applicant has submitted a letter of access; or
- (b) where any period of data protection granted for the test and study reports concerned in relation to another plant protection product has expired.

4. Data protection under paragraph 1 shall only be granted where the first applicant has claimed data protection at the time of submitting the dossier or further information and has provided to the Member State concerned for each test or study report the following information:

- (a) justification that the test and study reports submitted are necessary for the first authorisation, renewal or review, or for the amendment of the authorisation of a plant protection product; or as a result of changes to legislation;
- (b) confirmation that any period of data protection granted for the test or study report has not expired.

5. By way of derogation from paragraph 1, where tests and study reports have already been used to grant authorisation to another product and the period of protection has not yet expired, those reports shall be protected for the remaining period.

Article 63

List of test and study reports

1. For each active substance, safener and synergist, rapporteur Member States shall forward to the Authority, who shall make available to the public at the moment of publishing the draft assessment report pursuant to Article 13, a list of the test and study reports necessary for first approval, amendment of approval conditions or renewal of the approval and a summary of the results of the tests and study reports to establish the efficacy of the substance and its harmlessness to humans, animals, plants and the environment.

2. For each plant protection product which they authorise, Member States shall forward to the Authority, who shall make available to the public, at the moment of publishing the draft assessment report pursuant to Article 13:

- (a) a list of the test and study reports necessary for first authorisation, amendment of the authorisation conditions or renewal of the authorisation; **■
- (b) a list of test and study reports for which protection is claimed under Article 62 and any justifications submitted in accordance with that Article; and

Tuesday 23 October 2007

(c) a summary of the results of the tests and study reports to establish the efficacy of the product and its harmlessness to humans, animals, plants and the environment.

3. The lists provided for in paragraphs 1 and 2 shall include information on whether those test and study reports were certified as compliant with the principles of Good Laboratory Practice or with the principles of Good Experimental Practice.

Article 64

General rules on avoidance of duplicative testing

1. Any persons intending to seek an authorisation for a plant protection product shall, before carrying out tests or studies, consult the database referred to in Articles 36, 60 and 63.

2. Any persons intending to seek, renew or review an authorisation for a plant protection product shall, before carrying out tests or studies, inform the competent authority of the Member State to which they intend to make an application that an authorisation has already been granted in that or another Member State for a plant protection product containing the same active substance, safener or synergist, referring to the relevant information in the database.

The prospective applicant shall submit all data regarding the identity and impurities of the active substance he proposes to use. The enquiry shall be supported by evidence that the prospective applicant intends to apply for an authorisation.

3. The competent authority of the Member State, where satisfied that the prospective applicant intends to apply for an authorisation, or the renewal or review thereof, shall provide him with the name and address of the holder or holders of previous relevant authorisations and shall at the same time inform the holders of the authorisations of the name and address of the applicant.

4. The prospective applicant for the authorisation, or the renewal or review thereof, and the holder or holders of relevant authorisations shall take all reasonable steps to reach agreement on the sharing of any test and study reports protected under Article 62 that are required by the applicant for the authorisation, or the renewal or review, of a plant protection product. Such an agreement may be replaced by submission of the matter to an arbitration board and acceptance of the arbitration order. In an endeavour to ensure that the costs of sharing the information are determined in a fair, transparent and non-discriminatory way, the Commission may, in accordance with the regulatory procedure referred to in Article 83(3), adopt cost-sharing guidelines based on those principles.

5. Where the Member State considers that a monopoly might be created, and the prospective applicant and the holder or holders of the authorisations for plant protection products containing the same active substance, safener, or synergist cannot reach agreement on the sharing of any tests and studies involving vertebrate animals, the prospective applicant shall inform the competent authority of the Member State to that effect. The two parties shall nevertheless agree which courts and tribunals have jurisdiction for the purposes of the second subparagraph of Article 65(3).

Sharing of tests and studies involving vertebrate animals

1. Tests and studies involving vertebrate animals shall not be repeated for the purposes of this Regulation. Any person intending to perform tests and studies involving vertebrate animals shall take the necessary measures to verify that those tests and studies have not already been performed or initiated, in particular by consulting the database.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

2. The prospective applicant and the holder or holders of the relevant authorisations shall make every effort to ensure that they share tests and studies involving vertebrate animals. The costs of sharing the test and study reports shall be determined in a fair, transparent and non-discriminatory way. The prospective applicant is required to share in the costs that accrue during the entire process of generating the information he is required to submit to meet the authorisation requirements.

3. Where the prospective applicant and the holder or holders of the relevant authorisations of plant protection products containing the same active substance, safener or synergist cannot reach agreement on the sharing of test and study reports involving vertebrate animals, the prospective applicant shall inform the competent authority of the Member State. The two parties shall nevertheless agree which courts have jurisdiction for the purpose of the second subparagraph.

The failure to reach agreement, as provided in paragraph 2, shall not prevent the competent authority of the Member State from using the test and study reports involving vertebrate animals for the purpose of the application of the prospective applicant. The holder or holders of the relevant authorisation shall have a claim on the prospective applicant for an equal share of the costs incurred by him, which shall be enforceable before the courts of a Member State, as designated by the parties under the first subparagraph. Those courts shall have regard to the principles in paragraph 2.

4. Not later than ... (*), the Commission shall carry out a review of the provisions in this Regulation concerning data protection for tests and studies involving vertebrate animals. The Commission shall submit this assessment, and any proposed amendments for limiting the data protection with regard to animal experiments, to the European Parliament and the Council.

Chapter VI

Public access to information

Confidentiality

1. A person claiming under Articles 8(5), 13(1), 16(2), 17 or 33(4) that information submitted by that person under this Regulation is to be treated as confidential shall provide a verifiable justification to show that the disclosure of the information might undermine his commercial interests, as referred to in the first indent of Article 4(2) of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2001 regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents⁽¹⁾, or any interest protected by Article 4(1) of that Regulation.

2. An opportunity to comment shall be given to the applicant before the competent authority adopts a decision as to the confidentiality of the data, which shall be binding on all Member States, the Authority and the Commission. The decision, which must be notified to the applicant, shall contain an adequate justification. The applicant shall have the right to challenge such decision in court before it is implemented, with a view to having the assessments and decision made by the competent authority reviewed by the court and to preventing disclosure of the data in question.

3. As regards the commercial interests referred to in paragraph 1, only the following elements shall be considered confidential:

- (a) the method of manufacture;
- (b) the specification of purity of the active substance except for the impurities that are considered to be toxicologically, ecotoxicologically or environmentally relevant;
- (c) information on the complete composition of a plant protection product;
- (d) names and addresses of institutions and persons involved in testing on vertebrate animals.

(*) Seven years after the entry into force of this Regulation.

4. For test data, including study reports, which have been provided by an applicant to support a decision to authorise or to amend an authorisation for a plant protection product under this Regulation, such data may be viewed by interested parties in specific locations identified by the Commission, the Authority or the Member States. Such data shall not be made public through the provision of copies or through any other means of publication (including electronic publication).

Chapter VII

Packaging, labelling and advertising of plant protection products and adjuvants

Article 67

Packaging and presentation

1. Plant protection products and adjuvants that may be mistaken for food, drink or feed shall be packaged in such a way as to minimise the likelihood of such a mistake being made.
2. Plant protection products and adjuvants available to the general public that may be mistaken for food, drink or feed shall contain components to discourage or prevent their consumption.
3. Article 9 of Directive 1999/45/EC shall also apply to plant protection products and adjuvants not covered by that Directive.

Labelling

1. The labelling of plant protection products shall comply with the requirements set out in a Regulation adopted in accordance with the advisory procedure referred to in Article 83(2).

That Regulation shall also contain standard phrases for special risks and safety precautions which supplement the phrases provided for by Directive 1999/45/EC. It shall transfer the text of the Annexes IV and V to Directive 91/414/EEC with any modifications necessary due to the change from a directive to a regulation.

2. Member States may require samples or mock-ups of the packaging and drafts of labels and leaflets to be submitted for examination before an authorisation is granted.
3. Where a Member State considers that additional phrases are necessary to protect human or animal health or the environment, it shall notify the other Member States and the Commission forthwith and shall forward the additional phrase or phrases and the reasons for these requirements.

Such phrases shall be included in the Regulation referred to in paragraph 1.

Pending that inclusion, the Member State may require the use of the additional phrase or phrases.

4. Food products which do not comply with the provisions of Commission Directive 2006/125/EC of 5 December 2006 on processed cereal-based foods and baby foods for infants and young children⁽²⁾, shall be labelled 'not suitable for infants and young children'.

Article 69

Advertising

1. Every advertisement for a plant protection product shall be accompanied by the sentences 'Use plant protection products safely. Always read the label and product information before use'. These sentences shall be clearly distinguishable in relation to the whole advertisement. The words 'plant protection products' may be replaced by a more precise description of the product-type, such as fungicide, insecticide or herbicide.

2. The advertisement shall not include information which could be misleading as regards possible risks to human or animal health or to the environment, such as the terms 'low risk', 'non-toxic' or 'harmless'.

3. Member States may prohibit or restrict the advertising of plant protection products in certain media.

Chapter VIII

Controls

Article 70

Record keeping

1. Producers, suppliers, distributors and professional users of plant protection products shall keep records of the plant protection products they produce, store or use for at least 10 years after the end of production or use.

They shall make the information contained in these records available to the competent authority. They shall also keep this information available for neighbours and residents, retailers or the drinking water industry who request direct access to it. The information on all applications of plant protection products on a given agricultural product shall be provided to retailers and wholesalers in the form of a pesticide passport.

2. Producers of plant protection products shall undertake post-registration monitoring. They shall notify the competent authorities of any relevant information and keep the information available to relevant stakeholders on request.

3. Producers of plant protection products shall inform the competent authorities about:

- the amounts produced of a given substance or product,
- the amounts of a given substance or product delivered to processors or wholesalers within the EU,
- the amounts exported of a given substance or product.

This information shall be assessed and published by the competent authorities.

ANNEX I

PROCEDURE AND CRITERIA FOR THE APPROVAL OF ACTIVE SUBSTANCES, SAFENERS AND SYNERGISTS PURSUANT TO CHAPTER II

1. Evaluation
 - 1.1. During the process of evaluation and decision-making provided for in Articles 4 to 22, the rapporteur Member State and the Authority shall cooperate with applicants to resolve any questions on the dossier quickly or to identify at an early stage any additional studies necessary for the evaluation of the dossier, including information to eliminate the need for a restriction of the approval, or to amend any proposed conditions for the use of the plant protection product or to modify its nature or its composition in order to ensure full satisfaction of the requirements of this Regulation.
 - 1.2. The evaluation by the Authority and the rapporteur Member State must be based on scientific principles and be made with the benefit of expert advice.
 - 1.3. During the process of evaluation and decision-making provided for in Articles 4 to 22, Member States and the Authority shall take into consideration any further guidance developed in the framework of the Standing Committee on the Food Chain and Animal Health for the purposes of refining, where relevant, the risk assessments.
2. General decision-making criteria
 - 2.1. Article 8(1) shall only be considered as complied with, where, on the basis of the dossier submitted, authorisation in at least one Member State is expected to be possible for at least one plant protection product containing that active substance for at least one of the representative uses.
 - 2.2. Submission of further information

In principle an active substance shall only be approved where a complete dossier is submitted.

In exceptional cases an active substance may be approved even though certain information is still to be submitted where:

 - (a) the data requirements have been amended or refined after the submission of the dossier or;
 - (b) the information is considered to be confirmatory in nature, as required to increase the confidence in the decision.

In such cases the additional information shall be submitted to the rapporteur Member State for evaluation within a deadline set by the Commission. The Member State shall report to the Commission on the results of the assessment.
 - 2.3. Restrictions on approval

Restrictions on approval, where necessary, may be linked to:

 - identification of unacceptable risks under particular conditions;
 - gaps in the risk assessment resulting from the limited range of representative uses and preparations notified by the applicant.

Where the rapporteur Member State considers that the dossier provided lacks certain information, to the effect that the active substance could only be approved subject to restrictions, it shall contact the applicant at an early stage to obtain more information which may possibly enable these restrictions to be removed.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

3. Criteria for the approval of an active substance

3.1. Dossier

The dossiers submitted pursuant to Article 8(1) shall contain the information needed to establish, where relevant, Acceptable Daily Intake (ADI), Acceptable Operator Exposure Level (AOEL) and Acute Reference Dose (ARfD).

In the case of an active substance for which the limited range of representative uses includes use on feed or food crops or leads indirectly to residues in food or feed, the dossier submitted pursuant to Article 8(1) shall contain the information necessary to carry out a risk assessment and for enforcement purposes.

The dossier shall in particular:

- (a) permit any residue of concern to be defined;
- (b) reliably predict the residues in food and feed, including succeeding crops;
- (c) reliably predict, where relevant, the corresponding residue level reflecting the effects of processing and/or mixing;
- (d) permit a Maximum Residue Level (MRL) to be defined for the commodity and, where appropriate, for products of animal origin where the commodity or parts of it is fed to animals;
- (e) permit, where relevant, concentration or dilution factors due to processing and/or mixing to be defined.

The dossier submitted pursuant to Article 8(1) shall be sufficient to permit, where relevant, an estimate of the fate and distribution of the active substance in the environment, and its impact on non-target species.

3.2. Efficacy

An active substance shall only be approved where it has been established for an extensive range of representative uses that the plant protection product, consequent on application consistent with good plant protection product practice and having regard to realistic conditions of use, is sufficiently effective. This requirement shall be evaluated in the light of the uniform principles for evaluation and authorisation of plant protection products referred to in Article 30(5).

3.3. Toxic relevance of breakdown products

Where the limited range of representative uses includes use on food or feed crops, the documentation submitted shall be sufficient to permit the establishment of the toxicological relevance of breakdown products that were not present in the animals used in the test or studies performed on the active substance but which are formed in or on treated plants, as a result of processing or are found in studies performed on livestock animals.

3.4. Composition of the active substance

3.4.1. The specification shall define the minimum degree of purity, the identity and maximum content of impurities, and where relevant of isomers / diastereo-isomers and additives, and the content of impurities of toxicological, ecotoxicological or environmental concern within acceptable limits.

3.4.2. The specification shall be in compliance with the relevant FAO specification where such specification exists. However where necessary for reasons of protection of human or animal health or the environment, stricter specifications may be adopted.

- 3.5.3. The evaluation has been carried out in accordance with the uniform principles for evaluation and authorisation of plant protection products referred to in Article 30(5).

3.6. Impact on human health

- 3.6.1. Where relevant, an ADI, AOEL and ARfD shall be established. When establishing such values an appropriate safety margin of at least 100 shall be ensured taking into account the type and severity of effects, possible combination effects and the vulnerability of specific groups of the population particularly at risk.
- 3.6.2. An active substance shall only be approved if, on the basis of assessment of higher tier genotoxicity testing carried out in accordance with the data requirements for the active substances and the plant protection products and other available data and information including a review of the scientific literature, it is not or has not to be classified, in accordance with the provisions of Directive 67/548/EEC, as a mutagen category 1 or 2. Such active substances may only be approved if the exposure of humans to that active substance in a plant protection product, under realistic conditions of use, is negligible, as the product is used in closed systems or in other conditions excluding contact with humans and where residues of the active substance concerned on food and feed do not exceed the limit of determination using the most sensitive methods.
- 3.6.3. An active substance shall only be approved if, on the basis of assessment of carcinogenicity testing carried out in accordance with the data requirements for the active substances and the plant protection products and other available data and information including a review of the scientific literature, it is not or has not to be classified, in accordance with the provisions of Directive 67/548/EEC, as a carcinogen category 1 or 2. Such active substances may only be approved if the exposure of humans to that active substance in a plant protection product, under realistic conditions of use, is negligible, as the product is used in closed systems or in other conditions excluding contact with humans and where residues of the active substance concerned on food and feed do not exceed the limit of determination using the most sensitive methods.
- 3.6.4. Tuesday 23 October 2007

including when exposure is likely to happen during embryonic/foetal life and/or during childhood, taking due account of likely combination effects. Such active substances may only be approved if the exposure of humans to that active substance in a plant protection product, under realistic conditions of use, is negligible, as the product is used in closed systems or in other conditions excluding contact with humans and where residues of the active substance concerned on food and feed do not exceed the limit of determination using the most sensitive methods.

- 3.6.6. An active substance shall only be approved if, on the basis of the assessment or other available data and information including a review of the scientific literature, it is not considered to cause a risk of developmental neurotoxic or immunotoxic properties in humans, taking into account exposure during embryonic/foetal life and/or during childhood as well as likely combination effects. Such active substances may only be approved if the exposure of humans to that active substance in a plant protection product, under realistic conditions of use, is negligible, as the product is used in closed systems or in other conditions excluding contact with humans and where residues of the active substance concerned on food and feed do not exceed the limit of determination using the most sensitive methods.

3.7. Fate and behaviour in the environment

- 3.7.1. An active substance shall only be approved where it, and its transformation products or residues, are not considered to be persistent organic pollutants.

A persistent organic pollutant is defined as follows:

- (a) Persistence:
- (i) Evidence that its DT50 in water is greater than two months, or that its DT50 in soil is greater than six months, or that its DT50 in sediment is greater than six months;
 - (ii) Evidence that the active substance is otherwise sufficiently persistent to justify its exclusion from Annex I to Directive 91/414/EEC, or to be considered in the context of the POPs Convention; or
- (b) Bio-accumulation:
- (i) Evidence that its bio-concentration factor or bio accumulation factor in aquatic species is greater than 2,000 or, in the absence of such data, that the log Ko/w or the log Ko/a is greater than 5;
 - (ii) Evidence that a chemical presents other reasons for concern, such as high bio-accumulation in other non-target species, high toxicity or ecotoxicity; or
 - (iii) Monitoring data in biota indicating that the bio-accumulation potential of the active substance is sufficient to be considered under the POPs Convention;
- (c) Potential for long-range environmental transport:
- (i) Measured levels of the active substance in locations distant from the sources of its release that are of potential concern;
 - (ii) Monitoring data showing that long-range environmental transport of the active substance, with the potential for transfer to a receiving environment, may have occurred via air, water or migratory species; or
 - (iii) Environmental fate properties and/or model results that demonstrate that the active substance has a potential for long-range environmental transport through air, water or migratory species, with the potential for transfer to a receiving environment in locations distant from the sources of its release. For an active substance that migrates significantly through the air, its DT50 in air should be greater than two days.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

- 3.7.2. An active substance shall only be approved if it, and its transformation products or residues, are not considered to be 1 persistent, bioaccumulating and toxic (PBT) substances.

A substance that fulfils all three of the criteria of the sections below is a PBT substance.

3.7.2.1. Persistence

An active substance fulfils the persistence criterion where:

- the half-life in marine water is higher than 60 days, or
- the half-life in fresh or estuarine water is higher than 40 days, or
- the half-life in marine sediment is higher than 180 days, or
- the half-life in fresh or estuarine water sediment is higher than 120 days, or
- the half-life in soil is higher than 120 days.

Assessment of persistency in the environment shall be based on available half-life data collected under appropriate conditions, which shall be described by the applicant.

It also fulfils the persistence criterion where there is evidence that the substance is otherwise sufficiently persistent to be of concern.

3.7.2.2. Bioaccumulation

An active substance fulfils the bioaccumulation criterion where the bioconcentration factor (BCF) is higher than 2000.

Assessment of bioaccumulation shall be based on measured data on bioconcentration in aquatic species. Data from both freshwater and marine water species can be used.

3.7.2.3. Toxicity

An active substance fulfils the toxicity criterion where:

- the long-term no-observed effect concentration (NOEC) for marine or freshwater organisms is less than 0.01 mg/l, or
- the substance is classified as carcinogenic (category 1, 2 or 3), mutagenic (category 1, 2 or 3), or toxic for reproduction (category 1, 2, or 3), or

- 3.7.3. An active substance shall not be considered as complying with Article 4 where it, or its transformation products or residues, are very persistent, very bioaccumulating (vPvB).

Tuesday 23 October 2007

A substance that fulfils both of the criteria of the sections below is a vPvB substance.

3.7.3.1. Persistence

An active substance fulfils the very persistent criterion (vP-) where there is evidence that:

- the half-life in marine, fresh- or estuarine water is higher than 60 days, or
- the half-life in marine, fresh- or estuarine water sediment is higher than 180 days, or
- the half-life in soil is higher than 180 days.

It also fulfils the very persistent criterion where there is evidence that the substance is otherwise sufficiently highly persistent to be of concern.

3.7.3.2. Bioaccumulation

An active substance fulfils the very bioaccumulative criterion where the bioconcentration factor is greater than 5000.

Assessment of bioaccumulation shall be based on measured data on bioconcentration in aquatic species. Data from both freshwater and marine water species can be used.

It also fulfils the very bioaccumulative criterion when there is evidence of very high bioaccumulation in other species, or monitoring data in biota indicate that the bioaccumulation potential of the substance is sufficient to be of concern.

3.8. Ecotoxicology

3.8.1. An active substance shall only be considered as complying with Article 4 if the risk assessment demonstrates risks to be acceptable in accordance with the criteria laid down in the uniform principles for evaluation and authorisation of plant protection products referred to in Article 37 under realistic proposed conditions of use of a plant protection product containing the active substance. The assessment must take into account the severity of effects on biodiversity, the uncertainty of the data, and the number of organism groups which the active substance is expected to affect adversely by the intended use.

3.8.2. An active substance shall only be considered as complying with Article 4 if, on the basis of the assessment of Community or internationally agreed test guidelines, it is not considered to have endocrine disrupting properties that may be of toxicological significance on non-target organisms unless the exposure of non-target organisms to that active substance in a plant protection product, under realistic proposed conditions of use is negligible.

3.8.3. An active substance shall only be approved, if, on the basis of the assessment of Community or internationally agreed test guidelines and other available data and information including a review of the scientific literature, it is not considered to be toxic for bees and has a Hazard Quotient (HQ) lower than 50.

3.9. Residue definition

An active substance shall only be approved if ■ a residue definition can be established and analytical methods in general use are capable of detecting them for the purposes of risk assessment and for enforcement purposes.

3.10. Food-chain effects

An active substance shall only be approved if its impact on the food chain of higher organisms is considered to be acceptable on the basis of a scientifically approved risk assessment methodology and, if approved, the assessed impact on the ecosystem is reduced through a system of mitigation and compensation.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

3.11. Water policy

Substances on the list of priority hazardous substances for water policy annexed to Directive 2000/60/EC should not be approved.

4. Criteria for approval as a candidate for substitution

An active substance shall be defined as a candidate for substitution pursuant to Article 25 where any of the following conditions are met:

- its ADI, ARfD or AOEL is lower than those of the majority of the approved active substances, taking into account residents, bystanders and the most vulnerable population groups;
- it meets one of the criteria to be considered as a PBT substance;
- it is prone to leaching to groundwater;
- there are reasons for concern linked to the nature of the critical effects and properties which may give rise to very restrictive risk management measures (such as extensive personal protective equipment or very large buffer zones);
- it has potentially endocrine disrupting, neurotoxic or immunotoxic properties, in adults or during development, on the basis of assessment and other available data and information including a review of scientific literature;

ANNEX IV

COMPARATIVE ASSESSMENT PURSUANT TO ARTICLE 53

1. Conditions for comparative assessment

A comparative assessment shall be performed by Member States when evaluating an application for authorisation for a plant protection product. In this process, priority shall be given to plant protection products containing an active substance approved as a candidate for substitution.

Tuesday 23 October 2007

Where refusal or withdrawal of an authorisation of a plant protection product in favour of an alternative plant protection product is considered (hereinafter 'substitution'), the alternative must, in the light of scientific and technical knowledge, show significantly lower risk to health or the environment. An assessment of the alternative plant protection product shall be performed to demonstrate whether it can be used with similar effect on the target organism and without significant economic and practical disadvantages to the user or not.

Further conditions for refusal or withdrawal of an authorisation are:

- (a) substitution shall be applied only where the ■ diversity of the active substances and other non-chemical methods of plant protection and pest and crop management is sufficient to minimise the occurrence of resistance in the target organism;
- (b) substitution may be applied by Member States to all active substances which, where used in authorised plant protection products, present a ■ higher level of risk to human health or the environment;

2. Significant difference in risk

A significant difference in risk, especially for health risks, shall be identified on a case-by-case basis by the competent authorities, taking into account known cumulative and synergistic effects. The properties of the active substance, and the possibility of exposure of different population subgroups (professional or non-professional users, bystanders, workers, residents, specific vulnerable groups or consumers) directly or indirectly through food, feed, water or the environment shall be taken into account. Other factors such as the stringency of imposed restrictions on use and prescribed personal protective equipment must also be considered.

For the environment, taking into account known cumulative and synergistic effects, a factor of at least 3 between the Predicted Environmental Concentration (PEC) and the Predicted No Effect Concentration (PNEC) ratios of different active substances is considered a significant difference in risk.

3. Significant practical or economic disadvantages

Significant practical or economic disadvantage to the user is defined as a major quantifiable impairment of working practices or business activity leading to inability to maintain sufficient control of the target organism. Such a major impairment might be, for example, where no technical facilities for the use of the alternative substance(s) are available or economically feasible.

Where a comparative assessment indicates that restrictions/prohibitions of use of a plant protection product could cause such disadvantage, then this will be taken into account in the decision-making process. This situation must be substantiated.

The comparative assessment shall take authorised minor uses into account.

Immunity and privileges of Gian Paolo Gobbo

European Parliament decision of 24 October 2007 on the request for consultation on the immunity and privileges of Gian Paolo Gobbo (2007/2014(IMM))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the request made by the judge at the preliminary hearing before the District Court of Verona (Italy) for consultation on the parliamentary immunity of Gian Paolo Gobbo, in connection with criminal procedure No. 81/96 R.G.N.R., announced in plenary sitting on 18 January 2007,
 - having heard Gian Paolo Gobbo in accordance with Rule 7(3) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to Articles 9 and 10 of the Protocol of 8 April 1965 on the Privileges and Immunities of the European Communities and Article 6(2) of the Act of 20 September 1976 concerning the election of the members of the European Parliament by direct universal suffrage,
 - having regard to the judgments of 12 May 1964 and 10 July 1986 ⁽¹⁾ of the Court of Justice of the European Communities,
 - having regard to Article 68 of the Constitution of the Italian Republic,
 - having regard to Article 3 of Italian Law No. 140 of 20 June 2003,
 - having regard to Rules 6(1) and 7(13) of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Legal Affairs (A6-0367/2007),
- A. whereas Gian Paolo Gobbo is a Member of the European Parliament whose credentials were verified by Parliament on 15 January 2007,
- B. whereas Mr Gobbo is charged — along with many other people, of whom some have been identified and others have not — with the offence of promoting, setting up, leading and participating in a paramilitary association with political objectives, under the title of ‘the Greenshirts’,
- C. whereas, according to the Italian Prosecutors’ Office, the Greenshirts’ aim was to set up a hierarchically organised body which was trained to take collective action of a violent or threatening nature and was also used to intimidate any members of the movement who were opposed to the political directives issued by its leaders and prevent them from engaging in debate inside the movement, thus helping to impose a definite political line on the ‘Lega Nord’ movement by silencing any expression of dissent within it,
- D. whereas Article 9 of the Protocol on Privileges and Immunities only accords Members full protection from legal proceedings in respect of opinions expressed and votes cast by them in the performance of their duties,
- E. whereas participating in a semi-military-style uniformed association which apparently gave the impression that it would seek to achieve its objectives through the potential or actual use of force is clearly contradictory to, and incompatible with, the role and responsibilities attaching to a parliamentary mandate and cannot therefore be regarded as a legitimate exercise of freedom of speech or as constituting, in general, the normal performance of the duties of members belonging to an elected assembly representing citizens,

Wednesday 24 October 2007

- F. whereas, pursuant to Article 10 of the Protocol on Privileges and Immunities, which is the sole provision applicable, during the sessions of the European Parliament its Members enjoy in the territory of their own State the immunities accorded to members of their national parliament; whereas this does not prevent the European Parliament from exercising its right to waive the immunity of one of its Members,
- G. whereas under Article 68 of the Italian Constitution, members of the Italian Parliament do not enjoy immunity from criminal prosecution, except in respect of opinions expressed or votes cast by them in the exercise of their functions, which is not the case in the present instance,
1. Considers that parliamentary immunity within the meaning of Article 9 of the Protocol on the Privileges and Immunities of the European Communities and, in so far as it is relevant, Article 68, first subparagraph, of the Italian Constitution does not cover the facts alleged against Mr Gian Paolo Gobbo, and therefore decides not to defend his immunity and privileges;
 2. Instructs its President to forward this decision, and the report of its committee responsible, immediately to the appropriate authorities of the Italian Republic.

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Communication from the Commission to the Council, the European Parliament, the European Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions: 'A Thematic Strategy on the Sustainable Use of Pesticides' (COM(2006)0372),
- having regard to Decision No 1600/2002/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 July 2002 laying down the Sixth Community Environment Action Programme⁽¹⁾,
- having regard to the proposal for a directive of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a framework for Community Action to achieve a sustainable use of pesticides (COM(2006)0373),
- having regard to the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market (COM(2006)0388),
- having regard to the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council concerning statistics on plant protection products (COM(2006)0778),
- having regard to Article 175 of the Treaty,
- having regard to Article 6 of the Treaty, by virtue of which environmental protection must be integrated into the definition and implementation of the Community policies in particular with a view to promoting sustainable development,
- having regard to Regulation (EC) No 396/2005 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 February 2005 on maximum residue levels of pesticides in or on food and feed of plant and animal origin⁽²⁾,
- having regard to Directive 2000/60/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 October 2000 establishing a framework for Community action in the field of water policy⁽³⁾ ('Framework Directive on water policy'), Council Directive 98/83/EC of 3 November 1998 on the quality of water intended for human consumption⁽⁴⁾, Council Directive 75/440/EEC of 16 June 1975 concerning the quality required of surface water intended for the abstraction of drinking water in the Member States⁽⁵⁾ and Directive 2006/118/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 December 2006 on the protection of groundwater against pollution and deterioration⁽⁶⁾,

Wednesday 24 October 2007

- having regard to Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH) and establishing a European Chemicals Agency⁽¹⁾ and Directive 2006/121/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2006 amending Council Directive 67/548/EEC on the approximation of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the classification, packaging and labelling of dangerous substances in order to adapt it to Regulation (EC) No 1907/2006⁽²⁾,
 - having regard to Directive 2004/35/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 April 2004 on environmental liability with regard to the prevention and remedying of environmental damage⁽³⁾, Council Directive 92/43/EEC of 21 May 1992 on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora⁽⁴⁾ and Council Directive 79/409/EEC of 2 April 1979 on the conservation of wild birds⁽⁵⁾,
 - having regard to the synthesis report of the Commission and of the Dutch ministries of Housing, Spatial Planning and the Environment and of Agriculture, Nature Management and Fisheries entitled 'Possibilities for Future EU Environmental Policy on Plant Protection Products' (1997),
 - having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on the Environment, Public Health and Food Safety and the opinion of the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development (A6-0291/2007),
- A. whereas the use of plant protection products (PPPs) in the EU between 1992 and 2003 remained significant and has not decreased despite the proactive policies successfully pursued in some Member States to reduce the use of farm pesticides,
- B. whereas undesirable amounts of certain pesticides can still be found in the environment, in particular in soil and water; whereas residues exceeding regulatory limit values are still found in agricultural produce,
- C. whereas although the benefits which derive from the use of pesticides and the role they play in ensuring an efficient and sustainable competitive agricultural production in Europe are undeniable, the general public should be better informed on the possible health and environmental risks and short and long-term adverse effects related to their use;
- D. whereas continued use of pesticides should be possible only if the precautionary principle is upheld with regard to both human health and the protection of the water and land ecosystem; whereas this means that pesticides should not be used before all impact assessments regarding health and the environment have been carried out; and whereas comparing data and best practices in use reduction in the different Member States should be encouraged and taken into account as a point of reference,
- E. whereas a transparent system for reporting and monitoring pesticide use and residue levels in products, including the development of appropriate indicators, is lacking;
1. Acknowledges the need for a European legal framework in the field of pesticide use as legislation in force has not proved sufficient to achieve the prevention of the hazards and risks to health and environment posed by the use of pesticides;
2. Considers it important to adopt new legislation based on an approach more firmly centred on reducing pesticide use and more ambitious in terms of environmental performance, through the provision of meaningful support for organic farming and integrated production methods;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

3. Welcomes the Thematic Strategy on the Sustainable Use of Pesticides ('Thematic Strategy') which identifies the shortcomings of current Community legislation and proposes to regulate the use phase to 'fill the gap' between the placing of PPPs on the market on the one hand and the end of life-cycle of such products on the other;
4. Points out that the EU has now adopted more than a dozen legal acts which directly or indirectly regulate the use of PPPs; stresses, however, that the proposed provisions governing the use of PPPs are leading in the right direction;
5. Notes that the Thematic Strategy covers only PPPs, which constitute only a part of pesticides; calls on the Commission forthwith to include pest control products (biocidal product types 14-19) as defined in Annex V to Directive 98/8/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 February 1998 concerning the placing of biocidal products on the market ⁽¹⁾ within the scope of the Thematic Strategy, as they pose similar risks to human health and the environment, and urges the Commission to extend the scope of the Thematic Strategy to include other biocides as soon as possible;
6. Considers it essential to improve the behaviour of pesticide users in order to avoid misuse, overuse and poisoning accidents; welcomes the creation of a system of training and education for professional pesticide users, for which the Commission should draw up guidelines which take account of the differences which exist between the various European regions; considers that certification and training must be a prerequisite for the employment of professional pesticide users and that ongoing professional development should also be provided, in order to update their technical skills and knowledge and to ensure safe and effective use of pesticides; suggests that advisory services to farmers be set up or enhanced in order to increase their awareness concerning safe use of pesticides and encourage the exchange of good practices;
7. Calls on the Commission to consider, in accordance with the polluter-pays principle, suitable ways of involving manufacturers of PPPs and/or their active agents in the work of dealing with or remedying the damage to human health or the environment which might be caused by the use of PPPs;
8. Recommends that the sale and distribution of pesticides be performed under the supervision of a qualified professional or practitioner, and that those transactions be recorded in a register to ensure adequate control of the marketing and use of such products;
9. Stresses that minimisation of the hazards and risks to health and environment from the use of pesticides cannot be effectively achieved without a constructive dialogue and capacity building, including financial stimulation, with third countries together with stringent checks on products imported into the EU to ensure a level playing field for competition;
10. Calls on the Commission to formulate a protection and cooperation policy vis-à-vis the EU's neighbours, on the use of pesticides and PPPs;
11. Emphasises the importance of the media's role in informing the general public, and non-professional users of pesticides in particular, about pesticide issues; and suggests that public information and awareness-raising campaigns be devised;
12. Welcomes in general the measures chosen by the Commission; stresses, however, that ambitious National Action Plans of the Member States are key elements in the whole process;
13. Regrets, furthermore, that the Commission opted for the exclusion of quantitative and qualitative criteria in the National Action Plans, thus reducing their level of ambition;
14. Stresses that without quantitative use reduction targets in the National Action Plans, the notion 'reduction of hazards, risks and dependence on pesticides' is very imprecisely and ambiguously defined, and will not push the Member States to lower the amount of pesticides used or to prioritise non-chemical alternatives for plant protection and pest and crop management;

15. Suggests that the Commission should combine the elimination of hazards, risks and dependence on pesticides with quantitative criteria in the National Action Plans, by stipulating that Member States must set their own national targets, timetables and criteria for reducing pesticide use, taking into account the positive experience from some Member States which already use quantitative reduction targets, which has demonstrated that pesticide use can be reduced without significant costs to farmers;
16. Stresses that a commitment to curb the use of PPPs to make them less dangerous and to seek alternative plant protection products, resources and methods which are more environmentally friendly and less harmful to humans and animals will, in addition to environmental and public health benefits, improve the quality of European agricultural products and increase their added value as a result of widespread public awareness and consumer sensitivity regarding these issues;
17. Agrees that National Action Plans should be adapted to the specific climatic, agricultural and pest conditions of each Member State, where certain specific treatments are necessary and particularly in the case of minor crops;
18. Hopes that the Commission will specify the Community financial aid that can be harnessed by Member States to conduct studies, compile databases and enhance knowledge concerning pesticides;
19. Welcomes the statement by the Commission that the most important expected outcome of the Thematic Strategy is the reduction of the negative impacts of pesticide use on human health;
20. Regrets that, although pesticides are linked to immunological effects, endocrine-disrupting effects, neurotoxic disorders and cancer⁽¹⁾, health is only marginally mentioned in the Thematic Strategy;
21. Emphasises that substances which are carcinogenic, mutagenic or toxic to reproduction, or persistent, bio-accumulative or toxic, or which show endocrine disrupting properties, must not be approved as active substances in pesticides;
22. Points out that fetuses, infants, children as well as pregnant women, the elderly, the chronically sick and those with pre-existing medical problems, as well as users of pesticides and rural residents and communities, are more vulnerable and more exposed to pesticides, especially to cumulative effects of different types of pesticides, than the rest of the population;
23. Points out that prior authorisation of a PPP is a precondition for its use and that such authorisation is based on a scientific assessment of the PPP and its active agents in the course of which the product is tested to determine what risks it poses, when properly used, to human and animal health and the environment;
24. Considers it essential to conduct further research into the health effects of pesticide use, and particularly of combined and cumulative use;
25. Warmly welcomes the banning of substances on the basis of their intrinsic hazards and the so-called 'substitution principle' whereby the more dangerous substances will be removed from the market where safer, including non-chemical, alternatives exist;
26. Calls on the Commission, working together with the Member States and the industry, to take measures to prevent the import and marketing of counterfeit and/or unauthorised PPPs;
27. Calls on the Commission to ensure that when levels of pesticides which exceed the relevant limit values are found on and in imported foodstuffs the same measures are taken and the same penalties are imposed as in the case of products manufactured in the EU; calls for immediate steps to be taken to ensure that sufficiently frequent checks are carried out on imported goods (which are generally subject to less strict legislation on the use of PPPs meaning that there is a higher risk of illegal residue levels) in all Member States in the same way, so that European farmers and manufacturers are not placed at a disadvantage and a level playing field is established within the EU;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

28. Calls for appropriate controls and a ban on imports into the EU of foodstuffs produced using PPPs and pesticides whose use and marketing are not permitted in the EU;
29. Calls for coordinated systems for the collection of information on the production, import, export, sale, distribution and use of generally available pesticides;
30. Believes that designation of zones, including drinking water catchment protection areas, with reduced or zero pesticide use and enhanced protection of the aquatic environment from pollution by pesticides are necessary in order to avoid unwanted exposure; considers that 'buffer zones' of appropriate width taking account of the different agricultural, geographical and weather conditions should be established; considers that the use of pesticides should be prohibited in and around urban residential areas, public parks, sports grounds, school grounds and children's playgrounds, as the Commission has recognised that the risks to the general public from exposure to pesticides in such areas are high;
31. Notes the contamination of European groundwater and surface waters by pesticides and stresses the need to strengthen the cohesion of the Thematic Strategy with the Framework Directive on water policy; points out that water purifying, however, is mostly carried out only for human consumption, whereas the rest of the contaminated water gets into the human body from flora and fauna, giving rise subsequently to high treatment costs;
32. Recognises that the ban on aerial spraying is inevitable; considers, however, that spraying can be used where it presents clear environmental advantages or where there are no viable alternatives, but that at the same time it should be obligatory to notify the general public about the time of spraying, the amounts and the type of pesticide;
33. Calls on the Commission to speed up Community harmonisation of maximum residue levels, as the current situation means that there is an uneven playing field within the EU, hampering trade and confusing consumers;
34. Urges the Commission to set maximum residue levels as low as possible unless it can be proved that even the best techniques and methods available cannot prevent residue below a certain level; in this regard calls for Member States to improve the monitoring of pesticide concentrations in food products and environmental media;
35. Welcomes the proposed invitation to Member States to eliminate provisions allowing Member States to apply reduced VAT rates for pesticides; considers that the Commission should help Member States to introduce appropriate support measures for farmers, to be financed under rural development;
36. Calls on the Commission to support the Member States in setting up a system of taxes or levies in order to influence — quantitatively and qualitatively — pesticide use;
37. Insists that the Commission propose clear definitions and minimum criteria for IPM, taking into account the increasing percentage of areas under organic farming in Europe and applying compulsory general and crop-specific IPM standards to all cultivated land except land under organic farming;
38. Acknowledges that numerous environmental concerns have been integrated into the various regulations which make up the Common Agricultural Policy, thereby making agricultural production methods more environment-friendly;
39. Points to the need for the dissemination of farming practices promoting the use of lower pesticide doses (among other things, integrated production and organic farming), which will contribute to an overall decrease in pesticide use;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

40. Urges the Member States to promote low pesticide-input farming and organic farming, and ensure that professional users of pesticides shift towards a more environment-friendly use of all available crop protection methods, giving priority to non-chemical methods of plant protection and pest and crop management, for example crop rotation and weeding rather than to systematic use of pesticides;
 41. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to make adequate resources available for resistance research, for the cultivation and supply of a wide range of crops with various resistance characteristics, for research into crop rotation and soil cultivation methods to combat pests and plant diseases and for innovations in the area of plant protection, including non-chemical alternatives;
 42. Stresses that global warming is likely to lead to increased pest populations which may increase the frequency and the intensity of outbreaks; in this respect calls for examination of impacts of climate change not only on agricultural production but also in the context of environmental protection;
 43. Calls on the Member States to ensure the safe storage and handling of pesticides, and that unused, past-expiry pesticides and empty packaging are collected in a controlled way and obsolete pesticides are treated in accordance with the rules for hazardous waste;
 44. Calls for existing Community funding to be used for the safe disposal of obsolete pesticides, given that within the EU more than 200 000 tonnes of pesticides are still being stored in both underground dumps and open-air stockpiles;
 45. Recognises that well-maintained application equipment is essential for reducing the adverse impacts of pesticides on health and the environment, particularly as regards the workers, farmers and residents concerned, and stresses that application equipment must be regularly checked;
 46. Urges the Commission to take into account the extremely worrying issue of mortality amongst domestic bees — a problem associated with the use of certain systemic insecticides (containing the active substances Fipronil and Imidacloprid) in order to treat sunflower and maize seeds;
 47. Stresses the need to amend European trading standards relating to the shape, size and aesthetic qualities of fresh fruit and vegetables, which encourage the intensive use of pesticides;
 48. Urges the Commission to design the Thematic Strategy as an umbrella for existing and future legislation; suggests proposing an enforceable mix of instruments that are not contradictory but complementary to each other;
 49. Welcomes the fact that, on the basis of the Thematic Strategy, the Commission has put forward a comprehensive Community legal framework for measures designed to bring about the sustainable use of PPPs;
 50. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and to the parliaments and governments of the Member States.

- A. whereas the EU's high level of dependency on energy imports means that energy policy is becoming increasingly centred on issues relating to security of supply, renewable energy sources, energy saving, energy efficiency and diversification of the energy supply,
- B. whereas conventional energy sources, namely coal, oil, gas, and nuclear energy, will continue to play an important role in energy supply,
- C. whereas, unless preventive measures are taken, the EU's dependency on imports of fossil fuels will increase to 65 % of total consumption by 2030, and whereas gas and oil supplies are dogged by uncertainty due to geopolitical risks and growing competition in terms of demand,
- D. whereas the conversion of the coal sector is having significant economic and social effects in regions that have few alternatives in terms of the diversification of economic activity and job creation,
- E. whereas cars with an electric drive-train offer the potential for significant improvements in efficiency when charged with electricity from a low carbon source,
- F. whereas dependency on oil could be reduced incidentally as a result of the adoption of measures to tackle the significant greenhouse gas emissions of cars,
- G. whereas gross power production in the EU is derived from the various energy sources as follows: nuclear energy 31 %, coal 29 %, gas 19 %, renewables 14 % and oil 5 %,
- H. whereas the continued use of fossil fuels requires further efforts to be made in combating climate change,
- I. whereas the EU has set ambitious greenhouse gas reduction targets as a key part of its policy to combat climate change,
- J. whereas conventional sources of energy can be used to produce fuels,
- K. whereas, in the context of the restructuring of hard coal mining in the EU, it makes sense, even from the point of view of security of supply, to maintain the present level of access to the substantial domestic reserves that exist,
- L. whereas Community legislation such as Directive 2001/77/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 September 2001 on the promotion of electricity produced from renewable energy sources in the internal electricity market⁽¹⁾ has been instrumental in spurring technological development and private sector R&D investment,

Overview

1. Welcomes the Commission's abovementioned communications on sustainable power production from fossil fuels, on the European Strategic Energy Technology Plan and on the Nuclear Illustrative Programme;
2. Stresses that improving energy efficiency makes a major contribution to sustainability and security of supply, while at the same time improving export opportunities for EU producers;
3. Considers it important, in view of the increasing scarcity of resources, to diversify energy sources; also notes the importance for security of supply of nuclear fission and the possible future importance, for some countries, of nuclear fusion; draws attention to the importance for security of supply of regional resource use;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

4. Believes that further improvements in the efficiency of fossil fuel power plant technology are essential, as are further improvements in the safety standards of nuclear power plants, the rapid development of nuclear fusion technology and corresponding increases in research funding;
5. Calls on the Member States and regional and local authorities to diversify and decentralise energy generation using the most appropriate resources in all the various regions of the EU and taking account of specific regional characteristics;
6. Notes that increased access to sustainable energy is key to the ability of developing countries to achieve their Millennium Development Goals and that an estimated two billion people currently suffer from energy constraints that limit their opportunities for economic development and a better standard of living;
7. Emphasises that market distortions will continue to be seen in the internal energy market until the polluter-pays principle laid down in Article 174(2) of the EC Treaty is applied to energy policy; urges the Member States once again, therefore, to internalise within energy prices all external costs, including all environmental and follow-up costs;
8. Points out that energy prices must take into account the real external costs of energy production, including those relating to environmental protection;
9. Considers that the successful reduction of greenhouse gas emissions from the energy sector can only be achieved on the basis of increased use of low carbon technologies such as nuclear energy, clean coal and renewables;

Energy technology

10. Insists that sustainable energy supplies to the EU can only be achieved with significant research efforts and changes in consumer behaviour;
11. Welcomes the EU-US Transatlantic Economic Council, part of the EU-US Transatlantic Economic Partnership signed in Washington DC on 30 April 2007, which will help to build greater transatlantic understanding in relation to energy related topics; highlights the need to strengthen relations with regard to energy-related subjects, something which must also involve legislative aspects;
12. Notes that Europe leads the world in R&D in innovative energy technologies, including energy efficiency and renewables, and is, in particular, a leader in the area of nuclear fusion technologies;
13. Urges the Commission, the Member States, the regions, and other stakeholders to utilise the opportunities offered by cohesion policy and to invest in new energy technologies, both in renewable energy sources and in sustainable fossil fuel technologies ('low-emission power plants');
14. Urges the Member States and regional authorities to take measures to improve energy security by means of enhanced direct cooperation in the energy sector, particularly in border regions;
15. Recommends strong investment in innovation and applied research and capital investment in intelligent energy networks and smart grid technologies;
16. Notes that states and regions outside the EU are currently making massive investments in R&D which might threaten Europe's leading position in technology in the medium term, but that over-concentration of funding in any one field should be avoided; given the global responsibility to combat climate change, stresses that it would be undesirable for developing countries to lag behind in the deployment of carbon capture and storage (CCS) and emphasises the overriding importance of close cooperation with China and India in this regard;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

17. Stresses that the EU's lead in the field of technology, stemming from the research efforts made by the EU and the Member States, strengthens the competitiveness of its industry and creates jobs in the EU;
18. Calls on the EU, the Member States and businesses, in line with the principle of subsidiarity, to redouble their efforts in R&D in the field of energy, particularly with a view to enhancing the efficiency of energy production and supply, reducing environmental consequences, improving the safety of existing technologies, developing storage techniques for renewables and developing new generations of nuclear reactors and new energy technologies, including nuclear fusion;
19. Recommends that, as regards resources that are in limited supply and that will remain critical for the energy safety and independence of Member States over the coming years, the forthcoming European Strategic Energy Technology Plan should favour technological developments that optimally exploit their potential in order to reduce overall greenhouse gas emissions;
20. Notes that the targets for 2020 of a minimum of 20 % renewable energy in the EU's energy consumption and a 20 % improvement in energy efficiency put Europe on a course towards achieving much higher penetrations of renewables and greater deployment of energy-efficient technology in the longer term; considers it vital that the European Strategic Energy Technology Plan take full account of this long-term shift towards the use of renewable energy technology and improved energy performance in all sectors of the economy;
21. Welcomes the Commission's announcement that it intends to submit the European Strategic Energy Technology Plan to the 2008 Spring European Council; however, questions where the funding for the Plan will come from;
22. Calls on the Commission to support synthetic fuels technology, in view of its potential to reinforce security of energy supply and reduce emissions from the road transport sector in the EU;
23. Notes that public funding to support start-ups for new energy technologies should be appropriate in amount, should take into account their level of commercial viability and should end at the latest once the new technologies thus supported have become competitive;
24. Draws attention to the need, highlighted by the Council, to ensure that the most efficient available technology is used when new capacity is built and that greater use is made of combined heat and power (CHP), district heating and cooling and industrial residual heat;
25. Stresses that it would be in the interests of combating climate change to meet, as a minimum requirement, the Lisbon objectives and to propose an internationally agreed minimum percentage of budget revenue to be earmarked for research;

Fossil Fuels

26. Emphasises that fossil fuels will remain highly important to ensuring the EU's security of energy supply and stresses the value of natural gas as the fossil fuel with the lowest carbon content;
27. Stresses that fossil fuels will have to be used in the long term for electricity production until basic needs can be met from renewables;
28. Stresses the contribution which can be made to security of supply by indigenous energy sources, particularly the large coal reserves and the substantial untapped oil and gas reserves in some Member States and Norway; recommends that future energy generation sites be fitted with CCS technology where technically possible; believes that applicable legal and administrative rules should be commensurate with optimum production conditions;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

29. Considers that greater efforts must be made to curb emissions from fossil fuel power production and to increase its efficiency, inter alia, by supporting the development of CHP; notes, nevertheless, that some European power stations are already among the most efficient in the world;
30. Calls on the Commission to encourage investments in combined heat and power production; notes that highly efficient CHP can achieve double the efficiency of a normal coal-fired condensing plant;
31. Regards it as unwise, from the point of view of security of supply and cost-efficiency, to hamper the construction of the most modern and efficient coal-fired power stations by giving the wrong market incentives;
32. Calls on the Commission to ensure that the emissions trading system does not prevent the replacement of existing plants with modern plants – including nuclear power stations – that have a lesser impact on the climate;
33. Calls for further improvements to be made to the Kyoto Protocol Clean Development Mechanism so that it can fulfil its purpose of enabling the transfer of efficient, clean and appropriate energy technologies to developing countries;
34. Calls on the Commission, when checking the operation of the emissions trading system, to ensure that proper account is taken of the specific problem of the heat generation market, which largely consists of individual burners (boilers) fired by fossil fuels and which, given the small size of the burners, is not covered by the emissions trading system;
35. Calls for existing fossil fuel-fired power plants to improve their energy efficiency and environmental performance;
36. Notes that CCS technology is linked to losses of efficiency in power stations and that technical, environmental and legal issues relating to the storage of CO₂ represent challenges which can only be met by means of research and political initiatives; believes, however, that it is important that CCS technology devices should be fitted to fossil fuel plants at the earliest practical opportunity;
37. Is convinced that the most effective way of ensuring that greenhouse gases do not have an impact on climate change is to bring about a swift, substantial reduction in the production of such gases; in that connection, believes that CCS technology represents only one of the means which could be used to address the issue of climate change;
38. Notes that CCS is not necessarily a viable option for small power stations, which generate only relatively small amounts of energy and exist mainly for security of supply purposes;
39. In connection with CCS technology, calls for research also to be carried out in order to minimise efficiency losses, to promote safe CO₂ storage and to clarify chemical and biological processes for CO₂ capture;
40. Urges the commissioning of comprehensive geological mapping in order to identify the potential for safe CO₂ storage and the most appropriate sites;
41. Stresses that, while CCS is partly based on tried and tested individual technological components, it is not underpinned by an overall plan that is proven on an industrial scale;
42. Points to the lack of adequate information on the effects of CO₂ storage on geological strata,

Wednesday 24 October 2007

43. Regards it as unhelpful to impose mandatory requirements for CO₂-free power production in all power stations since, by the time the technology is developed and ready to be used, the EU emissions trading system will steer the deployment of CCS technology; nevertheless encourages industry to bear in mind the concept of 'capture ready' when developing new fossil fuel power plants;
44. Calls on the Commission rapidly to submit a proposal for legislation on CCS so as to respond to the legal issues surrounding the storage and transportation of CO₂ and thus establish the basis for investment security in connection with such projects;
45. Calls on the Commission to assess the potential risks from CCS and lay down requirements for the licensing of CCS activities and for adequately managing the risks and consequences identified;
46. Insists that, while the possibilities for geological storage as part of CCS technology are being studied, it must be ensured that CO₂ is stored safely and permanently in locations that do not allow leakages of carbon back into the atmosphere;
47. Takes the view that demonstration projects relating to clean-coal technologies must be carried out in areas where there is a tradition of coal mining and which are suffering the consequences of conversion plans and have been affected by the financial framework 2007-2013;
48. Calls on the Commission to lay down as soon as possible clear political guidelines for the further promotion of research into CCS technology, to explore ways in which CCS can be used in connection with commercial electricity generation and to submit proposals for avoiding inconsistencies between the application of CCS procedures and the emissions trading system, while at the same time ensuring that these guidelines and proposals do not hamper the development of renewable energies or efforts to increase energy efficiency;
49. Stresses the importance of informing residents in areas with coal-fired plants of their inherent dangers and points out the value of publishing plans to modernise existing power plants and reduce their environmental impact;
50. Recognises the fact that, at the current stage of technological progress, it is estimated that electricity from CCS solutions will be as expensive as electricity from renewable sources;
51. Stresses the importance of closer cooperation between the Commission and the private sector in making clean coal technology more feasible;
52. Stresses that, while greater R&D funding for CCS is needed, this must not be at the expense of funding for research into renewable energy;
53. Urges the Commission and the Member States to launch information campaigns on CCS technologies involving stakeholders and policy makers;
54. Warns against unilateral dependence on particular gas suppliers or supply routes, and stresses the importance of liquefied natural gas in the context of the diversification of gas imports;
55. Urges the Commission to carry out more extensive geological research aimed at finding new deposits of fossil fuels within the territory of the Member States;
56. Regrets that the Commission did not discuss in more detail security of oil supply in the context of the energy package, and calls on it to issue a communication on this topic;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

57. Points out that fossil fuels represent an important substratum which could be the basis for the large-scale production of hydrogen, both as an energy carrier and as a fuel;

58. Is concerned by the extensive construction of coal-fired power stations in China and India (which, as developing countries, are not bound by the Kyoto Protocol), stressing that China is expected to exceed the United States' CO₂ emissions during 2007; notes, however, that China and India are seeking to diversify energy sources; emphasises the export potential for EU clean-energy technologies; stresses that, in order to encourage reduced carbon emissions, whilst sustaining economic growth, clean-energy technology, accompanied by capacity building, must be a priority of EU infrastructure investment in the developing world;

59. Supports the Commission's collaboration with China, notably the 2005 EU-China Partnership on Climate Change and the subsequent 2006 Memorandum of Understanding on Cooperation on Near-Zero Emissions Power Generation Technology, which should encourage the development of clean energy technologies; calls on the Commission to work with China to draw up a roadmap for clean energy technology development in China and to identify the key actions and milestones for the development and deployment of clean energy technologies in that country; urges the Commission to establish similar relationships with other emerging economies, notably those of India and Brazil, which may also have extensive coal reserves;

60. Notes the findings of a 2005 International Energy Agency study which found that the deployment of some technologies within non-OECD countries could prove much more cost-effective and could be particularly significant where there are major differences between countries' geology and natural resources; considers that, where this is the case, countries could consider including financial support for developing countries to help them meet national deployment targets; stresses that the ability to trade deployment instruments across borders would therefore improve efficiency, ensuring that deployment takes place where it is most cost-effective;

61. Calls on the Commission to support the World Bank's and the Regional Development Banks' efforts to create an energy investment framework, addressing cost, risk and the institutional and informational barriers to scaling up public-private-partnerships supporting low carbon and carbon free technology; calls on the Commission to evaluate the various mechanisms designed to facilitate research and development collaboration, such as the Asia-Pacific Partnership on Clean Development and Climate and the Carbon Sequestration Leadership Forum and other technology transfer objectives; calls on the Commission to develop assessment criteria for international financing, information sharing and research and development mechanisms based on their ability to contribute to long-term, low-carbon and carbon free technological development;

62. Urges the Commission to gauge the territorial impact of its energy policy proposals and to pass on its findings to the Member States;

63. Given the urgency of the situation, calls for an immediate increase in support to developing countries for the use of clean coal technologies that have been proven to be viable and effective;

64. Supports the promotion of projects and technologies that improve energy efficiency and energy security in developing countries and that are adjusted specifically to needs and conditions in those countries, such as teaching people how to produce their own energy-efficient stoves, which can help both to create employment and to combat further desertification and climate change and can also improve health;

Nuclear Energy

65. Welcomes the Illustrative Nuclear Programme for the Community, which forms the basis for a comprehensive discussion of the nuclear option for Europe;

66. Emphasises that nuclear energy is indispensable if basic energy needs are to be met in Europe in the medium term;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

67. Supports the proposal of the March 2007 European Council for an unbiased debate on the opportunities and risks presented by nuclear energy;
68. Points out that research funding in the nuclear energy sphere today is largely concentrated in the area of safety-related technology;
69. Acknowledges the fact that nuclear energy is an important component of power supply in 15 of the 27 Member States, and thus for the Union as whole, providing one third of the total EU electricity supply;
70. Notes that, in the EU, nuclear energy generation has been developed industrially on a large scale over the last four decades, with ever-improving levels of reliability and safety;
71. Notes that Finland, France, Bulgaria, Romania, Slovakia, Lithuania (with the collaboration of Latvia and Estonia), the United Kingdom, Poland and the Czech Republic are building new nuclear power plants or are planning to build them or are investigating such a possibility;
72. Notes that nuclear energy is currently the largest low-carbon energy source in Europe and stresses its potential role in combating climate change;
73. Refers to the 3rd IPCC (Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change) report which listed nuclear energy as one way of reducing climate change;
74. Notes that the decision of each Member State for or against nuclear energy remains in its exclusive competence, but may have an impact on electricity price trends in other Member States;
75. Calls on the Commission to propose measures designed to maintain in the EU the high level of skills required if the nuclear energy option is to remain a viable one;
76. Notes that short and medium term decisions on the use of nuclear power will also directly affect the climatic goals that the EU might realistically set; notes that abandoning nuclear power will make it impossible to achieve the objectives set regarding reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and the combating of climate change;
77. Recalls that the Member States which use nuclear energy have committed themselves to complying with international security and non-proliferation standards, and acknowledges in this connection the particular importance of the Euratom Treaty;
78. Welcomes the establishment of a high-level group on Nuclear Safety and Waste Management and views the founding of the European Nuclear Energy Forum as an important stakeholder platform for discussing a roadmap for nuclear investment which will foster transparent, properly documented and balanced dialogue on all the issues relating to the use and deployment of that form of energy;
79. Welcomes the Commission's call for the imposition in the EU of common reference levels for nuclear safety; in that connection, urges that, on the basis of a best practice peer review, these reference levels should reflect the highest possible safety standards;
80. Emphasises the importance of the Sustainable Nuclear Energy Technology Platform launched in September 2007 in establishing a strategic European research agenda for nuclear fission;
81. Stresses that known global uranium reserves are estimated to be sufficient for more than 200 years, and that these reserves make feasible some future options to diversify political risks to security of supply or make it possible to reach compromises between risk, price and location in selecting sources of nuclear fuels;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

82. Stresses that the developments envisaged in the framework of the Generation IV International Forum, of which the European Atomic Energy Community is a member, suggest that nuclear energy has a long-term future thanks to the fact that it relies extensively on a use of resources which allows the timescale for developing the potential applications of nuclear energy to extend over thousands of years and which will very significantly reduce the volume and radioactivity of the waste ultimately produced;
83. Endorses the Commission's statements on the competitiveness of nuclear energy and notes that a majority of the Community funding under the Seventh Euratom Research Framework Programme is allocated to safety and nuclear fusion; points out that, in order to best meet the EU's strategic criteria, Community efforts should be combined with research designed to develop a new generation of sustainable nuclear technology;
84. Points out that nuclear energy generation will be largely unaffected by any fluctuations in the price of uranium, since the cost of that fuel has little impact on the price of electricity;
85. In view of the long investment lead times, stresses the need for a stable legal and political framework;
86. Refers to the 2006 Eurobarometer survey which indicated that the level of people's knowledge has a major influence on their attitude to nuclear energy; stresses therefore the importance of an open public dialogue on nuclear energy in every Member State in order to stimulate public awareness of the positive and negative effects of nuclear power before any political decisions are taken;
87. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to finally make progress on the issue of final disposal in order to bring an end to the interim storage of waste close to the earth's surface;
88. Recalls that generation IV reactors are expected to improve the efficient use of fuel and reduce the quantity of waste; calls therefore on the Commission and the Member States to focus on the development of structural materials and on optimising the use of nuclear fuel, as well as to support projects aimed at developing prototypes of generation IV reactors;
89. Notes that the use of nuclear energy can create synergies with renewables, for example by providing original methods for the effective and economic production of hydrogen or biofuels;
90. Recalls that dozens of nuclear power plants are planned or being built worldwide, and that it is vital for European companies to be involved in their construction, both from the point of view of industrial strategy and in order to promote the most stringent possible safety principles throughout the world;
91. Notes, finally, the role of the Euratom Loans and calls on the Member States to continue to permit the use of this important instrument in the future;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

- having regard to Directive 98/70/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 October 1998 relating to the quality of petrol and diesel fuels ⁽¹⁾ and the Commission proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Directive 98/70/EC and introducing a mechanism to monitor and reduce greenhouse gas emissions from the use of road transport fuels (COM(2007)0018),
- having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,
- having regard to the report of the Committee on the Environment, Public Health and Food Safety and the opinions of the Committee on Industry, Research and Energy and the Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection (A6-0343/2007),
- A. whereas some 19 % of European Union CO₂ emissions are produced by passenger cars and light-commercial vehicles, with absolute volumes continuing to grow principally because of the increasing number and growing power of new cars,
- B. whereas the most cost-efficient and effective policy option for reducing overall CO₂ emissions from passenger transport is to increase the share of public transport; whereas it is therefore important that measures are taken to stimulate and to improve the quality and scope of public transport, in order to make the switch from personal vehicles to public transport more attractive and thereby decrease total CO₂ emissions made by commuters;
- C. whereas driver behaviour and infrastructure measures have until now been neglected in EU strategy to reduce CO₂ from cars, but have a high potential in terms of CO₂ avoidance,
- D. whereas road transport accounts for 60 % of all the oil used in the EU, with inefficient use of fuel increasing the threat to energy security and contributing to high running costs and the depletion of world oil reserves,
- E. whereas legislative measures are now required in order to promote the design and technological changes necessary if the sector is to help the EU meet its target of reducing CO₂ emissions by at least 20 % by 2020 compared to 1990 levels,
- F. whereas the voluntary approach has proved a failure as it seems clear that the car industry will fail to meet its voluntary commitment of 140 g CO₂/km in 2008; whereas the target of 120 g CO₂/km was first proposed in 1995 and endorsed by Council and Parliament in 1996, with a deadline for delivery in 2005 and by 2010 at the latest,
- G. whereas, in its communication entitled 'A Competitive Automotive Regulatory Framework for the 21st Century' (COM(2007)0022), the Commission outlines the key elements for the future strategy for reducing CO₂ emissions from motor vehicles on the basis of an integrated approach aimed at achieving the EU's target of 120 g/km of CO₂ by 2012 via a combination of interventions by the Union and the Member States,
- H. whereas action is required in order to reduce CO₂ emissions from passenger cars through an integrated approach comprising engine measures, complementary measures, biofuels, eco-driving and infrastructure measures,
- I. whereas absolute CO₂ emissions from cars depend on the complex interplay between engine efficiency, carbon intensity of fuels, driver behaviour, mileage driven, infrastructure quality/congestion and CO₂ efficiency of components,

Wednesday 24 October 2007

- J. whereas it has been shown that a significant reduction in CO₂ emissions would be achieved by consistent compliance with speed limits in all Member States,
- K. whereas affordability and fleet renewal are absolutely key to improving the CO₂, air quality and safety performance of cars on the road,
- L. whereas taxation and labelling have failed to contribute to the EU's 3-pillar strategy to reduce CO₂ emissions from cars,
- M. whereas it is of key importance to adopt binding and clearly defined CO₂ passenger car emission objectives in the interest both of the smooth functioning of the internal market in the motor industry and of providing consumers with comprehensive information enabling them to make an informed decision regarding vehicle purchases, thereby contributing significantly to the reduction of CO₂ emissions,
- N. whereas Directive 1999/94/EC has been insufficiently effective and Member States have failed to transpose it in a uniform manner,
- O. whereas it can be noted that for a number of products (e.g. electrical and household equipment) energy efficiency categories have been introduced successfully, which offer European consumers practical assistance in their purchasing decisions through easily understandable letter or colour coding, thereby enabling them to save energy and reduce CO₂ emissions,
- P. whereas a contribution towards CO₂ reduction must be made by all classes of vehicle categories, since market volume too, above all, is significant in terms of reducing CO₂,
- Q. whereas the Lisbon Strategy's sustainable growth and employment objectives should be firmly pursued by avoiding measures which would increase pressure to cut jobs in Europe in the motor industry and jeopardise its international competitiveness,

Timetable and targets

1. Recognises that manufacturers require between five and seven years to make changes to vehicle design in the most economical manner and, acknowledging that average emissions from cars placed on the EU market in 2008 are likely to be in excess of 150g CO₂/km, therefore welcomes the Commission's plan to submit an EU legislative framework for CO₂ emissions reduction including binding measures for improving the fuel economy of light vehicles by improving engine technology, other technological improvements and the use of biofuels; recalls that the EU average fleet target of 120 g CO₂/km per passenger car was endorsed by the Council in 1996 and Parliament in 1997, with an initial target date of 2005 and a final deadline in 2010;
2. Insists that the proposed use of 'complementary measures' to achieve the previously agreed emissions target of 120g CO₂/km be made possible through quantifiable standards and believes that legislation should set clear and measurable targets for emissions reductions to be achieved through technical means;
3. Proposes that binding annual emissions targets should be set with effect from 2011 with the objective of promoting technical improvements to vehicles in order to ensure that, by these means alone, average emissions from all passenger cars placed on the EU market in 2015 do not exceed 125g CO₂/km;
4. Calls on the Commission to present concrete legislative proposals and measures that ensure that emission reductions of at least 10g CO₂/km can be achieved by means of the complementary measures taken as part of the integrated approach, in order to reach the overall target value of 120g CO₂/km;

5. Insists that from 1 January 2020 average emissions should not exceed 95g CO₂/km, and believes that the EU should provide support for the necessary promotion of innovation through the Seventh Framework Programme for Research; emphasises the need for intensive promotion of research and development of zero-emission vehicles, such as electrically propelled vehicles;
6. Recalls its abovementioned resolution of 16 November 2005, calling for 'mandatory limits for CO₂ emissions from new vehicles in the order of 80-100 g CO₂/km for new vehicles in the medium term'; supports the Commission's intention of promoting research, development and demonstration of advanced technologies, particularly to achieve more ambitious targets in 2020; calls on the Commission to evaluate the possibility of gradual reductions beyond 2012 through the use of lighter materials in vehicle manufacture, while ensuring that the current law is complied with and road safety for passengers and vulnerable users is not compromised;
7. Points out that there is already high-volume series production of low-emission space-saving cars for local use ('Gentlecars'), with values lower than 90g CO₂/km, and therefore calls on the Commission to support, in tandem with all other measures, action to ensure that Gentlecars are used as often as possible instead of high CO₂ emission vehicles;
8. Believes that longer term targets should be confirmed or reviewed by the Commission no later than 2016, following a detailed cost-benefit impact assessment and owing to the post-Kyoto agreement, and anticipates that these targets will possibly require further emissions reductions to 70g CO₂/km or less by 2025;
9. Calls on the Commission to take into account technical feasibility, cost-efficiency, environmental impact and affordability over the vehicle life-cycle of new cars when adopting any binding legislative measures which might influence the pace of vehicle fleet renewal;
10. Notes that Community law regulates a market of 17 to 18 million vehicles per year, which is equivalent to the passenger car market in the United States; expects that an ambitious EU greenhouse gas emissions reduction policy will stimulate knowledge-based economic growth and job creation in the automotive supply industry and will have a positive influence worldwide in terms of reducing transport emissions;
11. Recommends, in view of the difficulty that some specialist manufacturers may have in reducing average emissions across the limited range of cars they produce within the timescales envisaged, that each manufacturer or importer should have the right to exclude 500 identified vehicles annually from inclusion in the data used to determine average emissions, subject to the emissions and fuel economy of such vehicles being labelled and advertised to consumers in accordance with the usual legal requirements;
12. Recommends, in addition, in view of the difficulty that some low-volume manufacturers (producing up to 300 000 units) and new entrants with a market share of less than 1% may have in reducing average emissions across the limited range of cars they produce within the time-schedule envisaged, that the Commission should consider incorporating proposals in the legislation that will provide those specialist manufacturers with ambitious reduction targets;
13. Notes the important role played by specialist manufacturers of premium and high performance cars in pioneering advanced technologies, in sustaining high quality employment, in generating global sales and in benefiting the European economy, and notes that the know-how of such manufacturers should contribute substantially to reducing CO₂ emissions from cars;
14. Insists that any rules must safeguard the internal market and that Member States should implement EU rules on a common date and with common methods so as to avoid market disruption and fragmentation.

Wednesday 24 October 2007

Sharing the task between manufacturers

15. Recognises the large variation in consumer preferences regarding passenger cars and the different composition of manufacturers' fleets; insists that CO₂ reductions must be achieved for all cars placed on the market and therefore some differentiation based on a utility parameter should be allowed but that this should not neutralise the incentive to shift towards lower emission vehicles or disadvantage early achievers;

16. Stresses the importance of allowing particular vehicles to exceed emission limits to avoid excessive disruptions to the car market but seeks to provide strong incentives to bring about emission reductions, and therefore proposes that the setting of 2012 and 2020 targets for the reduction of average emissions, and interim annual targets, shall be achieved by reference to a limit value curve for all vehicles sold by manufacturers and importers that should take, as its starting point, the profile of the new passenger car fleet as of 1 January 2009;

17. Recommends that the limit value curve be defined by a mathematical formula expressed as a function linking each vehicle's CO₂ emissions with its footprint (track width times wheel base);

18. Calls on the Commission to ensure adequate efforts for all manufacturers and incentives for reducing greenhouse gas emissions across the vehicle fleet; considers, however, that any future scheme should not reward, either directly or indirectly, manufacturers of historically more polluting vehicles, that vehicles with higher CO₂ emissions must also be required to make a greater contribution to reducing CO₂, and that the scheme should reward the most advanced technologies and alternative fuels according to their greenhouse gas performance (hybrids, hydrogen, electric vehicles or other alternative fuels);

19. Calls on the Commission after having taken account of the views of stakeholders to present proposals for consideration by Parliament and the Council to ensure that the design of the curve takes into account the differences between car sizes and the technological costs of achieving emission reductions and the affordability of new cars for different types of customers ensuring both diversity and social equity;

20. Notes the different legislative options for achieving the target; considers it essential, as the Commission states in its Communication, 'to ensure ... reduction targets which are equitable to the diversity of the European automobile manufacturers' but also to effectively reward best performance in vehicle efficiency;

21. Proposes the introduction on 1 January 2011 of a new closed market mechanism, the Carbon Allowance Reductions System (CARS), through which manufacturers and importers will be required to pay financial penalties in proportion to any exceedance per car sold of the emissions limits and that these penalties may be offset by redeemable credits awarded to newly registered passenger cars of the same manufacturer with emissions below the limit value curve; considers that the penalties/excess g CO₂/km should be higher than the rewards;

22. Insists that any system of tradable quotas between vehicle manufacturers should be kept separate from the EU emission trading scheme, or any other outside carbon credit or compensation scheme;

23. Calls on the Commission to include specific credits for early action for the introduction of ultra low CO₂ technologies such as hydrogen, fuel cell, and plug-in vehicles which should allow each vehicle of this type introduced between now and the first year of implementation to be counted under the CO₂ monitoring procedure as equivalent to (for example) forty conventional vehicles, with diminishing credits for subsequent years;

24. Believes that the penalties should be set in a predictable and stringent way for industry and suggests that the Commission should make appropriate proposals for the level of penalties/credits expressed in EUR/g CO₂;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

25. Accepts that the limit value curve and the level of penalties may have to be adjusted periodically, both to take account of developments in vehicle technology and to curb any slackening in the rate of emissions reductions;
26. Recommends that the receipts from financial penalties be used both for research and development for CO₂ emissions reduction and for aiding local public transport;
27. Believes that the price of credits, after initial setting by the Commission, shall be determined by the market and that, in order to provide manufacturers and importers with more flexibility and a wider range of options, credits may be carried forward into following years or sold or transferred to other companies or business units within the scheme;
28. Calls for the information on emission performance per vehicle and per manufacturer to be made available to the public in an easily accessible format to ensure transparency and facilitate comparison between vehicles and manufacturers;
29. Recommends that manufacturers and importers should be able to make use of flexibilities such as group averaging, credits for renewable fuel vehicles and banking, and determine whether they wish the recognised trading entity to be the corporate body or the various subsidiary companies or business units directly responsible for production of the vehicles concerned;

Testing, data monitoring and vehicle specifications

30. Insists that total greenhouse gas emissions per vehicle should be addressed, including emissions attributable to air conditioning systems; furthermore, urges the Commission to make proposals to update test cycles to reflect better real driving conditions;
31. Advocates the revision of the test procedures to better imitate actual driving conditions, and calls for amendments to the European drive cycle to take account of technological developments such as the installation of sixth gears;
32. Encourages the Commission to introduce new measurements and standards that can allow a fixed value to be attached for the purpose of associating CO₂ emissions reduction with helpful improvements such as gear shift indicators, use of econometers, high efficiency air conditioning, improved lubricants, 'start /stop systems at idle', low rolling resistance tyres and tyre pressure monitoring systems the use of which may depend upon individual driver behaviour; also recommends the introduction of technology in vehicles to encourage environmentally aware driver behaviour such as displays showing fuel consumption and cost for the current journey alongside the corresponding figures for frequently travelled routes, active speed limit warning devices and driver aids to control speeds, including speed-limiters;
33. Calls on the Council to review testing procedures to determine whether conformity of production rules are being respected and to ensure that there can be no variance in the approach taken by the certified bodies in different Member States;
34. Stresses the priority of addressing the urgent issues of energy security and the need to reduce Europe's dependency on imported fuel, to cut CO₂ emissions through improvements in vehicle efficiency, and to improve road safety;
35. Considers that any energy-saving measure that involves lower fuel consumption will have highly beneficial effects for the security of energy supply, by reducing both Community dependence on imports of primary energy sources and the international prices of hydrocarbons;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

Advertising and labelling

36. Having no confidence in the likely effectiveness of the proposed voluntary agreement on the advertising of new cars, calls on the Commission to make a proposal to amend Directive 1999/94/EC and introduce legal requirements for the labelling, advertising and marketing of new cars within the EU internal market, particularly with a view to ensuring that it is properly transposed so as to provide comprehensive and comprehensible consumer information;

37. Recommends that mandatory and uniform minimum requirements should be set for the display of information relating to the fuel economy (l/100 km) and CO₂ emissions (g/km) of new cars on vehicles and in advertising, in all marketing and promotional literature and in showrooms in a conspicuous, user-friendly and possibly colour-coded format for the purposes of comparison; regards the A-G format used for comparing the energy efficiency of certain electrical products as a model for the information displays required;

38. Calls on the Commission to propose rules with similar objectives to cover areas not covered by current legislation, such as TV, radio and Internet-based material as well as advertisements for nearly new cars;

39. Suggests that legislation requiring health warnings to be displayed on cigarette packs provides a useful example, and proposes that a minimum of 20% of the space devoted to the promotion of new cars through advertising, marketing literature, or point-of-sale displays in showrooms, should provide information on fuel economy and CO₂ emissions in an approved format;

40. Recommends that air conditioning test results be included in the fuel consumption information in all marketing and promotional literature and in showrooms;

41. Suggests that a binding code for advertising be introduced which outlaws false green claims and, in order to promote strong consumer demand for vehicles with low CO₂ emissions, recommends the introduction of an environmental performance 'green star' rating system taking into account all aspects of environmental performance, including CO₂ emissions (g/km) and emissions of other pollutants, fuel consumption (l/100 km), weight, aerodynamics, space efficiency, noise and environmental driving aids;

Promoting consumer demand

42. Recognises the considerable role that Member States can play in encouraging consumer demand for lower emissions public-transport and private vehicles, and calls for the preparation of national action plans indicating measures intended to be taken in this regard;

43. Supports in particular the use of fiscal measures, and encourages Member States to introduce both purchase and circulation taxes on vehicles with above average emissions;

44. Recognises that the age of car fleets and driving at excessive speeds affect emissions; calls on the Commission and Member States to introduce economic incentives for retiring old cars and to ensure that part of vehicle taxes is variable depending on CO₂ emissions and other pollutants; points out that, with the gradual introduction of technologies with zero CO₂ emissions, the CO₂-related tax component should, in the long term, disappear;

45. Calls, with a view to preventing the fragmentation of the internal market, for EU-wide definitions of CO₂ emission values, which can be used by Member States in setting emission-related tax incentives, to be established;

46. Supports CO₂-based taxation of cars and alternative fuels so as to set the right incentives for consumers and industry;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

Light-commercial duty vehicles (N1) and other categories

47. Supports the Commission's intention to regulate CO₂ emissions of light-commercial vehicles and urges the Commission to bring forward proposals at the same time as those planned for passenger cars;

48. Recognises that light-commercial vehicles have different characteristics and a different market compared to passenger cars; notes the lack of data on average emissions from this sector and the costs of bringing about reductions but believes that so far as possible the standards and requirements should match those required of passenger cars;

49. Recalls that the European Parliament has invited the Commission on several occasions to consider CO₂-limiting measures for all road vehicle categories and therefore urges the Commission to put forward appropriate regulatory proposals for heavy duty vehicles and two wheelers by 1 January 2009 at the latest;

Complementary measures

50. Believes that measures that may help reduce vehicle CO₂ emissions, but for which an absolute value cannot be attached, should be regarded as entirely supplementary and should not be included within the legislation currently proposed;

51. Believes that flanking measures involving encouragement of more efficient driving, biofuels and, in particular, improvement of traffic management systems can make a contribution towards minimising CO₂ emissions;

52. Encourages Member States to reduce the volume of goods carried by heavy goods vehicles in favour of rail and waterway transport, which would have an impact in terms of lower pollutant emissions and would also reduce demand for oil;

53. Fears that the increased use of biofuels risks increasing the price of food and feed, seriously affecting people on very low incomes and accelerating the destruction of tropical rainforests, and calls on the Commission to propose strict certification rules for imported biofuels so as to avoid any negative social and ecological impact;

54. Believes in any case that the benefits of biofuels in reducing CO₂ emissions should be considered within the context of revisions to Directive 98/70/EC;

55. Insists that certification be developed for sustainably produced biofuels; calls on the Commission, in a legislative proposal, to allow only sustainable-status-certified biofuels to count towards meeting emission limit targets; stresses that second-generation biofuels derived from plants or plant fractions which are not in direct competition with food uses and provide greater efficiency must be expanded and given even more support;

56. Recommends that further fuel efficiency targets be set beyond 2012 to continue reducing vehicle emissions whilst providing greater certainty to all stakeholders;

57. Calls on the Commission to consider the role and potential of gaseous alternative fuels, such as liquefied petroleum gas and natural gas, which can contribute to the immediate reduction of CO₂ emissions and to the diversification of the energy supply;

58. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to bear in mind the need for in-depth knowledge of the new technologies for motor vehicles and, in particular, to provide training courses for specific groups (such as engineering workshops and technical services);

Wednesday 24 October 2007

59. Calls on the Commission to immediately start preparing an EU-wide eco-driving campaign as part of the strategy to reduce CO₂ from cars;

60. Calls on the Commission to report to the European Parliament on how the CO₂ benefits from eco-driving can be made monitorable and, if the Commission believes that this is not the case, explain why the Commission is financing the ECODRIVEN project that aims at quantified CO₂ reductions through eco-driving;

61. Supports the principle that undergoing a course in eco-driving should become a mandatory requirement for possession of a driving licence;

- B. whereas the existence of 27 different tax systems in the European Union constitutes an impediment to the smooth functioning of the internal market, causes significant additional costs for cross-border trade and business in terms of administration and compliance, hinders corporate restructuring, renders EU undertakings less competitive at a global level, and leads to cases of double-taxation,

- G. whereas given the impact of R&D on growth and jobs, it is necessary to examine a more effective use of tax incentives for R&D,
- H. whereas achieving the objectives of the Lisbon Strategy necessitates increased coordination of Member States' fiscal policy; whereas Europe must build a distinctive economic and social framework, which transforms a competitive advantage due to a diversity of cultural heritage and intellectual capital into innovation-driven productivity growth,
- I. whereas elements in the current fragmentation of tax systems constitute loopholes enabling tax evasion; whereas the tax revenue lost by fraud and tax evasion is estimated to amount to between EUR 200 and EUR 250 billion as regards VAT alone,
- J. whereas the accurate measure of a tax burden is the effective tax rate, which comprises the nominal tax rate and a tax base,
- K. whereas energy taxation is a useful tool in that it both applies the 'polluter pays' principle and achieves a reduction of pollution at source; whereas there is an urgent need to address the ever growing environmental impact of traffic in order to address climate change,
- L. whereas energy taxation and the EU Emissions Trading System are two significant economic instruments in use which address energy consumption and CO₂ emissions,

The contribution of taxation policy to the Lisbon Strategy

1. Recalls that decisions linked to fiscal policy, such as the provision of fiscal incentives to undertakings, are the main instrument for developing and increasing the number of jobs, but also for increasing R&D investment and environmentally friendly technologies; stresses, however, that if fiscal policy is to make a substantive contribution to the Lisbon Strategy, the constant monitoring of the manner of redistributing additional revenue generated by such tax relief for undertakings is needed, with a view to ensuring that the additional revenue is in fact used to boost innovation and more energy-efficient technology;
2. Notes the trend in declining corporate tax rates in the European Union as well as in other OECD countries, which reflects increasing global competition, structural change and development in financial markets, notes however that the overall level of taxation in Europe remains higher in comparison to that of other OECD countries; also draws attention to the fact that public revenue as a whole has increased despite declining effective rates of corporate tax; notes the need for a coordinated fiscal framework, including corporate tax arrangements, which should be favourable to companies, in particular SMEs, and geared to renewing growth and generating employment;
3. Regards it as necessary to set up a public finance policy environment that is favourable to growth and employment in the economy, and to promote healthy tax competition in the European Union so that the tax burden is widely shared by employees and consumers, businesses and those deriving income from capital; points out that the European Union must promote tax arrangements to encourage the creation of new businesses and technological innovation;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

4. Underlines that, in general, tax systems in the Member States have gone too far in applying relatively high rates to low tax brackets, which discourages risk-taking and the establishment of start-ups;
5. Considers that it is possible to have competitive tax arrangements without undermining state funding, as seen in those European countries that have in the last decade succeeded in increasing their tax revenue through tax cuts accompanied by a widening of tax bases, while controlling expenditure, thereby reducing their deficits;
6. Welcomes the Commission's intention to develop solutions for problems arising from transfer pricing rules in the European Union;
7. Welcomes the Commission's proposed pilot project to apply the principle of home state taxation to corporate tax paid by SMEs;
8. Recognises the difficulties facing SMEs in the European Union and other OECD countries in financing their projects and endorses the provision of fiscal incentives to encourage SMEs to take more advantage of intermediary financing mechanisms, such as, inter alia, entrepreneurial share capital and business angel networks;
9. Draws attention to the shortfall in public revenue caused in the European Union by tax fraud and urges the Commission and the Member States to take further action to combat tax fraud;
10. Takes the view that in order effectively to combat tax evasion and tax fraud, a radical change is needed in the way that fiscal services operate based on modern organisational and sound administration principles and stresses that the Commission should take significant initiatives to support coordination at Community level in this sector;
11. Considers that VAT relief for community-oriented public or semi-public undertakings must be retained; believes that a one-stop-shop for companies to deal with their EU-wide VAT obligation must be introduced;
12. Calls on the Member States to seek to ensure greater fairness in the distribution of fiscal burdens and through better structure and targeting of the expenditure side of the budget;
13. Criticises the upward trend of VAT rates in the European Union, which has a regressive effect and reduces consumer demand; stresses that experience in some Member States has shown that greater revenue is generated when the tax base is widened, when employment growth causes an increase in consumption and when the conditions are right for black economy activities to become regularised, a process that would be endangered by an increase in VAT rates;
14. Reiterates its support for experimenting with lower VAT rates for labour-intensive services as a structural element of the VAT system, with flexibility for Member States to apply such rates in sectors of proximity services that are mainly local and do not distort cross-border competition;
15. Supports the Commission's efforts to gear fiscal policy towards more ambitious environmental objectives; considers that such action can promote greater research into, and a greater application of, environmental technologies, thereby developing the European Union's competitive potential in this field; stresses, however, that action must be taken to avoid placing an even greater burden on poorer households;
16. Notes that there is a need for an entirely new approach regarding excise duty policy; stresses that a policy line that is oriented to the determination of the minimum tax rate at the Community level should be rejected and that a generic code of conduct should instead be adopted, with the objective of encouraging Member States to approximate more closely their highly divergent rates of excise duty;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

17. Believes that fiscal policy should generally contribute to requiring industry to internalise external costs but considers it appropriate to retain or introduce tax and other incentives to promote clean, non-fossil-based energy sources;
18. Considers that an increase in fuel taxes would have a positive environmental impact if economical and attractive means of mass transport were available;
19. Believes that countries that are in the process of catching up are faced with higher external costs, for which they should not be penalised;
20. Stresses the need to continue reducing taxes on employment as an important tool by which to achieve the Lisbon Strategy objective of an employment rate of 70 %;
21. Considers it important for the completion of the internal market to simplify customs legislation and to rationalise customs procedures with the purpose of reducing the administrative cost for enterprises engaged in cross-border transactions, maintaining a simplification of enterprises' cross-border compliance obligations; supports moving towards a simplified system for levying VAT on cross-border sales in the European Union, for example, by implementing the reverse charge mechanism;

Common consolidated corporate tax base

22. Supports the Commission's efforts to establish a pan-European and uniform common consolidated corporate tax base (CCCTB); notes that a CCCTB will lead to greater transparency by enabling companies to operate according to the same rules abroad as at home, will increase cross-border trade and investment, and will significantly reduce administrative costs and the possibility of tax evasion and fraud; considers it necessary to introduce measures specifically designed to reduce tax compliance costs faced by SMEs, such as home state taxation provisions;
23. Notes that the CCCTB is a policy which may be conducted under the enhanced cooperation mechanism, as already provided for in the Treaties;
24. Recalls that the CCCTB will involve common rules regarding the tax base and will in no way affect the freedom of Member States to continue setting their own tax rates;
25. Welcomes the Commission's intention to launch the CCCTB in the framework of enhanced cooperation; points out, however, that this is a second-best solution, as the benefits of transparency and lower administrative costs may be partly mitigated in the absence of a comprehensive Community-wide system;
26. Welcomes the Commission's view that the CCCTB must be uniform and simplify the situation and recommends, while defining a framework of common standards, the development of a mechanism of allocating revenues among the Member States concerned; considers, furthermore, that in order to establish a genuinely common unified tax base, it is also important to create comparable or, at best, common registration documentation for cross-border economic activities;
27. Welcomes the Commission communication, Towards more effective use of tax incentives in favour of R&D, and highlights the need to share best practices and clarify, to a maximum degree, the compatibility of such incentives with Community law;
28. Stresses that green taxation is a flexible policy instrument for achieving a given pollution target, for providing incentives for technological innovation and for further reducing pollutant emissions;
29. Encourages the Commission to address the issues relating to the consolidation of accounts, taxation and tax administration of the large groups operating across borders;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

Towards a more effective use of tax incentives in favour of research and development

30. Considers that tax incentives to encourage R&D activities are of great importance for achieving the Lisbon Strategy objectives, such as increasing R&D spending in Europe, in particular as regards facilitating R&D+i activities for SMEs; notes, however, that such tax incentives should not be used as indirect subsidies to national firms;

31. Is convinced that tax policy should be drawn up in such a way as to induce productivity-led growth in all sectors of the economy by allowing a taxpayer to either deduct or claim tax depreciation in respect of R&D expenditure;

32. Believes that the technological gap among Member States means that there are differences in tax policy and that action should only be taken at Community level when action by individual Member States cannot provide an effective solution; is of the opinion that the promotion of good practices for the design of R&D tax initiatives and better coordination of tax policy would help Member States meet the Lisbon Strategy objectives;

Exit taxation

33. Urges the Commission to adopt a more proactive strategy with regard to offshore financial centres;

34. Supports the Commission's view that when assets are transferred to a third country, it is justified, because of the lack of cross-border administrative cooperation, to require taxes to be payable at the time of exit;

Tax treatment of losses in cross-border situations

35. Notes that cases concerning taxation are frequently brought before the Court of Justice of the European Communities and that this is mainly because of the lack of transparency and the high level of complexity of the taxation systems in Europe and calls, therefore, for a simplification of tax codes across the European Union; believes that, in situations involving cross-border losses by foreign subsidiaries, the double taxation of parent companies must be avoided, fiscal competence must be fairly distributed among Member States, losses should not be offset twice, and tax avoidance must be prevented;

36. Notes that without channels of cross-border loss relief, firms will seek to ensure that their profits are taxed in countries where the size of the home market is sufficient to generate enough profit to offset possible losses abroad;

37. Considers that it is necessary to work towards a system of cross-border loss relief, both for companies and groups with units abroad; takes note of the Commission communication on tax treatment of losses in cross-border situations;

38. Regards the Commission communication on tax treatment of losses in cross-border situations as a basis for further discussion, specifically as regards the possible solutions, pending the application of the CCCTB, identified in the communication as regards implementing a system of loss relief and recapture by the host Member State;

- H. whereas exposure to tobacco pollution during pregnancy can result in a higher risk of deformities, miscarriages, still and premature births, stunted growth of the foetus, smaller head circumference and a lower birth weight and there is a link between passive smoking and middle ear infections, impaired lung function, asthma and sudden infant death syndrome,
- I. whereas the European Union and 25 of the 27 Member States have already signed and ratified the WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control (FCTC), in the preamble to which reference is made to the WHO Constitution which states that the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health is one of the fundamental human rights and Article 8 of which lays down an obligation to provide protection from exposure to tobacco smoke,
- J. whereas the most benefit for society and the economy will be best achieved when smoke-free areas are complemented with effective smoking cessation policies at EU and/or Member State level, such as: (a) effective cessation promotion programmes in educational institutions, health care facilities, workplaces and sporting environments and increased access to cessation therapies (both behavioural and pharmacological) for persons who wish to stop smoking, (b) diagnosis and treatment of tobacco dependence in national health and education programmes, and (c) collaboration to facilitate accessibility and affordability as agreed in Article 14 of the FCTC,
- K. whereas a responsible policy has a duty to create an environment in which smoking is no longer seen as normal, that encourages people to cut down on or give up smoking, that supports them in the cessation process and that prevents children and young people from taking up smoking,
- L. whereas only a full smoking ban in all enclosed workplaces, including catering and drinking establishments, and all public buildings and transport can protect the health of employees and non-smokers and make it considerably easier for smokers to give up,
- M. whereas the catering industry has not suffered any noticeable loss in revenue in the countries in which a full smoking ban has been introduced,
- N. whereas the World Bank has demonstrated the cost-effectiveness of taxation measures to reduce the demand for tobacco products and to reduce overall tobacco consumption, in its 1999 report 'Curbing the epidemic: Governments and the economics of tobacco control', and the WHO has also stressed that taxation has the greatest impact,
- O. whereas the WHO's European Strategy for Smoking Cessation Policy affirms that smoking cessation interventions (both behavioural and pharmacological) are an important and cost-efficient component of a comprehensive tobacco control strategy which will save health systems considerable expense in the future,
- P. whereas it is known that tobacco consumption costs European economies hundreds of billions annually,
- Q. whereas the costs to health systems resulting from tobacco consumption are borne by the population in general and not by those responsible for creating them,
- R. whereas it is unacceptable that certain Member States encourage the purchase of tobacco products by low taxation rates in their countries so as to increase their overall tax income,
- S. whereas almost 70 % of the EU population are non-smokers, 27 % smoke cigarettes, 5 % smoke rolling cigarettes and 1 % smoke cigars or a pipe,

Wednesday 24 October 2007

- T. whereas 86 % of EU citizens are in favour of a ban on smoking at work, 84 % in other public places, 77 % in restaurants and 61 % in bars and pubs,
- U. whereas target-group-specific education, particularly of young people, pregnant women and parents, helps to reduce tobacco consumption,
1. Welcomes the Commission's Green Paper as a starting point for a responsible European policy to protect citizens from harmful tobacco smoke;
 2. Welcomes the action taken by those Member States that have already adopted effective measures to ensure protection from passive smoking;
 3. Renews its call to the Commission, as issued in its resolution of 23 February 2005 on the European Environment and Health Action Plan 2004-2010⁽¹⁾, to classify environmental tobacco smoke in the Dangerous Substances Directive⁽²⁾ a class 1 carcinogen as soon as possible so as to bring environmental tobacco smoke under the scope of the Carcinogens and Mutagens Directive⁽³⁾;
 4. Calls on the Commission to list and quantify the concrete harmful effects of smoking among youth in the Member States with a view to subsequently formulating European objectives for Member States aimed at curbing the uptake and consumption of tobacco among young people, with Member States committing themselves to reduce smoking among youth by at least 50 % by 2025,
 5. Without prejudice to any obligations imposed by Community legislation, stresses that the Member States are free to determine the form of the measures to be taken at national level, but that they should report to the Commission, both at the mid-point and at the end of the set period referred to in paragraph 4, on the progress made in reducing the harmful effects of smoking among youth,
 6. Notes that the Commission has a supporting role to play in the achievement of the European objectives by helping the Member States to exchange knowledge and best practices and to carry out European research on combating the harmful effects of smoking among youth;
 7. Calls on the Commission to submit a proposal for an amendment of the Framework Directive on Workplace Safety and Health⁽⁴⁾ requiring all employers to ensure that the workplace is free from tobacco smoke;
 8. Calls on the Member States to introduce, within two years, an unrestricted smoking ban in all enclosed workplaces, including catering establishments, and in all enclosed public buildings and transport in the European Union; calls on the Commission, if the objectives referred to are not attained by all Member States, to submit a proposal to Parliament and the Council by 2011 for rules on the protection of non-smokers in the field of employment protection, while recognising the Member States' existing national provisions;
 9. Calls on the Member States that introduced a full smoking ban in public places, bars and restaurants to create and sign up to a voluntary charter declaring a 'European smoke free zone', thus creating a spear-head of Member States who have already adopted a full smoking ban on the basis of voluntary membership, and calls on the charter members to consider eventually giving this voluntary charter legislative status through the enhanced cooperation procedure;
 10. Calls on the Member States to prohibit smoking on public playgrounds within two years;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

11. Calls on the Commission to produce a report on the cost incurred by national health systems and the European Union economy as a result of smoking and the effects of tobacco smoke pollution;

12. Calls on the Commission to present a proposal, by 2008 if possible, for an amendment of Directive 2001/37/EC⁽¹⁾ on tobacco products, containing at least the following:

- an immediate ban on all addiction-enhancing additives,
- an immediate ban on all additives shown by existing toxicological data to be carcinogenic, mutagenic, or toxic to reproduction as such or upon pyrolysis (burning at a temperature of between 600 and 950 °C),
- the introduction of a detailed registration, evaluation and authorisation procedure for tobacco additives, and complete on-pack labelling of all tobacco additives,
- an automatic ban on all additives for which manufacturers and importers of tobacco products do not have complete data sets by the end of 2008 (including lists of all ingredients by brand name and type, along with their quantities and toxicological data),
- a requirement for manufacturers to make publicly available all existing toxicological data on the additives and ingredients in tobacco smoke, including pyrolysis products (public and in-house data),
- the development of a compendium of tobacco additives and substances in tobacco smoke and the provision of consumer information in this respect,
- introduction of a financing system that makes tobacco product manufacturers liable for all costs of developing and maintaining assessment and supervisory structures (e.g. independent laboratories, staff and scientific investigations),
- application of product liability in respect of manufacturers and introduction of manufacturer liability for the financing of all health costs arising from tobacco consumption;

13. Calls on the Commission to support a comprehensive tobacco control and smoking cessation strategy and to examine further EU-wide measures towards a Europe free from tobacco smoke, such as:

- an EU-wide ban on the use of tobacco in the presence of minors in private transport,
- an EU-wide ban on the sale of tobacco products to young people under 18,
- the granting of a permit for the installation of cigarette vending machines only if the machines will be inaccessible to minors,
- the removal of tobacco products from self-service displays in retail outlets,
- a ban on distance sales of tobacco products to young people under 18 (e.g. over the Internet),
- promotion of preventive measures and antismoking campaigns for young people,
- a ban on Internet advertising of tobacco products,
- encouraging Member States to introduce inflation-proof taxation on all tobacco products,
- an EU-wide high minimum level of taxation of tobacco products,
- stronger controls against tobacco smuggling;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

14. Calls on the Commission to investigate what fiscal measures could help to reduce tobacco consumption, particularly by young people, and calls on the Commission to make a recommendation to the Member States on the basis of this investigation;
15. Calls on all Member States to stop encouraging the purchase of tobacco products by maintaining low taxation rates in their countries;
16. Welcomes Italy's decision to ban all transports of unlabelled cigarettes as a way to combat smuggling and facilitate determination of origin;
17. Calls on the Commission to submit proposals to amend Directive 2001/37/EC so as to remove the requirement to display tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide yields on cigarette packs, which currently provides smokers with a misleading comparison;
18. Calls on the Commission to submit proposals to amend Directive 2001/37/EC so as to include a renewed library of larger, hard-hitting picture warnings mandatory on all tobacco products sold in the European Union, and for such warnings to appear on both sides of the tobacco packs; considers that all warnings should also include clear contact details to help smokers quit such as a relevant free phone number or website;
19. In particular, calls on the Commission to recommend the inclusion of a warning on the link between smoking and blindness in its revision of Directive 2001/37/EC, since several recent scientific studies have produced robust and consistent evidence that smoking causes sight loss through age-related macular degeneration; such warnings should appear in the list of warnings for use on tobacco products with appropriate graphic images to support this message;
20. Calls on the Member States to help smokers who want to quit smoking by means of supporting measures, e.g. smoking cessation interventions such as:
- increased access to cessation therapies — both pharmacological (e.g. nicotine replacement therapy) and behavioural (counselling) — through reimbursement and interventions of healthcare providers;
 - increased affordability of smoking cessation products (e.g. nicotine replacement products) through a reduced VAT rate;
21. Points out that according to the 2004 WHO European strategy for smoking cessation policy intensive counselling of more than 10 minutes by a physician has the highest success rate in achieving long-term abstinence; therefore calls on Member States to embed counselling to end nicotine dependence into the national health care system by encouraging and training primary care professionals to intervene by systematically asking patients about smoking, to advise smokers to stop, and to reimburse them for such intensive counselling;
22. Calls on the Member States to conduct information and education campaigns concerning healthy lifestyles tailored to all age ranges and social groups in order to enable people to shoulder responsibility for themselves and, where applicable, their children;
23. Considers that such smoking cessation measures should ensure that smokers, particularly the young and those economically less well off, have access to affordable smoking cessation products and treatments, including counselling, so as to ensure that there are no inequalities whereby less-advantaged members of society are discouraged from using them;
24. Considers that information on how to stop smoking, including free phone numbers or a website address, should be visibly available in all outlets where tobacco products are sold;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

25. Encourages the Commission to continue to implement support measures at EU level, e.g. awareness-raising measures; considers that developing the skills of doctors and other health care personnel should be an important field, to which priority is assigned;
26. Calls on the Commission urgently to investigate the health risks associated with consumption of snus and its impact on the consumption of cigarettes;
27. Calls, as one arm of the budgetary authority, for the financing of these awareness-raising measures, which is currently assured by the Community Tobacco Fund, to continue to be guaranteed when the fund is phased out;
28. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to include tobacco control as a key priority in their health and development work and to work with low-income countries to ensure that all necessary funding and technical assistance is made available so that the EU's ACP partners are able to comply with their obligations under the FCTC; calls on the Commission to always promptly pay all financial commitments linked to the FCTC and related initiatives in the UN system;
29. Calls on Italy and the Czech Republic to ratify the FCTC as soon as possible;
30. Condemns the disregard shown by some Members and staff of the European Parliament for the restrictions on smoking in the European Parliament, e.g. by smoking in staircases or in the open Members' bar in Strasbourg;
31. Calls on the Bureau, in the light of its duty to set an example, to adopt a smoking ban with no exemptions in all parts of the European Parliament with immediate effect; calls for a rigorous enforcement of this ban;
32. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission.

 - having regard to Rule 103(2) of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas accession negotiations with Turkey were opened on 3 October 2005 after approval by the Council of the Negotiating Framework, and whereas the opening of those negotiations is the starting point for an open-ended process,
- B. whereas Turkey has committed itself to reforms, good neighbourly relations and progressive alignment with the EU, and whereas these efforts should be viewed as an opportunity for Turkey itself to modernise,
- C. whereas full compliance with all the Copenhagen criteria and EU integration capacity, in accordance with the conclusions of the December 2006 European Council meeting, remain the basis for accession to the EU,
- D. whereas Turkey has not yet fully implemented the provisions stemming from the EC-Turkey Association Agreement and its Additional Protocol,
- E. whereas, after a wave of reforms introduced between 2002 and 2004, the pace of reforms in Turkey has slowed down; whereas on 17 April 2007 the Turkish Government adopted its 'Programme for Alignment with the EU Acquis 2007-2013', and whereas on 31 August 2007 the new Turkish Government presented its programme, which includes strengthening the economy, drafting a new constitution and accelerating the reforms needed to bring Turkey closer to the EU,
1. Calls on the Commission to identify in its regular report those subjects which have to be addressed by Turkey as a matter of priority, focusing on the achievement of the short-term and medium-term priorities set out in the Accession Partnership, and to pay particular attention to the subjects highlighted in this resolution; expects the Commission to fully utilise all appropriate means to support the reform process efficiently, reminding Turkey that honouring its commitments within the timetable set by the Accession Partnership is of paramount importance to its credibility;

3. Welcomes the election of the new President as a sign of the strength of Turkish democracy; calls upon President Abdullah Gül to promote pluralism and the unity of the Turkish people in a secular state on its way to difficult but necessary reforms;

4. Expects the new Turkish Government, which benefits from a strong mandate and popular trust, to accelerate the process of reforms in order to fulfil the commitments defined in the Accession Partnership; encourages the government to search for a broad consensus within the Turkish parliament and with Turkish civil society on constitutional and institutional matters; recalls that the development of Turkey into a democratic and prosperous state governed by the rule of law together with the uniform application of legal norms are of strategic importance for Turkey, its society and the EU; welcomes in this respect the commitment of the new government to enhance the reform process in the coming months and years;
5. Welcomes the intention of the new Turkish Government to adopt a new and civilian constitution which will protect fundamental human rights and freedoms; underlines the need to ensure that the new constitution establishes a system of checks and balances guaranteeing the democratic and secular character of the Turkish State; calls on all parties to support an open and consensual constitutional process; recalls in this context its earlier recommendation on the electoral threshold; stresses that constitutional plans should not postpone urgently needed reforms, especially on Article 301 of the Penal Code;
6. Welcomes the positive economic development of Turkey in recent years; considers it, however, vital to increase employment and to develop a reform strategy which will reinforce the social cohesion of the Turkish society;
7. Welcomes the efforts made by the Turkish Government to align itself with the EU energy acquis and supports the opening of negotiations on the energy chapter as soon as technical preparations are completed; encourages Turkey to join, as a full member, the European Energy Community, and thus to further strengthen energy cooperation between the EU and Turkey, with a view to reinforcing the energy supply security and supporting the use of renewable energy resources and the investments in energy efficiency; underlines the importance of Turkey as a transit hub for the diversification of gas supplies to the EU; emphasises that energy projects involving Turkey in the South Caucasus should be open to all countries of that region, which are part of the EU's neighbourhood policy;
8. Notes that Turkey's geo-strategic position in the region and its role in transportation and logistics will become more important in the coming years; calls on the Commission to issue a specific report on the latest developments and future challenges;
9. Is concerned about the repeated interference by the Turkish armed forces in the political process; stresses that further efforts are needed to ensure full and effective civilian control over the military; underlines that the formulation and implementation of the national security strategy should be supervised by the civilian authorities; calls for the establishment of full parliamentary oversight of military and defence policy and all related expenditure; calls moreover for parliamentary supervision over the country's secret services, gendarmerie and police;
10. Welcomes the EU-Turkey Civil Society Dialogue, and asks the Commission to report on the activities that have been carried out within that framework; underlines the importance of increased contacts between the civil societies in Turkey and the EU; calls on the Commission to provide targeted support to civil society, to be more present in different regions of Turkey, and in this context to pay particular attention to the south-east; calls on the new Turkish Government to involve Turkish civil society, an important promoter of democracy in Turkey, more intensively in the reform process;
11. Refers to its abovementioned resolution of 27 September 2006, in particular those of its paragraphs which concern the reforms needed to improve the functioning of the judiciary and the combating of corruption, respect for fundamental human rights and freedoms, protection of women's rights, implementation of the zero-tolerance-to-torture policy and the protection of minority, religious and cultural rights; awaits, before assessing the progress made in implementing such reforms, the results of the intensified monitoring of the political criteria announced by the Commission in its last enlargement strategy; calls on the Commission to publish those results in its forthcoming progress report;
12. Urges the new Turkish Government to fully implement the provisions stemming from the EC-Turkey Association Agreement and its Additional Protocol; recalls that the non-fulfilment of Turkey's commitments as referred to in the Accession Partnership will continue seriously to affect the process of negotiations;

Wednesday 24 October 2007

13. Deplores the fact that a number of people are still being prosecuted under Article 301 of the Penal Code; strongly condemns the recent conviction of Saris Seropyan and Arat Dink under this article; urges the government and the newly elected parliament to make sure that all provisions of the Penal Code allowing for arbitrary restrictions on the expression of non-violent opinions are removed and that freedom of expression and freedom of the press are guaranteed; regards this as a top priority for the new government;

14. Stresses the need to adopt without delay a Law on Foundations that addresses the current legal uncertainty regarding the status of religious minorities and sets a clear legal framework enabling them to exercise their religion freely by allowing them, inter alia, to own property and train clergy; shares the concern expressed by the Council on 24 July 2007 over the recent ruling of the Turkish Court of Cassation with regard to the Ecumenical Patriarchate; urges the new Turkish Government to bring its approach towards religious minorities into line with principles of freedom of religion as defined by the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms and the case-law of the European Court of Human Rights; calls on the Commission to raise these issues with the new government; also invites the Commission to indicate how the Pre-Accession Instrument established by Council Regulation (EC) No 1085/2006⁽¹⁾ can be used for the protection of the Christian heritage;

15. Strongly condemns the murders of Hrant Dink, of the Christian priest Andrea Santoro, and of three Christians in Malatya, the terrorist attack in Ankara and all other acts of politically or religiously motivated violence; expects the Turkish authorities to fully investigate these cases and to bring all those responsible to justice; underlines the urgent need to combat efficiently all types of extremism and violence and to ban them from all levels of public life in Turkey; calls on the Turkish Government to increase the protection of those groups, minorities or individuals who feel exposed to threats and discrimination;

16. Calls on the new government to take concrete measures to ensure that full trade union rights are respected, in line with European and International Labour Organization standards; encourages it to support intensification of the social dialogue between employers associations and trade unions; asks the Commission to address this subject with the new government;

17. Welcomes the fact that a considerable number of women in Turkey hold important positions in the economy and in the academic world, and that more women have been elected to the Turkish parliament than hitherto; underlines that accessibility of education, equal treatment and economic empowerment of women are keys to further economic growth and prosperity in Turkey; regrets that violations of women's rights, and in particular so-called 'honour crimes', remain a matter of serious concern; urges the Commission, therefore, to stress to the new government the need to strengthen its efforts to eradicate violence and discriminatory practices against women, and stresses that those efforts should include, inter alia, a sustained public campaign and provision of more shelters for women in distress;

18. Points to the need for a comprehensive strategy for the socio-economic development of the south-east of Turkey; calls on the Commission to indicate in which way the Pre-Accession Instrument can be used to support efforts that will have to be made by the new Turkish Government to develop the south-east of the country, and to coordinate this assistance with that provided by other international financial institutions;

19. Is concerned about the consequences of the social, ecological, cultural and geopolitical problems of the Turkish Southeastern Anatolia Project, in which water barrage projects have a direct impact on the water supply of the neighbouring countries; calls on the Commission to monitor closely, in its regular report, the development of trans-boundary water cooperation in line with international conventions, nature and environmental protection directives and the Water Framework Directive⁽²⁾, and to promote the application of EU environmental standards to large scale mining and water barrage projects;

20. Urges the new government to launch a political initiative favouring a lasting settlement of the Kurdish issue, and to work, with the constructive involvement of the newly elected representatives in the Turkish Grand National Assembly and the elected mayors and civil society in the south-east, towards significant improvements in social, economic and cultural life; welcomes President Gül's initiative to visit the south-east of Turkey for the first time;

Strongly condemns the violence perpetrated by the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) and other terrorist groups on Turkish soil; expresses its solidarity with Turkey in its fight against terrorism and repeats its call on the PKK to declare and respect an immediate and unconditional ceasefire; underlines the need to pursue the fight against terrorism in proportion to the threat posed and with full commitment to the observance of international legal instruments and standards; stresses that there can never be an excuse for any kind of violence against civilians;
 22. Is deeply concerned about the consequences of a possible cross-border military action by Turkish troops in Northern Iraq; appeals to Turkey to refrain from engaging in any disproportionate military operations violating Iraq's territory, and urges Turkey and Iraq to step up military and police cooperation to effectively prevent terrorist activities from Northern Iraq in order to de-escalate the tense situation at the Turkish-Iraqi border; calls on the Council to press for concrete cooperation between Turkey and the Kurdish Regional Government of Iraq, which should shoulder its responsibility to prevent terrorist attacks from northern Iraq;
 23. Attaches great importance to Turkey's commitment to good neighbourly relations, in line with the requirements set out in the Negotiating Framework; reiterates its expectation that Turkey ends any economic blockade and border closure and refrains from threats or tension-prone military activities in relation to neighbouring countries; reiterates its call upon Turkey to engage in serious and intensive efforts for the resolution of outstanding disputes with all its neighbours, in accordance with the UN Charter and other relevant international conventions, and including a frank and open discussion on past events; reiterates its call upon the Turkish and Armenian Governments to start a process of reconciliation in respect of the present and the past, and calls on the Commission to facilitate the Turkish-Armenian reconciliation while taking advantage of regional cooperation realised within the European Neighbourhood Policy and the Black Sea Synergy Policy;
 24. Regrets that no substantial progress has been made in reaching a comprehensive settlement of the Cyprus question; reiterates its call on both parties to adopt a constructive attitude with a view to achieving a comprehensive settlement within the UN framework, based on the principles upon which the EU is founded; in this regard, recalls its previous resolutions stating that the withdrawal of Turkish forces would facilitate the negotiation of a settlement;
 25. Welcomes the establishment of an instrument of financial support to encourage the economic development of the Turkish Cypriot community; calls on the Commission to report specifically on the implementation and effectiveness of that instrument;
 26. Stresses the importance of Turkey's potential with regard to the Black Sea region, the South Caucasus and the Central Asian region in bringing stability, democratic governance, mutual confidence and prosperity to those regions, in particular through regional cooperation projects; stresses Turkey's role in the Middle East; calls upon the Commission to strengthen its cooperation with the Turkish Government concerning the EU's policy towards those regions;
 27. Reminds the Commission of its request for a follow-up to the impact study presented in 2004, and asks to be provided with it in 2007;
 28. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and and the Government and Parliament of Turkey.

4. Statement by the President

The President made the following statement:

The Conference of Presidents has taken a unanimous decision, which I am relaying to you, addressing myself in particular to the Council.

In the context of the discussions on the Commission proposal amending the Regulation on the funding of European political parties, the Permanent Representatives' Committee decided yesterday to split the Commission proposal and to decide on the necessary amendments to the Financial Regulation in a separate legal act, on the legal basis that applies to amendments to the Financial Regulation.

That would mean that essential aspects of this legislative process would not be subject to codecision with the European Parliament and that the Commission would, counter to its own convictions, have to present a new proposal, without the Court of Auditors having to be consulted.

The European Parliament calls on the Council to reconsider this decision. The amendments to the Regulation proposed by the Commission are necessary to tackle the practical difficulties that have arisen in its application. In addition, they would allow the development of political foundations at European level, which make an important contribution to political awareness among the public, to continue to be supported. It is therefore necessary for the proposed regulation to enter into force as soon as possible.

The Committee on Constitutional Affairs adopted a report on 22 October which emphasised a readiness to compromise with the Council with a view to achieving swift adoption of the proposed regulation.

By proposing to split the regulation, the Permanent Representatives' Committee is rejecting these efforts. So doing is legally unnecessary, places into question the Commission's right of initiative, curtails Parliament's rights and runs the risk of causing significant delays.

On behalf of the Conference of Presidents, I call on the Council to rectify at ministerial level the decision of the permanent representatives.

Key issues — Overall figures, MFF revision proposal, Letter of amendment No 1

1. Recalls that its political priorities for the 2008 budget were set out in its abovementioned APS resolution of 24 April 2007, building on the approaches taken in the preparation of budget 2007 and the negotiations leading to the Interinstitutional Agreement (IIA) of 17 May 2006; underlines that the 'budget for results' approach endorsed in that resolution is built upon the pillars of transparent presentation, clear objectives and accurate implementation, such that the Commission is judged not on the basis of bureaucratic process but on the results it delivers towards politically agreed objectives; will continue to emphasise these elements in its further work on the 2008 budget;

2. On overall figures, deplores the fact that the Council reduced commitment appropriations in the Draft Budget (DB) 2008 by EUR 717 million relative to the preliminary draft budget (PDB), such that commitment appropriations were reduced to EUR 128 401 million; takes a strong position against Council's cuts to overall payments in the DB by EUR 2 123 million which left total payments at EUR 119 410 million, equivalent to 0,95 % of EU GNI, thus leaving a margin of more than EUR 10 billion beneath the payments ceiling of the multi-annual financial framework (MFF) for 2008;

3. As regards commitment appropriations, is particularly critical of cuts made by the Council to appropriations for programmes with multi-annual envelopes that have only very recently been negotiated and agreed in co-decision with the European Parliament; proposes, in its first reading on the 2008 budget, to restore these cuts and considers it necessary to make a number of increases in commitment appropriations for certain political priorities; this has resulted in an aggregate level of EUR 129 688 116 518;

4. As regards payment appropriations, considers 0,95 % of EU GNI to be an insufficient figure in the light of the policy challenges faced by the EU; expresses its astonishment that the Council should propose over EUR 1 billion of cuts to payments in headings 1a and 1b for programmes identified as priorities under the Lisbon Strategy for improving European competitiveness and cohesion — a long-standing priority of the Council and Parliament; therefore proposes increases in the overall level of payments to 0,99 % of EU GNI; in line with the emphasis on accurate implementation in the 'budget for results' approach, has focused these increases on Lisbon priorities and on programmes where levels of unpaid commitments ('reste à liquider'(-RALs)) are persistently high;

5. Welcomes the Commission's proposal of 19 September 2007 requesting a revision of the MFF to provide adequate financing for Galileo and the European Institute of Innovation and Technology (EIT) over the 2007-2013 period; on Galileo, recalls its resolution of 20 June 2007⁽¹⁾ in favour of a Community solution for Galileo; on EIT, considers that the appropriations ought to be budgeted under the policy area '08 research', with the governing structure having its own line ('European Institute of Innovation and Technology — governing structure') under Heading 5 (Administration) and the KICs a separate one ('European Institute of Innovation and Technology — Knowledge and Innovation Communities (KICs)'); recalls that the appropriations for Galileo and for the EIT were placed in the reserve but were not reduced by the Council in the DB; has proposed amendments for Galileo and EIT in its first reading such that the final appropriations in budget 2008 are contingent upon a satisfactory agreement on the proposed revision of the MFF;

6. Supports the letter of amendment to the preliminary draft budget 2008 adopted by the Commission on 17 September 2007 and in particular the increases in commitment appropriations proposed for Kosovo (EUR 120 million) and Palestine (EUR 142 million) totalling EUR 262 million over the PDB figures; notes that the Council also proposed increased commitment appropriations for Kosovo and Palestine totalling EUR 260 million in the DB; considers that the Commission and Council should provide a clear explanation of the strategy underlying the proposed increases and the division of appropriations between EC and CFSP categories for Kosovo in advance of Parliament's second reading on the 2008 budget;

7. Takes note of the Commission's communication of 12 September 2007 on 'reforming the budget, changing Europe' (SEC(2007)1188); highlights the fact that the standing rapporteur for the 2007-2013 MFF has already prepared a document on this issue and will continue to lead Parliament's further reflections and work on the future of EU budgetary arrangements;

Delivering a budget for results — building on the first reading conciliation

8. Welcomes the agreement of five joint statements, annexed to this resolution, between the European Parliament and Council at the first reading conciliation on the 2008 budget of 13 July 2007; has reinforced the political importance of these statements by taking them into account in the preparation of amendments to the draft budget in line with the 'budget for results' approach;

9. In line with the joint statement agreed with the Council on 13 July 2007, wishes to see more rapid approval of operational programmes by the Commission in structural funds, cohesion fund and rural development so that operational money can be spent; demands rapid progress in this area from the Commission; in order to accelerate progress, places certain administrative costs of the Commission in reserve; underlines that no operational funds are placed in reserve; will release the reserves on administrative costs in line with an improved rate of approval of operational programmes;

10. On recruitment and redeployment, has placed EUR 49 million in reserve pending the commitment of the Commission to carry out a study on ABM implementation before 30 April 2008 with the following information for the budgetary authority:

- How the different components of the SPP-ABM cycle (APS, CLWP, AMP , etc.) can be better integrated with each other?
- How the integration of the SPP-ABM cycle with other cycles (HR cycle, risk management, evaluation, etc.) can be improved, possibly via an integrated IT system?
- The communication of a list of clear pre-determined performance indicators to be used throughout the whole cycle in order to improve performance management;

and:

- The commitment of the Commission to present a follow-up to its report 'on planning and optimising Commission human resources to serve EU priorities' by 30 April 2008 which will highlight in particular a detailed breakdown of staff per category, and by Directorate General, and the evolution foreseen for the coming years;
- A communication by the Commission on the current situation and the state of play concerning the implementation of Point 44 of the IIA of 17 May 2006;

11. On assigned revenues, insists on improved transparency in this area; proposes changes to the assigned revenues instrument for decentralised agencies with a view to a closer matching of assigned revenues to specific agencies; expresses its concern that the use of assigned revenue within the sugar restructuring fund has created a de facto 'budget within a budget' that is difficult to reconcile with the budgetary principle of universality enshrined in the Financial Regulation; expresses its openness to revise the Financial Regulation as regards assigned revenue;

12. On decentralised agencies, restores PDB levels with the exception of Frontex for which an increase of EUR 30 million is adopted under Title 3 and with the exception of the European Environment Agency with a slight increase under Title 3; welcomes the progress made by the newest agencies in expanding their activities in an effective and efficient manner; requests greater clarity in the future regarding work-plans and medium-term staffing needs;

13. Stresses that in order to establish the Joint Undertakings, as well as the announced new decentralised Agency for the Cooperation of Energy Regulators, the procedure provided for in Point 47 of the IIA of 17 May 2006 must be opened;

Thursday 25 October 2007

14. On executive agencies, recalls the obligations of the Commission set by the 'Code of Conduct on the setting up of an Executive Agency' ⁽¹⁾; considers that executive agencies must not, either now or in the future, lead to an increase in the share of administrative cost; underlines that any proposal for the creation of a new executive agency, and the expansion of existing executive agencies, must be based on a comprehensive cost-benefit analysis and that lines of accountability and responsibility should be clearly set out in the proposal;

15. Welcomes the fact that the activity statements provided with the PDB 2008 delivered an improved focus on objectives and indicators of results rather than long descriptions of administrative process; notes, however, that there remains a significant gap between Commission Directorates-General as regards the quality of Activity Statements; expects further improvements in future years;

16. Considers that performance indicators are now being used by the Commission as an integral part of ex ante budgetary planning but requests that performance indicators should play a stronger role in ex post performance evaluation; is of the opinion that the data provided in activity statements should be better integrated with the annual activity reports of each Directorate-General; considers that this would assist the Budgetary Authority in monitoring the extent to which additional resources requested lead to the delivery of results and not simply to the creation of additional bureaucracy;

17. Welcomes the monitoring group exercise conducted by its Committee on Budgets in the course of 2007; hopes that this exercise can continue to contribute to an enhanced level of budgetary monitoring; continues to support the Budget Forecast Alert (BFA) system as a contribution to improving budget implementation; requests that the second BFA document be presented in September, and not October, 2008 so that Parliament may take this document into account in preparing its first reading on the 2009 draft budget;

18. Recalls that, in accordance with Article 53b of the Financial Regulation and Point 44 of the IIA of 17 May 2006, which aim at ensuring effective and integrated internal control of Community funds and national management declarations as a final goal, the Member States have committed themselves to 'produce an annual summary at the appropriate national level of the available audits and declarations'; notes that, according to information received from the Commission, only a limited number of Member States have complied with the provisions of the IIA so far; regrets that none of the concrete proposals on national (management) declarations put forward by the European Parliament in its 2003, 2004 and 2005 discharge resolutions are incorporated in the Commission's Audit Strategy and requests the Commission to keep the Parliament informed; reminds the Member States of their obligation to comply with the provisions of the revised Financial Regulation, to which they only recently agreed; reiterates that Member States are further obliged to fulfil the conditions set out in Point 44 of the IIA as well as being obliged under Article 274 TEC to cooperate fully with the Commission according to the principles of sound financial management;

19. Reiterates the importance of improving budget implementation in line with the declaration adopted at the November 2006 budget conciliation; requests the Commission to provide information on the actions undertaken or foreseen in order to apply this declaration; recalls that this information should be presented regularly at the dialogue meetings;

20. Urges the Commission to apply in full Council Regulation No 1 of 15 April 1958 determining the languages to be used by the European Economic Community and dismisses financial grounds for derogations as invalid, since they have not been advanced during the budgetary procedure;

⁽¹⁾ 'Code of Conduct on the setting up of an Executive Agency' as agreed by the Commission in its letter of 20 April 2004 (Annex to the European Parliament resolution of 22 April 2004 on Draft amending budget No 6 of the European Union for the financial year 2004 (OJ C 104 E, 30.4.2004, p. 951)).

Specific issues — main elements by budget heading, pilot projects, preparatory actions

21. On heading 1a, 'Competitiveness for growth and employment', rejects the cuts in commitment and payment appropriations made by the Council in its first reading, especially where these cover multi-annual programmes recently co-decided with Parliament that aim to deliver on the Lisbon Strategy; restores these cuts and proposes increases on a number of lines that are political priorities for Parliament; proposes a number of pilot projects and preparatory actions in line with its budgetary prerogatives; underlines the importance of reducing the stigma of business failure in the context of the Competitiveness and Innovation Programme (CIP);

22. On heading 1b, 'Cohesion for growth and employment', deplores the cuts in payment appropriations made in the Council's first reading; restores these cuts and proposes increases totalling EUR 2 000 000 000 in payments on lines where RALs have been consistently high in recent years; demands more streamlined administrative procedures in order to improve implementation of operational programmes for structural and cohesion funds also in terms of qualitative aspects which have the strongest impact of the Union on its citizens' lives;

23. Recalls the decision to establish the EU Long Range Identification and Tracking Data Centre (LRIT) operated by the European Maritime Safety Agency (EMSA) by 31 December 2008 (EP Position of 25 April 2007⁽¹⁾ and Council resolution of 2 October 2007); acknowledges the need for additional financing in 2008 for EMSA in order to cover this new function;

24. Welcomes the documentation and explanations provided by the Commission and the European Investment Bank (EIB) concerning the Risk Sharing Finance Facilities (RSFF); is of the opinion that the reserve on these lines can be taken out of the budget; asks however to be informed and for the relevant documents to be forwarded to it when the guidelines are adopted for the second component of CIP, the venture capital instruments, and asks to be informed on the outcome of the negotiations between EIB and Commission on the joint cooperation for the Loan guarantee instrument for TEN-Transport (LGTT);

25. On heading 2, 'Preservation of natural resources', is strongly opposed to the indiscriminate cuts proposed by Council to many lines under this heading of the budget; restores the PDB for many such lines but notes that the Council will have the final say on those lines which concern compulsory expenditure; demands clearer presentation of the figures for market measures and direct aids in future budgetary procedures; is concerned by the slow rate of adoption of operational programmes as regards the rural development pillar of the CAP, a long-standing priority of Parliament; expects to see rapid improvements in this regard;

26. Emphasises the need to speed up the procedure regarding the drawing-up of special national programmes for the recovery of crops and animal production in the areas affected by fires and other forms of natural disasters; stresses that those programmes should be financed from the EAFRD (European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development) by internal transfers or subsidies within a Member State;

27. On heading 3a, 'Freedom, security and justice', places appropriations for the Return Fund in reserve pending the adoption of the legal base; also places appropriations in reserve pending the provision of improved information to Parliament regarding the fight against crime; underlines the importance of the work of the Frontex agency; considers that the Frontex agency must play a more effective role in strengthening the EU's external borders, notably in alleviating the burden currently faced by Member States in connection with illegal immigration; calls on the Agency to present regularly to its competent committee the state of play and the scheduled forthcoming operations; urges the Member States to deliver on their promises and support the Agency's missions so that the Agency can perform its tasks more effectively;

Thursday 25 October 2007

28. On heading 3b, 'Citizenship', deplores the cuts made by the Council under this heading, which would affect programmes such as Culture 2007, Media 2007 and Youth in action; restores the PDB and proposes appropriations for a number of new and ongoing pilot projects and preparatory actions in this regard; draws attention to the fact that funding for the information and prevention campaign HELP comes to an end in the budget for 2008 and expects the Commission to submit a follow-up initiative; supports, additionally, within the Civil Protection Financial Instrument, the provision of a complementary capability in the form of a stand-by force for handling natural or man-made disasters as well as in cases of acts of terrorism or environmental accidents;

29. Calls on the Commission to give repeated backing for investment in infrastructure to improve accommodation for refugees;

30. Seeks to encourage a stronger voice for less well represented groups in civil society, combating all forms of discrimination and strengthening the rights of women, children, disabled and older persons;

31. Calls on the Commission to use the appropriations earmarked for information to provide diverse information, which, inter alia, caters for the public information needs of parliamentary minorities;

32. On heading 4, 'EU as a global partner', supports the increases, including for Kosovo and Palestine, in the Commission's letter of amendment to the PDB of 17 September 2007; proposes an additional EUR 10 million each for Kosovo (line 22 02 02) and Palestine (line 19 08 01 02) and further increases for its priorities up to the MFF ceiling, including the restoration of the PDB for the Emergency Aid Reserve; cuts CFSP spending by EUR 40 million to the level of budget 2007; requests the use of the flexibility instrument to a total of EUR 87 million for CFSP spending and other priorities, including Kosovo and Palestine; considers that this reflects the chronic under-funding of heading 4 in the 2007-2013 MFF;

33. Is of the opinion that respect for human rights and democratic values should be one of the conditions of allocation of EU funds to neighbouring and developing countries;

34. Reminds the Council that the regular joint committee meetings on CFSP should promote a real, ex ante political dialogue, instead of being used merely to inform Parliament in an ex post manner;

35. Believes that the EU should better coordinate its various and laudable initiatives to fight and eradicate poverty-related diseases in neighbouring and developing countries; proposes to allocate adequate budget resources to provide these countries with the necessary technical assistance instruments; has decided to create a separate budget line for the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria in order to improve transparency and guarantee the necessary funding for both the Global Fund and the other health priorities;

36. On heading 5, 'Administration', considers that clear lines of responsibility and accountability are an essential component of continuing the process of modernising the EU's administration; recalls that clear political objectives and individual responsibility for carrying them out against indicators to be laid down when the data from the various studies requested by its Committee on Budgets on the subject are submitted should be the direction of future reforms of the system;

37. In this context, deplores the inefficiencies inherent in a competition system that can leave 'approved candidates' languishing on a reserve list for years with no guarantee of being offered a position; considers that maintaining this approach would contribute to lowering the average standard of new EU officials as the best candidates will seek employment in more dynamic sectors of the EU economy; requests a serious commitment from the Commission to look again at this issue in the context of follow-up work to the screening exercise and provide further information with a more detailed breakdown of staff per category and by Directorate General and the evolution foreseen for the coming years;

38. Restores the PDB for the cuts made by Council to appropriations and establishment plans in heading 5; places EUR 49 million in reserve pending the provision of the abovementioned data and studies; wishes to maintain and develop a constructive inter-institutional dialogue regarding ongoing efforts to improve administrative practices in the EU institutions; underlines the importance of adequate recruitment from 'EU 12' Member States; takes the view that, in connection with enlargement, documents of relevance to discussions and decisions, such as, for example, impact assessments, should be made available in all languages necessary, since those documents are tools for better lawmaking; recalls in this connection that its Committee on Budgets has launched, via two studies, a process to analyse the objectives of the administrative reform of the Commission, focusing on the introduction of activity-based budgeting (ABB) and activity-based management (ABM), the introduction of the strategic planning cycle and allocation of the related administrative expenditure;

39. Calls on the Commission to present a report on benchmarks with staff in other international organisations as a follow-up to its report on planning and optimising human resources; further calls on the Commission to present guidelines to facilitate the financing of public infrastructure under public-private partnerships (PPP);

40. On pilot projects, proposes a range of innovative projects that respond to current policy challenges in the EU;

41. On preparatory actions, proposes a range of initiatives that should pave the way for future actions that enhance the European Union's capacity to deal with the real needs of its citizens;

*

42. Takes note of the opinions voted by the specialised committees as contained in report A6-0397/2007;

43. Instructs its President to forward this resolution and its annexes, together with the amendments and proposed modifications to Section III of the draft general budget, to the Council and Commission, and to the other institutions and bodies concerned.

ANNEX

JOINT STATEMENTS AGREED AT THE CONCILIATION OF 13 JULY 2007

1. Structural and Cohesion Funds and Rural Development 2007-2013 programmes

'The European Parliament and the Council attach the greatest importance to a rapid approval by the Commission of the operational programmes and projects presented by Member States in relation with the new Structural and Cohesion Funds programmes for the 2007-2013 period, as well as for programmes financed under rural development.

In order to avoid the past experience during the beginning of the 2000-2006 programming period, the European Parliament and the Council will monitor rigorously and on a regular basis the process of approval of operational programmes and projects in view of more efficiency and good administration. To this end, the Commission is requested to continue to provide regularly specific monitoring tools, including a flow chart, during the budgetary procedure.'

2. Recruitment in relation with the 2004 and 2007 enlargement

'The European Parliament and the Council note with concern the low occupancy of posts at Middle Management level, the rather high ratio of permanent posts occupied by temporary agents and the lack of a sufficient number of appropriate competitions.

Thursday 25 October 2007

The European Parliament and the Council insist that all efforts should be made by the institutions and specifically by EPSO to ensure that the necessary action is taken to rectify the situation and to speed up the whole process of filling up the posts granted by the budgetary authority with officials. The criteria should be as stipulated in Article 27 of the Staff Regulation and to arrive at the broadest possible geographical proportional basis as soon as possible.

The European Parliament and the Council intend to continue to monitor closely the ongoing recruitment process. To this effect, they request each institution and EPSO to provide twice a year an information to the budgetary authority on the state of affairs regarding recruitments in relation with the 2004 and 2007 enlargement.

The European Parliament and the Council invite the Secretaries-general of the institutions to present a report on the progress made in the field as follows:

- concerning the filling of the posts granted in 2004-2007 budgets by the end of January 2008;
- concerning the filling of the posts granted in 2008 by 15 June 2008 and by 31 October 2008.'

3. Assigned revenues

'The European Parliament and the Council believe that increasing transparency in the budgetary field is part of a sound financial management of the EU funds.

In this context, they ask the Commission and the other institutions to provide appropriate, timely and detailed documentation on assigned revenues, covering actual implementation and forecasts as far as possible, to accompany the Preliminary Draft Budget. The Commission will provide appropriate information on assigned revenues in relation to carry-overs and when available transfers of appropriations; this will entail changes to the format and content of the current documentation and will not prejudice the decisions to be taken by the budgetary authority.

They attach a great importance to the monitoring of the assigned revenues, especially to those related to the Community agencies, and ask the Commission to report regularly on their implementation, in particular on the basis of a specific document before the first reading of the budget. They invite the Commission to present appropriate proposals allowing an effective monitoring and control of the assigned revenues in the context of the upcoming revision of the Framework Financial Regulation (EC, Euratom) No 2343/2002 for Community agencies.

The Commission is invited to report about the improvements made no later than the beginning of the following budgetary procedure. The European Parliament and the Council will continue to closely pay attention to the management of the assigned revenues expecting rapid improvements in this field.'

4. Decentralised agencies

'Concerning the creation or the modification of the scope of a body falling under Article 185 of the Financial Regulation, the two arms of the budgetary authority ask the Commission to inform them timely on the ongoing legislative procedure in order to enable them to exert their prerogatives in accordance with Point 47 of the IIA.

The European Parliament, the Council and the Commission demand greater transparency in relation to the decentralised agencies, with a view to better monitoring their development. The Commission will identify for each heading the expenditure for agencies, including its evolution over the 2007-2013 period.

They recall their joint statement on Community agencies adopted on 18 April 2007, especially its point 4, and invites the Commission to provide a list of the agencies that it is going to assess including a detailed timetable for this procedure and a detailed explanation of the criteria used for the selection of the agencies and to present the results each year at the October trilogue at the latest.

Thursday 25 October 2007

To allow the budgetary authority to get a clear and comprehensive picture of evaluations already made, the Commission should give the list of the agencies that have already been evaluated and a short summary of the major findings of these analysis.

They also recall that the abovementioned joint statement of 18 April 2007, the Commission has been invited to provide, simultaneously with each PDB, a working document covering all Community agencies.

To achieve this, decentralised agencies are requested to provide detailed information, on an annual basis, to accompany their draft estimates for the coming budget year. This should include an update of their staff policy plan, with information on the number of permanent and temporary agents covered by the establishment plans and on external staff (contractual agents) for the years $n-1$, n and $n+1$; the work programme of the agency and information on the content of their budget, detailing titles 1 and 2.

They shall also make available estimates and indicators such as rents or estimated value of buildings, statute of staff and any privileges granted to the agencies by the host Member States.

Moreover, the agencies should provide, by the end of March each year n at the latest, an estimate of the operating surplus from the year $n-1$, which is to be returned to the Community budget later in year n , in order to complete the information already available concerning the surplus of $n-2$.

The European Parliament and the Council invite the Commission to proceed to the collection of all information mentioned above, in due time for each PDB, and to collect missing information for this year.'

5. Executive agencies

'The European Parliament and the Council welcomes all efforts to improve the efficiency of the methods used by the European Commission to implement EU policies and programmes.

The creation of executive agencies can constitute a contribution to such efficiency, but only if this method fully respects the principle of sound financial management and total transparency. This means that such agencies must not, either now or in the future, lead to an increase in the share of administrative cost. Therefore, the principle of freezing of posts as defined in Council Regulation (EC) No 58/2003 of 19 December 2002, as a result of such a reorganisation of tasks, must be adhered to rigorously. Any proposal for the creation of a new executive agency should be based on a comprehensive cost-benefit analysis. Lines of accountability and responsibility should be clearly set out in the proposal.

The budgetary authority must be in possession of all the requisite information enabling it to monitor closely the implementation of this principle both currently and in the future. The information in the specific financial statement for the executive agency should therefore cover:

- a. the resources in terms of appropriations and staff required to run the executive agency, showing a breakdown of staff expenditure (permanent and temporary officials and contractual agents) and other administrative expenditure;
- b. the planned secondments of officials from the Commission to the executive agency;
- c. administrative resources freed by transferring tasks from the Commission departments to the executive agency, and the re-allocation of the human resources; in particular the number of staff (including external staff) assigned to each relevant task within the Commission, the number of this staff to be transferred to a proposed new or enlarged agency, the number of Commission posts to be frozen as a consequence and the number of Commission staff to be proposed to be redeployed to other tasks;

Thursday 25 October 2007

- d. consecutive redeployment within the Commission's establishment plan;
- e. the advantages of delegating implementing tasks to an executive agency versus direct management by the Commission services: any comparison of a 'Direct management by the Commission services'-scenario to an 'executive agency'-scenario shall be based on the resources used to implement the existing programme(s) and its (their) current form in order to have a sound and factual basis for comparison; for new and expanding programmes the evolution of the related financial envelope to be managed by the agency will also be taken into consideration;
- f. a draft establishment plan per grade and per category as well as a well-founded estimate of the number of contractual agents planned and provisionally budgeted;
- g. a clear breakdown of all actors involved in the implementation programme including the remaining share of the operational programme envelope for the implementation of which they are responsible (Commission, executive agencies, remaining Technical Assistance Offices, Member States, national agencies, etc.)

The European Parliament and the Council call on the Commission, before deciding to create a new agency or to extend the remit of an existing agency, to supply complete and detailed information on staffing levels and utilisation enabling the budgetary authority to assess whether the administrative expenditure of implementing a programme has indeed not been increased.

It is recalled that the final decision on staffing remains a matter for the budgetary authority.'

Commission declaration on assigned revenue

'The Commission recalls that recovery of amounts wrongly paid is a vital tool for sound financial management; these amounts should be considered in the perspective of a full implementation of the programmes decided under the multi-annual financial framework.

Moreover, the Commission considers that it is not possible to provide the Budgetary Authority with forecasts of assigned revenue other than those that are already included in the Preliminary Draft Budget.'

General framework

1. Recognises that the institutions, after the Council's first reading, have made the effort to reduce some of their usual expenditures in order to balance their absolute needs; considers that this exercise has contributed to setting-up a budget for the EU tax-payer as requested in the guidelines resolution; encourages warmly the institutions to pursue in this direction in order to strengthen citizens' confidence in the European institutions and in Europe;

2. Notes that most of the increase beyond the inflation rate is due to buildings' expenditure; expresses its concern for the coming years regarding the weight of buildings related expenditure if not closely managed by the institutions; invites the institutions to keep the Budgetary Authority regularly informed of the evolution of their different projects with a medium term perspective and to control accordingly their expansion; requests that, in view of the entry into force in 2009 of the Members' Statute, an updated property investment plan for the coming 3 years including refurbishing costs should be submitted to the Budgetary Authority not later than 31 March 2008;

3. Has therefore decided to limit the budget increase of 2008 to 6,92 %; decides to leave a margin under the ceiling of heading 5; recommends restoring EUR 8 180 945 out of the EUR 22 127 359 reduction made by Council on the budget of the other institutions (excluding the Commission), that is restoring 37 % following the examination of the specific requests and needs of each institution; considers that this approach responds to the institutions' needs for efficiency and safeguards the sustainability of their budgets;
4. Invites, in the context of a general concern vis-à-vis the environment, all institutions, including the Commission, to exploit the various possibilities, together with the host Member States, for achieving a more efficient public transport plan, including in-house mobility information points, intranet information on timetables in order to encourage the staff of the European institutions to use public transport or bicycles under safe conditions;
5. Acknowledges the efforts made by Parliament in the past 2 years to implement a redeployment exercise; regrets that many other institutions are not implementing an effective redeployment policy; expects these institutions to make redeployment an integral part of their budgetary exercise in the coming years;
6. Notes that in 2006 Parliament had requested from the other institutions more precise information on the performance and costs of their core tasks in order to justify in a more transparent manner the effectiveness or otherwise of additional funds; notes that very few institutions are providing this informative activity-related reporting; requests all the institutions in question to provide this information by the first week of September of each year;

Section I — European Parliament

General comments

7. Recalls that 2008 is the last full year of this legislature and the last year before the entrance into force of the new Members' Statute; considers that this should be taken into account in view of the forthcoming financing requirements;
8. Welcomes the fact that the Bureau has, for the first time, made new requests in its amending letter which are below the self-imposed ceiling of 20 % of heading 5 (i.e. at 19,87 %) but include an increase of the estimates by EUR 45,6 million; takes note of the fact that the Bureau intends to launch a number of new projects which are not directly linked to Parliament's core activities; considers that in view of the lack of flexibility which exists in the administrative budget, the development of new projects should be undertaken in a prudent way taking into account the limited availability of financial resources and the perspectives from 2009 onwards; encourages the administration and the Bureau to reflect on the real needs and on the institution in administrative and political terms and to seek means to reduce the current costs of the tasks undertaken; reiterates that the above does not constitute any limitation on Parliament's right to make full use of the 20 % ceiling in 2008 and subsequent years, should it be deemed necessary and justifiable to do so;
9. Suggests that a broad discussion on the history of Europe and its interpretation take place at expert level before creating the House of European History;
10. Welcomes the new redeployment plan proposed by the Secretary General which concerns 58 posts; considers that it constitutes a step in the right direction in fulfilling the new needs and at the same time in keeping the establishment plan stable in the future; encourages the Secretary-General to pursue this action and to proceed to further analysis in order to better rationalise the tasks and at the same time keep the costs of externalisation under control;
11. Decides, in line with its abovementioned resolution of 7 June 2007 on Parliament's estimates for 2008, to reduce a number of budget lines, especially those that proved to be inflated in 2006; notes that chapters 10 and 12 and title 4 are not affected by these reductions;

12. Acknowledges that new proposals have been presented at a late stage and have impeded plenary's decision to remain at a level of increase equalling the inflation rate except when new initiatives were duly substantiated; has decided to set the final level of the Parliament's budget at EUR 1 452 517 167 corresponding to a 3,9% increase over the 2007 budget and 19,48% of heading 5;

13. Notes that at times, and for a variety of reasons, the Institutions were constrained to purchase or rent property at a price which prima facie seemed to be higher than the market price; wishes to investigate further in an interinstitutional context how of improving conditions concerning public procurement for the purchase or rental of buildings, as well as works on buildings, by the European institutions, notably with the aim to reduce the purchase and rental price of property as well as reducing refurbishment costs, and of securing the necessary flexibility to avoid cartel or monopolistic situations;

14. Confirms its commitment to better law making as a priority for Parliament's core activities and supports the decisions undertaken in this direction; encourages the Secretary General to continue his efforts in order to strengthen Parliament's expertise in better law making;

Enhancing Members' assistance

15. Considers that preserving the linguistic diversity of Members of the European Parliament is one of the most important challenges for the administration; welcomes, in that context, the pilot project scheduled to be launched in 2008 to respond to Members' recurrent demands for linguistic assistance both at an individual level and during non-official meetings linked to the legislative work;

16. Decides therefore to limit the global allocation for the pilot project to EUR 4 million and, at the same time, to place EUR 2 million in the reserve in order to induce the administration to give priority to more efficient linguistic support for Members during official meetings; this reserve of EUR 2 million does not affect the pilot project;

17. Reiterates that the most efficient use should be made of the interpretation service and the expenses related to meetings; considers that equipping all meeting rooms with the electronic voting system constitutes a way to improve the use the interpretation facilities;

18. Calls on the Bureau to consult the political groups on the fitting out and the re-organisation of meeting rooms WIC 100 and WIC 200 in Strasbourg before it takes any further decision on these matters;

19. Recalls that the purpose of the code of conduct on multilingualism is to provide the best quality service to Members within the ceiling of the current appropriations; urges the administration to enforce more actively the code of conduct on multilingualism in order to prevent any shortcomings, irresponsible use or misuse of the linguistic services; regrets, however, the lack of flexibility when translating major documents in a particularly difficult period; calls on the administration to make every effort, in order to guarantee a high quality translation service which is in line with Parliament's specific requirements in terms of quality, deadlines and confidentiality, to provide the appropriate means and ensure an adequate organisation of the translation service so as to prevent any shortcomings and the consequent increase of costs, in particular when deadlines for decisions are fixed by the Treaty;

20. Recognises the need for and usefulness of developing within the current Library of Parliament an analytical service for individual Members providing analytical papers linked to their parliamentary activity;

21. Takes note of the proposal to create a new article 323 for the 'relations with Parliaments of third countries and support for parliamentary democracy' with an amount of EUR 360 000 to differentiate, by geographical area, the Parliament's activities; expresses its concern regarding the number of delegations and assemblies in the Parliament's budget in particular due to the fact that their financial impact is not clearly identified in the budget as it includes not only the appropriation under the existing items but also the related costs for interpretation and technical and logistical support; asks the administration to make a proposal to improve the transparency of this type of activity;

Thursday 25 October 2007

22. Considers that the Presidencies of the Parliament and the Council should take into account EU citizens' opinion as regards the geographical dispersion of the Parliament amongst the three places of work and the related costs and environmental consequences;

23. As regards parliamentary assistance, calls on the administration to strengthen the internal control system in order to ensure that recruitment of Members' assistants is clear and transparent, guaranteeing that tax and social regulations (salary and social security rights, etc.) are respected;

24. Calls on the Commission to present a new proposal for an assistants' statute that guarantees the necessary freedom of choice and flexibility for Members in terms of duration of contracts and salaries on the one hand and uniformity and security in terms of the tax regime, social security provisions and medical insurance for assistants on the other hand;

European Political Foundations

25. Has decided at this stage of the budgetary procedure, pending the adoption of the legal basis for the financing of the European Political Foundations, to create a new heading (403, 'Contributions to European political foundations') with an EUR 5 million allocation in the reserve and a token entry ('p.m.');

European Parliament Apprenticeship Programme

26. Welcomes the work of the Secretariat aimed at evaluating the introduction of an EP Apprenticeship Programme and calls on the Bureau to proceed with the necessary preparatory work with the available five posts; calls on the administration to include in its procurement procedures as one award criterion the employment of apprentices in tendering companies;

For an Environmentally friendly Parliament

27. Regrets that, more than five years after the start of the EMAS process in the budget procedure, EMAS registration is still pending and the impact on the environment as well as the savings and the investments in relation to its implementation are still not known; invites the administration to provide the above information as previously requested in paragraph 37 of its abovementioned resolution of 29 March 2007 and paragraph 31 of its abovementioned resolution of 7 June 2007 and present it to its relevant committees and other bodies; moreover requests the administration to report on the reduction of energy consumption that should have resulted from the decrease in air-conditioning during the summer period, and to present an action plan for reducing and off-setting CO₂ emissions caused by the Parliament's activities, especially as regards travel and buildings, and for reducing the use of water, paper and other resources; in this connection calls on the administration to present an expert report on the possible employment of photovoltaic or solar panels for energy generation on the roofs and the walls of Parliament's buildings;

28. Asks the administration to renew its car fleet by purchasing or renting vehicles which pollute less than the current ones, such as hybrid cars, on the basis of presentation of a relevant action plan which includes the financial impact of such a decision;

29. Asks the administration to reduce the number of staff missions and to encourage the staff, while travelling between the three places of work, to use the most environmentally friendly means;

Information policy

30. Reiterates its willingness to have a strong information policy involving the political groups and close to the European citizens; considers that this can be achieved through the strengthening of the local and regional media, the quick opening of the Visitors' Centre in Brussels and the increased flexibility of the use of the visitors' groups; regarding the latter, recalls that reimbursement based on real costs, within a ceiling to be defined, will ensure the complete transparency of the programme; invites, to that end, the Quaestors to re-examine the current rules;

Thursday 25 October 2007

31. Calls on the Bureau to decide on a programme for the forthcoming election campaign that takes into account the need for close contact between Members and EU citizens; reiterates in this respect the role of the Information Offices as well as the local and regional media, as regards increasing EU citizens' awareness of Parliament's activities; asks the administration to strengthen actions in favour of local and regional media in the external offices, including the involvement of Members; looks forward in this connection to receiving their annual work programme for 2008 by December 2007 in order to release the reserve in January;

32. Calls on the Bureau to use the appropriations earmarked for information to provide diverse information which, inter alia, caters for the public information needs of parliamentary minorities;

33. Regrets the lack of information being submitted to the Budgetary Authority on the progress registered to date on the WebTV prototype, especially since information policy, including WebTV, is considered a priority for 2008; decides to keep EUR 9 million in the reserve for information and communication until the prototype is presented for approval to the Budgetary Authority;

34. Awaits the WebTV prototype; recalls that the condition already agreed in the previous budgetary procedure and its resolution of 26 October 2006 on the 2007 Budget (Sections I, II, IV, V, VI, VII, VIII(A) and VIII(B)) ⁽¹⁾ for the financing of this project is the approval of the prototype;

Security

35. Shares, with the administration, the concern that security is a major issue; notes, however, that the administration is not able to indicate the exact number of persons that are in the Parliament's buildings as some of them do not use their badges to open the gate; consequently invites the administration to make sure that staff respect the rules and invites the Quaestors to reconsider the use of electronic badges by Members, which will enable the implementation of different new facilities, such as electronic signatures;

36. Highlights the fact that the security around Parliament's premises in Brussels is not well assured after normal working hours for its Members and staff; invites the administration to press the Belgian authorities to improve the situation;

Establishment plan

37. Supports the setting-up of two new Directorates General for Interpretation and Technological Innovation Support; considers this will improve the service provided for Members and the different units of the administration;

38. Considers that the proposal on staff, presented by the Secretary General, including the creation of new posts, posts to be redeployed and a number of conversions and transformations, reflects the concern of the Parliament to limit the increase of its establishment plan strictly to new projects or specific competences; notes that the number of posts redeployed attain the annual target of 1 % fixed in the estimates resolution; asks to be regularly informed on the implementation of the redeployment policy plan; furthermore, acknowledges that the proposal presented has a marginal financial impact on the 2008 budget;

39. Has therefore decided to approve the modifications of the establishment plan measures proposed by the Secretary General as a package as follows:

- release from the reserve for the creation of 16 new posts requested in the estimates and their corresponding appropriations; this concerns nine AD5 and seven AST3 posts including one temporary post for the sixth Quaestor,
- make the necessary appropriations available for the creation of five AD5 posts for the analytical service within the Library and two AD16 posts for the creation of the new Directorates General,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- the conversion of 35 AST posts (10 AST1, 10 AST2, 5 AST3, 5 AST4 and 5 AST5) into AD5 posts which were placed in reserve,
- one ad personam promotion (AD14 into AD15),
- the conversions of 25 AST6 into AD5 and 1 AST1 into AD5,
- the regrading measures of 23 permanent posts (2 AD12 into AD15, 11 AD12 into AD7, 4 AST11 into AST3, 3 AST11 into AST1 and 3 AST6 into AST1);

40. Has decided to release from the reserve the 448 upgradings for Parliament's secretariat requested by the administration in the context of Article 6 of the Staff Regulations for permanent and temporary staff and their corresponding appropriations; regarding permanent staff, this concerns 2 AD13 to AD14, 45 AD12 to AD13, 25 AD11 to AD12; 10 AD7 to AD8, 3 AD6 to AD7, 165 AD5 to AD6, 50 AST7 to AST8, 65 AST4 to AST5, 65 AST1 to AST2 and, regarding temporary staff, 1 AD12 to AD13, 2 AD10 to AD11, 1 AST2 to AST3, 2 AST1 to AST2, 12 AST1 to AST3;

41. Has likewise decided to confirm the 74 upgradings requested by the political groups: 1 AD12 to AD13, 6 AD11 to AD12, 4 AD10 to AD11, 2 AD9 to AD10, 4 AD8 to AD9, 3 AD7 to AD8, 7 AD6 to AD7, 8 AD5 to AD6, 3 AST10 to AST11, 9 AST8 to AST9, 9 AST7 to AST8, 3 AST6 to AST7, 2 AST5 to AST6, 2 AST4 to AST5, 1 AST3 to AST4, 2 AST2 to AST3, 8 AST1 to AST2;

42. Points out that exercising democratic scrutiny over the Commission is a core task of Parliament and requests the Bureau and the administration to allocate the necessary comitology posts for this task, taking into account the new responsibilities of Parliament in the field of foreign affairs and development policy programmes; moreover, emphasises the importance of strengthening Parliament's administrative capacities with regard to its new powers of democratic scrutiny over the external assistance instruments; therefore asks the Secretary General to redeploy two AD posts, one to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and one to the Committee on Development, in the course of 2008, as soon as a vacancy occurs in any of the departments which have been identified as 'negative priorities';

43. Welcomes the initiative taken by the Bureau to establish guidelines for recruitment which take into account persons with disabilities including stagiaires and interim and/or temporary contract staff as stated in the Code of Good practice for Employment of People with Disabilities; welcomes also the initiative taken by the administration regarding the training programme in favour of disabled persons; is of the opinion that, in order to ease their insertion in Parliament's administration, the administration should consider appointing a 'coordinator for disabled persons';

44. Has decided to enter 2 posts for the Library in reserve, in order to motivate the administration to create a comprehensible, in-house Knowledge Management System;

Miscellaneous

45. Takes note of the proposal made by the Bureau to allocate an amount of EUR 100 000 to the Sakharov Foundation as a subsidy towards human rights activities; will verify whether the award of a grant to the Sakharov Foundation in Moscow, following the decision taken by the Bureau on 10 October 2007 to agree in principle to the draft convention, is in compliance with the provisions of the Financial Regulation, in particular the possibility for Parliament to award grants to cover information activities (Article 108(4) of the Financial Regulation);

Section IV — Court of Justice

46. Highlights the fact that the increase of the budget is mainly due to the handover of the New Palais; considers that its financial impact is particularly substantial in the 2008 budget and should remain exceptional; stresses that according to the Financial Multiannual Framework the margin under heading 5 in 2009 will be limited; consequently invites the Court of Justice to proceed to a detailed and scrutinised exercise in order to limit its growth in 2009;

Thursday 25 October 2007

47. Agrees with the Court of Justice to reduce its contribution to the lease-purchase for the New Palais by EUR 4 million, thanks to the frontloading of this amount from the 2007 budget;
48. Has decided in agreement with the Court of Justice to restore the standard abatement to a level of 3,7%; has therefore restored the corresponding appropriations;
49. Has decided on the following establishment plan measures:

 - to transform one temporary AD12T post to AD14T and three permanent AST3 posts to AD5 in the IT division;
53. Has restored the appropriation linked to fitting-out work required by the health and security law of the Luxembourg State and the renovation of the Court's meeting room; considers that these expenditures have an exceptional character and cannot be renewed in the 2009 budget;
54. Has increased the appropriations made available by the Council in the draft budget by EUR 3 261 204 which represents a 9,65 % increase over the 2007 budget;

European Economic and Social Committee and Committee of the Regions

55. Regrets that at this stage of the budgetary procedure the two committees have not been able to present their new cooperation agreement; recalls the decision taken in its resolution of 14 December 2006 on the draft general budget of the European Union for the financial year 2007 as modified by the Council (all sections)⁽¹⁾ that this agreement was expected to be received by July 2007; has consequently decided to enter in Chapter 10 0 ('Provisional appropriation') 10 % of the 2007 budget of the Joint Service cost; is ready to release the appropriations from the reserve as soon as the new cooperation agreement is concluded;
56. Reaffirms its will to preserve this cooperation agreement, which constitutes an example of good interinstitutional cooperation and increases the efficiency of both entities thanks to enhanced expertise in logistical and technical tasks and the possibility for the core business services to be relieved of day-to-day management tasks;

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Article 33 of the EC Treaty,
- having regard to its position of 26 September 2007 ⁽¹⁾ on set-aside for the year 2008,
- having regard to Rule 108(5) of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas world grain prices have increased dramatically in recent months and public and private cereal stocks have fallen to their lowest level in 40 years,
- B. whereas the latest estimates suggest that in 2007 the EU-27 grain harvest will be around 8 million tonnes less than in 2006,
- C. whereas the 2006 harvest was only 265,5 million tonnes, leaving just one million tonnes in intervention in 2007,
- D. whereas the world grain supply has been affected by severe weather conditions, notably droughts and floods, which are probably associated with climate change,
- E. whereas in most Member States it is impossible to discern a direct and long-term link between the rise in the prices of certain products and biofuel demand, but it should, nonetheless, be emphasised that in countries such as the US an active policy of promoting maize growing to produce bioethanol is having a direct effect on feed and food prices, which effect has been recognised by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD),
- F. whereas the OECD study of September 2007 on the impact of biofuel production on global food security and biodiversity warns that competition for land and resources between food and feed production, on the one hand, and fuel, on the other, could increase food prices to such an extent that access to food for the poorest peoples and regions would be threatened,

- G. whereas world demand for food is rising faster than supply, not least because rising incomes in emerging economies such as India and China, combined with growing populations, are driving up demand, especially for meat and dairy products, and therefore also for feed,
- H. whereas food insecurity continues to be a reality for over 854 million people, some 820 million of whom are in the developing world,
- I. whereas retail food prices have not kept up with the cost of living, and farmgate prices have failed to keep up with retail prices,
- J. whereas major wholesale companies and a small number of large retailers operating in the EU have considerable power to set prices for foodstuffs, and whereas their concentration is such that it amounts to a dominant position vis-à-vis producers,
- K. whereas the rising cost of compound feed is driving up production costs for the livestock sector,
- L. whereas over the past 15 years the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) has already undergone dramatic change in response to pressure from European society and its evolving economy, and whereas decoupling is providing farmers with the opportunity to respond to market signals,
- M. whereas Article 33 of the EC Treaty states that ensuring the availability of supplies and ensuring that supplies reach consumers at reasonable prices are objectives of the CAP,

Set-aside

1. Welcomes the recent decision by the Council of Ministers of agriculture to adopt the Commission's proposal to suspend set-aside obligations for 2008 ⁽¹⁾;
2. Notes the Commission's estimate that this move will free up around 2,9 million hectares for grain production and increase the 2008 harvest by around 10 million tonnes;
3. Regrets the fact that the Council did not adopt Parliament's amendments seeking to suspend set-aside for the year 2009 as well, and expects this matter to be taken up in the imminent CAP Health Check;

Food production and retailing

4. Notes Commissioner Fischer Boel's recent comment that meat and meat-product prices could rise by up to 30 % in 2008 because of increased feed costs;
5. Notes that the increased milk prices in 2007 represent a small but urgently needed income rise for dairy farmers, but are problematic for consumers and make it more difficult to obtain the required supply of milk products, for example for schools and hospitals;
6. Calls on the Commission, as a matter of urgency, to propose a temporary increase in milk quotas in order to stabilise prices on the internal market;
7. Notes with concern that European poultry producers are having to pay 40 % to 60 % more for feed than one year ago, especially as feed accounts for around 60 % of their total costs;

Thursday 25 October 2007

8. Emphasises in the strongest possible terms that the raw-material cost is a relatively minor component in the total cost of many food products, especially processed foods, and that, even after the recent increases in wheat prices, the cost of wheat accounts for less than 10 % of the retail price of a loaf of bread in the UK and less than 5 % of that of a 'baguette' in France;

9. Calls on the Commission and Member States to analyse the discrepancies between farmgate prices and the prices charged by the major retailers; points out, in particular, that the Commission should investigate the effects of concentration in the retail sector, which act mainly to the disadvantage of small producers, small enterprises and consumers, and employ all the legal means available to it should abuses of market power be identified;

10. Urges the Commission to authorise advance direct payments to livestock farmers, especially to those affected by disease outbreaks (e.g. bluetongue), as they may face serious cash-flow problems as a result of increased feed prices;

Biofuels

11. Emphasises that only a very small proportion of EU cereal production is currently being used for biofuel production and that meeting the EU's biofuel targets in 2020 would still require the use of only 15 % of the EU's arable land;

12. Notes that the area of EU land under energy crops has increased tenfold, to 2,84 million hectares, since 2004,

13. Emphasises that biofuels are at present the only substitute for fossil fuels which is available on the market on a large scale and, unlike fossil fuels, is renewable and can produce significant reductions in greenhouse-gas emissions;

14. Notes that when one tonne of cereals is used in the EU for the production of bioethanol, up to 40 % returns to the animal feed sector in the form of by-products;

15. Calls on the Commission and Member States, nevertheless, to do more to promote the use and production of second-generation bioenergy, which involves processing of manure and agricultural waste materials rather than primary agricultural products;

16. Calls on the Commission to carry out an environmental and food-security impact assessment which takes account of existing competition for land and resources between food and plant-based fuel production, and which examines the impact of climate change and possible measures to avoid further depletion of food-production resources;

Imports and exports

17. Notes with serious concern that the cost of compound feed has risen by EUR 75 per tonne and is continuing to rise owing to an acute shortage of feed grains, and that this represents an additional cost of EUR 10 billion to the EU livestock industry;

18. Notes the Commission's announcement made at the meeting of the Council of Ministers of agriculture of September 2007 of the intention of formulating a proposal to lift import duties for cereals for 2008 as a means of dealing with the difficult situation in the livestock sector, especially the pigmeat sector;

Thursday 25 October 2007

19. Points out that such decisions may actually weaken the EU's negotiating position on market access in WTO negotiations;
20. Emphasises that this decision should not serve as a precedent for other sectors, such as rice;
21. Rejects any moves to impose export quotas and tariffs on EU agricultural production;
22. Demands that third country operators be subjected to the same stringent controls as EU producers;
23. Calls on the Commission to undertake a stock-taking exercise of possible supply management and food security measures which could avoid further extreme volatility of feed and food prices and unsustainable competition between food and fuel production;

Global food insecurity

24. Is mindful that reduced world food stocks have a serious and particular impact on low-income food-deficit countries in the developing world, with the total cereal imports bill for these countries forecast to increase considerably to an all-time high of USD 28 billion in 2007/2008, up approximately 14 % from last year's already high level;

25. Notes that, overall, developing countries will spend a record USD 52 billion on cereal imports in 2007/2008;

26. Calls on the Commission to analyse carefully the effects of supply shortages of cereals and oil seeds on the most vulnerable food producers and consumers in the EU and third countries, including proposals for instruments and measures to prevent disruptions of food supply and the inflationary effects of further price increases;

27. Calls on the Commission to undertake an in-depth analysis of world market trends, including the increased demand for food in developing countries, in order to consider, as part of the CAP Health Check, the creation of permanent mechanisms to guarantee an adequate market supply in future;

28. Calls on the Commission to take all necessary measures to guarantee a sustainable agriculture which is able to contribute to significant reductions in greenhouse-gas emissions and guarantee food sovereignty for the Member States;

29. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission.

Special Measure 2007 for Iraq

European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2007 on the draft Commission decision establishing a Special Measure 2007 for Iraq

The European Parliament,

— having regard to Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2006 establishing a financing instrument for development cooperation ⁽¹⁾,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- having regard to the draft Commission decision establishing a Special Measure 2007 for Iraq (CMT-2007-2245),
 - having regard to the opinion delivered on 8 October 2007 by the committee referred to in Article 35(1) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 (hereinafter referred to as 'the DCI management committee'),
 - having regard to Article 8 of Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to Rule 81 of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas, on 8 October 2007, the DCI management committee voted in favour of a draft Commission decision establishing a Special Measure for Iraq for 2007 (CMT-2007-2245),
- B. whereas, pursuant to Article 7(3) of Decision 1999/468/EC and point 1 of the Agreement between the European Parliament and the Commission on procedures for implementing Council Decision 1999/468/EC ⁽²⁾ the European Parliament received the draft implementing measure submitted to the DCI management committee and the results of voting,
- C. whereas Article 2(1) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulates that 'the primary and overarching objective of cooperation under this Regulation shall be the eradication of poverty in partner countries and regions in the context of sustainable development',
- D. whereas Article 2(4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulates that 'measures referred to in Article 1(1) ⁽³⁾ shall be designed so as to fulfil the criteria for Official Development Assistance (ODA) established by the [Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD/DAC)]',
- E. whereas, in its Reporting Directives for the Creditor Reporting System of 2002 (DCD/DAC(2002)21), the OECD/DAC defined ODA as financial flows to countries on its list of ODA recipients for which, inter alia, 'each transaction is administered with the promotion of the economic development and welfare of developing countries as its main objective',
- F. whereas Article 23(1) and (3) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulate respectively that (Article 23(1)) 'in the event of unforeseen and duly justified needs or circumstances related to natural disasters, civil strife or crises, and which cannot be funded under Regulation (EC) No 1717/2006 or Regulation (EC) No 1257/96, the Commission shall adopt special measures not provided for in the strategy papers or multiannual indicative programmes (hereinafter referred to as "special measures")', that 'special measures may also be used to fund measures to ease the transition from emergency aid to long-term development operations including those to better prepare people to deal with recurring crises', and that (Article 23(3)) 'where the cost of such measures exceeds EUR 10 million, the Commission shall adopt them under the management procedure referred to in Article 35(2)',

Thursday 25 October 2007

2. Takes the view that, in the draft Special Measure for Iraq for 2007, the Commission exceeds the implementing powers laid down in Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 by selecting as one of the areas of intervention a 'Feasibility Study for the Akkas Gas Field', the overall objective of which is 'to study the conditions for exploration of the Akkas Gas Field in western Iraq in view of linking its output to the Syrian gas pipeline network', and further 'to integrate this project if possible in the workings of the Euro-Arab Mashreq Gas Market Project'; points out that 'the study will take into consideration the future interest of the Mashreq neighbours and of the EU in integrating the output of the wells into the Euro-Mashreq gas market', and that 'this integration will open a large potential market for the Akkas fields' production and allow a first integration of the Iraq natural gas with the regional and European market', and therefore considers that this objective is not in compliance with Article 2(1) and (4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006, in that the primary objective of the proposed Special Measures is not the eradication of poverty and in that the stated objectives do not fulfil the criteria for ODA established by the OECD/DAC;

3. Calls on the Commission to withdraw or amend its draft decision establishing Special Measure for Iraq, and to submit to the DCI management committee a new draft decision fully complying with the provisions of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006;

4. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission, the representatives of the Member States in the DCI management committee, and to the parliaments and governments of the Member States.

 - having regard to the formation of a new government in Belgrade on 15 May 2007,

 - having regard to the resumption of the negotiations on an EU-Serbia Stabilisation and Association Agreement (SAA) on 13 June 2007,
 - having regard to the conclusions on the Western Balkans of the General Affairs Council of 12 February and 18 June 2007,
 - having regard to the report of 18 June 2007 presented by the Chief Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) to the United Nations Security Council concerning Serbia's cooperation with the ICTY,
 - having regard to the exchange of views with the ICTY Chief Prosecutor at the meeting of Parliament's Committee on Foreign Affairs of 26 June 2007,
 - having regard to the agreement between the EU and Serbia for the proper enforcement of property rights with a view to achieving both political and economic stability,
 - having regard to Rule 114(3) and Rule 90 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Foreign Affairs (A6-0325/2007),
- A. whereas the future of Serbia lies in the European Union,
- B. whereas Serbia is an important factor for stability and prosperity in the region, with the prospect of EU membership providing a major incentive to reform,
- C. whereas Serbia is a signatory of the Central European Free Trade Association (CEFTA) and has recently completed the technical negotiations relating to the SAA; whereas Serbia's accession to the WTO may be concluded before 2008,
- D. whereas seventy per cent of those Serbs who voted are in favour of EU membership and two thirds of citizens voted for parties belonging to the democratic camp,
- E. whereas Serbia has a new government which is pro-European and pro-reform,
- F. whereas Serbia's successful resumption of the SAA negotiations could serve as a further example of the positive changes in the Western Balkans, influenced, inter alia, by the EU,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- G. whereas genuine efforts have been and should continue to be made to overcome the divisions and attitudes of the past to promote a European future for the citizens of Serbia,
- H. whereas in 2006 the Serbian economy showed strong growth (around 5,8%) and a growing volume of foreign direct investment; whereas, however, concerns remain regarding the current account deficit, which continues to grow, and the high unemployment rate (around 20,9% in 2006),
- I. whereas corruption remains a serious problem in Serbia, and whereas on Transparency International's 2006 Corruption Perceptions Index, Serbia had an average score of 3,0 (on a scale ranging from 0 'highly corrupt' to 10 'highly clean'),
- J. whereas two of the six fugitive war crimes indictees wanted by the ICTY have recently been arrested and transferred to The Hague and four remain at large, including Ratko Mladić and Radovan Karadžić,
- K. whereas the Serbian public is not sufficiently informed about the extent of the crimes committed in the recent wars, most notably in Srebrenica,
- L. whereas the wars in Yugoslavia have profoundly altered the social fabric of Serbia and have prompted, inter alia, the emigration of large numbers of the political and intellectual elite and the influx of refugees and internally displaced persons (IDPs), together with the return of the veterans traumatised by the violence of the 1990s,
- M. whereas the disintegration of Yugoslavia had devastating consequences in terms of loss of life and human suffering, thereby making inter-ethnic reconciliation a factor of paramount importance in securing stability in the region,
1. Believes that Serbia deserves special commendation for the peaceful resolution of a series of difficult challenges over the past year, including the dissolution of the State Union of Serbia and Montenegro, fair and free parliamentary elections and the formation of a new government with a pro-European engagement;
 2. Welcomes the completion of technical negotiations on an SAA between the Serbian Government and the EU after a 13-month break; encourages both parties to make all the necessary arrangements in order to avoid technical delays prior to signature of the SAA, so that the signature can take place before the end of 2007; regards the signature of the SAA as an important step in the road towards EU accession;
 3. Welcomes the Serbian Government's desire to cooperate with the ICTY, which opens the way to further cooperation with the EU;
 4. Takes note of the briefing presented by the Chief Prosecutor of the ICTY, Carla Del Ponte, to the General Affairs and External Relations Council of the EU, meeting in Luxembourg on 15 October 2007; calls on Serbia to resolve the still open issues concerning full cooperation with the ICTY in connection with the forthcoming visit of Ms Del Ponte to Belgrade; calls on the Commission, once those issues have been resolved, to initial the SAA without further delay;
 5. Congratulates Serbia on its recent progress in cooperating with the ICTY, which has made it possible for the SAA negotiations to be resumed and for the ICTY's Chief Prosecutor, Carla Del Ponte, to give a positive assessment regarding Serbia's cooperation with the Tribunal; welcomes the arrest and transfer to The Hague of Zdravko Tolimir and Vlastimir Đorđević, the assurance of Prime Minister Koštunica to Carla Del Ponte that 'more arrests are likely' (including ex-Bosnian Serb General Ratko Mladić), and the creation of new structures aimed at centralising all activities to apprehend fugitives, including improved transparency of the National Security Council; welcomes the cooperation between the authorities of Serbia, Bosnia-Herzegovina and Montenegro in facilitating the recent transfers to The Hague;

Thursday 25 October 2007

6. Reminds Serbia that signature of the SAA is conditional upon full cooperation with the ICTY, and that this should lead to the arrest and transfer of all remaining indictees, whilst noting that the recent arrests prove that the Serbian authorities are able to find and apprehend indicted war criminals; stresses that full cooperation with the ICTY is not only an international obligation but also a key step towards achieving lasting reconciliation in the region; to this end, calls on the Serbian parliament to fulfil its commitments arising from the abovementioned ICJ judgment and to adopt a declaration denouncing the genocide in Srebrenica;

7. Believes, given the timetable for closure of the ICTY, which currently envisages the conclusion of trials by 2008, that it would be necessary to consider extending the mandate of the ICTY were indicted war criminals to be arrested after that date;

8. Notes that the compromise agreement reached at the Brussels European Council of 21 and 22 June 2007 paves the way for a renewed legal basis for the European Union by 2009, creating the necessary institutional setting for future enlargements and enabling the EU and Serbia dynamically to conduct the accession process on the basis of Serbia's development and merits;

9. Takes the view that resolving the issue of the status of Kosovo will both consolidate stability in the Western Balkans and facilitate the integration of the region into the European Union;

10. Is pleased to note that Serbia has made significant economic progress since 2000, with an average annual growth rate of 5%; notes, however, that according to the IMF's assessment, this has not translated into a reduction in poverty or in the high unemployment rate (which is over 20%); believes that tackling these problems represents a core challenge for the new government; therefore calls on the Serbian government to make a firmer commitment to employment creation and poverty alleviation and to adopt concrete measures aimed at a more balanced economic development in all districts of the country, with particular attention being paid to underdeveloped south-eastern and eastern parts of the country;

11. Believes that the further development of administrative structures and procedures can increase trust in the rule of law, strengthen the market economy and encourage economic growth in Serbia; calls on the Serbian authorities to improve the economic climate for foreign investment and transparency in trade relationships;

12. Is pleased to record that Serbia has a new constitution which includes positive provisions regarding human rights; notes, however, that the legal framework for the protection of minorities needs to be improved further; is concerned about problematic provisions relating, inter alia, to the procedure for appointing, promoting and dismissing judges and prosecutors and the lack of adequate public consultation or parliamentary debate during the drafting process; calls on the Serbian authorities to consider enhancing the scope of territorial decentralisation, in particular vis-à-vis Vojvodina;

13. Emphasises the importance of ensuring that EU assistance is delivered in a manner which takes into account the current territorial and administrative structure of Serbia and the ethnic composition and traditional economic and cultural relations within the territories concerned, with the full involvement of local and regional authorities; calls on the Commission, the Council and its own competent committees to closely monitor the organising of NUTS 2 level regions in Serbia;

14. Commends Serbia for the greater transparency achieved in the operation of the government and parliament and for its good administrative capacity; congratulates Serbia on the adoption of the Law on the Budget for 2007 and on the election of an Ombudsman and a Commissioner for Public Information, a Governor of the National Bank of Serbia and the members of the Council of the State Audit Institution; regrets that the nomination of judges for the Constitutional Court is still pending;

Thursday 25 October 2007

15. Strongly believes that a key human rights issue is to find durable solutions for refugees and IDPs, especially since Serbia is still hosting a very high number of refugees, mostly from Croatia and partly from Bosnia-Herzegovina, and IDPs from Kosovo; deeply regrets that the end-of-2006 deadline for resolving all outstanding issues foreseen by the Sarajevo Declaration on the return of refugees and property reparations, signed on 31 January 2005 by Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina and Serbia-Montenegro, has not been met and that little progress has been made since;

16. Therefore calls on the Serbian Government to pursue its efforts to implement the Sarajevo Declaration, including by adopting a clear legal framework covering, inter alia, the right to return to the place of origin and the right to property compensation; urges the EU, its Member States and the international community to remain committed to upholding the rights of refugees, and to provide continuing support to the countries in question, including by earmarking sufficient financial resources to that end; emphasises that the integration or resettlement of IDPs and refugees should not significantly alter the original ethnic balance of an area or region; in this respect, draws attention to the Council of Europe's Framework Convention of 1 February 1995 on the Protection of Minorities;

17. Recognises the progress made in the fight against organised crime and corruption, which has recently led to many high-profile arrests, whilst noting that corruption, particularly in the police and the judiciary, remains a serious problem and that official investigations into corruption often appear to be politically motivated; points out that corruption is a major obstacle to attracting greater foreign investment, and calls on the Serbian government to implement a comprehensive anti-corruption strategy; considers it necessary to pursue the fight against organised crime;

18. Welcomes the completion of the transfer of competencies for state border protection from the army to the police as a major step towards meeting EU standards; urges the Council and the Commission to further encourage the Serbian government to carry out substantial reform of the police, the security services and the army, including measures to provide for greater civilian oversight of the military; considers that the reform of the police should take into account the need for minority-language-speaking police forces in regions inhabited by large minority populations;

19. Believes that promotion of the rule of law and the strict implementation of legal provisions must form one of the government's top priorities; welcomes the judicial reform measures taken to date but stresses the need for this process to be pursued, particularly in relation to the speed of trials, witness protection, the prevention of corruption and the independence of judges; regrets that the Constitutional Court is not functioning, and points out that this is not conducive to the development of democracy and democratic legislation in Serbia;

20. Welcomes the conclusion of the trial for the murder of Prime Minister Zoran Đinđić and supports a recent initiative by the special prosecution to uncover the political motives behind the assassination;

21. Welcomes the work of the Serbian War Crimes Prosecutor but regrets that domestic war crimes trials are undermined by a lack of transparency and political will to trace back the chain of command responsibility beyond the immediate perpetrators to those who issued the orders; believes that the sentences imposed by the Serbian war crimes court on four members of the paramilitary group, the Scorpions, for the execution of six Muslims from Srebrenica did not reflect the heinous nature of the crime; notes that the Serbian President indicated his public regret at the short duration of the sentences imposed;

22. Believes that the citizens of Serbia are entitled to be told the truth about the recent policies of war and genocide committed in their name, and to have knowledge of the perpetrators of war crimes; believes that Serbia must honestly confront its recent past in order to progress and that coming to terms with the past is an integral part of the road to reconciliation with Serbia's neighbours; calls on the government to re-open the Truth and Reconciliation Commission established in 2001, not least in order to promote a positive climate in those parts of the country which have been most affected by inter-ethnic conflict; urges the Commission to promote initiatives facilitating people-to-people contacts in the region and to allocate a greater proportion of funds to this end;

23. Welcomes the Serbian President's apology to Croatian citizens for war crimes committed in Serbia's name during the recent war; regards that apology as an expression of great political maturity and democratic leadership and as concrete evidence of the current government's determination to pursue a policy of friendship and cooperation with its neighbouring countries;
24. Believes that reconciliation and justice are indispensable for the stability and development of all the countries in the region as well as for their integration into the European Union; urges Serbia's neighbouring countries to follow this model and to condemn any manifestation of ethnic intolerance and racism which takes place in their territories;
25. Believes that the EU and its Member States should initiate and support programmes aimed at the provision of psycho-social counselling, focused primarily but not exclusively on women and children traumatised by their experiences before and during the war;
26. Welcomes the recent cooperation between Belgrade and Priština in searching for missing persons from the Kosovo conflict, in particular the recent joint efforts in the district of Raška; calls on the Serbian Government to issue a public report on Mačkatika;
27. Calls on the Council and the Commission to allocate to the International Commission for Missing Persons (ICMP) sufficient financial resources to enable that organisation to complete its work of identifying all missing persons in the territory of the former Yugoslavia by 2010; believes that the work of the ICMP contributes significantly to the process of truth, justice and reconciliation in the region;
28. Notes that, according to a survey conducted by the Strategic Marketing Agency for the Students Union of Serbia in 2004, 70 % of Serbian university students have never travelled abroad; welcomes the initiatives to provide Serbian students with opportunities to study in EU countries; calls on the Member States to seek new ways of promoting interaction with Serbian people;
29. Notes that Serbia actively contributes to regional cooperation and good neighbourly relations through membership of numerous regional initiatives such as the Stability Pact/Regional Cooperation Council and CEFTA; calls on Serbia to continue to play a responsible role in the region; emphasises that it is in Serbia's best interests to develop and maintain good relations with its regional partners, to enhance effective trans-border cooperation, fully utilising the potential of the national minorities in the border areas, and to participate actively in bilateral, regional and European infrastructural projects; reiterates that the future of all countries in the region lies in the EU;
30. Encourages the Serbian Government to promote good neighbourly relations with Bosnia-Herzegovina;
31. Urges the Serbian Government to continue the dialogue with its south-east European neighbours on border issues, given that territorial demarcations between Serbia and Croatia and between Serbia and Bosnia-Herzegovina have yet to be established;
32. Commends Serbia on improved inter-ethnic relations, in particular in Vojvodina where there has been a reduction in, although not a total cessation of, inter-ethnic incidents; calls on the Serbian authorities to take additional measures to promote the development of national minorities in multi-ethnic Vojvodina, to promote peaceful coexistence amongst them and to ensure that the police, the judiciary and other state bodies act on an ethnically neutral basis and, in order to build the necessary trust amongst the population towards those institutions, to ensure that the ethnic composition is adequately reflected in the staff of those authorities; further calls on the Serbian authorities to manage carefully any potential influx of refugees in order not to disrupt the ethnic, cultural, religious, economic and political balance of the region, with a view to ensuring their successful integration into a multicultural environment; emphasises the utmost importance of programmes aimed at tolerance-building between the communities, particularly in Vojvodina; is of the view that EU funding is also necessary for these programmes;

33. Is pleased to note that ethnic Albanian parties from the Preševo Valley participated in the recent elections for the first time in a decade and that minorities are represented in both the legislative and executive branches of power; believes that Sandžak remains a region of particular concern and calls on the government to work with local political actors with a view to devising policies to curb further radicalisation and divisions within the community;
34. Welcomes the earmarking of funds in the 2007 budget for projects directly linked to the Decade of Roma Inclusion; is concerned, however, by the overall lack of a systemic policy approach towards improving the lives and living conditions of the Roma, including IDPs and returnees, and by persisting discrimination against the Roma community;
35. Calls on the Serbian Government to implement in full the National Plans of Action for the implementation of the Decade of Roma Inclusion, both financially and institutionally, in order to devise practical and sustainable solutions for the Roma community; reminds Serbia that the adoption of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation and the sustainable repatriation of Roma people still living in camps are listed amongst the priorities of the European Partnership with Serbia;
36. Takes notes of the establishment of an Agency for Human and Minority Rights, directly under the Prime Minister, replacing the former State Union Ministry for Human and Minority Rights; calls on the Prime Minister to pursue a coherent and active minority policy and to ensure that human and minority rights are a priority on the Government's agenda; welcomes the fact that the new Serbian Constitution gives a constitutional basis to the National Councils of ethnic minorities and calls for the adoption of new legislation to provide better regulation for the status, work, and election of these Councils; looks forward to such legislation providing an improved legal framework for the protection of minority rights and the integration of all national minorities into state structures;
37. Welcomes the adoption of a comprehensive national strategy to combat human trafficking, but urges the Serbian Government to be more stringent in prosecuting cases and ensuring that traffickers receive and serve prison sentences consistent with the nature of the offence;
38. Believes that the transformation of Radio Television of Serbia (RTS) into a public service represents a step forward, but draws attention to the lack of public debate surrounding modifications to the Law on Broadcasting and shortcomings in the procedure for appointing RTS board members; draws attention also to the need to draw up fully democratic rules governing the allocation of radio and television broadcasting concessions and providing in particular for the possibility of appealing against decisions of the concessionary authority; deeply regrets that there has been no progress in the resolution of cases involving murders of journalists and deplors the recent attempted assassination of a prominent investigative reporter of war crimes and organised crime; demands that the relevant authorities find the perpetrators and thoroughly investigate the crime;
39. Notes the existence of a well-developed NGO sector and welcomes efforts by the authorities to consult with the civil sector, in particular the special memorandum of cooperation signed by the Serbian Office for European Integration and NGOs and the Council for Relations with Civil Society, established by the President of Serbia, and the Foreign Policy Council, established by the Serbian Foreign Minister, as well as the inclusion of NGO representatives in the state Council for European Integration, chaired by the Prime Minister; calls on the Serbian parliament to adopt legislation to improve the legal situation for civil society organisations;
40. Condemns the public denigration of civic society actors who criticise the government or draw attention to sensitive issues such as war crimes; deplors a recent spate of politically motivated assaults and warns of the increasing prevalence of hate speech in the media and politics targeted at human rights activists, journalists and politicians;
41. Welcomes the signing of the visa facilitation and readmission agreements on 18 September 2007 and urges the Council to ensure that they enter into force by the end of 2007; welcomes the adoption of the Law on Travel Documents and notes that laws on asylum, state borders and foreigners are currently in the course of adoption; calls on the Council, with the support of the Commission, to establish a concrete roadmap for visa-free movement and to adopt support measures designed to increase travel opportunities for a greater proportion of citizens, particularly young people; emphasises the importance of mobility for the political and economic development of Serbia, since mobility grants people the opportunity to gain first-hand experience of the EU and facilitates Serbia's European integration process; calls for greater participation in life-long learning and cultural exchange projects; invites the Council to consider establishing a common system for managing visa applications in such a way as to lighten the burden on the busiest consulates and to ensure that applications are processed within reasonable deadlines;

42. Takes the view that the reform of the education system is not only an imperative but also the only way for Serbia to develop a new system of values for younger generations within the present democratisation process;

43. Calls on the Council, the Commission and all Member States to make concerted efforts to increase EU visibility in Serbia, and urges the Commission to avoid further delay in recruiting staff to its delegation office, including experts to manage IPA (Instrument for Pre-Accession Assistance) funds;

44. Calls on the Committee on Foreign Affairs and its Subcommittee on Human Rights to continue to follow the situation in Vojvodina closely, following up the conclusions drawn in the abovementioned report of the fact-finding mission by its ad hoc delegation in Vojvodina;

45. Calls on the Serbian authorities to adopt, as a matter of urgency, restitution laws in line with those of other countries, which provide for real-cost compensation when appropriate, instead of government bonds;

46. Calls on the new Member States to play an active role in Serbia's move towards the EU, allowing Serbia to benefit from their experience of reforms;

47. Calls on the Serbian authorities to continue approximating EU environmental legislation and standards and to implement and enforce adopted legislation;

48. Welcomes Serbian membership of the Seventh Framework Programme for Research and Technological Development; calls on the Council to increase twinning and technical assistance programmes, in particular those targeted at young people;

49. Instructs its President to forward this recommendation to the Council and, for information, to the Commission and the governments and parliaments of the Member States and of Serbia.

Thursday 25 October 2007

- B. whereas at the 5th Ministerial Meeting of the African and EU Troikas on 2 December 2005 in Bamako, the African side welcomed the 2005 EU Strategy for Africa and both sides agreed to transform it into a joint Africa-EU Strategy reflecting the needs and aspirations of their peoples, and to develop an action plan for its implementation,
- C. whereas in the abovementioned Working Paper on Shared Vision for AU-EU strategy, the AU Executive Council noted that 'it should be clear that the objective of a joint strategy cannot be the validation of the existing EU Strategy for Africa but to come up with a new joint strategy that can reflect the merged aspirations of both sides',
- D. whereas, therefore, the purpose of the joint strategy should be to develop a common political vision for and practical approaches to the future partnership between the EU and Africa, based on mutual respect, common interests and values and the principle of ownership,
- E. whereas the willingness on both sides to redefine the joint partnership seems to stem from a growing awareness that Africa and the EU are not necessarily any longer each other's preferred partners,
- F. whereas the abovementioned Joint Progress Report on the implementation of the EU Strategy for Africa was not drawn up on the basis of independent external assessment,
- G. whereas Africa is the world's poorest continent and the only one where poverty has increased in the last 25 years,
- H. whereas the signatories of the abovementioned Cairo Plan of Action 'deplore the intolerable fact that more than half of all Africans are living in absolute poverty and agree to intensify the fight against poverty. The primary responsibility for alleviating poverty lies at home with each country, but this does not diminish the importance of the international dimension in the war against poverty',
- I. whereas in 2006 the European Parliament established an ad-hoc delegation for relations with the PAP and in 2007 the PAP established an ad-hoc committee for relations with the European Parliament,
- J. whereas parliaments in both Unions, as primary actors in the development process, have to be actively involved in strategies and action plans affecting the populations they represent,
- K. whereas most African countries are members of the ACP group and signatories of the Cotonou Agreement,
- L. whereas Africa insists on being treated as one and on being supported in its pan-African integration process, including North-Africa, Sub-Saharan Africa and South-Africa, and whereas the AU has set up its own strategic programme for the development of Africa,
- M. whereas at the World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg in 2002, governments agreed that good governance should be based on sound environmental, social and economic policies; democratic institutions responsive to the needs of all people; human rights and the rule of law; anti-corruption measures; gender equality; and a favourable environment for investment,
- N. whereas it is crucial to have a holistic approach to human rights in the joint strategy, including economic, social and cultural rights,
- O. whereas the AU institutions have only fairly recently been set up and do not yet have the same level of integration, organisation and efficiency as the EU institutions,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- P. whereas effectiveness and mutual accountability require predictable and long-term financial resources, clear timelines and the fulfilment of commitments on both sides,
- Q. whereas too often lines of accountability run directly from national executives to development partners, thereby by-passing any sort of parliamentary approval of international agreements (and consultation of civil society and local authorities),
- R. whereas Africa's historical contribution to the causes of climate change is negligible while, as a continent, it is bound to suffer its consequences most severely (estimates by the IPCC project that between 75 and 250 million people in Africa will be exposed to an increase in water stress by 2020, and in some countries rain-fed agricultural yields will be reduced by 50 % by the same year,
- S. whereas the depletion of Africa's natural resources poses a serious threat to poverty reduction and to the achievement of the MDGs,
- T. whereas Africa provides a wide range of ecosystem services to the world, including the storage of carbon by its tropical forests, without due compensation,

Process, structure and principles of the joint strategy

Process and structure

1. Welcomes the Troika outline of 15 May 2007 as a first joint effort towards a joint strategy;
2. Deplores the fact that the abovementioned 2005 EU Strategy for Africa was adopted without in-depth consultation with the AU institutions and African governments and parliaments, and without any involvement of European and African civil society and local authorities; notes, in this regard, that this strategy dictates the main topics addressed by the proposed new joint strategy, thus running the risk of leaving out other important issues for Africa's sustainable development; hopes that the new proposed strategy will come forth from in-depth consultation of the AU institutions;
3. Regrets that the timelimits established by the European Commission and the Council of the EU and the AUC and AU Executive Council for the establishment and adoption of the joint strategy have led to serious limitations in the process; notes the challenge of ensuring full participation by parliaments and emphasises that non-state actors and local authorities must as a matter of urgency be fully involved and be considered in all phases of the adoption, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the joint strategy, since the Lisbon Summit should be considered as a milestone in a longer and open process;
4. Welcomes the Commission's assertion that 'Parliament clearly has an important role to play in the process', its promise 'to keep Parliament regularly informed of the progress made in the preparation of the Joint Strategy' and the encouragement given to Parliament 'to take part in the debates, and indeed to take the initiative'; notes, however, that the timetable for the negotiations is set by the European Commission and the AUC and therefore expects the European Commission and the AUC to take active steps to involve the European Parliament and the PAP in the process of preparing the joint strategy and in the adoption and implementation stages thereof;

Shared principles and vision

5. Agrees with the AU Executive Council's vision statement: 'Africa and Europe share a vision of development, peace, security and prosperity that places people in the centre of their efforts. This vision is driven by a partnership based on mutual respect, common interest and shared purpose that commits both regions to deepening regional integration as a means of achieving economic and social development. They also share a vision of advancing democracy, good governance and human rights as universal values for promoting development and strengthening cooperation in a context that respects the solidarity and indivisibility of the two continents';

Thursday 25 October 2007

6. Points out that humanitarian aid is one of the means available to the international community for helping to protect threatened populations and emphasises that the EU does not wish to remain unresponsive to violations of international humanitarian law (IHL); calls for an in-depth political debate to be held by the Member States and the EU institutions on the right — if not to say the duty — of intervention in the event of serious violations of IHL and/or human rights, taking also into account the conclusions and recommendations of the abovementioned Report of the International Commission on Intervention and State Sovereignty entitled 'The responsibility to protect';
7. Stresses that the shared principles and vision should also include respect for the rule of law, as well as participatory democracy, pluralism and fundamental freedoms, all recognised in the abovementioned Cairo Declaration;
8. Welcomes the objectives listed in the abovementioned Troika outline of 15 May 2007: (i) an EU-Africa political partnership, (ii) the continued promotion of peace, security, sustainable development, human rights and regional and continental integration in Africa in order to attain the MDGs, (iii) the common address of global challenges and (iv) a 'people-centred partnership'; insists that these objectives should faithfully reflect the priorities expressed by Africans and points out that development is nonetheless the main priority objective of the strategy;
9. Calls on the Commission to clarify how the new strategy will reflect on the Country Strategy Papers (CSPs) and the National and Regional Indicative Programmes under the Cotonou Agreement and how the possible new elements emerging from the establishment of the new joint strategy in December 2007 will influence these strategy papers and indicative programmes;
10. Regrets that the Commission and the Council's contribution to the strategy does not endorse one of Africa's main requests, namely to treat Africa as one; in this regard highlights that a 'continent-to-continent' approach should be taken at the level of political dialogue and negotiations without, however, hindering a differential approach at the level of policy implementation; requests the EU institutions to adapt their development cooperation instruments to this new political demand of the AU, and to fully support the political and economic integration process of Africa at continental level;
11. Call on the EU institutions to create a new programmable and predictable financial pan-African envelope from the European Development Fund (EDF), the DCI thematic instruments and the funds of the European Neighbourhood Policy Instrument (ENPI), in order to finance and support the implementation of this new joint strategy;
12. Regrets the fact that the joint strategy makes no reference to the abovementioned AUC 2004-2007 Strategic Plan, and urges the European Commission to direct the actions it proposes towards supporting politically, financially, logistically, technically and in terms of human resources the institutions of the AU and the initiatives and priorities worked out by them, rather than proposing new donor-driven initiatives and parallel structures;
13. Affirms that responsibility is required from both sides, in terms of input, dialogue and mutual accountability; in this respect, insists that the joint strategy must also take into account the fact that the partners are equal in terms of rights and responsibilities but not in terms of their level of integration, and the availability and level of development of their financial, technical and human resources, and that the strategy must be implemented in a realistic way, as a result of which it is necessary to define 'partnership' and 'ownership' in the context of this reality;

Structure: the four priority areas for action

14. Insists that fair and sustainable development and poverty eradication must be a shared commitment and the overarching objective of EU-Africa cooperation and the basis for any policy mix, and underlines the central role of the MDGs, which provide a globally agreed framework for this objective;

Thursday 25 October 2007

15. Is of the opinion that the joint strategy must also emphasise the role of women, young people and civil society organisations in Africa's development processes;

16. Calls on the Commission to ensure coherence between this new strategy and the other European policies which may have an adverse impact on the promotion of a new strategic partnership between the EU and Africa, in particular the commercial, environmental, migration and agricultural policies; insists that the political dialogue between the EU and Africa should cover these issues;

Peace and security

17. Favours a comprehensive approach to conflict and conflict situations, based on the concept of the responsibility to protect and including conflict prevention, resolution, management and reconstruction;

18. Is convinced that peace is vital as a first step towards political, economic and social development, and that sustainable and equitable economic development is an essential precondition for lasting peace;

19. Takes the view that conflict prevention is also an essential precondition for lasting peace and calls for an AU-EU common strategy to address the structural causes of conflicts by putting in place a sustainable development policy, in order to meet the basic needs of the African population and fight unemployment and social and economic injustices;

20. Recalls that the situation of fragile States must be addressed with a conflict-sensitive approach that takes into account the promotion of human security, that addresses the political economy of conflict and the sources of inequality and discrimination, in order to reach sustainable peace and security; calls for greater coherence of EU policies, e.g. by implementing its existing commitments to control the arms trade but also by upgrading the EU Code of Conduct on Arms Export to a legally binding CFSP Common Position and by accelerating the implementation of the EU Strategy to Combat the Illicit Accumulation and Trafficking of Small Arms and Light Weapons (SALW); in this connection, stresses how important it is to prevent rather than to resolve conflicts; calls for international aid to be provided for the purpose of establishing regional monitoring centres on a geographical basis, capable of detecting any deterioration in inter-ethnic, inter-religious or inter-linguistic tensions and of alerting the international community to situations in Africa which may turn violent;

21. Calls on the Commission and its delegations to be especially alert and to warn the international community in good time about situations involving ethnic and religious tensions on the continent;

22. Considers that the existing EU Code of Conduct on Arms Export needs to be tightened so as to counteract the proliferation of SALW, which perpetuates the murderous conflicts in many developing countries; considers that the joint strategy will enhance the fight against weapons trafficking;

23. Acknowledges that already fragile States will be under further stress as a result of climate change; stresses, in the context of the EU-Africa climate change and energy partnerships, the need to develop a comprehensive approach to climate change adaptation in relation to its security implications, including enhanced disaster prevention and improved governance and conflict prevention;

24. Agrees that the Africa Peace Facility needs to be strengthened and encourages other civilian mechanisms to contribute to it with increased, flexible and sustainable funding; emphasises that development policy is one of the main tools for addressing the root causes of insecurity but that it should not be subordinated to security policy; in this regard, points out that the criteria established by the Development Assistance Committee of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD/DAC) for eligibility as Official Development Assistance (ODA) are currently too broad to prevent certain types of expenditure from being assigned to needs other than those relating strictly to the fight against poverty and the granting of genuine aid, and stresses that the EDF is not an adequate source for future replenishment of the African Peace Facility;

Thursday 25 October 2007

25. Stresses the importance of sustainable democracy, including good governance and democratic elections, which must include support for parliamentary capacity-building, encouraging in particular cooperation between the European Parliament, the PAP and the African regional parliaments, and support for the organisation of civil society, and the involvement of local authorities in the political dialogue, especially fostering cooperation and exchanges between organisations of African and European civil society;
26. In this context, calls for the enhancement of the election observation activities conducted by both the EU and the AU, as well as by other African regional bodies, and stresses the need for further cooperation among these election observation missions;
27. Stresses the importance of democratic control of the armed forces; in this context, calls on the EU to accelerate its efforts in the field of Security Sector Reform (SSR), namely by fully implementing the Commission and Council concept papers on SSR;
28. Calls for the inclusion in the joint strategy of provisions to address impunity; in this regard, calls for Africa's legal and judicial systems and their democratic monitoring mechanisms to be strengthened in accordance with human rights, in order to enable them to try perpetrators of serious crimes against humanity in Africa itself; draws attention to the significant progress made following the establishment of an international jurisdiction;
29. Calls on all actors involved in fostering peace and security in Africa to adopt a gender perspective and to increase the representation of women at all decision-making levels of conflict resolution situations, including in all civilian and military peace-keeping missions; urges UN Member States to fully implement the UN Security Council Resolution on Women, Peace and Security (S/RES/1325) of 31 October 2000;
30. Encourages the work towards a UN definition for conflict resources, so as to better fight economies of war;
31. Calls for conflict sensitivity to be mainstreamed in all objectives of the joint strategy: not only issues of peace and security, but also in trade, natural resources management, climate change and other key development issues;
32. Calls for the inclusion in the joint strategy of a commitment to agree on international action to address the illicit trade in natural resources as a driver of conflict, including a definition of what constitutes a conflict resource; calls for the appointment of a group of experts to develop multilateral approaches to this issue;

Governance, including human rights and the rule of law, and mutual accountability

33. Recalls that the concept of governance, and the indicators used to assess it, cannot be imposed by external actors, but should be developed in partnership with local actors and based on common values and internationally recognised standards;
34. Stresses the importance of good governance and democratic elections; calls for increased support for capacity-building actions targeted at parliamentarians and civil society organisations, namely with a view to ensuring budget control and to fighting corruption;
35. Reiterates its support for the ACP-EU Joint Parliamentary Assembly's (JPA) request, expressed at its 9th session in April 2005, that a suitable proportion of EDF appropriations should be used for the political education and training of parliamentarians and political, economic and social leaders, in the interests of a sustainable strengthening of good governance, the rule of law, democratic structures, and the interaction between government and opposition in pluralistic democracies based on free elections; is of the opinion that these funds should be used for the establishment of public administration colleges and for the political education of members of parliament, local authorities and people in positions of responsibility in political parties and associations;

36. Agrees that strengthening governance in African countries is a priority; notes, however, that governance must be improved on both sides — on the European side in particular the governance and accountability as regards aid commitments and better donor coordination with a view to taking greater account of the so-called 'aid orphans'; stresses that national and continental parliaments, non-state actors and local authorities have an important role to play in this field;

37. Welcomes the launch of the EU-AU human rights dialogue in September 2007 and hopes that in time this will develop into an effective platform, which will address pressing individual country issues and which, at the same time, will provide the opportunity for the EU and the African partners to identify areas of common concern and to coordinate their actions in the UN Human Rights Council and in other UN bodies;

38. Reiterates its call to the Commission and to the Council that it should receive regular debriefings on the content and results of EU human rights dialogues and consultations with third countries, with a special focus on the EU-AU human rights dialogue;

39. Stresses the role of inter-parliamentary bodies between the European Parliament and African parliaments — such as the ACP-EU JPA and the Euromed JPA — in enhancing peace and security, good governance and democracy, as well as being effective platforms for cooperation and for addressing issues of common concern;

40. Calls for a permanent dialogue between the EU and Africa on governance and the establishment of dialogue platforms at several levels, so that dialogue is not interrupted in the event of a disagreement or political crisis;

41. Underlines that NGOs are development actors in their own right, making significant contributions in areas such as governance, peace and conflict resolution, social service delivery, human rights, gender equality, poverty alleviation and transfer of knowledge; stresses that the principle of consultation of NGOs in policy formulation and implementing processes as well as setting the agenda for development should be adhered to by the EU-Africa partnership;

42. Calls for increased support to existing African initiatives, such as the African Peer Review Mechanism (APRM), which is the most serious effort yet by African leaders to improve governance on the continent, and the various instruments put in place by the AU, which will increase African ownership of the process;

43. Expresses serious concern that the 'governance profiles' developed by the Commission for each ACP country, which will guide programming for development assistance in relation to the EUR 2 700 000 000 additional funds under the 10th EDF, have been prepared without any participatory element; notes that eligibility for additional funds of beneficiary countries has been judged according to a set of criteria relating to such issues as migration, trade liberalisation and the fight against terrorism, with only one criterion directly linked to the MDGs; expresses dismay that the Commission's 'profiles' risk hollowing out the APRM process and that, only after the programming of the additional fund is over, does the Commission propose to launch, outside the APRM process, a 'Governance Forum', and that 'in order to facilitate more effective support to the Pan-African governance architecture (...) the EU will explore new avenues to pull Community and Member States funding'; calls on the Commission to consult and inform the European Parliament and the Council on the follow-up and the implementation of these funds in order to make sure they are allocated to governance initiatives, to support the AU governance agenda and the APRM process;

44. Insists that mutual accountability also means that the EU must tackle its own incoherence in the various EU cooperation agreements and financial instruments and the lack of harmonisation between the various EU actors (Member States, the Commission and its different services) and that the EU institutions should explicitly report in their evaluations on the progress made with regard to internal and external policy coherence;

Thursday 25 October 2007

45. Insists that, as part of the abovementioned relations, both the EU and the African partners should recognise their obligations to respect, protect and fulfil human rights obligations in their international development and investment policies and practices;
46. Urges the Commission and the Council to continue work on Policy Coherence for Development related to other EU policies such as trade, agriculture, fisheries, migration (brain drain), arms trade, etc.;
47. Stresses the importance of parliamentary scrutiny of the geographical strategy papers; therefore welcomes the Council's decision to transmit the draft ACP CSPs to the ACP-EU JPA 'for information', but points out that this is only a first step and that parliaments should be able to exercise full scrutiny over these programming documents;
48. Notes that a reinforced EU-Africa partnership should entail supporting the development of Africa's role in the global arena and forming Euro-African alliances on issues such as climate change and desertification, trade and the governance of the international development architecture, including the international financial institutions;
49. Notes that there must be coherence between all aspects of the EU-Africa partnership and that the objectives of the Energy Partnership should be developed in line with the objectives of the Democratic Governance Partnership and the Peace and Security Partnerships;
50. Urges the European Commission and the AUC to use the AU support programme in order to facilitate access for African parliaments, local authorities and non-state actors to the political dialogue taking place in the AU, and to earmark part of the EUR 55 000 000 specifically for strengthening the PAP;
51. Agrees with the PAP that there is an urgent need to strengthen the role and the capacities, including the financial autonomy, of the African Court of Justice and of the African Commission on Human and People's Rights, and to increase the number of AU member states which have ratified the Protocol on the Court's establishment, and to aim at granting individuals and NGOs direct access to it, and calls upon the European Commission and the AUC to put forward proposals which could help to ensure that this essential need is met;
52. Stresses that there is a strong need for human rights to be mainstreamed in all organs of the AU in order to ensure that full advantage is taken of all opportunities to address human rights violations;
53. Requests the inclusion in the joint strategy of action points in the fields of promoting the consolidation of peace and international justice and combating international crime in accordance with international law, stating that the EU and its Member States will aim to share with the African States their experience in the adoption of the necessary legal adjustments required to accede to the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, and therefore will provide technical assistance and establish close cooperation aimed at making the legislative and constitutional amendments required for accession to and implementation of the Rome Statute;
54. Stresses that partnerships designed to strengthen governance at the local and national level must include building capacity in order to take climate change considerations into account in national decision-making processes, strengthening participation in international climate negotiations and multilateral institutions, and improving risk management and disaster prevention strategies;

Economic growth, trade and regional integration

55. Stresses that development assistance is a necessary but insufficient condition for combating poverty and that only equitable and sustainable economic growth can allow a country to start climbing the development ladder and its people to gradually move out of poverty, on condition that growth is combined with the right domestic and international social and environmental policies;

Thursday 25 October 2007

56. Believes that a joint EU-Africa strategy should be based on a sustainable development policy, which takes into account the real need of the African population, aimed at guaranteeing a decent income for small farmers, increasing local production, guaranteeing food security and rural livelihood and building domestic and regional markets to combat poverty in Africa;

57. Considers that the joint strategy should take into account the devastating impact of climate change on African countries and calls therefore on the AU and the EU to put climate change at the heart of it;

58. Acknowledges the potential of that foreign public and private investments to foster development; calls for the joint strategy to include assistance and capacity building measures in order to enable African countries to develop an attractive investment climate;

59. Deplores the fact that — while poverty reduction and the attainment of the MDGs by 2015 rightly remain the first priority — the abovementioned Troika Outline of 15 May 2007 lacks concrete proposals to promote growth through the promotion of small and medium-sized enterprises and foreign direct investment, strengthened property rights, and the reduction of administrative burdens;

60. Urges the EU to ensure that lending organisations, such as the European Investment Bank (EIB) and the Centre for the Development of Enterprise (CDE), assist small and medium-sized enterprises in Africa, and that they respect the principles laid down in the 2004 World Bank Extractive Industries Review concerning good governance in natural resources exploitation; estimates that more attention should be paid to the informal sector, and that the practice of microfinance should be extended and promoted, in view of making it also an instrument for the empowerment and social integration of women;

61. Stresses that the liberalisation of trade is one of the most effective incentives to economic growth and to political and social progress; considers it to be indispensable in reducing poverty and an important catalyst for sustainable worldwide development;

62. Points out that Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs) must be devised and negotiated as development agreements as much as trade agreements, which means that they must be based on the principles of asymmetry in favour of the ACP regions, support for ACP regional integration, the establishment of a sound, reliable framework for the promotion of trade and investment in the ACP regions, and the establishment and consolidation of regional markets prior to any opening up of markets to the EU; therefore calls on the Commission, whenever necessary, to refrain from opening up markets until specific levels of development have been attained and to find solutions while continuing negotiations;

63. Recognises that the EPAs can become an important tool for African trade and regional integration, provided that their substance fully accords with development policy objectives, and only on condition that they are 'development-friendly', allowing for exemptions and long transition periods where needed in order for domestic producers and industries to adapt to new market situations;

64. Believes that the joint strategy should encourage dialogue examining the level of coherence between EPAs and the Trade Agreement with North Africa, so that both can become building blocks of African continental integration;

65. Calls for a differentiated approach based on diversification, supporting existing best practices that guarantee decent working conditions in developing countries, such as those of the international Fair Trade movement, and supporting existing regional economic communities (RECs) in Africa and allowing Pan-African integration to follow its own rhythm and agenda; stresses that reinforcing South-South trade is essential, together with the promotion of regional integration and the maintenance of higher levels of investment both from within and from outside Africa; with that in mind, also highlights the need for more technical support seeking to increase Africa's capacity to produce more varied goods and services;

Thursday 25 October 2007

66. Insists that the RECs should be the pillars of the African integration process and the establishment of a pan-African market, and should not only be dealing directly with Europe; further insists that EPAs should not undermine Africa's own regional integration agenda, but that they should also be instruments for South-South integration and trade; calls therefore on the EU to respect Africa's own integration process, as determined by the Treaty establishing the African Economic Community of June 1991 (the Abuja Treaty), which provides for the African Economic Community to be set up through a gradual process, achieved by coordination, harmonisation and progressive integration of the activities of existing and future RECs in Africa;

67. Notes that poverty in Africa is a predominantly rural phenomenon — over 70 % of Africa's poorest depend on agriculture for their livelihood and food — and yet development assistance to agriculture is decreasing; therefore welcomes all further initiatives to increase capacity building in the African agricultural sector by, for example, supporting seed banks and research into crop diversification; and calls for locally value added exports to conform to 'Everything But Arms' initiative;

68. Recalls the importance of good governance and transparency in the exploitation of natural resources for development; highlights that the resource sector can only become a force for sustainable development if its negative social and environmental impacts are minimised and its benefits and costs are fairly shared amongst the population; calls on all EU, African and other partners, such as China, to redouble their efforts towards achieving these ends; calls on African countries to ensure that revenue is also used to diversify their economy and to develop economic activities on a higher level in the production chain, away from the mere extraction of natural resources;

69. Welcomes the Commission's initiative to launch an EU-Africa partnership on energy, recognising that properly used income from sustainable energy sources can be used as an engine for economic growth and development; stresses that the primary focus of the partnership should be the provision of affordable energy, in order to reduce poverty, based on efficiency and renewable energy sources rather than securing the supply of energy to Europe;

70. Stresses that the achievement of long-term economic growth and development necessitates a comprehensive strategy reversing the ongoing depletion of Africa's natural resources; particularly stresses the urgent need to halt ongoing deforestation and remove incentives that encourage forest destruction; in this context, calls on the EU to introduce tropical forest and land use carbon credits in the EU Emission Trading Scheme (ETS) and to incentivise the regeneration of degraded ecosystems;

Investing in people

71. Notes that Africa's priority in any partnership is focused on the socio-economic development of its people;

72. Recalls that development targets will not be achieved if gender equality and women's rights are not upheld; notes that the EU has reiterated in key policy documents its commitment towards gender equality and that the AU itself has made far-reaching commitments in this field, which should form the basis of the partnership; therefore stresses that the joint strategy should contribute to gender mainstreaming and to the implementation of specific and concrete actions aimed at the empowerment of women;

73. Recalls that health is one of the most important drivers of economic development and that child mortality rates in particular are a powerful indicator of poverty; therefore stresses the importance of protecting children against disease, in particular those diseases that can be prevented by new and underused vaccines;

74. Stresses the importance of protecting the girl child and of raising awareness of early marriage, rape, sexual harassment in schools, and the vulnerability of girls to HIV/AIDS;

Thursday 25 October 2007

75. Stresses that the current international commitments to education and health for all need to be expressly integrated in the joint strategy; notes that health and education should be at the core of any pro-poor development strategy and that special attention should be paid to access to services, especially for women, children, vulnerable groups and persons with disabilities;

76. Considers that weak health systems, including the human resources crisis, are a major barrier to the achievement of the health MDGs, and stresses that strengthening health systems should be an essential element of the joint strategy, including the recognition of the important role that non-state health care providers, such as community-based organisations, play in supporting the delivery of health services, in particular in difficult to reach areas and among the most marginalised and vulnerable populations;

77. Notes that 63% of all people in the world infected with HIV live in Africa, and that in a number of African countries average life expectancy is falling dramatically as a result of the AIDS pandemic; stresses therefore that universal access to HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria services, in particular universal access to means of prevention, treatment, care and support, in Africa should be included in the joint strategy as these diseases have a massive impact on Africa's economic and social development;

78. Stresses that women and girls are particularly vulnerable to sexually transmitted infections, including HIV/AIDS, and pregnancy-related complications resulting in high maternal and neonatal mortality; calls therefore for the inclusion of Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights (SRHR) in the joint strategy in line with the abovementioned Maputo Plan of Action for the Operationalisation of the Continental Policy Framework for Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights 2007-2010;

79. Notes that counterfeiting of medicinal products in Africa (which mainly concerns fatal conditions such as malaria, tuberculosis and HIV/Aids) is a growing scourge, threatening the lives of millions of people; encourages the EU and the countries concerned to take action (in particular legal and penal measures) to combat that scourge;

80. Stresses that special attention should be paid to vulnerable populations, such as internally displaced persons (IDPs) and refugees; stresses therefore that health services, including services concerning reproductive health and supplies should be granted also during humanitarian crises;

81. Stresses the importance of giving greater support to NEPAD (New Partnership for Africa's Development) as the main African initiative for sustainable development;

82. Insists that agriculture and food security should be of the utmost importance in the joint strategy, and stresses that the EU policies, including subsidy policy, must not harm Africa's agricultural sector or jeopardise food security; therefore calls for the strategy to support the increased competitiveness and productivity of the African agricultural sector, also in the context of the Doha Development Round; further urges the EU to offer financial support to the 'Comprehensive Africa Agricultural Programme', adopted by the AU and NEPAD;

83. Underlines, also in relation to the worrying and worsening phenomenon of desertification, the need to support sustainable agricultural methods; recalls, in this regard, that for growth to have a poverty reducing effect, it needs to be broad-based, small-holder oriented and result in greater labour opportunities;

84. Insists that the issue of desertification and access to water for all should be of the utmost importance in the joint strategy; expresses particular concern at the multiple negative implications of desertification on, among others, food security, migration, refugees and IDPs;

85. Points out that Africa is the continent predicted to suffer the effects of climate change most severely; therefore urges the EU, the AU and their Member States, as well as investors and business actors, to acknowledge their responsibility for climate change, and calls on them to develop an environment friendly development strategy in order to reverse the situation, including a financial framework for environmental adaptation; further calls on the EU to offer financial support to the Action Plan for the Environment

Initiative of NEPAD and its operational decisions adopted by the African Ministerial Conference on Environment (AMCEN) in Brazzaville, Congo, in 2006, and endorsed by the Eighth AU Summit in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in January 2007;

86. Welcomes the Commission's initiative to launch an EU-Africa partnership on climate change and to launch a Global Climate Change Alliance; in this context stresses that the EU must make significant funding available for adaptation measures in African countries; stresses also that adaptation must not be dealt with only as a humanitarian issue; emphasises that risk reduction and 'climate proofing' measures must be integrated into the overarching development agenda, including in poverty reduction strategy papers (PRSPs) and CSPs;

87. Calls for the joint strategy to address the root causes of migration and to pay particular attention to the rights and the integration of migrants and to the issue of brain drain, particularly in the health sector, by proposing practical solutions to successful circular migration; stresses that limiting migration to the EU should not be considered as either a condition for aid or as a development strategy;

88. Considers that culture is a key factor for intercultural dialogue and inter-religious understanding, for a feeling of national and regional identity, for a strong social basis and as a secure grounding for solidarity within and between peoples, and that therefore a sustainable development agenda must include culture;

89. Considers that, since in a number of African countries debt is still a heavy burden counteracting any development effort, debt relief should be considered on a case-by-case basis and should be conditional on strengthened governance and economic policies, on debt management and in particular on ensuring that debts are not systematically renewed by other lenders;

90. Acknowledges the usefulness and the relevance of budget support, which in particular enables basic social services to be improved whilst, at the same time, helping to strengthen the structure of African countries; calls, however, for caution in relation to the disbursement of aid in the form of budget support; insists that budget support be treated separately for each country, depending on its particular situation and that it is not appropriate for fragile States or countries in conflict; calls for the establishment of indicators for human and social development, for gender budgeting and for education and health; in this respect, encourages the Commission to continue drawing up its proposed 'MDG contract' with the intended beneficiaries of budget support; insists that budget support must be accompanied by the strengthening of the capacity of parliaments, national courts of auditors, local authorities and civil society to scrutinise the process, so as to avoid basic social services becoming under-resourced; proposes that budget support should not replace support to certain key development sectors such as education and health or sectors that risk being marginalised by recipient governments;

91. Stresses that sustainable development is only possible if it represents development for all, including women and minority and/or vulnerable groups;

92. Stresses the importance of EU support to strategies aimed at empowering women, including through support to microcredit, as well as to sexual and reproductive health programmes, which are crucial in the fight against HIV/AIDS;

Implementation and monitoring

93. Calls on the Commission and the general secretariat of the Council to send all further progress reports on the implementation of the EU strategy for Africa also to the European Parliament; also requests information on the disbursement and implementation of the EUR 2.7 billion additional funds under the 10th EDF allocated to the 'governance initiatives' developed by the Commission for each ACP country;

Thursday 25 October 2007

94. Requests the Commission to indicate how the 9th EDF has been used and reprogrammed to allow for the implementation of the EU strategy for Africa; calls for an independent evaluation of the implementation of this strategy; asks the Commission to propose a joint mechanism for the implementation and evaluation of the new joint strategy, both on a technical and political basis, including all the EC financial instruments for development at all stages;

95. Welcomes the EU's and the AU's intention to draft an action plan for the first period of the joint strategy; points out that it must contain concrete financing and measurable indicators at all levels of implementation (local, national, regional and continental) and across all the relevant financial cooperation instruments, which will make monitoring easier and more transparent; stresses that parliamentary, local authority and civil society monitoring must be part of the official monitoring process;

96. Calls on the Commission to ensure that any monitoring framework includes the monitoring of existing commitments by the AU and EU, such as the MDGs, the above — mentioned Cotonou Agreement, the above — mentioned Abuja Call for Accelerated Action, the Universal Declaration on Human Rights;

97. Calls for the joint strategy to explicitly include a communications strategy, in order to raise public awareness on what governments are doing and to provide the feedback loop in order to ensure that governments are in touch with the needs of their constituents on these policies;

98. Encourages the setting up, as part of the joint strategy, of political space for a genuine and effective people-to-people dialogue, through appropriate funding and guarantees for political independence, and the establishment of mechanisms through which civil society and non-state actors can provide input into the governmental decision-making processes, and can hold authorities accountable vis-à-vis the people;

99. Calls on the Commission to indicate how it will finance the new strategy and its programme of action; notes that the 10th EDF, the geographical programme for South Africa and the thematic programmes of DCI and ENPI are the only major funds available for the implementation of the joint strategy; urges the Commission to ensure coherence in the implementation of these cooperation instruments and the joint strategy; asks the Commission to inform the European Parliament and the PAP at all stages of the process (programming, identification, appraisal, financing, implementation and evaluation);

100. Calls for the first action plan to include a specific financial envelope for pan-African institutions, activities to be implemented at pan African level, and the new partnerships (Lisbon initiatives); also insists that national, regional and continent-wide parliaments must be expressly considered as beneficiaries of aid;

101. Welcomes the fact that the Council has set up an ad hoc working group with experts from interested Member States to coordinate Member States' positions on the issues covered by the joint strategy, and requests the Commission and the Council to report regularly to the European Parliament on the activities of this working group;

102. Affirms that, as important institutions of governance, both the PAP and the European Parliament must be crucial actors in the follow-up of the joint strategy and also that local authorities and non-state actors, such as those involved in the AU's ECOSOC and its EU counterpart ECOSOC, must play a role;

103. Is therefore determined to closely monitor, together with the PAP, the implementation of the joint strategy and the action programmes; therefore calls for the establishment of a joint European Parliament — PAP parliamentary delegation as a forum to debate in a democratic way the issues affecting the relations between peoples of the EU and Africa;

Thursday 25 October 2007

104. Is determined, jointly with pan-African organisations, to ensure coherence between development cooperation policy and other fields of EU policy which have an impact on developing countries in Africa;

105. Estimates that parliamentary scrutiny and approval of development assistance packages must be a requirement for the disbursement of funds;

106. Decides to organise, together with the PAP, a Joint Parliamentary event preceding the second EU-Africa Summit planned for December 2007 in Lisbon;

107. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the AU Commission, the AU Executive Council, the PAP, the ACP Council of Ministers and the ACP-EU JPA.

International treaty to ban cluster munitions

European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2007: Towards a global treaty to ban all cluster munitions

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on the harmful effects of some types of conventional ordnance (landmines and cluster munitions, depleted uranium ammunition, phosphorus shells, unexploded remnants of war (ERW)) used by states and by non-state actors,
- having regard in particular to its resolution of 16 November 2006 on the Convention on the Prohibition of Biological and Toxin Weapons (BTWC), cluster bombs and conventional arms⁽¹⁾ in which the EU institutions were called upon to support the initiative to establish a comprehensive and effective convention on the banning of cluster munitions worldwide,
- having regard to Protocol V of 28 November 2003 on Explosive Remnants of War to the UN Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons (CCW) ('Protocol V on ERW'), and welcomes the fact that it entered into force on 12 November 2006,
- having regard to the Oslo Declaration, adopted on 22 and 23 February 2007 by a group of States, United Nations Organisations, the International Committee of the Red Cross, the Cluster Munitions Coalition and other humanitarian organisations, according to which it was agreed that by 2008 a legally binding international instrument would be concluded that will prohibit the use, production, transfer and stockpiling of cluster munitions that cause unacceptable harm to civilians ('the Oslo Process'),
- having regard to the draft CCW negotiation mandate on cluster munitions submitted by Germany, on behalf of the EU, to the Group of Governmental Experts of the CCW,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- having regard to Council Joint Action 2007/528/CFSP of 23 July 2007 in support of the convention on prohibitions or restrictions on the use of certain conventional weapons which may be deemed to be excessively injurious or to have indiscriminate effects, in the framework of the European Security Strategy⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the new position of the United Nations on cluster munitions expressed at the meeting of UN Principals on 17 September 2007, in which the UN called on its Member States 'to address immediately the horrendous humanitarian, human rights and development effects of cluster munitions by concluding a legally binding instrument of international humanitarian law that: prohibits the use, development, production, stockpiling and transfer of cluster munitions that cause unacceptable harm to civilians; requires the destruction of current stockpiles of those munitions; and provides for clearance, risk education and other risk mitigation activities, victim assistance, assistance and cooperation, and compliance and transparency measures' and stated that 'until such a treaty is adopted, the UN calls on States to take domestic measures to immediately freeze the use and transfer of all cluster munitions',
 - having regard to and welcoming the Cluster Munitions Coalition formed by about 200 specialised non-governmental organisations,
 - having regard to Rule 108(5) of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas ERW refers to unexploded ordnance that has been primed, fused, armed or otherwise prepared for use and used in armed conflict and should have exploded but failed to do so,
 - B. whereas the term 'cluster munitions' refers to weapons systems that are both dropped from the air and launched from the ground,
 - C. whereas cluster munitions, even the most modern types, have an unacceptably high failure rate, often not exploding on impact and remaining a danger to communities long after a conflict has ended; whereas many types of cluster munition are equipped with sensitive fuses which react to a lesser degree of physical contact than anti-personnel mines,
 - D. whereas cluster munitions are highly inaccurate, are often used in large numbers over both rural and urban areas and cover a wide area after dispersal, producing large amounts of ERW,
 - E. whereas the effects of cluster munitions are highly indiscriminate, as their users do not distinguish between military personnel and civilians; whereas it has been documented that 98 % of their victims are civilians,
 - F. whereas cluster munitions have grave humanitarian consequences for vulnerable communities and humanitarian aid workers, and whereas the rates of fatality and injury, especially amongst children, who are attracted by the small size and the colours of these weapons, are high,
 - G. whereas all types of anti-handling devices target humanitarian mine clearance personnel,
 - H. whereas unexploded cluster munitions have a detrimental effect on development and reconstruction, with the threat of unexploded ordnance denying access to roads, buildings and critical infrastructure and making it impossible to use agricultural land, thus hampering local trade and communications and affecting food security, and can obstruct the delivery of humanitarian assistance,
 - I. whereas the countries known to have been affected by cluster munitions include some of the world's poorest countries, and whereas within these countries the poorest people are often the victims most affected,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- J. whereas there is evidence that cluster munitions are stockpiled in over 15 EU Member States and are produced in at least 10 of them,
- K. whereas the 'Mahoux law' prohibiting the financing, manufacture, use and holding of cluster munitions was adopted by the Government of Belgium on 26 April 2007,
1. Reaffirms the need to strengthen international humanitarian law as it applies to cluster munitions and speedily to adopt at international level a comprehensive ban on the use, production, transfer and stockpiling of cluster munitions, and therefore strongly supports the Oslo Process;
 2. Calls for an immediate moratorium on using, investing in, stockpiling, producing, transferring or exporting cluster munitions, including air-dropped cluster munitions and submunitions delivered by missiles, rockets, and artillery projectiles, until a binding international treaty has been negotiated on the banning of the production, stockpiling, export and use of these weapons;
 3. Calls on all EU Member States to adopt national measures that fully ban the use, production, export and stockpiling of cluster bombs;
 4. Calls on all states which have used cluster munitions and comparable weapons that produce explosive remnants of war to accept responsibility for the clearance of these munitions and, in particular, to keep accurate records of where such munitions have been used, in order to help clearance efforts following conflict; considers that such records should be used to provide, in line with Protocol V on ERW, local populations and humanitarian aid workers with clear warnings in relation to dangerous areas;
 5. Insists that under no circumstances or conditions should EU Member State troops make use of any type of cluster munitions until an international agreement on the regulation, restriction or banning of these weapons has been negotiated;
 6. Underlines the responsibility of a State in control of territory to provide warnings and take measures to protect the civilian population, including through education, and to provide special information on how victims of ERW can be assisted;
 7. Calls on all EU Member States which have used cluster munitions to provide assistance to affected populations;
 8. Calls on the Commission urgently to increase financial assistance to communities and individuals affected by unexploded cluster munitions through all available instruments;
 9. Urges all States not party to Protocol V on ERW to sign and ratify it, and to abide by its spirit in the interim period;
 10. Welcomes the efforts made by the Council Presidency and the EU Member States to establish a mandate to negotiate a new protocol to the CCW that addresses all humanitarian problems associated with the use of cluster munitions, and regrets that no real progress has been made so far;
 11. Calls on the Council to adopt a common position committing all the EU Member States to push for a strong negotiating mandate within the framework of the CCW and to actively support the Oslo Process;

Thursday 25 October 2007

12. Points out that in order for any international instrument to be effective, it must as a minimum include the following provisions:

- (a) a prohibition on the use, production, financing, transfer and stockpiling of cluster munitions;
- (b) a prohibition on providing anyone with assistance in relation to the use, production, transfer or stockpiling of cluster munitions;
- (c) an obligation to destroy stockpiles of cluster munitions within a specified period of time, which must be as short as possible;
- (d) an obligation to mark, fence and clear contaminated areas as soon as possible, but no later than a specified deadline, and to establish and maintain effective capacity to carry out these actions; an obligation to provide assistance with marking, fencing and other warnings, with risk education, and with clearance; users of cluster munitions should be under special obligations to provide such assistance, including provision of timely and detailed information on use;
- (e) an obligation to provide assistance to victims through, for example, the implementation of data collection, emergency and continuing medical care, physical rehabilitation, psychological support, social inclusion, economic inclusion and/or reintegration, legal support and disability laws and policies;

13. Recommends sending representatives to the forthcoming conferences within the framework of the Oslo Process;

14. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, the governments and parliaments of the EU Member States, the UN Secretary-General and the Cluster Munitions Coalition.

Production of opium for medical purposes in Afghanistan

European Parliament recommendation to the Council of 25 October 2007 on production of opium for medical purposes in Afghanistan (2007/2125(INI))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the proposal for a recommendation to the Council tabled on behalf of the ALDE Group on production of opium for medical purposes in Afghanistan (B6-0187/2007),
- having regard to its previous resolutions on Afghanistan, most recently that of 18 January 2006 ⁽¹⁾;
- having regard to the 2006 UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC)/World Bank report on 'Afghanistan's Drug Industry',
- having regard to the 2007 Annual Report issued by the UNODC in June 2007;

Thursday 25 October 2007

- having regard to the UN's Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) Resolution 2005/25 of 22 July 2005 on treatment of pain using opioid analgesics, in which the feasibility of a possible assistance mechanism that would facilitate such treatment is discussed, to ECOSOC Resolution 2004/40 of 21 July 2004 on guidelines for psychosocially assisted pharmacological treatment of persons dependent on opioids, to ECOSOC Resolution 2005/26 of 22 July 2005 on demand for and supply of opiates used to meet medical and scientific needs, to World Health Assembly (WHA) Resolution 58.22 of 25 May 2005 on cancer prevention and control, to WHA Resolution 55.14 of 18 May 2002 on ensuring accessibility of essential medicines, and to the final recommendations of the 12th International Conference of Drug Regulatory Authorities, held in Seoul from 3-6 April 2006, urging regulators to work for better access to narcotic painkillers;
 - having regard to the mission reports of its ad hoc delegation to Afghanistan, in July 2005, and of its election observation mission in September 2005;
 - having regard to the final report of the European Union Election Observation Mission to the parliamentary and provincial council elections held on 18 September 2005;
 - having regard to Rule 114(3) of its Rules of Procedure;
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Foreign Affairs (A6-0341/2007);
- A. whereas international drugs policies are based on the United Nations Conventions of 1961, 1971 and 1988 that prohibit, in particular, the production, trafficking, sale and consumption of a whole range of substances other than for medical or scientific purposes,
- B. whereas the UNODC report entitled 'Afghanistan Opium Survey 2006' stresses that the area under illicit opium cultivation produced a record volume of about 6,100 tonnes in 2006, an increase of nearly 50 % over 2004 figures,
- C. whereas the Afghan National Drug Control Strategy adopted in January 2006 addresses supply as well as demand reduction, alternative livelihoods and the strengthening of government institutions, and whereas the Ministry of Counter-Narcotics, established with the help of EU money, is the lead agency in the implementation of the strategy,
- D. whereas the Government of Afghanistan established a Drug Regulation Committee, which comprises officials from the Ministries of Counter Narcotics, Health and Finance, in order to regulate the licensing, sale, dispensation, import and export of all drugs for licit purposes in the country,
- E. whereas the EU should do more to bring about a drastic reduction in opium production (by participating in the Counter-Narcotics Trust Fund and the Good Performance Fund) since — according to the UNODC's Afghanistan 2007 Annual Opium Poppy Survey — Afghanistan's opium production has now reached a frightening new level, twice the amount produced just two years ago; whereas Afghanistan has practically become the exclusive supplier of the world's deadliest drug, with 93 % of the global opiates market, although it has to be noted that the number of opium-free provinces has more than doubled, from 6 in 2006 to 13 in 2007 due to successful schemes supporting alternative livelihoods and also expanded security in the north, as well as an effective awareness-raising programme including a system of rewards for good performers, and that 50 % of the whole Afghan opium crop comes from the single province of Helmand,
- F. whereas the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund estimate that almost 40 % of Afghanistan's GDP is opium-related, and whereas the UNODC estimates that 3.3 million people (out of a population of over 31 million) are engaged in the poppy sector, producing an income of USD 1 965 a year per family,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- G. whereas in 2007 the farm-gate value of the opium harvest totalled USD 1 billion, or 13 % of the licit GDP of Afghanistan of USD 7.5 billion, and whereas the total potential value of the country's 2007 opium harvest accruing to farmers, laboratory owners and Afghan traffickers reached USD 3.1 billion, which represents almost half the country's licit GDP, or 32 % of the overall economy including the opium sector,
- H. whereas the incentive for Afghan farmers to produce opiates is largely financial and whereas licensed opiates will have to produce — in order to be economically attractive — an income higher than that coming from illegal opiates,
- I. whereas the European Union remains the biggest donor as regards efforts aimed at reducing the opium supply through projects that promote alternative livelihoods — which are desperately needed as a way to complement the national diet — as a substitute for illicit crops,
- J. drawing attention to the Commission's recognition, as set out in the EC's Afghanistan Country Strategy Paper (2007-2013), that the growing opium economy and the danger of 'state capture' by narco-interests pose a critical threat to development, state-building and security in Afghanistan,
- K. whereas there are substantiated claims that insurgents, warlords, the Taliban and terrorist groups are obtaining the major part of their funding through trade in illicit narcotics,
- L. considering that on 25 June 2007, the Senlis Council, an international security and development think tank, presented a detailed Technical Dossier that describes how a village-based 'Poppy for Medicine' project could work in Afghanistan, including an Integrated Social Control system, the production of Afghan medicines at village level, compulsory economic diversification and general rural development,
- M. noting that the World Health Organisation (WHO) has indicated that 10 countries consume 80 % of the opiates legally available worldwide, and that the remaining 180 states include the majority of developing countries that make up 80 % of the world's population; noting also that the International Narcotics Control Board (INCB) has asked the international community to promote the prescription of painkillers, especially in poor countries, as severe under-treatment is reported in more than 150 countries where hardly anyone who is in need of treatment is being treated, and, in another 30 countries, where under-treatment is even more prevalent or where no data are available,
- N. Recalls that Article 23 of the 1961 UN Convention lays down conditions governing the cultivation, production and distribution of opium under the supervision of a government agency, and insists that the Afghan Government satisfy those conditions, especially in respect of the southern provinces of the country, where there is excessive opium cultivation,
- O. whereas the INCB has stated that there is a global oversupply of opiates for medical purposes, even if this evaluation does not take into consideration potential demand,
- P. whereas according to the report by the International Narcotics Control Board there is a global oversupply of opiates for medical purposes,
- Q. whereas the Afghan Constitution states that 'the state shall prevent all types of cultivation and smuggling of narcotics' and whereas Afghanistan's 2005 Counter Narcotics Drug Law provides for the eventual licensed production and distribution of controlled substances in Afghanistan,
- R. convinced that, to promote and strengthen peace and security in Afghanistan, the international presence needs to be complemented by an increased civil cooperation, in order to foster socio-political progress and economic development and also to win 'the hearts and minds' of the local population,

- S. considering, once again, the extremely high costs and serious flaws in terms of effectiveness of a counter-narcotics strategy that does not take into account the regional, social and economic diversity of rural Afghanistan when developing and deploying measures on alternative livelihoods, and one that is based only on eradication,
 - T. considering that the promotion of a process of institution-building, democratisation and affirmation of the rule of law, a fair justice system and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms can only happen through policies that do not impose violent solutions, such as forcible eradication of crops, on what are in themselves non-violent practices,
 - U. whereas the fight against drug production in Afghanistan should reflect a differentiated approach by locality, whereas counter-narcotics efforts against farmers must be carefully limited to areas where licit livelihoods are possible (places where access to land and water resources is better, there is proximity to markets and land-person ratios are higher), and whereas alternative livelihood programmes need to focus especially on poorer regions with limited resources, which are the most dependent on opium in the first place,
 - V. whereas the Country Strategy Paper for 2007-2013 has an appropriate focus on rural development and governance, but more emphasis needs to be placed on the reform of the Afghan ministries in charge of controlling drug production, especially the Ministry of the Interior,
1. Addresses the following recommendations to the Council:
 - (a) oppose, in the framework of integrated development programmes, recourse to fumigation as a means of eradicating the poppy in Afghanistan;
 - (b) elaborate and submit to the Afghan Government, within the framework of EU-sponsored illicit supply reduction programmes, a comprehensive plan and strategy aimed at controlling drug production in Afghanistan, by improving governance and tackling corruption at the highest levels of the Afghan administration (with a special focus on the Ministry of the Interior), using existing international legal instruments; targeting action against the key traffickers on the ground; improving comprehensive rural development, particularly in the poorest areas and in those not yet producing opium on a large scale; carefully and selectively engaging in manual eradication; and looking at the possibility of pilot projects for small-scale conversion of parts of the current illicit poppy cultivation into fields for the production of legal opium-based analgesics; that production should be subject to strict on-the-spot surveillance which should in its turn be complemented with monitoring by an international organisation, such as the UNDCP, which supervises that production and prevents any diversion of the product to other, illegal, markets such as the heroin market;
 - (c) offer its assistance in discussing the possibilities and the feasibility of a scientific 'Poppy for Medicine' pilot project that will further investigate how licensing can contribute to the alleviation of poverty, diversification of the rural economy, general development and increased security, and how it can become a successful part of multilateral efforts for Afghanistan, ensuring that a mechanism is in place to exclude regions where recent achievements in establishing the rule of law and the subsequent elimination or reduction of cultivation may easily be jeopardised;
 2. Instructs its President to forward this recommendation to the Council and, for information, to the Commission and the governments and parliaments of the Member States and of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan.

Improving the efficiency of the enforcement of judgements in the EU: attachment of bank accounts

European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2007 on the Green Paper on improving the efficiency of the enforcement of judgments in the European Union: the attachment of bank accounts (2007/2026(INI))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Green Paper on improving the efficiency of the enforcement of judgments in the European Union: the attachment of bank accounts (COM(2006)0618),
 - having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Legal Affairs and the opinions of the Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs and the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs (A6-0371/2007),
- A. whereas the cashless transfer system and cross-border payments have made significant headway and, in view of the SEPA (Single Euro Payment Area) project, are destined to spread more widely,
- B. whereas almost all Member States have arrangements for enforcing attachment measures, but the differing legal systems and procedural requirements mean that these are enforceable throughout the EU only by complicated, protracted procedures, enabling debtors to transfer their money to foreign accounts,
- C. whereas a single European procedure for cross-border cases would benefit those who litigate in many countries and the banking institutions that will receive orders from several Member States,
- D. whereas a creditor has to be able to counter the possibility that his debtor might rapidly and perhaps repeatedly transfer money to foreign accounts,
1. Welcomes the fact that, by publishing the Green Paper, the Commission has taken an initiative aimed at establishing a cross-border European procedure for temporarily freezing bank deposits;
 2. Suggests that, when further studies are conducted, statistics should also be compiled with a view to gauging the real extent of those instances in which debtors thwart the enforcement measures taken against them, and hence to giving a more accurate indication of the expediency of the measures proposed;
 3. Advocates the introduction of a standard European system existing independently of, and in addition to, the Member States' respective national enforcement rules;
 4. Considers that such a coherent and easy-to-use autonomous European procedure for attachment of bank accounts, subject to strong procedural safeguards, is preferable to harmonisation of Member States' legislation;
 5. Maintains that the above procedure should apply only to cross-border cases;

Thursday 25 October 2007

6. Maintains that regulation should be confined to attachment of accounts and the temporary freezing of bank deposits, and that it should under no circumstances extend to satisfaction of the creditor;
7. Is of the opinion that a legal basis for such a procedure might be found in Article 65, point (c), of the EC Treaty;
8. Points out that a procedure of the type concerned must be capable of being initiated before the main proceedings begin;
9. Points out that what is involved is merely a summary procedure requiring the creditor to furnish credible evidence of the merits of his claim and to demonstrate that his case is urgent and that his rights are in jeopardy;
10. Is of the opinion that orders should direct that accounts be frozen, not that funds be transferred, pending a subsequent court order from the Member State where the account is held, which should also resolve any issue of priority of claims; considers that assets in excess of the amount of the monetary claim, including costs, should not be frozen;
11. Is of the opinion that a statement of the grounds for an order is necessary, such as a risk of dissipation of assets; points out that there should be safeguards to prevent orders from covering more accounts than is necessary;
12. Believes that a careful balance needs to be struck between the rights of creditors to recover debts and the provision of adequate protection for defendants;
13. Believes that, where a creditor has had a bank account attached without good reason, it might be appropriate for him to be made liable for the resulting damage to the debtor;
14. Considers that sufficient information to identify an account must be given, even if this means that banks, exercising due circumspection, have to conduct searches in respect of names and addresses;
15. Considers it appropriate to examine the question of reimbursing the costs incurred by banks in processing account seizures;
16. Believes that the creditor should be obliged to institute the main proceedings within a fixed time-limit;
17. Is of the opinion that an extension in the case of legal proceedings which have not yet been finally concluded should nevertheless be permissible, provided the proceedings are being conducted with due diligence;
18. Is of the opinion that attachment of bank accounts needs to be subject to a quantitative limit in order to prevent too much money from being frozen for the benefit of the creditor and to protect the debtor;
19. Emphasises, in particular, the need to protect the debtor to the extent that unjustified damage to his reputation must be avoided and he must be guaranteed the wherewithal on which to subsist;
20. Believes that, to protect the debtor and prevent abuse by the creditor, for as long as no unappealable enforceable title has been established, the creditor should be required to provide security, the amount of which should be based on the sum to be frozen;

Thursday 25 October 2007

21. Is opposed to a standard EU-wide attachment exemption level and believes that it should be up to the debtor to invoke the respective national limit governing non-attachable amounts;
22. Believes that a debtor should be entitled to appeal and allowed to end the attachment by providing security; considers, in particular, that, in the event of opposition to or an application for annulment of the attachment order, the respondent must not be placed in a worse position as regards the principles underlying the procedure and the duration of the procedure;
23. Is of the opinion that trust accounts need to be specially protected against attachment; considers that attachment of joint accounts should be possible subject to appropriate guarantees and safeguards with respect to the rights of third parties other than the debtor;
24. Maintains, as regards the service of attachment orders, that uniform standards need to be laid down within the EU to govern communication between courts and banks (for example by using standard forms);
25. Is of the opinion that attachment orders should be transmitted by means that guarantee service upon the bank by the first day after transmission and processed within 24 hours of identification of the account; believes that the bank should be required formally to notify the enforcement authority and the creditor as to whether the amount liable has been secured; believes that the bank should also be required formally to notify the debtor when the attachment order becomes effective; considers that it would be desirable for standardised formal notices to be available in all official languages of the European Union, thereby eliminating or reducing the need for customised translations;
26. Considers that the legal act required for the above purposes might need to take the form of a regulation;
27. Calls on the Commission, before it submits any proposal, to clear up the — in some cases thorny — unresolved issues by conducting detailed, wide-ranging studies, and in particular to carry out a legislative impact assessment;
28. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission.

European Ombudsman's activities in 2006

European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2007 on the annual report on the European Ombudsman's activities in 2006 (2007/2131(INI))

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the annual report on the European Ombudsman's activities in 2006,
- having regard to Articles 195, 230 and 232 of the EC Treaty,
- having regard to Article 43 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union,
- having regard to Decision 94/262/ECSC, EC, Euratom of the European Parliament of 9 March 1994 on the regulations and general conditions governing the performance of the Ombudsman's duties ⁽¹⁾, ⁽¹⁾ OJ L 113, 4.5.1994, p. 15. Decision as amended by Decision 2002/262/EC, ECSC, Euratom (OJ L 92, 9.4.2002, p. 13).

Thursday 25 October 2007

- having regard to its resolution of 6 September 2001 amending Article 3 of the regulations and general conditions governing the performance of the Ombudsman's duties ⁽¹⁾,
 - having regard to the framework agreement on cooperation concluded between the European Parliament and the Ombudsman on 15 March 2006, which entered into force on 1 April 2006,
 - having regard to the Commission communication of 5 October 2005 on 'Empowerment to adopt and transmit communications to the European Ombudsman and authorise civil servants to appear before the European Ombudsman' (SEC(2005)1227),
 - having regard to the letter of 11 July 2006 sent by the European Ombudsman to the President of the European Parliament with a view to initiating the procedure for the revision of the Ombudsman's Statute,
 - having regard to Rule 195(2), second and third sentences, of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Petitions (A6-0301/2007),
- A. whereas the annual report on the European Ombudsman's activities in 2006 was formally submitted to the President of Parliament on 12 March 2007 and whereas the Ombudsman, Mr Nikiforos Diamandouros, presented the report to the Committee on Petitions in Brussels on 2 May 2007,
- B. whereas, under Article 41 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights, 'every person has the right to have his or her affairs handled impartially, fairly and within a reasonable time by the institutions and bodies of the Union',
- C. whereas, under Article 195(1) of the EC Treaty and Article 43 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights, any citizen of the Union and any natural or legal person residing or having its registered office in a Member State has the right to refer to the Ombudsman of the Union cases of maladministration in the activities of the Community institutions or bodies, with the exception of the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance acting in their judicial role,
- D. whereas it is essential, in the context of increasing participatory democracy in Europe and of better communicating the European Union to its citizens, that citizens receive from the European institutions and bodies prompt and substantive responses to their enquiries, complaints and petitions, and whereas it is essential that those institutions and bodies be given the necessary budgetary and human resources to ensure that citizens receive such prompt and substantive responses,
- E. whereas, although one parliamentary term has come to an end since the adoption of the resolution of 6 September 2001 in which Parliament approved the European Ombudsman's Code of Good Administrative Practice, and the next parliamentary term has run half its course, the other main Union institutions have not yet complied with Parliament's urgent request to bring their practice into line with the provisions of that code,
- F. whereas in 2006, although the number of complaints stabilised at the high level reached in 2004, over three-quarters of them still fell outside the Ombudsman's remit, mainly because they did not concern a Community institution or body,
- G. whereas, in 95 cases (or 26% of the cases examined) the Ombudsman's enquiries revealed no maladministration,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- H. whereas the activities of the Ombudsman and the Committee on Petitions must remain separate and as a general rule, to avoid conflicts as regards their respective prerogatives, should include reciprocal definitive referral of their respective files,
- I. whereas the year 2006 saw a significant decline in the number of cases of maladministration in which an amicable settlement was reached, accompanied by an equally striking rise in the number of enquiries closed with a critical remark, and a lower rate of acceptance of the Ombudsman's draft recommendations by the institutions,
- J. whereas neither the critical remarks contained in decisions closing irremediable cases of maladministration, nor recommendations or special reports by the Ombudsman have binding effect, as his powers do not extend to directly remedying instances of maladministration, but are intended to encourage self-regulation on the part of the European Union's institutions and bodies,
- K. whereas submitting a special report to the European Parliament remains the Ombudsman's ultimate means of taking action when an institution refuses to comply with a recommendation by the Ombudsman,
- L. whereas since the entry into force of the Treaty of Nice Parliament has enjoyed the same right as the Member States, the Council and the Commission to bring an action before the Court of Justice of the European Communities on grounds of lack of competence, infringement of an essential procedural requirement, infringement of the EC Treaty or of any rule of law relating to its application, or misuse of powers,
- M. whereas in 2006 the Ombudsman, by submitting two special reports ⁽¹⁾ to Parliament after the rejection of the relevant draft recommendation by the Council and the Commission, made judicious use of his powers,
- N. whereas the Ombudsman's new approach to the Commission, which consists of promoting a culture of service as an integral component of good administrative practice and a key means of remedying flawed actions or conduct, must be implemented from the bottom up on a consensual basis,
- O. whereas the critical comments voiced by the European Ombudsman in respect of 41 cases of maladministration contained in the 2006 report (critical observations, draft recommendations and special reports) may serve as a basis for avoiding a repetition of errors and malfunctions in future by the taking and implementation of appropriate measures by the institutional and other bodies of the EU,
- P. whereas the voluntary cooperation established by the Ombudsman in the European Network of Ombudsmen has functioned for over ten years as a flexible system for exchanging information and best practice and as a means of directing complainants to the Ombudsmen or other similar bodies most able to assist them,
- Q. whereas the role of Ombudsman charged with protecting European citizens has evolved in the decade or more since the office was created, thanks to the Ombudsman's independence and Parliament's democratic scrutiny of the transparency of his activities,
- R. whereas the Ombudsman has declared that he is willing to use his powers of own-initiative inquiries when third-country citizens resident outside the EU address a complaint to the Ombudsman which in other respects falls within his mandate,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- S. whereas on 30 November 2006 the Ombudsman and the Data Protection Supervisor signed a Memorandum of Understanding concerning cooperation and the modalities of the exercise of their respective powers,
- T. whereas one of the fundamental principles of European integration is the democratic equality of all European citizens, without any discrimination on the grounds of nationality or language, and whereas there are still numerous complaints from citizens, associations or firms about their failure to receive the information they requested in their own language in connection with Community tender or competition procedures,
- U. whereas the Ombudsman reiterated, in July 2006, his call for the Statute of the Ombudsman to be amended and whereas one of his requests, for the amendment of Article 3 of the Statute, has already been approved by the European Parliament on the basis of its abovementioned resolution of 6 September 2001,
1. Approves the annual report for 2006 submitted by the European Ombudsman, and approves the form in which it is presented, combining a summary of the year's activities and a thematic analysis of the Ombudsman's decisions and the problems raised at various stages of the procedure; calls on the Ombudsman, however, to introduce technical changes to make it easier to read the various chapters, such as tables for the statistics and summaries for the analytical section;
 2. Calls for all European institutions and bodies to be given the necessary budgetary and human resources to ensure that citizens receive prompt and substantive responses to their enquiries, complaints and petitions;
 3. Considers that the Ombudsman has continued to exercise his powers in a balanced and energetic way both with regard to examining and handling complaints, and conducting and concluding enquiries, and with regard to maintaining constructive relations with the European Union's institutions and bodies and encouraging citizens to avail themselves of their rights in relation to those institutions and bodies;
 4. Encourages the European Ombudsman to pursue his efforts and to promote his activities effectively and flexibly so that, in the eyes of citizens, he represents the custodian of sound administration in the Community institutions;
 5. Stresses that a key purpose of any intervention by the Ombudsman is to seek an amicable settlement between the complainant and the institution and to prevent a dispute before the courts;
 6. Agrees that the term 'maladministration in the activities of the Community institutions or bodies' should be broadly interpreted so as to include not only unlawful administrative acts or infringements of binding legal rules or principles but also, for example, cases where the administrative authorities have been slothful, negligent or lacking in transparency or have infringed other principles of good administration;
 7. Encourages the Ombudsman to continue to promote a genuine culture of service as an integral component of good administrative practice in order to ensure that the European Union's public administration is geared towards openness and dialogue with members of the public using their services, recognising and apologising for mistakes and seeking satisfactory solutions for complainants;
 8. Considers that it is not enough that some of the other institutions and Community bodies, primarily the Commission and the Council, have adopted separate codes of good administrative conduct (in the case of the Commission, the code of 13 September 2000 covering its staff's relations with the public, and in the case of the Council, the code of 25 June 2001 on its staff's professional relations with the public);

Thursday 25 October 2007

9. Notes that the 'European Code of Good Administrative Behaviour' proposed by the European Ombudsman, and approved by the European Parliament on 6 September 2001, covers the staff of all Community institutions and bodies and, unlike the other codes, has been regularly updated and published on the Ombudsman's website;
10. Stresses that the code's erga omnes effectiveness was explained by the Ombudsman in his letter of 11 March 2002 to the President of Parliament, which is published on the Ombudsman's website; considers, therefore, that no other code with more limited application may replace, or derogate from, the 'European' code of conduct;
11. Urges all the institutions to cooperate constructively with the Ombudsman at all stages of the procedure, to abide by amicable settlements, to follow up his critical remarks and to apply his draft recommendations;
12. Encourages the Ombudsman to draw up a list every year of best administrative practices and a list of practices which are not consonant with his decisions, and to present a study of the outcome of his critical comments;
13. Urges all those who are the subject of critical remarks to respect and take account of those remarks in their future actions, so as to avoid any instances of inconsistency between official pronouncements and administrative actions or failures to act;
14. Reminds all Community institutions and bodies of their obligations under Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2001 regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents⁽¹⁾, which must be effectively applied, not least to ensure the credibility of the proposed revision thereof which is currently under consideration, and their obligations under Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 October 1995 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data⁽²⁾;
15. Calls on the Commission once again to make proper use of its discretionary powers to initiate infringement proceedings under Article 226 of the EC Treaty or to propose penalties under Article 228 of the EC Treaty, while taking scrupulous care to avoid delays or unjustifiable failure to take prompt action, which are incompatible with the Commission's powers to oversee the application of Community law;
16. Considers that, if an institution refuses to follow a recommendation in a special report by the Ombudsman even though Parliament has approved that recommendation, Parliament could legitimately use its powers to bring an action before the Court of Justice in respect of the act or omission which was the subject of the Ombudsman's recommendation;
17. Urges all Community institutions and bodies, and the Member States' permanent representations, to cooperate in the interests of transparency and compliance with the rules of good administration embodied in the report, without shifting their responsibilities to powerful central bodies such as the Presidency of the Council or the Board of Governors of the European Schools, over which it would be difficult for the Ombudsman to exert control;
18. Calls on the European Personnel Selection Office to ensure that it complies effectively and fully with the rules and established practice as regards the openness and transparency of competition procedures, particularly as regards candidates' access to information relating to them about the marking of papers, to put an end to linguistic discrimination and to refrain from evading its own responsibilities by reference to decisions made by selection boards;

Thursday 25 October 2007

19. Warmly welcomes the declaration of the European Ombudsman of his intention to deal with the lending activities of the European Investment Bank (EIB) outside the EU using his powers of own inquiry, and notes that the Ombudsman will need to evaluate and ensure the internal capacity to deal with complaints in that regard;

20. Invites the Ombudsman to consider concluding a Memorandum of Understanding with the EIB on the modalities of cooperation between the institutions as regards the exercise of the Ombudsman's powers to investigate complaints concerning instances of maladministration in the activities of the EIB, and takes the view that the EIB would be best placed to actively inform citizens affected by projects financed by the Bank of the possibility of complaining to the Ombudsman, including when these are third-country nationals resident outside the EU;

21. Welcomes the fact that the Ombudsman can conduct inquiries into the behaviour of bodies operating under the EU's third pillar;

22. Notes that the Ombudsman has presented the abovementioned two special reports, one of which has already achieved its intended purpose and the other of which will be examined by Parliament; supports the conclusions addressed by the Ombudsman to the Council concerning the need to apply consistent rules on the language regimes used by the Council Presidencies and on the need to clarify the status of the Presidency as part of the Council as an institution;

23. Would welcome a tightening-up of internal parliamentary procedures in order to guarantee, in future, swifter processing of the Ombudsman's annual report by Parliament's Committee on Petitions;

24. Urges the Ombudsman to submit to Parliament any requests he deems appropriate to improve the exchange of information between their respective departments and strengthen cooperation, within the framework laid down by Article 1 of the Framework Agreement on cooperation of 15 March 2006, with particular reference to communications, information technology and translation;

25. Is pleased that constructive relations have been maintained with Parliament's Committee on Petitions, both with regard to the Ombudsman's participation in meetings of the Committee and with regard to reciprocal respect of competences and prerogatives; invites the Ombudsman, therefore, to forward to the Committee on Petitions his position in relation to the most important inquiries initiated by him in good time so as to achieve useful synergies;

26. Confirms its favourable opinion, as expressed in 2001, of the Ombudsman's request for the Statute of the Ombudsman to be amended with regard to access to documents and the hearing of witnesses, endorsing the principle that the changes subsequently requested will serve to clarify the Ombudsman's powers in view of the increasing demands placed upon him in the exercise of his office and the fact that, in practice, the main European institutions have already accepted the majority of them;

27. Stresses that these changes should not affect the basis and nature of the Ombudsman's role as guardian of citizens' interests in relation to the European Union's public administration;

28. Recognises the useful contribution of the European Network of Ombudsmen, in line with the subsidiarity principle, in securing extra-judicial remedies;

29. Encourages mutual consultation between the Ombudsman and the Committee on Petitions, in connection with the European Network of Ombudsmen, to resolve issues which have already been dealt with as the subject of petitions;

Thursday 25 October 2007

30. Welcomes the increasing participation of the media in publicising the work of the Ombudsman and applauds the communications strategy adopted by the Ombudsman using various means of informing citizens and raising public awareness which, by helping to establish a variety of forms of dialogue aimed at bringing citizens closer to European Union institutions and bodies, should, in the longer term, lead to greater awareness of citizens' rights and Community competences, as well as a greater understanding of the European Ombudsman's sphere of competence;

31. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the European Ombudsman, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and their ombudsmen or similar competent bodies.

Iran

European Parliament resolution of 25 October 2007 on Iran

The European Parliament,

- having regard to its previous resolutions on Iran, notably those concerning human rights,
 - having regard to the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, to all of which Iran is a party,
 - having regard to the EU-Iran Human Rights Dialogue,
 - having regard to the statement by its President on the stoning to death of a man in Iran and the EU Presidency Statement and the statement by Commissioner Ferrero-Waldner on the stoning to death of Mr Jafar Kiani,
 - having regard to the Declarations by the Presidency on behalf of the EU of 25 May 2007 and 3 August 2007 concerning the death sentence imposed on Sian Paymard, the death sentences imposed on Adnan Hassanpour and Abdolvahed 'Hiva' Botimar, the imminent execution of Mr Behnam Zare and the death sentence imposed on Mr Ali Mahin Torabi,
 - having regard to Rule 115(5) of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas the situation in the Islamic Republic of Iran regarding the exercise of civil rights and political freedoms has deteriorated in the last two years, notably since the presidential elections of June 2005, despite the fact that Iran has undertaken to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms under the various international instruments in this field,
- B. whereas the number of executions in Iran, including those of minors and homosexuals, often carried out in public by hanging or stoning, has dramatically increased, bringing the number of executions recorded since the start of 2007 to at least 244⁽¹⁾, a number which exceeds the 177 executions recorded in 2006,
- C. whereas the UN General Assembly, during its 62nd session in 2007, will vote on a resolution calling for a global moratorium on executions, to be introduced as a step towards the abolition of the death penalty,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- D. whereas recently, for the first time, journalists — Adnan Hassanpour and Abdolvahed Botimar — have been sentenced to death,
- E. whereas the practice of torture and ill-treatment of prisoners, solitary confinement, clandestine detention, the application of cruel, inhumane and degrading punishment and impunity for state agents continue to be widespread,
- F. whereas a growing number of intellectuals are being detained and whereas recently the wave of repression has been extended to persons having dual nationality, who face the severest charges of collaboration with foreign powers or espionage,
- G. whereas several activists belonging to the women's rights movement are being or have been prosecuted for their involvement in the 'one million signatures' campaign, which seeks to obtain the repeal of laws that discriminate against women and which plans to submit those one million signatures to the National Parliament (Majlis),
- H. whereas Iran is still not a party to the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women,
- I. whereas in June 2007 the Iranian authorities cracked down on two student organisations in Tehran; whereas this resulted in arrests, although a number of the students were subsequently released on bail; whereas, in addition, the Alumni Association of Iran was closed down, in violation of Iranian law and international human rights standards on freedom of association,
- J. whereas the introduction of procedural guidelines for publication by the Ministry of Culture and the Islamic Guidance has been followed by reinforced censorship, and whereas journalists are increasingly harassed and imprisoned, while at the same time media outlets are being regularly closed by the authorities,
- K. whereas the repression of the trade union movement has increased, with arrests of its renowned leaders such as Mansour Osanlou, president of the Syndicate of Workers of Tehran and Suburbs Bus Company (SWTBC), and his deputy, Ebrahim Madadi, as well as Mahmoud Salehi, former President of the Bakery Workers' Union,
- L. whereas minorities are increasingly discriminated against and harassed due to their religious or ethnic background, notably in the border regions (Kurdistan, Khuzestan, Sistan-Baluchistan, Azerbaijan), and whereas this includes continued detention and the sentencing to death of some of their members,
- M. whereas members of the religious community of the Baha'is cannot exercise their faith, are exposed to severe persecution and deprived of virtually all civil rights (e.g. property rights, access to higher education), and whereas their religious sites are being vandalised,

 - having regard to Rule 115(5) of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas on 30 September 2007 unidentified forces attacked an African Union (AU) base in Haskanita, South Darfur, killing 10 AU peacekeepers and civilian police, and at least eight other personnel from the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) were seriously injured and approximately 40 remain missing, according to AU statements,
- B. whereas the loss of life was the worst suffered to date by the under-resourced AU force,

Thursday 25 October 2007

- C. whereas the upsurge of violence in South Darfur in recent weeks has led to the killing of three World Food Programme (WFP) drivers and has prompted the medical aid group Médecins Sans Frontières to pull its staff out of the town of Muhajiriya, leaving many displaced people with no medical care,
 - D. whereas the AMIS force in Darfur is made up of approximately 7 000 troops and civilian police at the present moment, and is virtually the only force on the ground in Darfur which provides civilian protection; whereas a 26 000 member AU-UN hybrid operation, UNAMID, was authorised in July 2007 and is yet to be deployed,
 - E. whereas AMIS's mission has been to monitor the Darfur Peace Agreement and several other ceasefire agreements,
 - F. whereas attacks on AMIS personnel have increased lately and, since the force was deployed in 2004, more than 25 soldiers and staff have been killed and dozens injured,
 - G. whereas since the failure of the Darfur Peace Agreement there has been a rise in lawlessness and increased insecurity,

 6. Stresses that the fate of those peacekeepers still missing must be established, and demands that the group responsible for the attack account for their whereabouts immediately;
 7. Deplores the fact that the attack was carried out at a time when the AU and the UN are exerting maximum effort to resume peace talks on Darfur in Libya on 27 October this year; urges the deployment of the UNAMID force in Darfur to help put an end to the Darfur conflict;
 8. Stresses that customary laws of war prohibit directing attacks against personnel and objects involved in international peacekeeping missions, so long as they are not directly involved in hostilities;
 9. Welcomes the acceptance by the Sudanese Government on 12 June 2007 of the UNAMID force; recalls, however, that the Sudanese Government has made previous unfulfilled commitments to allow the hybrid force into Sudan; calls for rapid deployment of the UNAMID force with a mandate which enables it to efficiently protect civilians, and calls on the UN to fulfil its commitment and provide the troops that have been promised;

Thursday 25 October 2007

10. Reminds the Sudanese Government that it bears the prime responsibility for internal security and that it should not abdicate this responsibility in favour of the international community;
 11. Calls on EU Member States and the UN to mobilise without further delay crucial political, financial, logistical, technical and other support, including specialised personnel for AMIS and UNAMID, for the timely completion of the takeover by the end of December 2007; urges the Sudanese Government to accept support and troops from all nations and to do its utmost to facilitate the fulfilment of their mandates;
 12. Emphasises that the troops of all parties and their personnel, vehicles and assets must be clearly distinguishable from humanitarian aid workers in order to ensure their strict neutrality and avoid military attacks;
 13. Calls on the Commission to keep Parliament informed about any progress made on the proper use of its financial aid to AMIS and in particular the payment of salaries and per diems of AMIS soldiers;
 14. Calls on the EU, the UN and the AU to show a united front in efforts to resolve the conflict in Darfur and to prioritise a comprehensive peace process through a political dialogue with all parties concerned;
