4. Composition of Parliament

Lena Kolarska-Bobińska and Rafał Trzaskowski had respectively been appointed Minister for Science and Minister for Administration and Digitisation in the Polish Government, with effect from 3 December 2013.

Under Rule 4(1), Parliament noted their seats were vacant and informed the national authority concerned.

5. Verification of credentials

On the JURI Committee's proposal, Parliament decided to confirm the validity of the mandates of Gabriele Stauner and Hiltrud Breyer, with effect respectively from 30 October 2013 and 31 October 2013.

6. Interpretation of the Rules of Procedure

The President informed the House, under Rule 211(3), of the following interpretation of Rule 202(5), provided by the Committee on Constitutional Affairs, which had been consulted on the application of that provision:

'Fact-finding visits and the reports on those visits are aimed solely at providing the Committee with the requisite information to enable it to consider the petition further. Such reports are drafted under the exclusive responsibility of the participants in the visit, who shall seek to reach a consensus. Failing such a consensus, the report must set out the divergent findings of fact or assessments. The report is submitted to the Committee for its approval by a single vote, unless the Chair declares, where appropriate, that amendments may be tabled to parts of the report. Rule 52 does not apply to these reports, either directly or mutatis mutandis. In the absence of approval by the Committee, reports shall not be forwarded to the President.'

If this interpretation was not contested by a political group or by at least 40 Members, in accordance with Rule 211(4), before the opening of the following day's sitting, Tuesday 10 December 2013, it would be deemed to have been adopted. Otherwise, the matter would be put to the vote in Parliament.

Miscellaneous

Véronique de Keyser tabled the following oral amendment to § 4:

'Regrets that the recommendation made by the African Union to the governments in Khartoum and Juba that a referendum on the disputed region of Abyei be held in October 2013 has not been followed up by any effective action; calls on the South Sudanese authorities to ensure that Misseriya nomads are able to participate in the referendum, as Khartoum is otherwise opposed to its holding; welcomes the statement by the authorities in South Sudan pointing out that the Misseriya have always had free access to water and pastureland in Abyei and that they will continue to enjoy this right in the future.'

Miscellaneous

Jürgen Klute (rapporteur) had moved the following oral amendment to Article 5(1), subparagraph 1 and recital 15:

'1. Member States shall ensure that payment service providers provide consumers, free of charge and annually, with a statement of all fees and the interest rates applied to their payment account.'

'(15) In order to help consumers compare payment account fees throughout the internal market easily, payment service providers should provide consumers with a comprehensive fee information document that states the fees for all services linked to the payment account contained in the list of the most representative services and any further fees that can be applied to the account. The fee information document should use the standardised terms and definitions established at Union level, where possible. This would also contribute towards establishing a level playing field between credit institutions competing in the payment account market. In order to help consumers understand the fees they have to pay for their payment account, a glossary providing clear, non-technical and unambiguous explanations for at least the services linked to the payment account and the related definitions and explanations should be made available to them. The glossary should serve as a useful tool to encourage a better understanding of the meaning of fees, contributing towards empowering consumers to choose from a wider choice of payment account offers. An obligation should also be introduced for payment service providers to inform consumers, free of charge and annually, of all fees and the interest applied to on their account. Ex-post information should be provided in a dedicated summary. It should provide a complete overview of interest earned, fees incurred and pre-notifications of modifications to fees or interest rates. The consumer should be given the information necessary to understand what fee expenditures and interests relate to, and to assess the need to either modify consumption patterns or move to another provider.'
