

'right of election' was largely extinguished on 1 January 1978 and cannot be brought back into existence by the accession of new Member States. In so far as there are competitive advantages for travel organizers from Member States which have made use of the possibility offered by Article 28, such advantages are not unlawful. In any event, the Directive does not permit the Member States to remedy matters themselves. Even less does the Directive give the Member States the right to alter the choice they have made as to whether or not to make use of Article 28, even if only in regard to one Member State.
