Acts whose titles are printed in light type are those relating to day-to-day management of agricultural matters, and are generally valid for a limited period.

The titles of all other acts are printed in bold type and preceded by an asterisk.

All amounts in this budget document are expressed in euro unless otherwise indicated.

Any revenue provided for in Article 21(2) and (3) of the Financial Regulation, entered in Titles 5 and 6 of the statement of revenue, may lead to additional appropriations being entered on the headings which bore the initial expenditure giving rise to the corresponding revenue.

Figures for outturn refer to all authorised appropriations, including budget appropriations, additional appropriations and earmarked revenue.

Budgetary remarks are only executable insofar as they do not modify or extend the scope of an existing legal base, impinge on the administrative autonomy of institutions and can be covered by available resources (as indicated in the annex to the executability letter dated 28 October 2015).

A. INTRODUCTION AND FINANCING OF THE GENERAL BUDGET

INTRODUCTION

The general budget of the Union is the instrument which sets out and authorises the total amount of revenue and expenditure deemed necessary for the European Union and the European Atomic Energy Community for each year.

The budget is established and implemented in compliance with the principles of unity, budgetary accuracy, annuality, equilibrium, unit of account, universality, specification, sound financial management and transparency.

- The principle of unity and the principle of budgetary accuracy mean that all revenue and expenditure of the Union when it is charged to the budget must be incorporated in a single document.
- The principle of annuality means that the budget is adopted for one budgetary year at a time and that both commitment and payment appropriations for the current budgetary year must, in principle, be used in the course of the year.
- The principle of equilibrium means that forecasts of revenue for the budgetary year must be equal to payment appropriations for that year; borrowing to cover any budget deficit which may arise is not compatible with the own resources system and will not be authorised.
- In accordance with the principle of unit of account, the budget is drawn up and implemented in euros and the accounts shall be presented in euros.
- The principle of universality means that total revenue is to cover total payment appropriations with the exception of a limited number of revenue items which are assigned to particular items of expenditure. Revenue and expenditure are entered in full in the budget without any adjustment against each other.
- The principle of specification means that each appropriation must have a given purpose and be assigned to a specific objective in order to prevent any confusion between appropriations.
- The principle of sound financial management is defined by reference to the principles of economy, efficiency and effectiveness.
- The budget is established in compliance with the principle of transparency, ensuring sound information on the implementation of the budget and the accounts.

The budget presents appropriations and resources by purpose (activity-based budgeting), with a view to enhancing transparency in the management of the budget with reference to the objectives of sound financial management and in particular efficiency and effectiveness.

The expenditure authorised by the present budget totals EUR 168 688 122 110 in commitment appropriations and EUR 153 566 205 917 in payment appropriations, representing a variation rate of + 1,50 % and of + 3,42 % respectively by comparison with the 2019 budget.

Budgetary revenue totals EUR 153 566 205 917. The uniform rate of call for the VAT resource is 0,30 % (except for Germany, Netherlands and Sweden for which the rate of call for the period 2014-2020 has been fixed at 0,15 %) whilst that for the GNI resource is 0,6507 %. Traditional own resources account for 14,43 % of the financing of the budget for 2020. The VAT resource accounts for 12,34 % and the GNI resource for 71,98 %. Other revenue for this financial year is estimated at EUR 1 928 450 061.

The own resources needed to finance the 2020 budget account for 0,89 % of the total GNI.

The tables below set out step by step the method used to calculate the financing of the 2020 budget.

Correction of budgetary imbalances for the United Kingdom for the year 2019 pursuant to Article 4 of Decision 2014/335/EU, Euratom (Chapter 1 5)

Description	Coefficient ⁽¹⁾ (%)	Amount
1. United Kingdom's share (in %) of notional uncapped VAT base	16,3 037

3. (1) – (2)	9,0 022
4. Total allocated expenditure		130 008 765 143
5. Enlargement related expenditure ⁽²⁾		30 694 725 929
6. Enlargement-adjusted total allocated expenditure = (4) – (5)		99 314 039 214
7. United Kingdom's correction original amount = (3) × (6) × 0,66		5 900 699 546
8. United Kingdom's advantage ⁽³⁾		690 825 371
9. Core United Kingdom's correction = (7) – (8)		5 209 874 175

11. Correction for the United Kingdom = (9) – (10)		5 254 368 981

⁽²⁾ The amount of enlargement-related expenditure corresponds to total allocated expenditure in 13 Member States (that have acceded to the Union after 30 April 2004), except for agricultural direct payments and market-related expenditure as well as that part of rural development expenditure originating from the EAGGF, Guarantee Section.
⁽³⁾ The 'UK advantage' corresponds to the effects arising for the United Kingdom from the changeover to capped VAT and the introduction of the GNP/GNI-based own resource.
⁽⁴⁾ These windfall gains correspond to the net gains of the United Kingdom resulting from the increase — from 10 to 20 % as of 1 January 2014 — in the percentage of traditional own resources retained by Member States to cover the collection costs of traditional own resources (TOR).

p.m.	p.m.	– 86 723 866,75

Remarks

The common organisation of the market in the sugar sector provided that sugar, isoglucose and inulin syrup producers had to pay basic and B production levies. These levies were intended to cover market support expenditure. At present amounts entered under this article are a consequence of the revision of past established levies. Levies for the marketing year 2007/2008 till the marketing year 2016/2017 are entered under Article 1 1 7 of this chapter as a 'production charge'.

Figures are net of collection costs.

Remarks

The GNI-based resource is an 'additional' resource, providing the revenue required to cover expenditure in excess of the amount yielded by traditional own resources, VAT-based payments and other revenue in any particular year. By implication, the GNI-based resource ensures that the general budget of the Union is always balanced ex ante.

The GNI call rate is determined by the additional revenue needed to finance the budgeted expenditure not covered by the other resources (VAT-based payments, traditional own resources and other revenue). Thus a call rate is applied to the GNI of each of the Member States.

The rate to be applied to the Member States' gross national income for financial 2020 year is 0,6507 %.

Remarks

The budgetary imbalance correction mechanism in favour of the United Kingdom (UK correction) was introduced by the European Council in Fontainebleau in June 1984 and the resulting own resources decision of 1985. The purpose of the mechanism is to reduce the UK budgetary imbalance through a reduction in its payments to the Union.

Legal basis

Council Decision 2014/335/EU, Euratom of 26 May 2014 on the system of own resources of the European Union (OJ L 168, 7.6.2014, p. 105), and in particular Articles 4 and 5 thereof.

Remarks

In accordance with Article 18 of the Financial Regulation, the balance from each financial year, whether surplus or deficit, is entered as revenue or expenditure in the budget of the subsequent financial year.

The relevant estimates of such revenue or expenditure are entered in the budget during the budgetary procedure and, where appropriate, in a letter of amendment submitted pursuant to Article 39 of the Financial Regulation. They are drawn up in accordance with the principles set out in Article 1(1) of Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 608/2014.

After the closure of the accounts for each financial year, any discrepancy in relation to the estimates is entered in the budget for the following financial year through an amending budget that must be presented by the Commission within 15 days following the submission of the provisional accounts.

A deficit is entered in Article 27 02 01 of the statement of expenditure in Section III 'Commission'.

The Commission shall inform the Member States of the amounts resulting from this calculation before 1 February of the year following that in which the data for the adjustments was supplied.

Remarks

Article 3 of the Protocol on the position of Denmark and Article 5 of the Protocol on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland, annexed to the Treaty on European Union (TEU) and the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), grant full exemption to these Member States from supporting the financial consequences of some specific policies in the area of freedom, security and justice, with the exception of the related administrative costs. They can therefore obtain an adjustment to the own resources paid for each year in which they do not participate.

Each Member State's contribution to the adjustment mechanism is calculated by applying to the budget expenditure resulting from this operation or policy the scale of the aggregate gross national income and its components from the preceding year, supplied by the Member States in accordance with Article 2(2) of Council Regulation (EC, Euratom) No 1287/2003 of 15 July 2003 on the harmonisation of gross national income at market prices (OJ L 181, 19.7.2003, p. 1).

The Commission works out each Member State's balance and informs it in time for that Member State to enter its balance in the account referred to in Article 9(1) of Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 609/2014 on the first working day of December, in accordance with Article 11 of that Regulation.

Legal basis

Council Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 609/2014 of 26 May 2014 on the methods and procedure for making available the traditional, VAT and GNI-based own resources and on the measures to meet cash requirements (OJ L 168, 7.6.2014, p. 39), and in particular Article 11 thereof.

Protocol on the position of Denmark, annexed to the Treaty on European Union and to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 3 thereof, and Protocol on the position of the United Kingdom and Ireland in respect of the area of freedom, security and justice, annexed to the Treaty on European Union and to the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, and in particular Article 5 thereof.

6 1 1 3 (cont'd)

Remarks

Decision 2003/76/EC stipulates that the Commission is entrusted with winding up the financial operations of the European Coal and Steel Community which are still in progress upon expiry of the ECSC Treaty.

Pursuant to Article 4 of that Decision, net revenue from the investment of available assets will constitute revenue in the general budget of the Union earmarked for a specific purpose, namely financing research projects in sectors related to the coal and steel industry by the Research Fund for Coal and Steel. Unused revenue and appropriations deriving from this revenue still available on 31 December in any given year, as well as amounts recovered, shall be carried over automatically to the following year. Those appropriations may not be transferred to other budget items.

The net revenue available for financing research projects in year $n + 2$ appears in the balance sheet of the ECSC in liquidation for year n , and after the liquidation process has been completed will appear as assets in the balance sheet of the Research Fund for Coal and Steel. This financing mechanism took effect in 2003. Revenue coming from 2018 will be used for research in 2020. In order to reduce as far as possible the fluctuations that movements in the financial markets could cause in the financing of research, a smoothing arrangement is applied. The amount of net revenue expected to be available for research in 2020 is EUR 40 400 000.

In accordance with Article 4 of Decision 2003/76/EC, 72,8 % of the fund's appropriations will be for the steel-related sector and 27,2 % for the coal-related sector.

In accordance with point (b) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation, revenue will be used to provide additional appropriations under Chapter 08 05 of the statement of expenditure in Section III 'Commission'.

This article is intended to record the Innovation Fund (IF) revenues generated by the auctioning of the allowances in accordance with Articles 10 and 10a(8) of Directive 2003/87/EC for all implementation tasks carried out by the Commission in direct management subject to the final decision on the delegation of the Innovation Fund.

For budget year 2020, it is provisionally estimated that an amount between EUR 2,5 and 3,0 million will be needed in order to finance the contribution to the expenditure of INEA's staff and administration incurred as a result of the Agency's role in the management of the Innovation Fund financed from budget item 34 01 06 01.

This will allow the preparation of a first call for proposals in 2020, expected to be launched at the beginning of the second half of 2020, in the range of EUR 1,0-1,5 billion.

The necessary appropriations for this call would be generated by the revenue arising from the auctioning as of January 2020 of the first tranche of the 50 million emission allowances allocated to the Innovation Fund from the market stability reserve and by unspent amounts from the previous NER300 fund. Payments for selected projects from the first call are expected to be made from 2021 onwards.

Remarks

This article is intended to record capital repayments and interest payments on special loans and risk capital granted from the appropriations in Chapters 22 02 and 22 04 of the statement of expenditure in Section III 'Commission' to Mediterranean third countries.

It also comprises capital repayments and interest payments on special loans and risk capital granted to certain Mediterranean Member States which, however, represent a very small proportion of the overall amount. These loans/ risk capital were granted at a time those countries had not yet joined the Union.

The revenue obtained normally exceeds the amounts forecast in the budget because of the interest payments on special loans which may still be disbursed during the preceding financial year as well as during the current financial year. The interest on special loans and risk capital is charged from the moment the loans are disbursed; interest on special loans is paid in six-monthly instalments and interest on risk capital generally in annual instalments.

This article may accommodate, in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation, assigned revenue which is used to provide additional appropriations to finance expenditure to which this revenue is assigned.

p.m.	p.m.	45 593 122,53

Remarks

Decision 2003/76/EC stipulates that the Commission is entrusted with winding up the financial operations of the European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC) which are still in progress upon expiry of the ECSC Treaty.

Pursuant to Article 4 of that Decision, net revenue from the investment of available assets will constitute revenue in the general budget of the Union earmarked for a specific purpose, namely financing research projects in sectors related to the coal and steel industry by the Research Fund for Coal and Steel. Unused revenue and appropriations deriving from this revenue still available on 31 December in any given year, as well as amounts recovered, shall be carried over automatically to the following year. Those appropriations may not be transferred to other budget items.

The net revenue available for financing research projects in year $n + 2$ appears in the balance sheet of the ECSC in liquidation for year n , and after the liquidation process has been completed will appear as assets in the balance sheet of the Research Fund for Coal and Steel. This financing mechanism took effect in 2003. Revenue coming from 2018 will be used for research in 2020. In order to reduce as far as possible the fluctuations that movements in the financial markets could cause in the financing of research, a smoothing arrangement is applied. The amount of net revenue expected to be available for research in 2020 is EUR 40 400 000.

In accordance with Article 4 of Decision 2003/76/EC, 72,8 % of the fund's appropriations will be for the steel-related sector and 27,2 % for the coal-related sector.

In accordance with point (b) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation, revenue will be used to provide additional appropriations under Chapter 08 05 of the statement of expenditure in this section.

This will allow the preparation of a first call for proposals in 2020, expected to be launched at the beginning of the second half of 2020, in the range of EUR 1,0-1,5 billion.

The necessary appropriations would be generated by the revenue arising from the auctioning as of January 2020 of the first tranche of the 50 million emission allowances allocated to the Innovation Fund from the market stability reserve and by unspent amounts from the previous NER300 fund. Payments for selected projects from the first call are expected to be made from 2021 onwards.

CHAPTER 8 1 — LOANS GRANTED BY THE COMMISSION8 1 0 Capital repayments and interest in respect of special loans and risk capital granted in the framework of financial cooperation with Mediterranean third countries

Financial year 2020	Financial year 2019	Financial year 2018
p.m.	p.m.	35 948 290,12

Remarks

This article is intended to record capital repayments and interest payments on special loans and risk capital granted from the appropriations in Chapters 22 02 and 22 04 of the statement of expenditure in this section to Mediterranean third countries.

It also comprises capital repayments and interest payments on special loans and risk capital granted to certain Mediterranean Member States which, however, represent a very small proportion of the overall amount. Those loans and risk capital were granted at a time the countries had not yet joined the Union.

The revenue obtained normally exceeds the amounts forecast in the budget because of the interest payments on special loans which may still be disbursed during the preceding financial year as well as during the current financial year. The interest on special loans and risk capital is charged from the moment the loans are disbursed; interest on special loans is paid in six-monthly instalments and interest on risk capital generally in annual instalments.

This article may accommodate, in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation, assigned revenue which is used to provide additional appropriations to finance expenditure to which this revenue is assigned.

This appropriation is also intended to cover the cost of studies, workshops, conferences, analyses, evaluations, publications, technical assistance, the purchase and maintenance of databases; software; equipment and the part-financing and support of measures relating to:

- monitoring structural reforms and improving the operation of markets in the EMU and in the Union,
- coordination with financial institutions and analysis and development of financial markets, and borrowing and lending operations involving Member States,
- the facility providing financial assistance for Member States' balance of payments and the European financial stabilisation mechanism,
- cooperation with economic operators and decision-makers in the abovementioned fields,

This appropriation is also intended to cover the funding of priority information measures on Union policies on all aspects of the rules and functioning of EMU, as well as on the benefits of closer policy coordination and structural reforms, and to address information needs of key stakeholders and citizens in relation to the EMU.

This measure is designed to be an effective channel of communication and dialogue between the citizens of the Union and the Union institutions, and to take account of specific national and regional characteristics, where appropriate in cooperation with Member States' authorities. Emphasis will also be placed on preparing citizens for the introduction of the euro in Member States planning for its introduction.

It includes:

- the development of communication activities at central level (brochures, leaflets, newsletters, website design, development and maintenance, social media, exhibitions, stands, conferences, seminars, audiovisual products, opinion polls, surveys, studies, promotional material, coin design competitions, twinning programmes, training etc.), and similar activities at the national and regional level implemented in cooperation with the Commission's Representations,

- cooperation and networking with Member States in the appropriate forums,
- communication initiatives in third countries, in particular to point out the international role of the euro and the value of financial integration.

The Commission, when implementing this article, should take duly into account the outcomes of the meetings of the Interinstitutional Group on Information (IGI).

The implementation of the Commission's communication strategy takes place in close coordination with the Member States and the European Parliament.

The Commission adopts a strategy and an annual work plan drawing on the orientations set out in its Communication of 11 August 2004 (COM(2004) 552 final) and it reports regularly to the relevant committee of the European Parliament on the implementation of the programme and on planning for the coming year.

This appropriation is also intended to cover or to temporarily pre-finance costs incurred by the Union in concluding and carrying out operations linked with the borrowing and lending operations for macro-financial assistance, Euratom, balance of payment and European financial stabilisation mechanism.

Remarks

Macro-financial assistance (MFA) is a form of financial aid extended by the Union to partner countries experiencing a balance of payments crisis. MFA is designed for countries geographically, economically and politically close to the Union. These include candidate and potential candidate countries, countries covered by the European Neighbourhood Policy and, in certain circumstances, other third countries. In principle, MFA is only available to countries benefiting from an International Monetary Fund programme.

COMMISSION

TITLE 01 — ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

MFA is exceptional in nature and is mobilised on a case-by-case basis to help countries dealing with serious balance-of-payments difficulties. Its objective is to restore a sustainable external financial situation, while encouraging economic adjustments and structural reforms.

While MFA can take the form of medium/long-term loans or grants, or a combination of these, this article only covers the grant element of MFA operations.

Appropriations under this article will also be used to cover costs incurred in relation to MFA operations, and in particular: (i) costs incurred to conduct operational assessments in the beneficiary countries to obtain reasonable assurances on the functioning of administrative procedures and financial circuits, (ii) costs related to the implementation of the 'Better Regulation' guidelines, in particular for ex-post evaluations of MFA operations, and (iii) costs to cover comitology requirements.

The Commission will inform the budgetary authority regularly of the macro-financial situation of the beneficiary countries and will report extensively on the implementation of MFA on a yearly basis.

Any revenue entered in Article 5 5 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with point (a) of Article 21(3) of the Financial Regulation.

That decision was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Economic Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 30 October 1978 and in Luxembourg on 10 November 1978, setting up a comprehensive guarantee, equal to 75 % of all the funds available for loan operations in the following countries: Malta, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, Portugal (Financial Protocol, emergency aid), Turkey, Cyprus, Syria, Israel, Jordan, Egypt, former Yugoslavia and Lebanon.

Decision 90/62/EEC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Economic Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 24 April 1990 and in Luxembourg on 14 May 1990 as regards Hungary and Poland and for the extension of that contract to cover Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria, signed in Brussels and in Luxembourg on 31 July 1991.

Decision 93/696/EC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 22 July 1994 and in Luxembourg on 12 August 1994.

Pursuant to Decisions 93/115/EEC and 96/723/EC, the Union guarantees loans which may be made individually by the EIB in countries of Latin America and Asia with which the European Community has concluded cooperation agreements. Decision 93/115/EEC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 4 November 1993 and in Luxembourg on 17 November 1993. Decision 96/723/EC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 18 March 1997 and in Luxembourg on 26 March 1997.

Pursuant to Decision 95/207/EC, the Union guarantees loans which may be made individually by the EIB in South Africa. Decision 95/207/EC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 4 October 1995 and in Luxembourg on 16 October 1995.

The overall ceiling of the appropriations opened is equivalent to EUR 7 105 000 000.

CHAPTER 01 03 — INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS (cont'd)01 03 05 (cont'd)

Decision 2000/24/EC was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the European Community and the EIB signed in Brussels on 24 January 2000 and in Luxembourg on 17 January 2000, last restated in 2005, setting up a guarantee restricted to 65 % of the aggregate amount of the appropriations opened, plus all related sums. The overall ceiling of the appropriations made available is equivalent to EUR 19 460 000 000. The overall ceiling is EUR 500 000 000. It covers a period ending on 31 January 2007. At the end of this period, the loans granted by the EIB not having attained the overall amounts referred to above, the period was automatically extended by six months.

CHAPTER 01 03 — INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS (cont'd)01 03 05 (cont'd)

Decision No 466/2014/EU was the basis for a contract of guarantee between the Union and the EIB signed in Luxembourg on 22 July 2014 and in Brussels on 25 July 2014. The Union guarantee is restricted to 65 % of the aggregate amount disbursed and guaranteed under EIB financing operations, less amounts reimbursed, plus all related amounts. The maximum ceiling of the EIB financing operations under the Union guarantee, less amounts cancelled, was not to exceed EUR 30 000 000 000, broken down into a fixed ceiling of EUR 27 000 000 000 and an optional mandate of EUR 3 000 000 000. The European Parliament and the Council were to decide in accordance with the ordinary legislative procedure on the activation in whole or in part of the optional mandate. The Union guarantee covers EIB financing operations signed during the period beginning on 25 July 2014 and ending on 31 December 2020 with an extension of six months if the European Parliament and the Council have not adopted a new decision granting the Union guarantee to the EIB against losses under its financing operations outside the Union before the end of 2020. Following a mid-term review, Decision No 466/2014/EU was amended by Decision (EU) 2018/412. The optional mandate of EUR 3 000 000 000 was activated and an additional private-sector lending mandate of EUR 2 300 000 000 was established for projects directed towards the long-term economic resilience of refugees, migrants, host and transit communities, and communities of origin as a strategic response to addressing root causes of migration. Consequently the maximum ceiling increased to EUR 32 300 000 000. A new guarantee agreement in accordance with the amended Decision was signed between the Commission and the EIB on 3 October 2018.

In order to honour its obligations, the Commission may draw on its cash resources to service the debt provisionally. In that case, Article 14 of Council Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 609/2014 of 26 May 2014 on the methods and procedure for making available the traditional, VAT and GNI-based own resources and on the measures to meet cash requirements (OJ L 168, 7.6.2014, p. 39) applies.

This article constitutes the structure for the guarantee provided by the Union. It will enable the Commission, if necessary, to service the debt (repayment of principal, interest and other costs) should a debtor default on the loans granted by the EIB.

The EIF is entitled to receive management fees for the implementation of the SME window. As provided for in Regulation (EU) 2015/1017, as amended by Regulation (EU) 2017/2396, fees due to the EIF are to be primarily met by revenues from the resources in the EFSI guarantee fund and the EFSI. Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover payments in respect of commitments remaining to be settled from previous years.

Even though the end of the commitment period has been reached, the facilities have to be operated for several years during which time payments will be needed for investments and in order to honour guarantee obligations. Therefore reporting and monitoring requirements will continue until the end of the facility periods.

In order to honour its obligations, the Commission may draw on its cash resources to service the debt provisionally. In that case, Article 12 of Council Regulation (EC, Euratom) No 1150/2000 of 22 May 2000 implementing Decision 2007/436/EC, Euratom on the system of the European Communities own resources (OJ L 130, 31.5.2000, p. 1) applies.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, these amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (e), (f) and (g) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget of the Union.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes and entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with points (e), (f) and (g) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenues and repayments generated on Trust Accounts entered in Article 5 2 3 of the statement of revenue will be returned to the general budget of the Union or transferred to the succeeding financial instruments under the Union equity instruments for research and innovation under Horizon 2020 or the Equity Facility for Growth under COSME, as the case may be, in accordance with the Financial Regulation and Regulations (EU) No 1287/2013 and (EU) No 1290/2013.

Remarks

For concentrated groups of European citizens, housing deprivation has been a constant for decades. Roma are one of the minority groups in Europe with the highest rates of poverty and social exclusion. Despite long-standing efforts, including the EU framework for national Roma integration strategies (NRIS) for 2020, introduced as long ago as in 2011, tackling the socio-economic exclusion of and discrimination against Roma remains an objective.

The implementation of NRIS has hitherto largely relied on grant funding from European structural and investment funds (ESIF). The use of ESIF funds has unfortunately been limited by the lack of political commitment and capacity of national and regional authorities in charge of managing the funds. Scarce use has been made of financial instruments to date, such as loans and guarantees, to promote the socio-economic inclusion of marginalised Roma communities.

This pilot project is part of the Union's efforts to:

- Support social innovation and new, holistic approaches to social service provision, the empowerment of disadvantaged groups and delivering transformative solutions for key social challenges, in particular Roma inclusion;
- Stimulate cross-sectoral collaborations and social impact partnerships (public-private and civic engagement) as a new avenue for public value creation;

- Pioneer the use of new financial instruments and blended support (financial instruments, grant and capacity building) for projects with high social externalities;
- In the longer term, support the development of the social investment market and social impact interventions through testing/refinement of a model which could be scaled up across Europe under, for example, the future single Union investment programme (InvestEU).

The InvestEU programme could be a game changer, with financial allocation to support social infrastructure (namely housing, health and education facilities), social innovation and social impact schemes. The next integrated investment programme of the Union could offer a significant opportunity to make progress in achieving the inclusion of Roma.

Scope of the pilot project:

This project will develop a housing model solution and improved life opportunities for a selected group of marginalised Roma communities. The target beneficiaries will typically reside in unregulated/illegal outskirts settlements and face adversity as regards access to income/gainful employment opportunities and to other inclusion opportunities.

In essence, this is a multiphase model which involves the preparation (in terms of financial literacy, motivation, job assistance and life skills, and construction assistance) of Roma families on the path to home ownership and empowerment.

Activities will therefore include:

- The provision of financial education, job assistance and life skills training for selected participants from a disadvantaged background who are enrolled in the programme;
- Support for savings schemes for each family, for about one year, to enable loan payments to be made for construction materials for new homes;
- Engagement with public authorities for the allocation of land for the intervention, and providing training to public authorities so that they can implement and manage inclusion/desegregation programmes and further provide social services to the local community.

This multiphase model will trial innovative approaches combining financial instruments (loans, guarantees, etc.), grants and capacity building assistance.

The pilot may be carried out in partnership with an implementing organisation. Under a single grant contract with the Commission, the selected implementing partner would channel the support via:

- A guarantee for de-risking portfolios of social housing loans to targeted beneficiaries, accounting for some 25 % of the budget; and
- Capacity building grants for NGOs providing coaching/mentoring services to municipalities, enabling the purchase of apartments/houses, constructions (provision of land and necessary infrastructure) and local Roma communities for financial literacy and construction training, employment and civic education, accounting for some 75 % of the budget.

Activities will be closely aligned with and complement current pilot projects for Roma inclusion (ROMACT), cohesion policy funding tools which could be mobilised as a result, as well as relevant desegregation guidance and holistic approaches to local development principles.

The pilot project will test and develop integrated social finance models as part of a multicountry, pan-European approach, possibly as a pilot for a combined financial/advisory product under the InvestEU Programme post-2020. This should complement cohesion funding support and reinforce the objectives of social inclusion, desegregation, access to education, employment support and regional development. It could also provide models for replication under social outcome contracting mechanisms.

After being tested at multiple sites with substantial Roma communities, it will expand to different locations within the countries with substantial Roma communities (e.g. East Slovakia, East Czechia, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary) and be replicated in an urban context.

Activities will be closely aligned with and complement current pilot projects for Roma inclusion (ROMACT) and additional Cohesion policy funding tools which could be mobilised. The pilot project will also contribute to policy development in the area of homelessness and housing exclusion and support preparation of the post-2020 EU framework for NRIS.

Target groups:

- Marginalised Roma families, as one of the most excluded groups in Europe, whose fate embodies one of the most acute social challenges in central and eastern European countries and, indeed, the Union;
- Public authorities, financial intermediaries and social impact actors (foundations, service providers).

Legal basis

Pilot project within the meaning of Article 58(2) of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2018/1046 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 July 2018 on the financial rules applicable to the general budget of the Union, amending Regulations (EU) No 1296/2013, (EU) No 1301/2013, (EU) No 1303/2013, (EU) No 1304/2013, (EU) No 1309/2013, (EU) No 1316/2013, (EU) No 223/2014, (EU) No 283/2014, and Decision No 541/2014/EU and repealing Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 966/2012 (OJ L 193, 30.7.2018, p. 1).

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to strengthen the competitiveness of enterprises, in particular that of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), and to encourage entrepreneurship and foster the creation and growth of SMEs.

The implemented measures will include:

- networks bringing together a variety of stakeholders,
- market replication projects,
- policy analyses, development and coordination with participating countries,
- policies to foster entrepreneurship,
- information sharing, dissemination, awareness raising and advisory services to increase SME's competitiveness and help them participate in the single market and beyond,
- support to joint actions of Member States or regions, as well as other measures under the programme for the competitiveness of enterprises and small and medium-sized enterprises (COSME).

The Union will provide support to activities such as the Enterprise Europe Network and entrepreneurship promotion. It will also support projects concerned with the first applications or market replication of techniques, practices or products (e.g. new business concepts for consumer goods) of Union relevance that have already been technically demonstrated with success but, owing to residual risk, have not yet significantly penetrated the market. Those projects will be designed to promote wider use within the participating countries and facilitate market uptake.

Projects will also seek to improve the framework conditions including through capacity building in clusters and other business networks notably with regard to support SME internationalisation in order to ensure that Union enterprises are competitive and sustainable, including in the tourism sector, by supporting coherence and consistency in implementation, as well as informed policy-making at Union level. In addition, projects will be put in place to support the implementation of the Single Market Strategy and the Start-up Initiative. Support actions, directly linked to the achievement of these objectives are also considered for funding: meetings (including workshops), studies, information and publications and participation in study groups.

Sustainable tourism activities will receive a special focus with initial priority given to soft mobility, cycling networks, eco-tourism and nature protection. Accessibility for all, particularly for people with reduced mobility and for socially disadvantaged people is also of high importance in this context.

COMMISSION

TITLE 02 — INTERNAL MARKET, INDUSTRY, ENTREPRENEURSHIP AND SMES

CHAPTER 02 02 — COMPETITIVENESS OF ENTERPRISES AND SMALL AND MEDIUM-SIZED ENTERPRISES (cont'd)

02 02 01 (cont'd)

The Union will coordinate, promote and support actions for sustainable tourism, such as:

- preservation of long-term sustainable tourism resources through protection of natural, cultural, historical and industrial heritage,
- coordination and support for access to sustainable tourism information and services for less-advantaged citizens living in poverty, as well as for persons with reduced mobility,
- cross-border coordination of European cycling networks, together with rail and long-distance bus information and services.

The 'Erasmus for Young Entrepreneurs' programme aims to encourage European entrepreneurship, the sharing of knowledge and best practices, and the creation of valuable networks, partnerships, companies and jobs.

Due to the currently difficult economic situation it is indispensable to support European enterprises, in particular young innovative start-ups and female entrepreneurs, and to foster entrepreneurship by assigning enough funds to programmes like the COSME programme. It is particularly important to provide support and incentives for the most modern and innovative sectors, such as the sharing economy and the digital economy. The Union will provide support for young entrepreneurs in these sectors and develop and introduce instruments that will allow innovative start-ups to compete with rivals from third countries on world markets. Support will also be provided to increase SMEs' participation in public procurement.

In particular the programme 'Erasmus for Young Entrepreneurs' has been very successful, efficient and effective in contributing successfully to fighting unemployment and supporting robust start-ups across Europe.

The financial means for the 'Erasmus for Young Entrepreneurs' programme are maintained in particular due to the following reasons:

- the programme helps fostering European entrepreneurship, the sharing of knowledge and best-practices as well as creating valuable networks and partnerships,
- the programme is very successful and has shown an increasing number of participants over the last years which is expected to increase further,
- the programme effectively tackles the problem of unemployment as it helps people without work to become self-employed and existing SME to create jobs and increase their turnover by expanding or internationalising their business,
- the number of applications exceeds by far the possibilities the Commission can fulfil with the financial means currently available.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b) (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations, according to the same ratio as between the amount authorised for expenditure on administrative management and the total appropriations entered for the programme in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation.

The corresponding amount is estimated at EUR 4 815 000.

Remarks

This appropriation is to be used to improve access to finance small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), including companies of female entrepreneurs, in the form of equity and debt, in their start-up, growth and transfer phase.

A loan guarantee facility (LGF) provides counter-guarantees, direct guarantees and other risk sharing arrangements for debt financing which will reduce the particular difficulties that viable SMEs face in accessing finance either due to their perceived higher risk or their lack of sufficient available collateral and for securitisation of SME debt finance portfolios.

An equity facility for growth (EFG) allows investments in risk capital funds which invest in SMEs in the expansion and growth stage, whilst taking a gender-sensitive and non-discriminatory approach, and in particular in those operating cross-borders. It will be possible to invest in early stage funds in conjunction with the equity facility for RDI under Horizon 2020. In cases of joint investments in multi-stage funds, investments will be provided on a pro-rata basis from the EFG of the COSME programme and the equity facility for RDI under Horizon 2020. Support from the EFG will be (a) either directly by the European Investment Fund (EIF) or other entities entrusted with the implementation on behalf of the Commission or (b) by funds-of-funds or investment vehicles investing across borders.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

Capitalising on the European Year of Cultural Heritage 2018, this action will showcase and promote the diversity and richness of European heritage and cultural manifestations (UNESCO World Heritage sites, music and food festivals, folklore and spirituality) as a reason to visit Europe, the continent of culture and creativity.

The activities carried out under this preparatory action could be linked to the theme of 'Culture Europe - Promoting Europe's treasures', with individual countries, regions or macro-regions presenting their distinct heritage and cultural assets to a broad international audience.

The preparatory action builds on and continues the Destination Brand Europe pilot project, but it proposes an enlarged scope and an increased budget. The action will also include promoting less well-known but equally interesting locations and tourism sites, with the ultimate aim of diversifying the range of European destinations, creating new tourism products and supporting less developed regions.

VisitEurope.com, a portal developed with Union support, could be a suitable platform for promotional and marketing activities. Additionally, the '360° European Wonders' app presented by the Commission in 2017 could be integrated into the promotional and marketing strategy.

Ultimately, the action will raise awareness around responsible and sustainable development as regards cultural heritage and the protection of resources for future generations.

The main objectives and actions include:

- preserving Europe's lead position among world tourist destination by promoting European cultural heritage;
- developing and endorsing promotional and marketing channels (online and offline) that will enable destinations to maximise the reach of their tourism offer;
- diversifying the range of European destinations by promoting less visible secondary destinations (so-called 'hidden gems') as new tourism products;
- researching and identifying a number of well-developed and accessible alternative tourist destinations with high potential demand and appeal both internally and in overseas markets;
- engaging with various stakeholders across Member States to raise the visibility of cultural heritage sites;
- providing support to industry partners, especially SMEs in the hospitality and transport sectors, to develop tourism products that incorporate these alternative destinations into their travel packages.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

The World Bridge Tourism pilot project was initiated in the 2015 budget. The main aim of the project was to ensure that Europe should benefit from world bridge tourism by increasing the GDP of the tourism sector. At the same time, it was to bring about significant economic growth, including the creation of sustainable employment opportunities.

The preparatory action focuses on China as the fastest-growing tourism source market in the world. As stated in the pilot project, Chinese tourists' propensity to travel abroad is expected to continue rising in the coming decades. Beyond Asia and the Pacific, Europe is the largest destination region for Chinese travellers. As Europe has a prominent place on the Chinese 'wish list', it is necessary to think about how Member States could host Chinese tourists more effectively. This will involve mutual understanding and continuous and sustainable training of employees throughout Europe in the tourism sector.

The preparatory action will increase flows of Chinese visitors by facilitating business between European tourism providers and Chinese buyers.

2018 was EU-China Tourism Year, during the preparatory period for which the World Bridge Tourism project had a crucial role.

The main objectives and actions include:

- identifying best practices and analysing the results of the pilot project;
- continuing the awareness campaign among tour operators and agencies;

- active involvement in the EU-China Tourism Year 2018;
- enlarging the scope of the project by involving Chinese cultural institutes (e.g. the Confucius Institute) and other public outreach stakeholders;
- increasing involvement of social networks and focusing on digitisation, and providing incentives for bringing tourist products and services into line with the needs of Chinese tourists, including the use of marketing tools (websites and flyers in Chinese) and promoting them on Chinese social networks (e.g. Weibo).

Knowledge and skills are crucial not only for the personal welfare of each citizen, but also for sustainable development and economic growth. It is therefore important to offer a perspective to people coming from countries in economic and social crisis, especially young people, so that they have an opportunity to create added value not only for themselves, but also for the general public.

It is therefore important to empower young migrants and refugees to gain access to knowledge and to develop skills they are able to use and leverage when they are back in their home countries.

This will make it possible for them not only to establish a livelihood, but also potentially to become entrepreneurs, build up their own businesses and create employment.

The core of this initiative will be targeted mentoring programmes from different organisations, such as civil protection and community services, as well as companies (including local suppliers). Elements of a dual-training system would help beneficiaries to identify the specific needs of organisations or companies on the ground.

The legal situation regarding the waiting period for taking up an economic activity differs considerably from Member State to Member State. To make the preparatory action a success, it will therefore also be necessary to conduct a review of current national legal frameworks and to identify best practices which could be promoted in order to speed up procedures, so that young migrants can take advantage of the proposed programmes as soon as possible upon arrival.

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

Industrial modernisation is critical to improving the Union's competitiveness and is therefore an absolute cornerstone of its policy. In this regard, the ability of industrial companies not only to develop but also to absorb and successfully implement new technologies is crucial. However, this remains a big challenge for many companies.

Different stages can be identified in the process of developing and deploying new technologies. There is mounting evidence that market failure occurs at the demonstration stage (TRL 6-8) of the innovation process: between applied research, prototyping and market entry. Testing and validation of prototypes in an industrial environment and certifying new applications remain both very costly and highly uncertain. In many cases this prevents, or at least substantially delays, market uptake of very promising innovations from research and industry, including those previously financed by the Union. On the one hand, industrial companies very often do not have all the necessary equipment and skills to carry out further prototyping activities, validation tests, certification procedures, cost comparisons and other post-prototyping activities needed before full production and market launch. These activities are usually categorised as so-called 'non-recurrent costs' and contribute to what is commonly known as the 'Valley of Death'. On the other hand, very few regions have all the demonstration capabilities in place to help companies carry out the full spectrum of post-prototyping activities in a specific technology domain.

There is a strong need and rationale to establish an inter-regional innovation structure with pan-European shared demonstration facilities (industry commons) accessible by industry and able to speed up technology deployment in and by industrial companies. Shared demonstration facilities can be established by connecting and upgrading the complementary facilities which already exist in the regions, or by creating new shared facilities if needed.

In the past, and in ongoing activities under Vanguard Initiative (VI) pilot projects (www.s3vanguardinitiative.eu), various regions have found that setting up 'shared demonstration facilities' usually involves a non-profitable component. This funding gap occurs when setting up shared facilities and meeting initial operating costs. Once this funding gap is closed, industrial demonstration activities can take place. If they are successful, companies can then upscale their production, generate revenues in the marketplace and hence generate growth and jobs. In order to speed up technology deployment and industrial modernisation, stronger public intervention is therefore needed to unlock innovation and growth potential. At the moment, there is no suitable cross-regional, pan-European instrument to support very much needed investments in innovation infrastructure.

In this context, this preparatory action will complement and further expand the ongoing activities under the VI and the Thematic Smart Specialisation Platform for Industrial Modernisation (TSSP IM). While the TSSP IM and its inter-regional partnerships, such as VI, are instrumental in detecting and initiating inter-regional collaboration for technology uptake, this action will support the development of investments, operations and services, and defray coordination costs for shared demonstration facilities serving a customer base of industrial organisations throughout Europe.

This preparatory action will be particularly important in generating input for the (re)designing of various Union policies, including innovation (Ninth Framework Programme), investment (European Fund for Strategic Investments) and cohesion policy. The action will identify the scope and limitations of existing funds and financial instruments for ultimately stimulating the uptake of market-creating technologies and the promotion of follow-up investments by the private sector, including through close or closer cooperation with industry associations, thereby providing useful input for policy makers.

This preparatory action will focus on the specific VI pilot project for shared demonstration facilities for 'High Performance Production through 3D Printing' (3DP). The 3DP pilot project is among the most advanced, but it faces a huge investment challenge for several of its industrial applications. 3D printing has also been identified as a disruptive technology significantly impacting a broad range of industrial sectors.

Specifically, the preparatory action will focus on the following activities:

(1) setting up an operational platform of connected demonstration facilities between regions by, inter alia:

- connecting demonstration facilities to form a virtual support platform;
- monitoring the provision of know-how, equipment and services to industry, ensuring broad sectoral coverage;
- if needed, expanding the network of connected facilities to improve industrial and/or geographical coverage;
- setting up a network of accredited service providers throughout Europe (for support, training, certification, etc. within the networked demonstration facilities);

(2) attracting industrial demonstration projects via the platform by, inter alia:

- interacting with key stakeholders;
- promoting the platform and identifying opportunities;
- further developing 3DP demonstration cases and use cases, creating new value chains;
- identifying the specific coordination costs and investment support needs;
- communicating and working with a wider audience, including making use of the TSSP IM;
- working on synergies between the relevant pilot project and related initiatives;
- gaining specific knowledge on funding issues to address specific investment needs;

(3) providing an overview of specific proposals for changes to Union policies, in consultation with the Commission.

For proper implementation and evaluation, a timeframe of three years (2018-2020) is needed, including an annual update of the roadmap by a strategy board that will also include Members of the European Parliament.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

This preparatory action will create a business-enabling network for SMEs to seize circular economy business opportunities. It will advance a new type of environmentally friendly industry, where the worthless is turned into valuable by making full use of all materials, including side flows and waste.

The major chemical-using industries, businesses and associated supply chains in different parts of Europe (notably in Finland, France, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom) attempt to create new business out of side flows and wastes. Side flows can be recovered and used as raw materials in new industries. By refining raw materials in the Union, most added value is created in the single market, thus benefitting European economies. This will create jobs and benefit the environment.

The Cir©Lean target group is export-orientated industrial service SMEs which are willing and able and have an international outlook. Cir©Lean will build a systematic, long-term business-enabling network for Union-based SMEs by utilising cross-border, cross-sector and cross-industry knowledge and by developing innovative circular economy business models. The action will help SMEs find ways to increase the value of (currently unidentified) waste and residues by turning them into valuable products to be sold in both the domestic and international markets. The action will enhance industrial symbiosis by increasing the degree of processing of residual waste and landfill and generate new residual waste business.

New business models will be created in cross-border, cross-sector and cross-industry Open Innovation Business workshops where SMEs, primary industries, business developers, educators, researchers, authorities and financiers pool their skills. The Sustainability Assessment Tool developed in Finland will be applied in this work. The workshops will contribute to the development of new knowledge for all participants, creating new commercial products and services that span national borders.

Approximately 20 SMEs will participate in the Cir©Lean preparatory action. As a milestone for the action, 100 SMEs will participate in professional development activities, and, as part of the action, they will gain new contacts and establish cross-border cooperation. When the action is completed, exports will increase and the number of SMEs with new business models will grow. New long-term and sustainable contacts and partnerships with permanent cooperation structures will be established as a result.

Cir©Lean will set up a circular economy business-enabling network that will continue after the preparatory action ends.

Youth unemployment remains a significant challenge for Member States. As of February 2018 it stood at 15,9 % in the EU28 and 17,7 % in the euro area. The aim of the initial pilot project was to contribute to reducing youth unemployment through the provision of worker co-operatives by establishing entrepreneurship and sustainable job opportunities for young people to both work in and own part of the company simultaneously, as well as establishing best practice in the area for the Union as a whole.

The pilot project was launched in the three Member States with the most experience in this field, and included objectives such as improving knowledge of the co-operative business concept, guiding students in implementing their own ideas and helping them start up businesses in the form of a co-operative, providing training and internships/apprenticeships in co-operatives and examining how to create synergies with related Union programmes.

Tourism is a key sector for economic development and job creation in Europe. Tourism bodies are in a never-ending dispute over a unified classification system for hotels, restaurants and other facilities. As the needs and expectations of consumers evolved, consequently stimulating supply in the hotel sector, it became essential to regulate this area of activity by adopting measures to protect the rights and interests of consumers.

However, consumers' perceptions often do not match what they receive owing to insufficient and ineffective communication.

This project will draw up:

- a framework for comprehensively mapping the existing public and private initiatives (star systems, certification schemes, etc.) for tourism that will harmonise the classification system in terms of accuracy and how up-to-date the information is, and will bring transparency and consistency to service quality evaluation and performance;
- a framework for the content of information provided by travel agencies, tour operators, online booking sites and review sites; the information provided to consumers should be examined, compared and compatible with Union level criteria for the initiatives in question;

- a framework for trans-national cooperation between public authorities and industries to improve the content of 'terms and conditions' and ensure a fair 'agreement' between the service provider and the tourist; the agreement should specify, among other things, the payment conditions and the rights of the tourist, especially in cases where the contracted services are not adequately performed;
- the feasibility of establishing principles at Union level for tourism service quality, including Union competence, added value and technical viability.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

One major objective of the Union institutions is to improve coordination of policy at Union and Member State level as regards promoting the use of ICT in education, training and learning systems. One condition for integrating ICT is to increase the availability and quality of connectivity to broadband internet services for schools and classrooms, especially in rural and low population density areas, by adopting dedicated policies.

The Commission has allocated resources for enhancing school connectivity to the internet, promoting policy coordination through various initiatives. One such initiative was set out in the Commission communication of 25 September 2013 entitled 'Opening up Education: Innovative teaching and learning for all through new Technologies and Open Educational Resources' (COM(2013) 654 final), which clearly stated that 'Enhancing local ICT infrastructure (broadband, content, tools) is still needed in some parts of Europe...' and that 'Member States are investing in upgrading their national educational infrastructure (ICT, digital educational resources, broadband) but fragmentation and incoherence among Member States persists. On average, 93 % of EU students access the internet at home, but only 72 % have access to it at a place of education, sometimes not in the classroom.'

Innovation in the education sector remains a key priority for the Commission as is clearly stated in the Commission communication of 14 September 2016 entitled 'Connectivity for a Competitive Digital Single Market — Towards a European Gigabit Society' (COM(2016) 587 final). The European Parliament, in its resolution of 1 June 2017 on internet connectivity for growth, competitiveness and cohesion: European gigabit society and 5G (OJ C 307, 30.8.2018, p. 144), welcomed the ambitious plan to provide ultra-fast internet in primary and secondary schools, universities and libraries by 2025, in line with the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality. It also stressed that faster and better connectivity provides huge opportunities to enhance teaching methods, to foster research and to develop high quality educational services online as well as to create better opportunities for distance learning.

The European Parliament also emphasised that, in order for the gigabit target to have its full impact on Union economy and not to miss opportunities, it is important to close the digital divide and prevent the opening of new divides, and to this end funding opportunities should be explored by Member States and the Commission in support of the achievement for the main socio-economic drivers (schools, universities, public administrations).

In 2016, many schools in the Union still lacked broadband access (especially primary schools, 25 % of which had no broadband access or even no internet access at all). The main reasons for this are:

- poor awareness among schools and local authorities of the technical options available to access broadband internet;
- a limited number of dedicated, large national institutional support programmes;
- lack of knowledge about possible funding options, including voucher schemes, and how to implement them.

In 2015, the Commission published a call for tenders for a feasibility study on the provision of satellite broadband for schools located in rural areas and not covered by any fixed wired or wireless broadband.

That study, called 'Satellite broadband for schools: Feasibility study' (SMART 2015/0061), was published in September 2017. It confirmed that the use of satellite-based access and distribution is an efficient solution to make broadband internet and educational multimedia content immediately available to schools that are now unconnected or poorly connected and would otherwise remain so for some time to come.

Objective of the pilot project

The objective of the pilot project was to build on the results of the feasibility study with field trials in Union regions containing schools in digital divide areas. In particular, it helped assess the benefits of immediate connectivity via satellite broadband for schools affected by the digital divide, with the support of regional or national authorities, in advance of the even greater benefits that the European Gigabit Society will subsequently make widely available.

Accordingly, the two-year pilot project:

- (i) identified Union regions that have a large number of schools (particularly primary schools) affected by long-term digital divide;
- (ii) applied simple, efficient and cost-effective voucher schemes to subsidise procurement of satellite broadband for access to and distribution of educational multimedia content, for example through the creation of digital libraries, as recommended in the feasibility study; and
- (iii) fostered outreach and communication, for example through workshops.

In this process the pilot project involved relevant European stakeholders in the ICT supply chain and ensured coordination with educational stakeholders (education ministries, Commission, etc.).

The pilot project could be carried out by means of a grant awarded without a call for proposals to the Network of European Regions Using Space Technologies (NEREUS), which is a dynamic platform for all European regions wishing to use space technologies to improve their public policies for the benefit of their citizens. The pilot project ran for two years (2018 and 2019) on the basis of that grant.

Remarks

The preparatory action will build on the success of the Erasmus for Young Entrepreneurs Global (EYE Global)/Achieve Leadership in Entrepreneurship and Cooperation Opportunities (ALECO) pilot project. It will contribute towards achieving objectives of the Union in the field of entrepreneurship and economic growth by supporting the creation of start-ups across the Union.

The action is a one-way mobility scheme for new entrepreneurs of the Union providing for a stay of up to three months in the US, Canada, Singapore or South Korea. The destination countries have been selected on the basis of the progress made by the current pilot, trade relevance (including the existence of Free-Trade Agreements) and the existence of advanced start-up support ecosystems.

Up to 350 candidates from Member States will be selected from the target group and given the opportunity to gain experience from successful and experienced host entrepreneurs and to interact with the host's start-up ecosystem.

The target group of participants includes profiles with the following eligibility criteria: (a) future entrepreneurs with ready-to-implement business plans and giving a binding commitment to start up a firm; (b) entrepreneurs who have started a business in the last three years, either alone or in partnership.

The Union budget will support the participating entrepreneurs by covering travel costs and subsistence costs in the chosen destinations for the duration of their stay and by funding the necessary measures to identify host entrepreneurs and promote the programme in the destination countries.

Arrangements for implementation of the action will build on existing arrangements for the EYE Global pilot project, including delegation to the relevant executive agency where applicable, with provision being made for resources to be adjusted where necessary.

Remarks

A smart destination is the result of several factors, including information and communication technologies that promote an innovative territory, cooperation and co-creation, mainly by visitors. On the basis of an understanding of this aspect, accessibility is one of the features of an intelligent tourist destination, both physically and virtual. Smartness enhances the quality of the experience at the destination for both visitors and residents.

A smart city can be seen as an urban space that takes advantage of information and communication technologies and data science to answer today's challenges, namely to become more efficient in services and infrastructure management and to deliver enhanced quality of life to the people who live or work in the city or visit the city, including support for combating climate change.

In this context, city authorities are under pressure and are going through a digital transformation process that is reflected in the proliferation of smart-cities initiatives around the world. This is part of the strategic response to the challenges and opportunities of growing urbanisation and climate change, together with the emergence of cities as a space for social and economic development framed by an urgent need for global sustainability.

A study on smart cities will cover a concept of urban intelligence and its building blocks that result from the city digital transformation process, which will lead to a paradigm shift turning the city into a platform where urban planning and management for sustainability is supported by urban analytics and real-time data.

- quantitative and qualitative data on tourism and smart destinations;
- better knowledge of the impact of tourism;
- the development and creation of a European methodology of tourism analysis based on big data applied at Union level for smart destinations;
- better research and development for solutions designed at Union level;
- scope for local testing and future applicability (implementation plan in a specific city).

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover the Agency's staff and administrative expenditure (Titles 1 and 2), and operational expenditure in connection with the work programme (Title 3).

The Agency must inform the European Parliament and the Council about transfers of appropriations between operational and administrative expenditure.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

The amounts repaid in accordance with Article 17 of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) 2019/715 of 18 December 2018 on the framework financial regulation for the bodies set up under the TFEU and Euratom Treaty and referred to in Article 70 of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2018/1046 of the European Parliament and of the Council (OJ L 122, 10.5.2019, p. 1) constitute assigned revenue in accordance with point (b) of Article 21(3) of the Financial Regulation, to be charged to Item 6 6 0 0 of the statement of revenue.

In 2020, the Agency's revenue from fees and charges and the surplus carried over from previous year will not be sufficient to cover for the expected expenditure, which implies the need of a balancing subsidy from the Commission. The Union contribution for 2020 amounts to a total of EUR 61 879 520. An amount of EUR 3 051 863, coming from the surplus, is added to the amount of EUR 58 827 657 entered in the budget.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

In recent decades, Europe has made substantial improvements in fire safety by continuously enhancing regulations and the implementation of national fire safety measures. The rate of fire fatalities in Member States fell by 65 % between 1979 and 2007, although with significant disparities across Member States. A better understanding of these differences will help identify best practices. According to statistics, fire fatalities represent about 2 % of accidental deaths in the Union (Commission study regarding Regulation (EU) No 305/2011 on the toxicity of smoke produced by construction products in fires).

The Commission's study revealed an important data gap in the coverage of statistical information on fire safety and fire casualties in buildings across Europe. In addition, the nature and format of data collected varies greatly across Member States, which hinders data comparison and thereby to effectively assessing potential best practices and successful safety approaches.

Furthermore, recent tragic events have rightly triggered renewed attention on how to improve fire safety in buildings in Europe. One example is the Directive (EU) 2018/844 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2018 amending Directive 2010/31/EU on the energy performance of buildings and Directive 2012/27/EU on energy efficiency (OJ L 156, 19.6.2018, p. 75), in which the Council and the European Parliament emphasise the importance of fire safety, in particular the renovation of existing buildings in Europe.

The planned enhanced efforts to renovate the building stock in Europe present an added opportunity to further improve fire safety, while recognising that the issue of fire safety and prevention remains relevant in a context going beyond renovations. Electrical safety is another key aspect and might be influenced by the increased deployment of infrastructure for electric vehicles in buildings as well as enhanced interactions between buildings and the grid.

This pilot project addresses the data gap in Europe in the area of fire casualties, fire safety measures and fire prevention measures.

The pilot project takes into account and make use of any initiatives by the new Fire Information Exchange Platform (FIEP), recently established by the Commission. The results of this project will also support the work of the FIEP.

The pilot project funds a Union-wide analysis and assessment of available fire safety data, identify data gaps and draw up recommendations for:

- (a) Union-level actions to support enhanced data collection and data streamlining in statistics regarding fire casualties, fire safety and fire prevention (closing data gaps)
- (b) Union-level actions to support the domestic fire safety and fire prevention efforts of Member States, including in relation to the renovation of buildings (Union-wide fire safety awareness campaign)

The pilot project could lead to subsequent preparatory action to launch Union-level actions and initiatives in support of Member States' fire safety and fire prevention efforts, including their building renovation efforts, thereby supporting safety for Europeans as well as sustainable growth and job creation in Europe.

The pilot project is implemented by the Commission with possible assistance by external contractors, research facilities and relevant stakeholders.

Remarks

As a follow-up to the existing pilot project under Item 02 03 77 07, and having regard to paragraph 40 of the European Parliament recommendation of 4 April 2017 to the Council and the Commission following the inquiry into emission measurements in the automotive sector (OJ C 298, 23.8.2018, p. 140), this preparatory action will continue to fund measures relating to third-party testing of RDE in relation to transposition of Regulation (EC) No 715/2007.

In the past, qualified third parties provided authorities at Union and national level with reliable information on the emission behaviour of vehicles. That information was rarely made available by the authorities responsible. Funding should be made available to allow them to provide reliable data from on-road emissions testing of passenger cars which is independent of the data provided by manufacturers and regulatory authorities in order to promote transparency and improve market surveillance.

Third parties will use validated test procedures as laid down in Regulation (EC) No 715/2007 and Commission Regulation (EU) 2017/1151, including the four RDE packages and the guidelines outlined in the Commission notice of 26 January 2017. They will publish the results of their measurements in order to support the development of best practice procedures and the provision of broader information to the authorities responsible and the public.

The focus of the work will be on lifetime compliance that can be assessed by testing vehicles which are outside the parameters currently regulated by either in-service conformity or market surveillance, i.e. vehicles more than five years old or which have been driven for more than 100 000 km. Such testing will provide extremely useful information on the quality of current emission control systems and will help in providing necessary information for the development of the new legislative proposal on emissions. The testing should include RDE tests and laboratory tests on older vehicles, as well as measurement of all possible pollutants, including those not currently regulated.

Independent third parties will thus contribute to better oversight of how exhaust standards are performing in practice and the extent to which the Union's objectives in terms of air quality and climate policy are being achieved. They will contribute to a broader understanding of exhaust reduction strategies with regard to acceleration, high speed, ambient temperature and other criteria. Their specific test procedure will be documented transparently and should take into account current rules on RDE and the latest research.

The pilot project will assess the challenges and opportunities for consumers and market surveillance authorities as a result of emerging technologies (such as internet-connected devices, blockchain, etc.) and digital supply chains in relation to the safety of products, including those sold online. The pilot project may finance a study on the use of new technologies such as blockchain to ensure effective market surveillance and better traceability of products.

This appropriation will be used for the Horizon 2020 — the Framework Programme for Research and Innovation which covers the 2014 to 2020 period, and for the completion of the previous research programmes (Seventh Framework Programme and preceding framework programmes) and the Competitiveness and Innovation Framework Programme (CIP).

Horizon 2020 shall play a central role in the implementation of the Europe 2020 flagship initiative 'Innovation Union' and other flagship initiatives, notably 'Resource efficient Europe', 'An industrial policy for the globalisation era', and 'A digital agenda for Europe', as well as in the development and functioning of the European Research Area. Horizon 2020 shall contribute to building an economy based on knowledge and innovation across the whole Union by leveraging sufficient additional research, development and innovation funding. It will be carried out in order to pursue the general objectives set out in Article 179 TFEU, in order to contribute to the creation of a society of knowledge, based on the European Research Area, i.e. supporting transnational cooperation at all levels throughout the Union, taking the dynamism, creativity and the excellence of European research to the limits of knowledge, strengthening human resources for research and for technology in Europe, quantitatively and qualitatively and research and innovation capacities in the whole of Europe and ensuring optimum use thereof.

In Horizon 2020, gender equality is addressed as a cross-cutting issue in order to rectify imbalances between women and men and to integrate a gender dimension in research and innovation content. Particular account will be taken of the need to step up efforts to enhance the participation at all levels, including decision making, of women in research and innovation.

Also entered against these articles and items are the costs of high-level scientific and technological meetings, conferences, workshops and seminars of European interest organised by the Commission, the funding of high-level scientific and technological analyses and evaluations carried out on behalf of the Union to investigate new areas of research suitable for Union action, inter alia, in the context of the European Research Area, and measures to monitor and disseminate the results of the programmes, including measures under previous framework programmes.

This appropriation will be used in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 1290/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 December 2013 laying down the rules for participation and dissemination in 'Horizon 2020 — the Framework Programme for Research and Innovation (2014-2020)' and repealing Regulation (EC) No 1906/2006 (OJ L 347, 20.12.2013, p. 81).

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this chapter. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e), and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

The possibility of third countries or institutes from third countries taking part in European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research is envisaged for some of these projects. Any financial contribution entered in Items 6 0 1 3 and 6 0 1 5 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from States taking part in the European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research entered in Item 6 0 1 6 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Vehicle emissions tests using PEMS or remote sensing show that some EURO 5 and EURO 6 vehicles still emit significantly more NO_x under real-world conditions compared to laboratory test results. Only since the introduction of the real driving emission (RDE) test with EURO 6d (from 1 September 2017 onwards) have discrepancies between type-approved and real-world emissions been reduced.

In order to improve the real-world environmental performance of type-approved EURO 5 and EURO 6 vehicles (before the introduction of RDE), retrofitting of vehicles is required.

On 16 April 2018, the Commission awarded the Horizon Prize on Engine Retrofit for Clean Air. The prize demonstrated the effectiveness of retrofits and the relatively low costs, and spurred the development of new technologies that can be applied to recent EURO 5 and EURO 6 diesel engines.

Further work to assess the effectiveness of retrofit options, building on the Horizon Prize on Engine Retrofit for Clean Air, is required. A broad range of technologies should be assessed on a variety of engine technologies of various EURO classes, including Gasoline Particle Filters retrofit options. Moreover, possible certification schemes for retrofit solutions should be assessed, in order to provide clear information to consumers and enhance trust in the effectiveness of retrofit options.

The pilot project has the following goals:

- to carry out a broad testing exercise, testing the effectiveness of various retrofit options to determine which technologies under which conditions are able to meet the EURO 6 emission limit values (ELV) and the relevant access requirements for low-emission zones (LEZ), using laboratory tests and the RDE test, and covering a broad range of driving conditions, engine technologies and EURO classes;
- to assess a variety of possible certification schemes for retrofit solutions.

The project builds on the work already carried out by the Commission in the context of the Horizon Prize.

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

Europe is increasingly reliant on space technologies, with the satellite sector providing new applications in both the civilian and military spheres. The risk of interference between space actors and space objects is increasing. There is a clear need for space traffic management (STM) in order to ensure that space activities (exploration and utilisation of space, space applications and services) are carried out safely and to shape the development of the legal and regulatory framework for space activities. The legal foundation is provided by international space law treaties. The Space Situational Awareness (SSA) programme could be a basis for STM.

STM could comprise the following actions:

- (1) interdisciplinary research;
- (2) opinion building;
- (3) advancing technical prerequisites and international cooperation;
- (4) preparation in United Nations Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (UNCOPUOS), International Telecommunication Union (ITU), International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) and inter-governmental forums;
- (5) raising public awareness.

Objectives of STM:

- (1) guaranteeing the prosperity and advancement of future generations by keeping spaceflight safe and space exploration and use sustainable;
- (2) dealing with the problems and promises of spaceflight by addressing all phases of traffic entering, operating in and returning from outer space;
- (3) tackling the ongoing decline in safety and sustainability by tying together existing technologies, infrastructures and legal instruments.

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

The preparatory action supports a series of preparatory activities which are essential for a successful start to the operational programme from 2021 onwards, such as:

- studies of industrial systems for the GOVSATCOM Hub, the new ground infrastructure for seamlessly connecting users and providers;
- developing and prototyping of GOVSATCOM Hub and service elements;
- establishing and demonstrating various civilian application scenarios in crisis management, civil protection, surveillance and key infrastructure management;
- other preparatory activities, including an analysis of GOVSATCOM supply and demand beyond the mid-2020s.

This is a two-year project to be led by the European Union Aviation Safety Agency in coordination with European partners to ensure the safety of civil aviation by implementing integrated security measures and jamming-proof mechanisms. The project will identify good practices for regulators and operators, and provide policy guidance in connection with security for the GNSS system and possible future initiatives in the area of aviation security.

The project will also address the issue of GNSS/PNT equipment (most notably receivers) by proposing installation and operation strategies that can be implemented for current equipment as well as strategies that can result in more resilient new and/or improved products.

Moreover, the project will assess whether the proposed strategies are applicable to non-aviation domains.

Remarks

Sudden cardiac arrests account for 20% of deaths in the Union. This figure could be significantly lower if early chest compression and early defibrillation were performed on all victims. Indeed, research shows that a first defibrillation less than three minutes after cardiac arrest results in a survival rate of 74%. Yet less than 5% of cardiac arrest victims are treated with early chest compression and defibrillation.

Nowadays, more and more information campaigns are being carried out to encourage people to learn how to perform cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and to encourage individuals, private organisations and public authorities to acquire automated external defibrillators (AEDs). However, the location of these devices is in many cases unknown to others, including the emergency services. This results in a situation where heart attack victims cannot be resuscitated in time. Hence, it is essential to develop and promote measures to map publicly accessible AEDs.

At the same time, the added value of the European global navigation satellite systems EGNOS and Galileo as regards location-based services has already been demonstrated. Those systems should also be used to save lives by locating AEDs.

A registry of all accessible AEDs should be made available to emergency call-takers, who could advise persons calling emergency services as to where the nearest defibrillator is located. Where possible, the registry should also be made directly available to members of the public.

It should however be taken into consideration that:

- some defibrillators are not accessible on a round-the-clock basis, since they might be located in places that are closed at specific times (offices, shops, schools, etc.);

02 05 77 01 (cont'd)

- in some instances, such as in large buildings, the address of the defibrillator might not be sufficient to find it quickly. Location information should therefore also include important details such as the floor level;
- information that defibrillators are in proper working order is also very important. For instance, modern defibrillators are now able to communicate battery power status.

Information provided in the registry should be made available in two ways:

- by fitting AEDs with Galileo chipsets so that their exact position can be accurately tracked, and
- by manually adding details for AEDs that are not equipped with chipsets.

The project will demonstrate the added value of Galileo in saving lives. Due to its performance in terms of accuracy and signal availability, Galileo will help reduce intervention time for victims of heart attacks, bearing in mind that every minute lost before chest compression or defibrillation lowers survival rate by 10%.

The central objective of the pilot project is therefore to:

- analyse the best possible way of developing, organising and managing a registry of publicly accessible AEDs, taking advantage of the location information provided by Galileo;
- find an alternative solution to a registry, based on Galileo.

The aim of this appropriation is to:

- enable operations of Copernicus services, tailored to the needs of users;
- contribute to ensure access to data of the observation infrastructure necessary to operate Copernicus services;
- create opportunities for increased private sector usage of information sources, thereby facilitating innovation by value-adding service providers.

This appropriation will, in particular, fund the set-up, the establishment and operation of the six services mentioned in Regulation (EU) No 377/2014 and the related activities.

This appropriation may also fund cross-cutting activities among the services or their articulation and co-ordination, as well as for the in-situ co-ordination, user uptake and training and communication.

The budget envelope will be managed either directly by the Commission services or indirectly via delegation agreements with Union agencies and international organisations, or any entity eligible under Article 62 of the Financial Regulation.

When the Commission manages the budget directly, it may entrust the Joint Research Centre (JRC) with scientific and technical support tasks. The funding of these tasks may be entered into the JRC's indirect budget under point (g) of Article 21(2) and point (d) of Article 30(1) of the Financial Regulation.

Copernicus services will facilitate access to key data required in policy formulation at Union, national, regional and local level in fields such as agriculture, forest monitoring, water management, transport, urban planning, climate change and many others. This appropriation covers mainly the implementation of delegation agreements for the Copernicus programme, pursuant to Article 58 of the Financial Regulation.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget. Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from contributions from third parties entered in Item 6 0 3 3 of the statement of revenue will give rise to the provision of additional appropriations to be entered in this item in accordance with the Financial Regulation.

Remarks

The aim of this appropriation is to:

- build an autonomous Union's Earth observation capacity by funding the space infrastructure and favouring the European industry in that regard, namely in the construction and launch of satellites;
- contribute to the availability of the observation capacity necessary to enable the Copernicus services, in particular through the operations of the ground segment of the space infrastructure;

- create opportunities for increased private sector usage of information sources, thereby facilitating innovation by value-adding service providers.

The development of a European space infrastructure has a key role in enhancing competitiveness and innovation, and requires consistent public intervention to sustain the industrial effort.

This appropriation will fund the development and construction of satellites, as well as their operation. The data and information obtained through the space infrastructure is subject to the free, full and open data policy, which will increase their availability and thereby boost the downstream market.

To supplement the data needed by users, this appropriation may also fund the acquisition of data from third parties and the access to contributing mission from Member States, as well as the dedicated dissemination platform (core ground segment) which will serve, in priority the operational services funded by Article 02 06 01.

The budget envelope will be managed either directly by the Commission services or indirectly via delegation agreements with Union agencies and international organisations, or any entity eligible under Article 58 of the Financial Regulation.

When the Commission manages the budget directly, it may entrust the Joint Research Centre (JRC) with scientific and technical support tasks. The funding of these tasks may be entered into the JRC's indirect budget under point (g) of Article 21(2) and point (d) of Article 30(1) of the Financial Regulation.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this article. By way of information, those amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from contributions from third parties entered in Item 6 0 3 3 of the statement of revenue will give rise to the provision of additional appropriations to be entered in this item in accordance with the Financial Regulation.

Remarks

The objective of the European Defence Industrial Development Programme (EDIDP) is to support the development of actions and technologies in the field of defence. Union support will be granted only for cooperative projects involving at least three undertakings from at least two Member States. The projects will be selected in accordance with the comitology procedure and will be fully consistent with the Union capability priorities defined by Member States. As regards the development of prototypes, the Union financing will only support a proportion of total costs, whilst remaining costs will normally be covered by Member States. For other actions or technologies, the Union financing can cover up to total costs. The definitive proportion of costs covered by the Union budget was decided in the work programme adopted by the Commission on 19 March 2019. The EDIDP applies only for two years: 2019 and 2020, as regards commitment appropriations.

Remarks

In order to ensure that the rules on competition concerning agreements, decisions by associations of undertakings and concerted practices (Article 101 TFEU), abuses of a dominant position (Article 102 TFEU), aids granted by States (Articles 107 and 108 TFEU) and concentrations between undertakings (Regulation (EC) No 139/2004) are enforced, the Commission is empowered to take decisions, to conduct investigations and to impose penalties or order recovery.

The Commission’s decisions are subject to review by the Court of Justice of the European Union in accordance with the TFEU.

As a prudential measure, it is appropriate to take into account the possibility of budgetary implications stemming from rulings of the Court of Justice of the European Union.

This appropriation is intended to cover any expenditure arising from damages awarded by the Court of Justice of the European Union to claimants and resulting from legal proceedings against the Commission's decisions in the field of competition.

Since a reasonable estimate of the financial impact on the general budget cannot be established beforehand, a token entry (“p.m.”) appears in this article. If necessary, the Commission will propose to make available the appropriations related to actual needs by means of transfers or through a draft amending budget.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover European Social Fund (ESF) support under the Investment for growth and jobs goal in less developed regions in the 2014-2020 programming period. The catching-up process for these economically and socially lagging regions requires long-term sustained efforts. This category of regions concerns those regions whose GDP per capita is less than 75 % of the average GDP of the EU-27.

Promotion of equality between women and men horizontally and through specific actions should be part of the support provided by the ESF, in order to improve the employability of women and their participation in the labour market. Special attention should be paid to non-discrimination in the labour market, combating the feminisation of poverty, access to education and affordable childcare services.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover European Social Fund (ESF) support under the Investment for growth and jobs goal in the 2014-2020 programming period in a new category of region ('transition regions') that replaces the 2007-2013 phasing-out and phasing-in system. This category of regions includes all regions with a GDP per capita between 75 and 90 % of the average GDP of the EU-27.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover European Social Fund (ESF) support under the Investment for growth and jobs goal in more developed regions in the 2014-2020 programming period. While interventions in the less developed regions will remain the priority for cohesion policy, this appropriation is thus intended to cover important challenges that concern all Member States such as global competition in the knowledge-based economy, the shift towards the low-carbon economy and social polarisation exacerbated by the current economic climate. This category of regions concerns those regions whose GDP per capita is above 90 % of the average GDP of the EU-27.

Gender mainstreaming and gender equality specific actions should be part of the support provided by the ESF, in order to improve the employability of women and their participation in the labour market. This appropriation is intended to finance the creation of decent jobs.

While promoting gender equality, special attention should be paid to the situation of young women who can face gender-specific obstacles to get a good quality offer of employment, continued education, an apprenticeship or a traineeship.

The general objective of the European Union programme for Employment and Social Innovation (EaSI) is to contribute to the Europe 2020 strategy and the related headline targets for employment, education and poverty by providing financial support for the Union's objectives.

To achieve the general objectives of EaSI in terms of promoting a high level of employment, guaranteeing adequate social protection, combating social exclusion and poverty, improving working conditions and protecting workers' safety and health, the specific objectives of the Progress axis are to:

- develop and disseminate high-quality comparative analytical knowledge in order to ensure that Union employment and social policy and working conditions and occupational health and safety legislation are based on sound evidence and are relevant to needs, challenges and conditions in the individual Member States and the other participating countries,
- facilitate effective and inclusive information-sharing, mutual learning and dialogue on Union employment and social policy and working conditions and occupational health and safety legislation at Union, national and international level in order to assist the Member States and the other participating countries in developing their policies and in implementing Union law,
- provide policymakers with financial support to promote social and labour market policy reforms, build up the main actors' capacity to design and implement social experimentation, and make the relevant knowledge and expertise accessible,
- provide Union and national organisations with financial support to develop, promote and support the implementation of Union employment and social policy and working conditions and occupational health and safety legislation,
- raise awareness, exchange good practice, disseminate information and promote the debate on the key challenges and policy issues in relation to working conditions, gender equality, occupational health and safety and the reconciliation of work and family life and the ageing society, including among social partners,
- encourage creation of decent jobs in terms of stable employment and social rights, promoting acceptable employment for young people and combatting poverty by promoting social convergence.

In addition support could be provided to actions related to the implementation of the common provisions of EaSI such as monitoring, evaluation, dissemination of results and communication. Article 16 of Regulation (EU) No 1296/2013 describes the types of actions which may be financed.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this item. By way of information, these amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

Remarks

The general objective of the European Union programme for Employment and Social Innovation (EaSI) is to contribute to the Europe 2020 strategy and the related headline targets for employment, education and poverty by providing financial support for the Union's objectives.

The EaSI is structured around three complementarity axes: Progress, EURES and Microfinance and Social Entrepreneurship.

To achieve the general objectives of EaSI, in particular to promote workers' geographical mobility and boost employment opportunities by developing Union labour markets that are open and accessible to all, the specific objectives of the EURES axis are to:

- ensure that job vacancies and applications, and any related information as well as working conditions and rights are transparent for the potential applicants and the employers; this shall be achieved through their exchange and dissemination at transnational, interregional and cross-border level using standard interoperability forms,
- help ensure that European-level job vacancies and mobility options are advertised in parallel to national job vacancies and applications and not only after local or national options are exhausted,
- develop services for the recruitment and placing of workers in employment through the clearance of job vacancies and applications at European level; this shall cover all phases of placement, ranging from pre-recruitment preparation to post-placement assistance, including language skill development options, with a view to the applicant's successful integration into the labour market; such services shall include targeted mobility schemes to fill job vacancies where labour market shortcomings have been identified or help particular groups of workers such as young people,
- provide assistance for national and cross-border support activities organised by EURES partners,

- initial and further training of EURES advisers in the Member States,
- contacts between EURES advisers and cooperation between government employment services, including those of candidate countries,
- promotion of EURES among firms and the general public,
- development of special structures for cooperation and services in border regions pursuant to point (b) of Article 17(1) of Regulation (EEC) No 1612/68,
- measures to help remove mobility obstacles, particularly in the field of work-related social security.

This programme should also facilitate the matching and placement of apprentices and trainees as a critical element in helping the transition of young people from school to work, as already begun under the preparatory action 'Your first EURES job' and complemented by the Youth Employment Initiative. Companies, particularly small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), will be encouraged to recruit more young people, including by financial support.

Target groups are:

- young people up to 30 years of age, regardless of their qualifications and work experience, as the scheme is not exclusively tailored for labour market entrants,
- all legally established businesses, particularly SMEs, to assist with reducing the costs of international hiring that affect mostly smaller companies.

Eligible jobs under this part of the programme will offer young people apprenticeships, a first work experience or specialised jobs. The scheme will not support situations of job substitution or precarious employment, or in any circumstances be contrary to national labour law.

To be eligible for funding, jobs have also to comply with the following criteria:

- be located in a EURES member country other than the country of origin of the young job-seeker (transnational vacancies),
- ensure a work placement for a minimum contractual period of 6 months.

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this item. Remarks

The report 'Working for a Brighter Future - Global Commission on the Future of Work' (ILO, 2019) [1] calls for the creation of a Universal Labour Guarantee to uphold the fundamental rights of all workers, regardless of the nature of their employment relationship, including a 'living wage', an upper limit on working hours and guaranteed safety and health at work.

The existence of a national minimum wage, established through collective bargaining and agreements, is central to the establishment of the Universal Labour Guarantee, helping to improve workers' conditions, promote societal development and overturn policies that, in recent years, have been leading to precariousness, lower wages and increased inequality.

In order to promote national minimum wage schemes more effectively as a tool for economic and social development, Eurofound should examine the different realities in the Member States, as well as the impact of this instrument on employment rates, workers' qualifications, precariousness levels, the development of Member States and other factors considered relevant.

The pilot project will be implemented in such a way that it does not overlap with the existing or ongoing studies that will be used for preparation of the impact assessment for the forthcoming initiative on minimum wages. On the basis of the information available, the pilot project will bring added value and will complement existing work under the initiative by, for example, mapping developments in the minimum wage setting institutions.

[1] The recommendations are intended to strengthen and revitalise labour institutions. From employment regulations and contracts to collective bargaining and labour inspection systems, these institutions are the cornerstone of just societies, paving the way towards formalisation, reducing labour poverty and guaranteeing a future of work with dignity, economic security and equality. Under a Universal Labour Guarantee, the fundamental rights of all workers, regardless of their contractual agreement or employment status, must be respected, ensuring them 'an adequate living wage' (ILO Constitution, 1919), limits on their working hours and safe and healthy workplaces. Collective agreements or laws and regulations may raise the basic level of protection. This proposal also allows for the recognition of occupational safety and health as fundamental principles and rights at the workplace.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover the European Globalisation Adjustment Fund (EGF) so as to enable the Union to demonstrate solidarity towards, and to support workers made redundant and self-employed persons whose activity has ceased as a result of major structural changes in world patterns due to globalisation, as a result of the continuation of the global financial and economic crisis addressed in Regulation (EU) No 1309/2013, or as a result of a new global financial and economic crisis and to provide financial support for their rapid reintegration into sustainable employment.

The actions undertaken by the EGF should be complementary to those of the European Social Fund and there must be no double funding from these instruments. EGF-supported actions or measures should aim to ensure that the largest possible number of beneficiaries participating in these actions find sustainable employment as soon as possible before the final report is due.

The rules for entering the appropriations in this reserve and for mobilising the EGF are laid down in point 13 of the Interinstitutional Agreement of 2 December 2013 between the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission on budgetary discipline, on cooperation in budgetary matters and on sound financial management (OJ C 373, 20.12.2013, p. 1).

Assigned revenue received under Item 6 6 0 0 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations under this article in accordance with Article 22(1) of the Financial Regulation.

- providing support for economic, social and territorial development, with a view to achieving smart, sustainable and inclusive growth,
- strengthening the ability of the beneficiaries listed in Annex I to Regulation (EU) No 231/2014 at all levels to fulfil the obligations stemming from Union membership in the area of economic, social and territorial development by supporting progressive alignment with and adoption, implementation and enforcement of the Union acquis, including preparation for management of Union Structural Funds, the Cohesion Fund and the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development.

Any income from additional financial contributions from Member States and contributions from third countries or from bodies other than those set up under the TFEU or the Euratom Treaty to certain external aid actions or programmes financed by the Union and managed by the Commission, may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations. Remarks

The Fund for European Aid to the Most Deprived (FEAD) replaces the European Union's Food Distribution Programme for the Most Deprived Persons of the Community, which was discontinued at the end of 2013.

To ensure continuity between the two programmes, expenditure shall be eligible for a support from a FEAD operational programme if it is incurred by a beneficiary and paid between 1 December 2013 and 31 December 2023.

The FEAD shall promote social cohesion, enhance social inclusion and therefore ultimately contribute to the objective of eradicating poverty in the Union by contributing to achieving the poverty reduction target of at least 20 million of the number of persons at risk of poverty and social exclusion in accordance with the Europe 2020 strategy, whilst complementing the Structural Funds. Since the proportion of women at risk of poverty or social exclusion is higher than is the case for men, FEAD will take a gender-sensitive approach by adapting measures to the groups actually at risk, including women and the elderly, migrants, and minorities (including marginalised communities such as the Roma). FEAD shall contribute to achieving the specific objective of alleviating and eradicating the worst forms of poverty, by providing non-financial assistance to the most deprived persons by food and/or basic material assistance, and social inclusion activities aiming at the social integration of the most deprived persons.

This objective and the results of the implementation of the FEAD shall be qualitatively and quantitatively assessed.

The FEAD shall complement and shall not replace or reduce sustainable national poverty eradication and social inclusion policies, which remain the responsibility of Member States.

The resources for the FEAD available for budgetary commitment for the 2014-2020 period shall be EUR 3 395 684 880 in 2011 prices.

Poverty is a multidimensional problem and tackling it should become a primary goal. Greater emphasis needs to be placed on poverty in all strategies, as poverty is a complex problem with many causes. Most importantly, it also has a great impact not only on the present but also on the future. People who experience poverty, especially children, are at greater risk of not succeeding in later life and of being excluded from society.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

This preparatory action prepares implementation of the common agricultural policy (CAP) post-2020 and complements the previous Smart Eco Social Villages pilot project (2016) and the preparatory action ‘Smart rural areas in the 21st century’ (2018). It helps inform and improve the development and implementation of CAP strategic plans for which the notion of ‘Smart Villages’ is included in a result indicator. Complementing the pilot project on Smart Eco-Social Villages and the preparatory action ‘Smart rural areas in the 21st century’, this preparatory action provides knowledge, know-how and a framework methodology for developing support schemes for Smart Villages in a wider range of socio-economic contexts. It uses the lessons learned and knowledge obtained from initiatives provided for in the EU Action for Smart Villages (https://ec.europa.eu/agriculture/sites/agriculture/files/rural-development-2014-2020/looking-ahead/rur-dev-small-villages_en.pdf). As the new CAP is meant to increase subsidiarity, such work is a fundamental prerequisite for ensuring appropriate implementation of this aspect of rural development. The goal of the preparatory action is to implement successful practices in a number of Member States, including in the field of ICT and online methods such as the setting up of digital hubs and other good examples. It also sets up a network of sample villages (and people dealing with smart villages) in order to create a coherent methodological framework for Union support for Smart Villages. This concept is closely linked to the Digital Single Market, digital platforms, urban-rural links, the sharing and collaborative economy and the bioeconomy (innovation, precision farming, environmental management, renewable energies, supply chain, services, local food), improving quality of life, education and employment, as well as taking account of the importance of women and young people. It could also help inform implementation of other European Structural and Investment Funds, in particular under the policy objective for local initiatives.

These goals are fully in line with the Cork Declaration 2.0, as well as the Bled declaration, which recognize the importance of enabling access to appropriate technologies and solutions in order to deliver economic, social and environmental benefits.

The action focuses on developing a method to promote growth and jobs in rural areas through concrete actions on the basis of selected villages with common features — infrastructure, various resources, services, and access to markets. It develops methods for offering solutions in the fields of:

- the Digital Single Market,
- urban-rural links,
- the bioeconomy and circular economy (innovation, precision farming, environmental management, local renewable energies, supply chain, services, local food),
- sharing and collaborative economy (e.g. new rural mobility solutions such as car sharing and ride sharing; new paradigms in tourism; sharing and exchange of agricultural machinery and services),
- technology (e.g. the Internet of Things, big data collection, drones, electric vehicles, and next-generation mobile broadband connections),
- social aspects,
- new full-time and part-time jobs, which will expand in the types of economy referred to.

This preparatory action is well documented through online platforms in order to disseminate the results. As an important outcome, it provides lighthouse examples that will ensure better and more effective programming of Union funds in rural areas.

Legal basis

Remarks

While Union legislation has been developed over the years to ensure sustainable use of pesticides, there are still many gaps in its implementation at Member State level and farmers say that replacing pesticides is difficult and costly or that alternatives do not exist.

Building on the findings of the recent Commission evaluation of Directive 2009/128/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 October 2009 establishing a framework for Community action to achieve the sustainable use of pesticides (OJ L 309, 24.11.2009, p. 71) (COM(2017) 587 final), the study will assess integrated pest management (IPM) measures taken in each of the Member States, including farmland managed under IPM, and possibly classify them by type of crops. It will collect evidence of pesticide use reduction and gather information on the practices applied. The project will develop a toolbox to enable farmers and farmers' advisers to achieve the policy aim of significantly reducing pesticide dependency. The toolbox should describe, for a large number of crops, the protocols to be applied for IPM, including the alternatives to chemical pesticides. The study will identify and propose effective approaches, beginning with the modification of farming practices, using rotation wherever possible, followed by the introduction, where appropriate, of resilient and resistant crop varieties and the use of beneficial insects and alternative pesticides, etc. Alternatives should be tailored to local conditions.

The project, costing an estimated EUR 1 500 000 over two years, will take into account inter alia the experiences gained from work done by the International Organisation for Biological Control (IOBC), the International Biocontrol Manufacturer Association (IBMA) and organisations working with farmers on different agronomic approaches and IPM.

The study will contain an analysis of how well common agricultural policy (CAP) tools are promoting IPM among farmers. It will also propose how to scale up practices throughout Europe, with the help of the post-2020 CAP instruments (e.g. farm advisory services informing farmers how to apply IPM) and the CAP green architecture to encourage farmers to apply the principles of IPM. IPM.

The study will also investigate the obstacles (real or perceived) seen by farmers and experts that limit dissemination and uptake of IPM in the field.

In accordance with Article 14 of Directive 2009/128/EC, Member States are to take all necessary measures to promote low pesticide-input pest management, giving wherever possible priority to non-chemical methods, so that professional users of pesticides switch to practices and products with the lowest risk to human health and the environment among those available for the same pest problem.

The Commission's evaluation of Directive 2009/128/EC states that Integrated Pest Management is a cornerstone of the Directive, and it is therefore of particular concern that Member States have not yet set clear targets and ensured their implementation, including for the more widespread use of land management techniques such as crop rotation.

It also notes that Member States need to develop clearly defined criteria so that they can assess systematically whether the eight principles of IPM are implemented, and take appropriate enforcement measures if this is not the case. Such tools could confirm that the intended outcome of IPM as specified in the Directive, a reduction of the dependency on pesticide use, is being achieved.

Both the Agriculture Council (on 6 November 2017) and the European Parliament (on 13 November 2017) have discussed the findings in the Commission's report and confirmed their commitment to ensuring deeper and meaningful implementation in the future.

This project will help farmers and Member States to begin applying IPM consistently, and reduce farmers' dependence on pesticides.

As stated by the Commission, a budget of at least EUR 1 500 000 is necessary in order to implement the project successfully. The pilot project will generate results that can be incorporated into the research project 'Stepping up integrated pest management' and can contribute to gathering information on how IPM is currently applied on the ground, and will be useful for Member States in designing their CAP plans.

This ongoing pilot project, with a view to becoming a preparatory action, has been successfully reassessed and its budget increased. The budget increase was requested by the Commission and stakeholders in order to ensure optimum implementation. The increase makes up for the budget cuts made in connection with the compromise package in 2018 on pilot projects and preparatory actions

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

This pilot project will establish an operational programme that will create added value and be adapted to livestock sectors, particularly the milk and beef sectors, in order to deal with issues concerning local and family agriculture.

As with existing operational programmes in the fruit and vegetable sector, it aims to improve the structuring, competitiveness and resilience of these sectors by guaranteeing farmers a fair, stable income irrespective of the distribution of production, rising production costs and price fluctuations.

The pilot project is needed in order to counter the alarming reduction in the number of farms being handed on, which is putting local and family agriculture in jeopardy. Such small-scale farms have low profitability, which makes banks unwilling to support projects for handing on farms because of a lack of financial viability.

The pilot project has three main objectives:

Objective 1 — Structuring of the sector:

- increasing producers' level of organisation and strengthening their position in the interprofessional chain by financing projects to improve production planning,
- improving the quality, commercial exploitation and promotion of products through structured dialogue with those downstream of the sector,
- supporting the modernisation of businesses, fast product adaptation, innovation in production methods and crisis prevention,
- supporting environmental protection measures and environmentally-friendly production methods (organic farming).

Objective 2 — Income stabilisation

Establishing a creative sectoral approach through the introduction of two tools available under the common agricultural policy:

- a contractual mechanism for sharing added value, and
- the development of a financial stabilisation instrument for producer income.

The aim is to enable producers to overcome price volatility and be assured a fair, stable income which will boost the sustainability of their undertakings.

Objective 3 — Creation of a fund for future financing

Some of the added value created at sector level can be reinvested — alongside the public support received — in establishing an innovative fund to guarantee the long-term financing necessary for setting up or handing on farms.

— The approach adopted

The approach taken by the pilot project is to improve coherence between various European measures by establishing a sectoral operational programme. It follows the approach of more result-orientated public policies.

The project will strengthen the cohesion between the upstream and downstream parts of the sector and promote new synergies through structured dialogue between all components of the sector by enhancing production value by means of a list of specifications for optimising added value when products are placed on the market, the management of price volatility and guaranteeing supplies through generational renewal.

The sustainability of farms will no longer rely only on individual producers but on a common approach that will help create positive market momentum. The pilot project will therefore generate momentum, beyond the milk and meat sectors, which can be transferred to other local sectors as part of a region's collective economic development strategy.

It will act as a driver for regional development and for meeting challenges relating to the economy (breeder revenues and increased value of local products), society (job creation, making family farms sustainable), the environment (production conditions), land-use planning (handing on farms, territorial development) and tourism (short supply chains).

— Assessment

An assessment will be carried out after two years to determine:

- (1) the added value and effectiveness of the sectoral operational programme in terms of the objectives;
- (2) the interprofessional dynamics at work and their possible extension to other agri-food sectors in the area;
- (3) the benefit of experience gained in coordinating CAP tools within an operational programme and the added value derived by small family farms from land facing similar problems;
- (4) the relevance of sustaining the pilot project by means of a preparatory action with the aim of adopting a similar tool under the CAP.

Remarks

These remarks are applicable to all the budget lines in this chapter.

This appropriation is used for the Horizon 2020 — the framework programme for research and innovation which covers the 2014 to 2020 period.

Horizon 2020 shall play a central role in the implementation of the Europe 2020 flagship initiative 'Innovation Union' and other flagship initiatives, notably 'Resource-efficient Europe', 'An industrial policy for the globalisation era', and 'A digital agenda for Europe', as well as in the development and functioning of the European Research Area (ERA). Horizon 2020 shall contribute to building an economy based on knowledge and innovation across the whole Union by leveraging sufficient additional research, development and innovation funding.

It is carried out in order to pursue the general objectives set out in Article 179 of the TFEU, in order to contribute to the creation of a society of knowledge, based on the ERA, i.e. supporting transnational cooperation at all levels throughout the Union, taking the dynamism, creativity and the excellence of European research to the limits of knowledge, strengthening human resources for research and for technology in Europe, quantitatively and qualitatively and research and innovation capacities in the whole of Europe and ensuring optimum use thereof.

In Horizon 2020, gender equality is addressed as a cross-cutting issue in order to rectify imbalances between women and men and to integrate a gender dimension in research and innovation content. Particular account is taken of the need to step up efforts to enhance the participation at all levels, including decision making, of women in research and innovation.

CHAPTER 05 09 — HORIZON 2020 — RESEARCH AND INNOVATION RELATED TO AGRICULTURE (cont'd)

Also entered against these articles and items are the costs of high-level scientific and technological meetings, conferences, workshops and seminars of European interest organised by the Commission, the funding of high-level scientific and technological analyses and evaluations carried out on behalf of the Union to investigate new areas of research suitable for Union action, inter alia, in the context of the ERA, and measures to monitor and disseminate the results of the programmes, including measures under previous framework programmes.

This appropriation is used in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 1290/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 December 2013 laying down the rules for participation and dissemination in 'Horizon 2020 — the framework programme for research and innovation (2014-2020)' and repealing Regulation (EC) No 1906/2006 (OJ L 347, 20.12.2013, p. 81).

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this chapter. By way of information, these amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget.

The possibility of third countries or institutes from third countries taking part in European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research is envisaged for some of these projects. Any financial contribution entered in Items 6 0 1 3 and 6 0 1 5 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from States taking part in European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research entered in Item 6 0 1 6 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from the contributions by outside bodies to Union activities entered in Item 6 0 3 3 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Additional appropriations are provided under Item 05 09 50 01.

Administrative appropriations of this chapter are provided under Article 05 01 05.

05 09 03 Societal challenges*Remarks*

This priority of Horizon 2020 responds directly to the policy priorities and societal challenges identified in the Europe 2020 strategy. Those activities are implemented using a challenge-based approach which brings together resources and knowledge across different fields, technologies and disciplines. The activities cover the full cycle from research to market, with a new focus on innovation-related activities such as piloting, demonstration, test beds, support for public procurement, design, end-user driven innovation, social innovation and market take-up of innovations. The activities support directly the corresponding sectoral policy competences at Union level.

Remarks

This activity focuses on developing more sustainable and productive agriculture and forestry systems, while at the same time developing services, concepts and policies for thriving rural livelihoods. In addition, emphasis is placed on healthy and safe foods for all as well as competitive food processing methods that use fewer resources and produce fewer by-products. In parallel, efforts are made on sustainably exploiting aquatic living resources (e.g. sustainable and environmentally friendly fisheries). Low carbon, resource-efficient, sustainable and competitive European bio-based industries are also promoted.

This appropriation is used for agriculture-related research and innovation in order to secure sufficient supplies of safe and high-quality food and other bio-based products; research projects with direct participation by primary producers are prioritised in order to maximise the practical applicability of results.

Revenues and repayment from financial instruments paid back to the Commission and entered in Items 6 4 1 0 and 6 4 1 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21(5) of the Financial Regulation.

Remarks

The objective of 'Removing bottlenecks and bridging missing links' refers to point (a) of Article 4(2) of Regulation (EU) No 1316/2013. This objective will be implemented through calls for proposals under the annual and multiannual work programmes constituting financing decisions within the meaning of Article 110 of the Financial Regulation, of the core network transport projects and Union transport corridors, which are defined in the annexes to CEF and TEN-T guidelines. The implementation of this objective is expected to be measured through new and improved cross-border connections and removed bottlenecks which have benefitted from CEF.

Part of this appropriation will be used to support the Trans-European EuroVelo Cycling Network.

Re-establishing regional cross-border rail connections that are abandoned or dismantled (missing links if eligible for CEF funding) will get particular support.

Assigned revenue received may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations under this item, in accordance with Article 22(1) of the Financial Regulation.

The objective of 'Ensuring sustainable and efficient transport in the long run' refers to point (b) of Article 4(2) of Regulation (EU) No 1316/2013. This objective will be implemented through calls for proposals under the annual and multiannual work programmes constituting the financing decisions within the meaning of Article 110 of the Financial Regulation.

In the 2014-2020 period, a follow-up of the Marco Polo programme will be implemented by the CEF within the framework of the revised TEN-T guidelines. In accordance with Article 32 of Regulation (EU) No 1315/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 December 2013 on Union guidelines for the development of the trans-European transport network and repealing Decision No 661/2010/EU (OJ L 348, 20.12.2013, p. 1), it will introduce a new approach in support of freight transport services in the Union. It is important to optimise the use of transport infrastructure by shifting cargo to more sustainable modes, including inland waterways, and increase the efficiency of multimodal services. Digital CARGO-POOLING initiatives, for avoiding or reducing empty truck driving, as well as shared mobility projects in rural and urban areas, for encouraging people to be less dependent on private car ownership, should be supported.

TITLE 06 — MOBILITY AND TRANSPORT

This objective of 'Creating an environment more conducive to private investment for transport infrastructure projects' aims to implement the projects of common interest through financial instruments, based on an ex ante assessment as required by Article 224 of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No 1268/2012 of 29 October 2012 on the rules of application of Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 966/2012 of the European Parliament and of the Council on the financial rules applicable to the general budget of the Union (OJ L 362, 31.12.2012, p. 1). In accordance with Article 21(4) of Regulation (EU) No 1316/2013, from 10 % to 20 % of the financial envelope for CEF transport will be available for innovative financing instruments such as the Project Bonds Instrument, the Loan Guarantee Instrument and other instruments such as joint ventures and the equity instruments to combine public and private financial resources to accelerate infrastructure investments in Europe. The financial instruments are intended to facilitate access to private financing and thus to accelerate or to make possible financing of the TEN-T projects eligible under the TEN-T guidelines and Regulation (EU) No 1316/2013. The financial instruments are intended to be established as 'debt' or 'equity' frameworks and they should address specific market failures and provide appropriate financing solutions. They are intended to be implemented as direct management by the entrusted entities, within the meaning of the Financial Regulation or jointly with the entrusted entities. The entrusted entities must be accredited to provide guarantees to the Commission on the protection of the Union financial interests in accordance with the requirements of the Financial Regulation.

Any repayment from financial instruments pursuant to Article 209(3) of the Financial Regulation, including capital repayments, guarantees released and repayment of the principal of loans, paid back to the Commission and entered in Item 6 4 1 1 of the statement of revenues may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with point (f) of Article 21(3) of the Financial Regulation.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover expenditure on studies and meetings of experts directly linked to the achievement of the objective of the programme or measures coming under this item, and any other expenditure on technical and administrative assistance not involving public authority tasks outsourced by the Commission under ad hoc service contracts.

It is intended to cover expenditure on information and communication, conferences and events promoting activities in the transport sector as well as social media activities, audio-visual products, development of website and other IT tools, consultancy activities, electronic and paper publications directly linked to the achievement of the objective of transport policy, including its social dimension, as well as safety and protection of transport users.

This appropriation is also intended to cover expenditure incurred by the Commission for collecting and processing information of all kinds needed for the analysis, definition, promotion, monitoring, evaluation and implementation of the Union's common transport policy, for all transport modes (road, rail, air, sea and inland waterways) and for all transport sectors (transport safety, internal market of transport with its implementation rules, optimisation of transport network, multimodality, logistics, passengers' rights and protection in all transport modes, the use of alternative fuels in all transport modes, clean vehicles procurement and urban mobility, social and gender aspects including employment data, as well as for all other sectors related to transport). The main endorsed actions and objectives are intended to support the Union's common transport policy, including extension to third countries, technical assistance for all transport modes and sectors, specific training, definition of rules of transport safety, simplification of administrative procedures, the use of ICT technologies, the contribution to the standardisation process, and promotion of the common transport policy including establishment and implementation of trans-European network orientation endorsed by the TFEU as well as strengthening passengers' rights and protection in all transport modes and to improve the application and enforcement of existing Regulations on passenger rights, in particular through awareness-raising activities about the content of those Regulations, targeted at both the transport industry and the travelling public.

Maritime transport and logistics

This appropriation is intended to cover the development and implementation of the Union's maritime transport strategy, in line with the objectives defined in the White Paper on the future of transport.

COMMISSION

This includes analyses of economic and technological developments, support of international negotiations, developing and interpreting cabotage rules, following complaints and infringements procedures, development and implementation of actions to promote and support competitive and efficient short sea shipping, revision of Directive 2010/65/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 October 2010 on reporting formalities for ships arriving in and/or departing from ports of the Member States and repealing Directive 2002/6/EC (OJ L 283, 29.10.2010, p. 1) and administrative simplification and make use of ICT systems in the waterborne and logistic sector, as well as support of the sustainable development of the shipping sector.

This appropriation is intended to cover the development and implementation of a Union strategy for freight transport logistics, including the digital transport and logistics agenda, providing a framework and actions for interoperable multimodal transport information and management systems and related standardisation issues, administrative (European) single window(s) for multimodal transport, a single transport document and a multimodal liability regime.

This appropriation is also intended to cover the development of a reference framework on carbon footprint measurement, certification and reduction, modal shift policy including the outstanding actions under the former Marco Polo programme, Motorways of the Sea, multimodal and combined transport, digitalisation of the transport and logistics sector and supporting standardisation and harmonisation of equipment.

Maritime safety

This appropriation is intended to cover monitoring, evaluation and revision (impact assessment) of Union legislation on maritime safety, protecting the maritime environment and promoting qualifications and working conditions for seafarers.

Passenger rights

This appropriation is intended to cover expenditure on monitoring, evaluation, revision and raising awareness actions of Union legislation on passenger rights.

In connection with Regulation (EC) No 261/2004, the Commission needs to develop additional measures to make enforcement of that Regulation more efficient. The implementation of Regulation (EC) No 1107/2006 and Council Regulation (EC) No 2027/97 of 9 October 1997 on air carrier liability in the event of accidents (OJ L 285, 17.10.1997, p. 1) needs also to be ensured.

The implementation of Regulation (EC) No 1371/2007 requires specific implementation action to ensure its correct application and enforcement in the Member States due to the complex interaction of regional, national and international (COTIF) administrative structures involved in the implementation.

The implementation of Regulation (EU) No 1177/2010 requires specific implementation actions to ensure its correct application and enforcement in the Member States and the compliance by Member States with their legal reporting obligations towards the Commission.

The implementation of Regulation (EU) No 181/2011 requires specific implementation actions in order to ensure its correct application and enforcement in the Member States and the compliance by Member States with their legal reporting obligations towards the Commission.

As an important implementation support measure the Commission conducts targeted actions covering some or all Member States to raise public awareness on passenger rights. Nearly one third of Union citizens are aware of their rights and obligations when buying a ticket to travel (31 %), although 59 % are said to be unaware of them (Eurobarometer on passenger rights 2014).

These actions and objectives could be supported at different levels (local, regional, national, European and international), for all transport modes and sectors and related to transport, as well as in technical, technological, regulatory, informative, environmental, climatic and political fields and for sustainable development.

Air transport has long been one of the sectors in which the consumer authorities receive most complaints in the Union. The increase in the number of commercial transactions performed electronically (using the internet or a mobile telephone) has merely resulted in more breaches of Union consumer legislation.

One of the main complaints by Union consumers is that there are no effective means of redress at airports themselves, particularly when disputes arise as a result of failure on the part of airlines and other service providers to meet their obligations. Union consumers and air transport authorities therefore need to work together to secure an immediate improvement in passenger support and information facilities at airports and, at the same time, step up co-regulation in the sector.

Road safety

The Commission communication of 20 July 2010 entitled 'Towards a European road safety area: policy orientations on road safety 2011-2020' (COM(2010) 389 final) presents seven objectives: road user education, enforcement of traffic rules, safe infrastructure, safe vehicles, use of modern technology, post-injury emergency responses and a special focus on vulnerable road users. Work continues on the Commission's proposal, on the regular update of the Union law on driving licences, and on the revision of the rules on qualification and training for professional drivers, on the follow-up to the Directives 2014/45/EU, 2014/46/EU and 2014/47/EU, as well as towards a strategy on serious road traffic injuries. The Commission's road safety work also includes the management of the European Road Safety Charter, the management of rules relating to the transport of dangerous goods, the maintenance of a European database on road accidents — Community Road Accident Database (CARE), the follow-up on the infrastructure management and tunnel safety directives and on various aspects of vulnerable road user safety. The implementation of the policy orientations 2011-2020 also requires specific implementation action for the exchange of good practices, road safety campaigns, calls for proposals and development of the road safety observatory; as well as the evaluations of options for making the road safety in the Union work more effectively and efficiently in the future.

This appropriation is also intended to cover expenditure on communication activities and on public events such as the annual European Road Safety Day and similar awareness-raising and citizen interaction initiatives.

It is also intended to establish efficient cross-border cooperation between Member States concerning the enforcement of road safety related traffic offences.

Land transport

The main activities in the land transport area concern the implementation and review of existing policies, enhancing sectoral cooperation and the planning of new initiatives. Among others, this includes activities in areas such as infrastructure charging, market access, social rules (including their enforcement), technical rules, safety rules and international aspects (land transport relations with third countries and international organisations dealing with land transport issues). All these activities require close cooperation with stakeholders.

COMMISSION

CHAPTER 06 02 — EUROPEAN TRANSPORT POLICY (cont'd)06 02 05 (cont'd)Rail market

The full implementation of the Directive 2012/34/EU and Regulation (EU) No 913/2010 are key priorities to encourage competitiveness of railways. The legislation aims to open rail markets, improve the interoperability and safety of rail services and thus encourage the development of integrated rail system leading to a Single European Rail Area. In addition, the Commission services are reinforcing international transport cooperation on railway policy.

Encouraging sectoral cooperation is essential for effective implementation of Union rail legislation. Directive 2012/34/EU provides for the creation of the European Network of Rail Regulatory Bodies (ENRRB) and of the European Network of Infrastructure Managers (Platform of Rail Infrastructure Managers in Europe, PRIME). Informal cooperation frameworks have been established for railway undertakings (RUs) to share experience at Union level (RU Dialogue) and Ministries (Rail Directors Meetings). Equally, cooperation with third countries (the Gulf countries, China, Iran, Japan, Brazil, etc.) is important part of promoting Union's rail industry worldwide.

In this context, this appropriation is intended to cover the initiatives and the work of cooperation platforms that contribute to timely implementation of Single European Rail Area and addressing its future developments and international cooperation.

Ports and inland navigation

This appropriation is intended to cover development, monitoring, evaluation and revision (impact assessment) of Union legislation and policy on ports and inland navigation.

Single European Sky

The full implementation of the Single European Sky (four basic Regulations (EC) No 549/2004, (EC) No 550/2004, (EC) No 551/2004 and (EC) No 552/2004, and more than 20 implementing rules) is a key priority to improve the performance of the air navigation services in terms of safety, cost efficiency of the air navigation service provision, reduction of air traffic flow delays and environmental performance, and hence of air transport in Europe.

Implementing the Single European Sky and Single European Sky Air Traffic Management Research (SESAR) project, its technological pillar with the assistance of the SESAR Joint Undertaking, the SESAR Deployment Manager and the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) are also priorities in the Union's Aviation Strategy adopted in 2015.

The implementation of the performance scheme of the Single European Sky with the assistance of the Performance Review Body (PRB) is pursued under this article, with the assistance of EASA and Eurocontrol.

In this context, promoting the Single European Sky and the initiatives that contribute to its timely implementation, including through the involvement and consultation of stakeholders (Industry Consultation Body, National Supervisory Authorities Coordinating Platform and European Group on the Human Dimension), as well as addressing its future development are also important activities for the Commission and are pursued under this article.

Aviation safety, environment and cooperation with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO)

The use of several legislative tools are important to ensure the safety of European Aviation to ensure the achievement of an environmentally sustainable growth and protect Union citizens when travelling outside of the Union.

Pursuant to Articles 3 to 5 of Regulation (EC) No 2111/2005, the Commission may impose total bans or partial restrictions on air carriers from third countries coming to the Union. In that context and in accordance with Article 3(4) of Regulation (EC) No 473/2006, the Commission, the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) and experts from the Member States may carry out assessment missions to conduct on-the-spot checks and to identify safety deficiencies of the air carriers and the authorities responsible for their oversight. The cost of on-site assessment visits for national experts needs to be reimbursed by the Union.

There is a clear need to complement these missions with more positive and preventive actions as well as with ex post technical cooperation to assist the countries concerned by the ban or restrictions to correct the deficiencies. In addition, the Commission and EASA have as their objective the promotion of the highest standards of aviation safety across the world.

In this context, the large-scale Union projects in the area of civil aviation cooperation managed by other Directorates-General (NEAR, DEVCO and FPI), which can only be implemented on a long-term basis, do not provide an immediate answer to short-term needs.

The objective of this initiative is therefore to complement the existing instruments by establishing a flexible tool to implement ad hoc preventive and assistance (corrective) actions in favour of the national authorities responsible for the oversight of air carriers affected by the Union ban within the Union. The actions envisaged are small-scale and short-term activities.

Since the framework service contract concluded between EASA and MOVE in 2009 proved to be an effective and efficient tool to carry out technical assistance, the contract with EASA was renewed for the period 2013-2016 and a new framework contract is under preparation for the period 2017-2020.

In addition, Regulation (EU) No 996/2010 provides for the establishment of a European Network of Civil Aviation Safety Investigation Authorities (Encasia). Encasia is required to develop actions in order to further improve the quality of investigations conducted by safety investigation authorities and to enhance accident prevention in the Union. Pursuant to that Regulation, the Commission is associated with Encasia's work and needs to provide Encasia with the necessary support.

Finally, the Memorandum of Cooperation between the Union and International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) covers areas of aviation for which both the Commission and the ICAO have responsibilities (i.e. safety, environment, air traffic management and aviation security). This strengthened cooperation will ensure the indispensable participation in and contribution to ICAO initiatives in several key aviation policy areas which are being pursued at the global level. This includes the initiative to strengthen the safety of international aviation on a worldwide basis, or the development and implementation of measures with regard to the environmental impact of aviation which are acceptable worldwide. It aims to ensure that Union interests (including of an industrial nature, for example in the area of the definition of worldwide technical standards) are better taken into consideration by ICAO. Through the agreement, ICAO will also be brought to accept, support and enhance the increasingly important role which regional organisations play in the current and future development of international aviation.

Sustainable and intelligent transport, including in urban areas

This appropriation is intended to support policy and strategy development and implementation, as well as the implementation of Directives and the related delegated and implementing acts.

CHAPTER 06 02 — EUROPEAN TRANSPORT POLICY (cont'd)06 02 05 (cont'd)Social issues

This appropriation is intended to cover horizontal social issues. To reduce the risk of labour shortages, it will support actions aiming at attracting more workers to the transport sector, bearing in mind the effects of automation (a third of transport workers are over 50 years old). It will also support actions bringing more gender balance to the sector (transport remains male dominated with only 22 % of female workers and less than 3 % in technical positions).

Youth mobility

This appropriation is intended to implement actions related to the mobility of young people in order to reinforce their knowledge and appreciation of other Union cultures by encouraging them to travel in a multi-modal, sustainable way. To this end, the Commission will, among other actions, promote travelling schemes and related campaigning actions and web portals.

The main objectives are to develop and apply security rules in the field of transport and in particular:

- measures to prevent malicious acts in the transport sector,
- approximation of legislation, technical standards and administrative monitoring practices relating to transport security,
- definition of common indicators, methods and security objectives for the transport sector and collection of the data necessary for such definition,
- monitoring of measures taken on transport security by the Member States, in all modes,
- international coordination on transport security,
- promoting research into transport security.

This appropriation is intended in particular to cover expenditure on the establishment and operation of a corps of inspectors to check compliance with the requirements of Union security legislation of airports, ports and port facilities in the Member States, including extension to third countries, and of ships flying the flag of a Member State. This expenditure includes the subsistence allowances and travel expenses of the Commission inspectors and the expenses of inspectors from the Member States, borne in accordance with the provisions laid down in that legislation. The costs of training inspectors, of preparatory meetings and of the supplies needed for inspections must, in particular, be added to that expenditure.

This appropriation is also intended to cover expenditure on information and communication, as well as electronic and paper publications directly linked to the achievement of the objective of transport policy, as well as safety and protection of transport users.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

The tachograph, which has been mandatory since 1985, is the cornerstone of road transport legislation, in particular for monitoring vehicle speed, distance travelled and driver work and rest times. Over the years, as the technology has progressed, successive generations of tachograph have incorporated new features which have gradually made the controls and fraud prevention more effective. The latest 'smart tachograph' is expected to provide real-time information by connecting satellite navigation systems and enforcement authorities.

According to a study commissioned by the European Parliament in 2018, retrofitting smart tachographs in all heavy-duty vehicles by 2020 is estimated to cost between EUR 6 400 000 000 and EUR 15 900 000 000 just for the purchase of the device and the labour associated with the retrofit.

Given the widespread use of smartphones and the continuous expansion of their functions, as well as the deployment of Galileo and the opportunities it offers in terms of real-time localisation, which many mobiles already use, the pilot project explores the possibility of developing and certifying a mobile application offering the same benefits as the smart tachograph, and the associated costs.

The feasibility study will be structured as follows:

- (1) identifying, in accordance with the revised Regulation (EU) No 165/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 February 2014 on tachographs in road transport, repealing Council Regulation (EEC) No 3821/85 on recording equipment in road transport and amending Regulation (EC) No 561/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council on the harmonisation of certain social legislation relating to road transport (OJ L 60, 28.2.2014, p. 1), which data the application should collect so as to function as a smart tachograph;
- (2) assessing the technical feasibility of an application to collect this data, possibly using Galileo or by means of a direct connection with the vehicle, and the technical requirements for real-time transmission of the data to the authorities;
- (3) assessing the risk of fraud and the potential cybersecurity threat connected with the application;
- (4) assessing the hardware and software security measures to be implemented in the smartphone in order to mitigate the risks identified in point 3;
- (5) providing an estimate of the cost of developing and certifying such an application;

This preparatory action will develop a user-friendly tool (online/app) enabling motorists (i.e. both professional and non-professional drivers) to be fully informed about urban and regional access regulation schemes.

The information will include: geographical scope, access conditions (vehicle type, time (including temporary restrictions with links to real-time information sources, etc.), tariffs (prices and validity), payment options, enforcement policies, penalties and appeal procedures etc., both for a country's own nationals and foreign nationals, with the possibility of information pushes at users' request

Consideration may also be given to including accompanying measures such as park-and-ride facilities and freight consolidation.

The tool will primarily be targeted at private users (in parallel with existing platforms with information on passengers' rights), but it could also include specific information for professional users (e.g. road haulage companies) and links to navigation and routing platforms.

The second year of implementation of the preparatory action will focus on extending it to enable road users to be fully informed about urban and regional access schemes by working on the enablers needed, i.e. standardisation and data provision for the integration of information into navigation tools.

The preparatory action will consist of three stages:

1. Work on an Urban Vehicle Access Regulations template in the context of the Digital Single Gateway Regulation.
2. Work on data by working with DATEX experts, etc.
3. Development of demonstrators.

This project will provide easily accessible information on environmental performance in aviation, ideally from a neutral and independent source, to the travelling public and people living near airports.

In the same way that European citizens are informed about organic products, passengers will be informed about the green record of aircraft and airlines. The project will look into the green record of individual aircraft (noise and emissions) and carriers (greenhouse gas emissions, particulate matter emissions, offsetting, sustainable ('bio') fuels and aircraft noise) as well as operational measures.

The main activities will focus on developing governance, metrics, communication design and the eco-portal, which is an existing IT platform that will be expanded to include emissions, fleet and operational data to support the label scheme.

The scheme will also allow airports to rank airlines by environmental performance so as to provide local incentives.

Remarks

This pilot project will be implemented in the form of a study; it will be designed to ensure the best interconnection between city centres and airports. While some airports are located at the close periphery of some big cities, some smaller airports are sometimes far away. Urban mobility should be investigated as a possible solution for shortage of infrastructure capacity while taking into account the environmental dimension, such as local air quality and noise. Traffic management as well as other technological options will also be assessed.

The study will also address the issue of long distance high speed railway connections to/between airports and urban areas.

Remarks

In view of the Commission's policy priorities to 'revitalise rail', construct a 'single European railway area' and achieve 'modal shift', and also in view of the pressing need to find alternatives to medium-haul flights and to meet international climate targets, this pilot project will focus on analysing, studying and formulating specific policy recommendations to help companies establish viable international train services, in particular high-speed and night-train services, including via legislation on public service provision.

The project will involve a comprehensive analysis of companies' new international services (high-speed but in particular night trains) and their most recent experiences and perceived difficulties, including the aspects of ticketing, potential difficulties in concluding international public service contracts and procurement and financing for upgrades and maintenance of rolling stock.

One approach taken by port authorities that has recently been gaining momentum has been to determine a set of development activities and investments which would both create the appropriate technical and organisational set-up for future port operations and take into account various social and environmental requirements to maintain or improve the level of quality delivered in those two areas. The project will present the research that has been conducted into the level of awareness and behaviour of European ports in the field of sustainable development, and as regards the Green Port Concept (GPC) in particular. A hypothesis has been formulated that incorporation of the GPC into the development strategy for European sea ports will improve their environmental relationship and make them more competitive. The survey results will make it possible to identify the approach to be taken for the development of green ports and undertake research into assembling a package of instruments that will support those activities. It will therefore be possible to target the development strategies of European sea ports in line with the GPC.

Outcome/possible evolution of the project

Due to the wide range of potential uses of the research results, the authors have plans for a series of activities to publicise them, including a report on the quantitative survey, a series of scientific articles and a monograph.

Innovative/experimental nature of the project

The authors of the project will conduct a survey - the first of its kind in Europe - of the perception of Union port authorities' activities in the area of sustainable development of the GPC. The interdependence of actions undertaken and economic performance of sea port will then be studied. The new knowledge gained under the project will establish a new, complex and interdisciplinary approach to the organisation and operation of a sea port for business implementation. Moreover, any port will be able to be assessed as to the extent to which it is already implementing the green port concept and, subsequently, as to what type of actions should be taken to take the right approach and proceed with greening of the port. This should be the basis for further development of Green Port assessments, with appropriate measurements and values according to the GPC goals.

The maritime sector is witnessing heightened activity focusing on the sustainable development of sea ports. This activity covers the two main areas of their external operations, i.e. reducing the negative environmental impact of port investment and operational activity, and the relationship of ports with their surroundings. The social responsibility of sea ports is a factor which can make a difference, especially in the latter area. At the same time, port management bodies and municipal authorities are increasingly showing interest in both of these areas. The 'greenness' of ports and their community relations are verified each year in competitions and ranking tables (e.g. Green Port Awards).

Remarks

These remarks are applicable to all the budget lines in this chapter.

These appropriations are intended to be used for Horizon 2020 — the framework programme for research and innovation, which covers the 2014 to 2020 period, and for the completion of the previous research programmes (seventh framework programme and preceding framework programmes).

Horizon 2020 will play a central role in the implementation of the Europe 2020 flagship initiative 'Innovation Union' and other flagship initiatives, notably 'Resource-efficient Europe', 'An industrial policy for the globalisation era', and 'A digital agenda for Europe', as well as in the development and functioning of the European Research Area. Horizon 2020 will contribute to building an economy based on knowledge and innovation across the whole Union by leveraging sufficient additional research, development and innovation funding. The programme will be carried out in order to pursue the general objectives described in Article 179 of the TFEU, in order to contribute to the creation of a society of knowledge, based on the European research area, i.e. supporting transnational cooperation at all levels throughout the Union, taking the dynamism, creativity and the excellence of European research to the limits of knowledge, strengthening human resources for research and for technology in Europe, quantitatively and qualitatively and research and innovation capacities in the whole of Europe and ensuring optimum use thereof.

In Horizon 2020, gender equality is addressed as a cross-cutting issue in order to rectify imbalances between women and men and to integrate a gender dimension in research and innovation content. Particular account will be taken of the need to step up efforts to enhance the participation at all levels, including decision making, of women in research and innovation.

Also entered against these articles and items are the costs of high-level scientific and technological meetings, conferences, workshops and seminars of European interest organised by the Commission, the funding of high-level scientific and technological analyses and evaluations carried out on behalf of the Union to investigate new areas of research suitable for Union action, inter alia, in the context of the European research area, and measures to monitor and disseminate the results of the programmes, including measures under previous framework programmes.

These appropriations are intended to be used in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 1290/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 December 2013 laying down the rules for participation and dissemination in 'Horizon 2020 — the Framework Programme for Research and Innovation (2014-2020)' and repealing Regulation (EC) No 1906/2006 (OJ L 347, 20.12.2013, p. 81).

CHAPTER 06 03 — HORIZON 2020 — RESEARCH AND INNOVATION RELATED TO TRANSPORT (cont'd)

The contributions from the EFTA States pursuant to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, and in particular Article 82 thereof and Protocol 32 thereto, must be added to the appropriations entered in this chapter. By way of information, these amounts derive from contributions from the EFTA States entered against Article 6 3 0 of the statement of revenue, which constitute assigned revenue in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation; they give rise to the provision of corresponding appropriations and to implementation under the 'European Economic Area' Annex to this part of the statement of expenditure in this section, which forms an integral part of the general budget of the Union.

The possibility of third countries or institutes from third countries taking part in European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research is envisaged for some of these projects. Any financial contribution will be entered in Items 6 0 1 3 and 6 0 1 5 of the statement of revenue and may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Revenue from States taking part in the European cooperation in the field of scientific and technical research will be entered in Item 6 0 1 6 of the statement of revenue and may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation.

Any revenue from the contribution by outside bodies to Union activities will be entered in Item 6 0 3 3 of the statement of revenue and may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21 of the Financial Regulation.

Additional appropriations will be made available under Item 06 03 50 01.

Administrative appropriations of this chapter will be provided under Article 06 01 05.

06 03 03 Societal challenges*Remarks*

This priority of Horizon 2020 responds directly to the policy priorities and societal challenges identified in the Europe 2020 strategy. Those activities will be implemented using a challenge-based approach which brings together resources and knowledge across different fields, technologies and disciplines. The activities will cover the full cycle from research to market, with a new focus on innovation-related activities such as piloting, demonstration, test beds, support for public procurement, design, end-user driven innovation, social innovation and market take-up of innovations. The activities will support directly the corresponding sectoral policy competences at Union level.

Funding will be focused on the following challenges:

- smart, green and integrated transport,
- innovation and research, particularly in the areas of behavioural change, modal shift, accessibility for all, integration (interconnectivity, intermodality, interoperability) and sustainability (climate change, gas and noise emission reduction), which are of crucial importance for the transport and tourism sectors.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover research and innovation actions that should substantially contribute to shifting transport into a new era of smart mobility. Actions under this item should support the development and take-up of the necessary solutions for all transport modes, drastically reducing transport emissions that are harmful to the environment, lowering the dependence of transport on fossil fuels, and hence reducing transport impact on biodiversity and preserve natural resources. This is expected to be achieved by investing in specific activities, particularly in the form of large public-private partnerships, such as making aircraft, trains, vehicles and vessels cleaner and quieter, developing smart equipment, infrastructure and services and improving transport and mobility in urban areas.

Research and innovation carried under this item is expected to make important contributions to optimise performance and efficiency in the face of growing demands for mobility. Actions under this item will also focus on substantially reducing traffic congestion, substantially improving the mobility of people and freight, developing and applying new concepts of freight transport and logistics and reducing accident rates and fatal casualties and improving security. Actions under this item are indeed intended to contribute to making Europe the safest region for aviation and to move towards the target of zero fatalities in road transport by 2050.

Research and innovation is expected to play a significant role in achieving global leadership for the European transport industry and contributing to the development of small and medium-sized enterprises, staying ahead in new technologies and reducing the costs of existing manufacturing processes, therefore contributing to economic growth and highly skilled jobs in the European transport industry. In this context, actions to develop the next generation of transport means and explore entirely new transport concepts are expected to be developed and covered by this appropriation.

Socioeconomic research and forward-looking activities for policymaking will also be covered by this appropriation: actions to support policy analysis and development including on socioeconomic aspects of transport are necessary to promote innovation and meet the challenges raised by transport.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

In recent years, more and more Union cities and regions have introduced low-emission zone (LEZ) policies for vehicles. Many LEZ policies are based on the Euro classification or the year of vehicle type-approval. LEZ policies generally have three implementation problems:

Firstly, LEZ policies based solely on Euro classification or type-approval date have questionable environmental effectiveness. Testing by independent parties shows that the most polluting Euro 6 diesels have higher NO_x emission levels than some Euro 4 or 5 vehicles.

COMMISSION

TITLE 07 — ENVIRONMENT

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 49 (cont'd)

Vehicle emissions tests using PEMS (emission analytics) or remote sensing (CONOX programme) show that Euro 5 and pre-RDE Euro 6 vehicles are still emitting significantly more NO_x under normal conditions than indicated by the laboratory tests. Only since Euro 6d (from 1 September 2017 onwards) has the RDE test been used for type-approval of new vehicles. This is expected to significantly reduce the discrepancy between type-approved and real-world emissions.

Secondly, for European motorists driving in different cities or Member States the various LEZ restrictions and urban access policies create an increasingly confusing and possibly costly situation, with motorists having to comply with different rules and needing to acquire different stickers or permits for each zone.

Thirdly, depending on how the LEZ policies are designed and implemented, cities find it difficult to ensure compliance of vehicles registered in other Member States.

A possible solution to these problems is the development of an ultra-low polluting vehicle (ULPV) scheme which identifies vehicles having good performance in terms of NO_x emissions (and possibly other pollutants). Such a scheme would allow Member States, regions and cities to develop and fine-tune LEZ restrictions beyond the Euro classifications and type-approval date. The ULPV scheme could provide Member States, regions and cities with access to a harmonised system.

The pilot project has the following goals:

- (1) to assess options for a ULPV scheme (including the possibility of a label) for cars that meet Euro 6 ELV requirements under normal use, tested with PEMS in an RDE test, and also including those tested during type-approval (Euro 6d-TEMP or later) or certified to that level after retrofit;
- (2) to assess options for the certification and monitoring of such vehicles;
- (3) to assess options for the establishment of a European information exchange system (e.g. linked to the Eucaris exchange platform) including a database with all registered ULPVs. The information exchange system would be accessible by cities, regions and Member States for implementation of LEZ policies or incentives.

Possible partners:

- (1) research institutes in the field of vehicle emissions (e.g. TNO, JRC);
- (2) motoring organisations (e.g. ADAC, ANWB);
- (3) retrofit industry associations (e.g. CLEPA, ERECA);
- (4) vehicle inspection centres (e.g. CITA);
- (5) cities and urban regions or city networks (e.g. Eurocities).

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

The European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) and the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) provide independent scientific advice to decision makers to regulate chemical and food safety in Europe. Through their respective mandates, they collect large volumes of scientific data on substances and their hazardous properties. At the same time, industry and the academic research community are creating a wealth of information on such topics as well.

However, due to legal, technical, resource-related or other constraints, these vast scientific data collections are not always fully shared or made accessible to a wider audience and have thus not yet achieved their full potential. Therefore, ECHA and EFSA are looking to increase and simplify access to the vast scientific data collections they hold, enriched with other public data and data fed by external sources.

That could be achieved through a portal including both structured and unstructured data provided by regulatory agencies, industry, academia and other parties with an interest in chemical safety. The portal should uniquely identify studies and support critical appraisal of studies, text mining, data visualisation, analysis and knowledge sharing.

The goal is to facilitate seamless sharing of data between authorities and provide public access to researchers, regulators, industry and the public at large. This will promote: (a) transparency and trust in Union decision making, (b) research and data analytics, (c) innovation, (d) less animal testing and more predictive toxicology, and (e) better regulatory decision making and informed consumer choices.

A common portal could provide:

- a registry of toxicological studies for chemical substances and regulated products. Industry-sponsored studies are available for regulatory assessment by the respective authority, but they are currently not always available to other authorities, industrial actors, the research community or the public at large,
- a repository for research and scientific data. Peer-reviewed studies are not always used to the extent that they could be in regulatory assessments, since searching for, and gaining access to, studies is resource-demanding. Scientists as well as publishers of their studies lack the fundamental interest to share data with a view to addressing regulatory questions,
- a platform for data analytics, predictive toxicology (i.e. avoidance of animal testing), better environmental monitoring, better study design, development of artificial intelligence and machine learning applications,

The pilot project takes the form of a feasibility study exploring the opportunities for such a common platform to deliver valuable benefits to the four identified key stakeholder groups (regulators, academia, industry and the public at large).

The first phase of the study focuses on feasibility analysis and the development of use cases. The following research questions will have to be tackled:

- Regulators, academia, industry and citizens are identified as the key stakeholders but what will be their roles and how will they benefit from the common portal?
- Can we learn from existing systems, e.g. EU Clinical Trials Register, the US Environmental Protection Agency's Master Record Identifiers system, the EU Open Data Portal, IPChem, OECD eChemPortal, a potential future OECD global chemicals knowledge base, ECHA Dissemination Portal, OpenAire, and the European Open Science Cloud? Could any of these systems provide some or all of the portal functionalities?
- How can data owners share information but maintain their intellectual property rights and protection of confidential business information/trade secrets?
- How can participants be persuaded to use a common international structured data format for information exchange?
- Can information exchange be automated with laboratory systems sharing information via web services?
- How can quality control processes and critical appraisal tools be integrated within the platform?
- What could be the incentives for participation in the portal?

— How could a common platform stimulate new or improved studies and methods for chemical safety assessment?

— How could a common platform inform the Union research agenda?

The second phase of the study will develop recommendations for the Union legislative authority and for Union policy development in this area on the basis of the opportunities and threats identified.

— What basic provisions will be needed to govern a central Union platform across regulations and Union institutions?

— What are the legal barriers and can legislation act as a driver for participation and imposing a common format for delivering results?

— What would be the resource requirements for adaptation/development and maintenance of a common portal?

— What are the funding options for the adaptation/development and maintenance of a common portal?

If judged appropriate, implementation of the pilot project can be delegated to the agencies.

Bringing nature into cities and greening our neighbourhoods is one of the most underexploited ways of increasing European citizens' quality of life. Today, 72 % of Europeans live in cities, towns and suburbs, and the urban share of the population continues to grow. As cities face an array of challenges, ranging from their impact on residents' health to environmental concerns, green infrastructure has huge potential to offer solutions to many of these problems.

The goal is to present greening as a way of solving problems and to make the value of greening better understood. It is increasingly important to look ahead and develop a vision of the cities of tomorrow where green infrastructure plays a crucial role.

A further goal is to increase scientific knowledge and improve knowledge sharing, tools, methods and innovative approaches to enhance biodiversity and the planning and implementing of green infrastructure (including green roofs and walls and sustainable urban agriculture) in cities and improve civil society participation in decision-making. This also extends to building a vision of the green city of tomorrow together.

A truly participatory approach involves policymakers, citizens and civil society, including the elderly and children. Each of those stakeholders has different needs (recreation, mitigation of urban heat island impacts, improvement of air quality, improved human health, sustainable soft mobility, improved social cohesion, etc.). Therefore, the scientific component of the project could help to develop the scientific solutions needed to support local initiatives which enhance urban green infrastructure, benefiting those people who live in cities and improving their quality of life.

This pilot project will create and collect material, best practices and guidelines and distribute the material created to the cities, municipalities and administrators so as to help mayors start projects to improve and expand green infrastructure in cities and urban areas.

The aims of this pilot project are:

- (1) to raise awareness of the benefits of green spaces in the built environment;
- (2) to increase the quantity and quality of research and development for new innovations;
- (3) to encourage citizens to take action to improve their own neighbourhoods;
- (4) to foster a culture of appreciation of the green spaces;
- (5) to increase the number of green infrastructure projects;
- (6) to connect up existing initiatives and share best practices across the Member States;
- (7) to create a roadmap for greening European cities by 2030;
- (8) to prepare for the European Year of Greener Cities 2020.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

This pilot project concerns novel methods to prevent the establishment and spread of invasive alien species (IAS) in the Union in support of Regulation (EU) No 1143/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 October 2014 on the prevention and management of the introduction and spread of invasive alien species (OJ L 317, 4.11.2014, p. 35) and Target 5 of the Union's 2020 Biodiversity Strategy.

It is widely recognised that preventing invasive alien species from becoming established (i.e. effective IAS biosecurity measures) is far more cost-effective than managing and eradicating IAS once they become established. However, two significant barriers have been identified which prevent effective IAS biosecurity measures from being implemented: i) a lack of understanding by stakeholders of the importance of IAS biosecurity, and ii) a lack of understanding among natural resource managers and regulators of how to communicate the need for effective IAS biosecurity measures across various stakeholder groups.

This pilot project will introduce a series of activities which seek to: i) improve understanding among stakeholders of the importance of effective IAS biosecurity measures, and ii) improve communication among managers, regulators and stakeholders with regard to developing and implementing effective IAS biosecurity measures.

With a view to becoming a preparatory action, the pilot project will provide funding to raise awareness of the need for effective biosecurity measures across the following stakeholder groups: farmers, landowners and land managers, environmental NGOs, the horticulture industry, the exotic pet trade, recreational freshwater users (anglers and boaters), marine users (recreational boating and industrial shipping), transport infrastructure authorities (canals, railway sidings, motorway verges) and local authorities. These stakeholder groups have been identified as representing the most significant pathways for IAS in Europe.

IAS biosecurity is an issue which stakeholders generally poorly understand, but at the same time is a source of great anxiety owing to the perceived negative impact on their interests. The pilot project will build a platform to facilitate constructive communication within and between sectors on the need for, and benefits of, effective IAS biosecurity measures, as well as to share best practice for the communication, development and implementation of such measures.

Specifically, under the pilot project officers will be appointed to begin and lead a dialogue within each of the identified stakeholder groups. As the existing level of understanding among many stakeholder groups about IAS biosecurity issues is low, officers will initially determine the level of understanding and concern within each stakeholder group. Once the perception of each stakeholder group has been determined, officers will then launch a series of events, workshops and conferences, and produce accessible sector-specific material, to promote understanding and the exchange of knowledge about the issue within each sector. A secretariat will manage and oversee the work of the officers, as well as collate and develop sector-specific dialogues to identify common problems and common solutions across sectors.

As a result of these activities, the level of concern, conflict and misunderstanding around IAS biosecurity is expected to fall. What is new about this project is that it is proactive, as there have been no previous attempts to constructively engage specific sectors at pan-European level on IAS biosecurity, and collaborative, as it simultaneously addresses IAS biosecurity across related but different European sectors.

Pollinators are an integral part of healthy ecosystems and their dramatic decline is a serious cause for concern. In Europe, animal pollination is primarily delivered by insects: around 2 000 bee species, 900 hoverfly species, 500 butterfly species and 8 000 moth species. Other fly species, wasps and beetles also play an important pollination role. Without them, many plant species would decline and eventually disappear, with far-reaching consequences for nature and human wellbeing. In the Union, four out of five crop and wild flowering plant species depend, at least in part, on animal pollination. Up to EUR 15 billion of the Union's annual agricultural output is directly attributed to insect pollinators; they are widely regarded as one of the most important indicators of a healthy environment.

On 1 June 2018, the Commission adopted the EU Pollinators Initiative, following calls from the European Parliament and the Council for action to tackle the widely acknowledged dramatic decline of pollinators. The initiative lays down a number of actions to address known causes of the decline, but also focuses on strengthening the knowledge base. It emphasises the importance of a systemic approach to collection of data and information on pollinators, in order to evaluate policy actions and improve their effectiveness. While in some areas there is a reasonable level of knowledge (decline of butterflies, the poor state of their habitats and the drivers of declines), knowledge gaps remain overall with regard to the status of and trends for most pollinator populations, as well as the causes and consequences of their decline. A coordinated monitoring process at Union level, powered by a standardised field data collection, will make it possible to close the critical gaps and develop robust indicators to underpin impactful Union policies for pollinators.

Pollinator indicators will in particular be essential for a new EU post-2020 biodiversity framework and the new common agricultural policy (CAP). Pollinators are a high-profile topic in the work of the UN Convention on Biological Diversity, which sets a global framework of actions on biodiversity, and to which the UN Food and Agriculture Organisation actively contributes. This culminated in the first global report on pollinators issued by the Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services in 2016. It is expected that pollinators will feature in targets for the future global biodiversity framework. Apart from the fact that pollinators represent a target on their own merit, pollinator indicators will also help measure progress towards a number of other biodiversity targets, including those relating to the EU Habitats Directive, the Natura 2000 network, agriculture and forestry.

As stipulated under Action 5C of the EU Pollinators Initiative, the Commission will include a pollinator indicator in the performance and monitoring framework of the CAP once it has been finalised and is operational. Such an indicator would be an invaluable addition to the indicator framework in the Commission proposals for the CAP 2021-2027: insect pollinators are a good proxy for wider biodiversity and an essential factor in agricultural production. Because of this dual role, pollinator indicators would be also an excellent addition to the monitoring framework for the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals in the Union, in particular Goals 15 ('Life on land') and 2 ('Zero hunger'). The grassland butterfly indicator is already included in that framework and this action will help underpin the sustainability of butterfly monitoring and indicator reporting across the Union.

While the monitoring and indicators developed under the EU Pollinators Initiative address wild pollinator species, they will also greatly benefit honeybee health and the beekeeping sector. Managed and wild species share food/forage resources as well as the main pressures on their populations. Monitoring of wild species will provide not only good information about the quality of the environment for all pollinators, but also essential data for research into various pressures and their interplay. This is crucial for devising effective mitigation actions and supporting effective recovery.

Beyond this fundamental contribution to policy-making, data and information generated by the monitoring scheme would enable development of tools for land managers, in particular farmers. Data on the status of pollinator species, paired with good crop data (for example as per outputs of Action 3B of the EU Pollinators Initiative), would enable development of an atlas of pollinators and pollination or an early warning system for pollination deficit. These would help farmers, whose yields and profits essentially depend on pollinators, to make informed decisions on how to secure this agricultural input and mitigate risks relating to the decline of insect pollinators.

Furthermore, it would also enable tools for actors higher up the biomass chain, such as risk assessment and management tools for food and drink manufacturers, suppliers or retailers whose products and services depend on pollinator-dependent agricultural produce. In this way, good data and information on pollinators would support the bioeconomy agenda more broadly. The 2018 update of the Bioeconomy Strategy includes an action that would support the development of such tools, with a view to facilitating integration of pollinators into supply value chains (Action 3.3.4).

The scope of an EU pollinator monitoring scheme is expected to cover at least the main taxonomic groups: bees, hoverflies, butterflies and moths. At the moment, the only systemic Union-level monitoring of any pollinator group is conducted for butterflies in half the Member States. In 2018, the European Parliament funded the pilot project on EU butterfly monitoring and indicators (ABLE) to expand that monitoring scheme. This preparatory action will build on that pilot project to ensure full Union coverage with regard to monitoring butterflies, and will help establish the first-ever Union-level monitoring processes for other pollinator groups.

The Commission expects to launch a technical expert group in May 2019, mandated to devise an Union-wide pollinator monitoring scheme and pollinator indicators by May 2020. With a view to implementing the monitoring scheme and enabling the flow of data to build indicators as early as in 2021, it will be crucial to kick off the necessary preparations in Member States in 2020. Many Member States are expected to face challenges as regards administrative and academic capacities, meaning that successful implementation will help by focusing efforts early on.

Activities of the preparatory action:

The preparatory action will fund activities that help address challenges to Member State capacities with a view to facilitating harmonised implementation of a Union-wide monitoring scheme for insect pollinators.

Specifically, the preparatory action will support the following activities:

- Pooling of expertise at Union level, expert networking and training;
- Coordination of implementation of the scheme across Member States;

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 53 (cont'd)

- Assistance with the preparation of administrative, financial and academic capacities in Member States;
- Assistance with initial implementation of the scheme in Member States with inadequate capacities;
- Building on and complementing the European Parliament pilot project ABLE with regard to the existing butterfly monitoring scheme.

This preparatory action will run for three years and will have a budget of EUR 5 000 000.

Legal basis

Remarks

The objective of this preparatory action is to put in place a tool for collecting environmental data with the help of honey bees and bee products. This will enable evaluation of pollution exposure and diffusion in the environment at landscape level. It will also enable evaluation of plant diversity across landscapes.

Despite the considerable impact of various environmental pollutants, in particular pesticides, on human wellbeing and nature, there are still major data and information gaps regarding exposure. Honey bees come into contact with diverse matrices due to their biological needs and behaviour. During their wide-ranging foraging activity (up to 15 km radius) they are exposed to pollutants present in the atmosphere, soil, vegetation and water. Numerous plants are visited every day to collect nectar, secretions from sap-feeding insects, pollen and/or water, while plant gums are collected for propolis production. While flying they also come into contact with airborne particles, which stick to their body hairs or are inhaled via spiracles. Contaminants are brought back to the beehives and may be found in bee products, such as honey, wax, propolis, pollen and bee bread. Honey bees and their products could also be an excellent tool for monitoring other environmental pollutants besides pesticides, such as heavy metals, particulate matter, volatile organic compounds and sulphur dioxide.

Honey bees are already used as bioindicators of the level of environmental contamination. Studies have been performed using bees and bee products as biological monitoring instruments to measure environmental quality. Various levels of environmental monitoring with honey bees have already been described, with varying degrees of complexity and sensitivity. Prompted by concern for honey bee colony losses, beekeepers, beekeeper technicians and scientists in parts of Europe began analysing the contaminant content of bees and bee products. The results are often the same: bees are exposed to a wide variety of contaminants simultaneously and consecutively.

Furthermore, there are considerable knowledge gaps as regards plant species richness and abundance across various landscapes in the Union. Such knowledge is essential for evaluation of habitat quality as well as evaluation of pressures that different land uses may exert on habitats. Collection and analysis of pollen from beehives offers a promising avenue to gather invaluable data and information that can help to close those knowledge gaps.

Environmental data and information generated through monitoring using honey bees would support Union policies in the following areas:

- Public health and food safety;
- Plant and animal health, including bee health;
- Agriculture rural development, including beekeeping;
- Agricultural production and food security;
- Environmental protection (nature, air, water, soil);
- Biodiversity.

It would in particular support effective actions under:

- Directive 2009/128/EC on the sustainable use of pesticides;
- Regulation(EC) 1107/2009 concerning the placing of plant protection products on the market;
- the common agricultural policy;
- EU biodiversity policy, including the EU Pollinators Initiative;
- Directive (EU) 2016/2284 on the reduction of national emissions of certain atmospheric pollutants;
- Directive 2010/75/EU on industrial emissions.

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 54 (cont'd)

In this way, environmental monitoring through honey bees would contribute towards the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals in the Union, in particular Goals 2 ('Zero hunger'), 3 ('Good health and wellbeing'), 12 ('Responsible consumption and production'), 14 ('Life below water') and 15 ('Life on land').

In 2018, the European Parliament funded the pilot project 'Environmental monitoring of pesticide use through honey bees'. This preparatory action will build on that pilot project. It will further expand the scope to other environmental pollutants as well as monitoring of plant diversity. The preparatory action will be a citizen science project in which beekeepers will play a key role by collecting samples from beehives.

Activities of the preparatory action:

- The preparatory action will fund Union-wide implementation of the monitoring methodology currently being developed and tested by the pilot project. Furthermore, the action will look to expand the monitoring to include other environmental pollutants and plant diversity.

Specifically, activities under this preparatory action will:

- explore how to expand the monitoring protocol to include environmental pollutants besides pesticides, and develop relevant modules;
- implement the monitoring protocol by sampling beehives across various land uses in all Member States;
- carry out chemical and pollen analysis of samples;
- develop IT infrastructure to create, store, manage, process and share data;

This preparatory action will run for three years and will have a budget of EUR 4 000 000.

Remarks

This preparatory action will evaluate the changes in biodiversity status in Europe, and at Union and pan-European levels, address clustered drivers of decline and monitor the impact of conservation measures and policy action. It will be an important contribution to the final evaluation of the EU Biodiversity Strategy and the post-2020 biodiversity frameworks. The proposed approach combines the mobilisation of dedicated knowledge networks and data with the use of an established metric, the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) Red List Index (RLI), so as to update existing European Red Lists (ERL) and assess status changes in species, with the aim of informing sectoral and land use policies, which is critical for refining the scope of their action.

In Europe, the risk of extinction of species has increased dramatically over the last 20 years. While the drivers of these declines are largely known for some groups of organisms, and conservation measures and policies have been implemented to prevent the continuation of these downward trends, data and knowledge on species trends and threats are either non-existent or not easily accessible, species status indicators have not been systematically produced, and the geographical scope of conservation and policy action has been uneven. This makes it more difficult to understand the impact of specific recovery measures and poses a challenge to measuring EU progress against regionally and internationally agreed targets to halt biodiversity loss.

The IUCN RLI is a widely accepted metric for measuring changes in extinction risk globally and has been adopted as an official indicator of progress towards the Sustainable Development Goals and the global Aichi Biodiversity Targets. As such, it was recently used to assess regional trends in mammals, birds and amphibians for Europe and Central Asia in the regional assessment report of the Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services and is proposed to be used in the post-2020 global biodiversity framework. The RLI uses data from the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species, which in Europe has assessed over 11 000 species since 2006 at two regional levels: for geographic Europe, and for the Union. For marine species, the area covered by the assessments includes the Mediterranean, the Black, Baltic and North Seas, and the European part of the Atlantic Ocean (i.e. territorial waters and Exclusive Economic Zones (EEZ), including the EEZs of the Macaronesian Islands belonging to Portugal and Spain). However, IUCN Red List assessments become officially outdated after 10 years and no taxonomic group has ever been reassessed at the Union and pan-European levels. Therefore, it is vital that species be regularly reassessed to obtain a reliable and meaningful indicator of European biodiversity trends and threat abatement over time for more widespread evidence-informed policy-making.

The preparatory action will use the IUCN RLI to estimate the aggregate extinction risk for almost all taxa assessed to date by the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species at the Union and pan-European levels. These include vertebrates (mammals, amphibians, reptiles and freshwater fish), invertebrates (non-marine molluscs, butterflies, saproxylic beetles, dragonflies and bees) and plants (vascular and medicinal). The IUCN RLI can measure whether the rate of biodiversity loss has been reduced in Europe, helping to improve the effectiveness of conservation measures applied on the ground while assessing progress in implementing EU policies and legislation, such as the current EU Biodiversity Strategy – particularly Target 1, which aims to increase the protection of species and their habitats by fully implementing the EU Nature Directives – as well as informing policy targets in the post-2020 agenda. These reassessments should be aligned with the policy cycle (e.g. 2010 Biodiversity Action Plan, EU biodiversity policy to 2020, 2030 Biodiversity Strategy, etc.).

The overall methodology for species reassessments will be based on the existing Red List assessments. Some preliminary work will be needed to collect the necessary information and update the assessments. Assessment workshops will take place only to review the Red List status of the most endangered species, and so they are expected to be fewer in number than for a typical assessment exercise, and, consequently, cheaper. The duration of these workshops will vary from one to four days, depending on the number of species to be assessed. Taxonomic knowledge, expertise and data will be mobilised through engagement with the relevant Specialist Groups of the IUCN Species Survival Commission (SSC), and with IUCN staff leading the global assessment by these groups. Additional consultation with and engagement of local and international experts will be key to the success of the activities, and so this action has a huge potential for galvanising local knowledge hubs and for capacity building (through workshops). The IUCN Red List typically makes species assessments and distribution maps freely available on its website, and all the newly collected information will be uploaded to the European Environment Agency (EEA) Biodiversity Data Centre. Any additional detailed time series data on population abundance and distribution for the proposed groups of species collected under this action will be made available, subject to the terms established in legal data sharing agreements with existing monitoring schemes to clarify intellectual property rights and rights of access to data, in an integrated database that can directly contribute to an integrated monitoring system for biodiversity and ecosystems to be developed by the Commission and the EEA.

DELIVERABLES

The reassessments will provide four main deliverables:

- 1) An ERL publication for each group of species (Union and pan-European levels), providing an overview of the analyses undertaken and the results of the reassessment process, including examples of species with positive, stable and negative trends as shown by the RLI, a compilation of conservation successes and failures, with key messages and recommendations tailored to the main sectors responsible for actions taking place across Europe that continue to support and/or threaten species conservation. These will be critical to improving biodiversity mainstreaming across non-state actors and informing the general public as to which actions and behaviours will benefit European biodiversity and promote ecosystem services and, hence, human wellbeing. The final reassessments for each species will also be presented in updated factsheets on the IUCN website. The advantages of uploading the factsheets to the Red List website are: access to all ERL data in one place; access to the most up-to-date assessments beyond the scope of this action which benefit from new information being incorporated by the SSC Expert Network; and a comparison with global and other regional assessments for the same species. In line with previous ERL publications, the updated assessments will be in full colour with figures and photos throughout, and the publications will also be designed to minimise download times for the PDF version. The publications will be delivered in print (300 copies) as well as in electronic formats (Word and PDF).
- 2) Integration of updated Red List databases into the EEA Biodiversity Data Centre and its hosting infrastructure. All the information collected to estimate the RLI (population size, distribution, demographic trends, habitats, threats) will be used to update the current species assessments in the Species Information Service, and exported to Microsoft Access databases (per taxonomic group), which will then be formatted in accordance with the requirements of the EEA Biodiversity Data Centre, where they will be made available.

- 3) Preparation of text for the Europa website. A new tab under the current index available for each ERL assessment on the Europa website showing the results of the RLI for each taxonomic group will be created and the respective text will be prepared in parallel with the ERL publications. The current structure (i.e. titles and subtitles) as developed for previous ERL projects might require revision to better encapsulate and profile the efforts for, and results of, systematic monitoring and of the RLI.
- 4) 'The pulse of European biodiversity' brochure summarising the findings of the reassessments and the RLI, highlighting the importance of biodiversity monitoring and long-term trends, clustering drivers of threat to provide key messages to the societal sectors with the greatest impacts, and celebrating cases of conservation success. It is important that positive messages be included to help create the optimistic social movement that will enable change. The brochure will be produced in line with the Commission's visual identity guidelines. It will have broad appeal and will be used to communicate with policymakers and the interested public. It will also be an important communication tool for the media and will provide DG Environment with a very useful tool that can be widely distributed to other DGs and stakeholders, and used in awareness-raising campaigns. The brochures will be delivered in print (1 500 copies) as well as in electronic formats (Word and PDF).

This three-year preparatory action will have a total budget of EUR 2 400 000.

Remarks

This pilot project will assess technical solutions for opening a migration route for sturgeon to pass the Iron Gate hydropower dams I and II on the Danube River on the border between Romania and Serbia. Considering the size of the dams (the largest on the River Danube), the size of the fish (up to 7 metres in length) and the surrounding rocky terrain, this is an extraordinary engineering challenge requiring a solution with a high degree of innovation, tailored to local circumstances.

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 56 (cont'd)

Restoring sturgeon migration aids is highlighted as a flagship project under the Sturgeon Strategy of the International Commission for the Protection of the Danube River (ICPDR) as well as in the Action Plan of the EU Strategy for the Danube Region with a view to improving the conservation status of the Danube sturgeon. The flagship project also contributes to the implementation of the pan-European Action Plan for the Conservation of the Sturgeon under the Bern Convention, to which the Union is a party.

This pilot project will prepare a sound and comprehensive technical feasibility study for facilitating sturgeon migration including:

- 1) concept/pre-design for potential technical options for upstream and downstream fish passage restoration, including comparison of advantages and disadvantages (restrictions), cost estimates, risks (technical, financial) and identification of the next steps required for an outline design, including structural design, technical components design and operational concept;
- 2) hydraulic modelling;
- 3) concept for an implementation strategy (the sequence of structure implementation, e.g. a step-by-step process following a learning-by-doing approach, i.e. an adaptive fishway design approach);
- 4) identification of feasible management alternatives, in particular for downstream fish protection (e.g. turbine management, trap and transport) – both short-term and long-term;
- 5) field surveys necessary to fill knowledge gaps not covered by ongoing studies (non-existing data or outdated data);
- 6) concept for fishway evaluation/monitoring;
- 7) update of funding concept;
- 8) review of technical concepts by peer reviewers/fishway experts.

These components of the technical Feasibility Study will cost some EUR 2 000 000. The ICPDR as well as the competent national authorities of Romania and Serbia will be closely involved in the implementation of the study.

The activities to be implemented could be redesigned to avoid possible overlaps with ongoing work.

Funding for this project is currently not provided for in any Union programme.

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 56 (cont'd)

There is no ready-to-apply design for this kind of fish pass and the innovative solution funded under this project will thus be a paradigm for designing comparable fish passes on other, large European rivers. Similar challenges to that of making Iron Gate I and II passable for large fish (e.g. large scale, high discharge, variable water levels in the reservoir) are also encountered around the Baltic Sea, where large dams on the Vistula (Poland), the Neman (Lithuania) and the Daugava (Latvia) rivers hinder fish migration and sturgeon reintroduction programmes. Other examples are the Gabčíkovo dam as well as larger dams on the Tisza and Drava in the Danube basin, on the Evros in Bulgaria and Greece, and rivers on the Iberian Peninsula, for example on the Guadalquivir, a former sturgeon river. Finding fish migration solutions for all these rivers would be an important contribution to implementation of the EU Water Framework Directive.

Passages for sturgeon on large dams only exist in Russia on the Volga and Kuban rivers and in the United States on the Connecticut and Columbia rivers. Experience gathered with these facilities should be taken into account, but will not answer all questions. One of the best known and most successful examples of fish passes for sturgeon in Europe is at Geesthacht in Germany, but there the weir is only 4,5 m high, whereas Iron Gate I is 60 m high.

In addition, this pilot project will also involve Serbian water management stakeholders, thereby helping them learn how to comply with the environmental acquis.

In order to ensure the sustainability and efficiency of those successful actions, the pilot project should continue as a preparatory action.

Remarks

The main objective of the preparatory action is to turn the European drought observatory into an organisation with institutional capacity and human and material resources, so that a university network, R&D units, companies from the productive sector and civil society can operate efficiently and effectively.

This European observatory will carry out research into the origins and consequences of droughts.

The aim is also to combine human resources and scientific and technical knowledge in order to provide information (analysis of statistics and trends) and methodologies for handling and adapting productive resources to the realities and needs of each region and each specific agricultural production type, and to provide assistance and advisory service support to the Member States and regions affected by drought.

Remarks

Landcare initiatives are characterised by close cooperation between conservationists, farmers and local communities. Their aim is to preserve the diversity of European landscapes and their biodiversity, and to provide support for the further sustainable development of rural economies. Cooperative nature conservation efforts on the basis of landcare principles currently exist in six Member States (France, Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Romania and Spain) and a start is currently being made on similar approaches in other Member States (e.g. Lithuania and Czechia).

Actively improving how Union nature directives are implemented provides the setting within which landcare initiatives are taking place. The project will promote the relevant CAP measures, including measures for farmland birds and Natura 2000 site management, and work to include all relevant measures/goals in the CAP strategic plans and the prioritised action frameworks. In addition, implementation of the Water Framework Directive is considered an important factor for the project and for implementation of Union nature legislation.

To achieve these goals in the regions on the ground, the participating organisations are carrying out a broad range of activities in support of various stakeholders in relevant rural areas in order to secure conservation measures from a structural perspective.

The main working areas for implementation of Union nature legislation involve:

- offering additional sources of income for land users through landcare measures, e.g. agri-environmental measures that preserve landscapes and biodiversity,

CHAPTER 07 02 — ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY AT UNION AND INTERNATIONAL LEVEL (cont'd)07 02 77 (cont'd)07 02 77 59 (cont'd)

- marketing high quality regional products (e.g. from Natura 2000 sites),
- supporting rural tourism,
- creating jobs, and
- fostering regional identities.

Experience so far shows that the landcare approach improves implementation of Union nature directives by enhancing local biodiversity, preserving cultural landscapes and improving quality of life for people in rural areas. In line with the Action Plan for nature, people and the economy, these developments promote smarter participatory approaches and strengthen full involvement of landowners and users.

There should therefore be efforts to intensify contact and exchange of experiences within the European landcare initiatives and organisations. In recent years, a start has been made on pooling experience among various European landcare initiatives, which have benefited from those contacts. During mutual visits and workshops, new approaches for better implementation of Union environment/nature and farming policies have been developed; but today it is essential to strengthen this cooperation at European level so as to boost the long-term benefit for rural development and nature.

This project will involve both existing and new partners so that they learn from defined key factors and practical experience. They will be able to participate in workshops and at a European conference. The project will therefore ultimately help foster European partnerships and strengthen the Union. Accordingly, five workshops with successful partners will be run in order to define key factors for cooperative nature conservation. The key factors will be summarised in a multilingual publication and presented at a final European conference on 'Landcare Europe – cooperative nature conservation to benefit man and nature'. New landcare movements can use this to improve their work on the ground.

The central goal of the project is to promote better implementation of Union directives, such as the Habitats Directive and the Water Framework Directive, and the impact of the common agricultural policy on cultural landscapes in various Member States. Feedback and suggestions will be summarised and delivered to the Commission as well as to the respective ministries in the Member States. This will also foster the transfer of knowledge and practical experiences from one country to another and the development of suitable programmes if necessary.

In addition to implementation of Union nature conservation directives, further topics will be discussed that are not directly related to everyday landcare work in Europe, with the aim of finding solutions and learning from tried-and-tested practices:

- questions of coexistence with large carnivores in rural areas;

- lessons learnt and conclusions for the restoration of habitats for farmland birds and participation in the new contract relating to farmland birds;
- on the basis of experience gained and suggestions emerging from landcare initiatives in Europe, the pilot project will contribute to updating guidance on Natura 2000 and farmland;
- conclusions will also feed in to action to promote several deliverables under the Action Plan for nature;
- experiences and lessons learnt can also feed in to biogeographical networking events, etc.

The special value of landcare initiative collaboration is that, in the process, a bridge is built between nature conservation, land users and local communities. Therefore, Union policy targets can be better achieved and a pro-European atmosphere can be promoted in rural areas.

Remarks

These budgetary remarks are applicable to all the budget lines in this chapter.

This appropriation will be used for Horizon 2020 — the Framework Programme for Research and Innovation, which covers the 2014-2020 period and brings together all existing Union research and innovation funding, including the framework programme for research, the innovation related activities of the competitiveness and innovation framework programme and the European Institute of Innovation and Technology (EIT). The programme shall play a central role in the implementation of the Europe 2020 flagship initiative 'Innovation Union' and other flagship initiatives, notably 'A digital agenda for Europe', 'Resource-efficient Europe' and 'An industrial policy for the globalisation era', as well as in the development and functioning of the European Research Area (ERA). Horizon 2020 shall contribute to building an economy based on knowledge and innovation across the whole Union by leveraging sufficient additional research, development and innovation funding. This appropriation will be used also for the completion of the previous research programmes (Seventh Framework Programme and preceding framework programmes).

This appropriation will be used in accordance with the Regulation (EU) No 1290/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 December 2013 laying down the rules for the participation and dissemination in 'Horizon 2020 — the Framework Programme for Research and Innovation (2014-2020)' and repealing Regulation (EC) No 1906/2006 (OJ L 347, 20.12.2013, p. 81).

The aim of this activity is to help companies and other types of organisation engaged in research and innovation (R & I) to gain easier access, via financial instruments, to loans, guarantees, counter-guarantees and hybrid, mezzanine and equity finance. Debt and equity facilities will be run in a demand-driven manner, though the priorities of particular sectors or of other Union programmes will be targeted if top-up funding is made available. The focus is on attracting private investments into R & I. The European Investment Bank (EIB) and the European Investment Fund (EIF) will play an important role, as entrusted entities, in implementing each financial instrument facility on behalf of and in partnership with the Commission. Part of this appropriation will be used to reinforce, in the form of paid-in capital, the EIF's capital base.

Revenues and repayment from financial instruments, paid back to the Commission and entered in Items 6 4 1 0 and 6 4 1 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with Article 21(5) of the Financial Regulation.

TITLE 08 — RESEARCH AND INNOVATION

08 02 03 Societal challenges

Remarks

This priority of Horizon 2020 responds directly to the policy priorities and societal challenges identified in the Europe 2020 strategy. Those activities will be implemented using a challenge-based approach which brings together resources and knowledge across different fields, technologies and disciplines. The activities will cover the full cycle from research to market, with a new focus on innovation-related activities such as piloting, demonstration, test beds, support for public procurement, design, end-user driven innovation, social innovation and market take-up of innovations. The activities will support directly the corresponding sectoral policy competences at Union level and take a gender-sensitive approach while aiming for balanced participation of men and women.

Remarks

Lifelong health and well-being for all, high-quality and economically sustainable health and care systems, with health care becoming more personalised for more efficacy, and opportunities for new jobs and growth in the health sector and its related industries are the aims of this activity. Consequently, actions will focus on effective health promotion and disease prevention (e.g. understanding the determinants of health, developing better preventive vaccines). Particular attention will be paid to gender- and age-related health specificities. In addition, emphasis will be placed on managing, treating and curing disease (notably via an increased personalisation of medicine), including fighting cancer, disability and reduced functionality (e.g. by transferring knowledge to clinical practice and scalable innovation actions, better use of health data, independent and assisted living). Furthermore, efforts will be made to improve decision-making in prevention and treatment provision, identify and support the dissemination of best practice in the health care sector, and support integrated care and the uptake of technological, organisational and social innovations empowering in particular older persons as well as disabled persons to remain active and independent. Finally, actions will be based on a gender-sensitive approach that recognises, amongst other things, the position of women in both the informal and the formal care sector.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

The Commission invests in biomedical research and development through its Horizon 2020 Research Framework Programme under Societal Challenge 1 on health, demographic change and wellbeing, the primary objective of which is 'improving the lifelong health and well-being of all'. However, the Commission's biomedical research and development policy has been criticised for failing to ensure a fair public return on its investments: both the Council conclusions of 17 June 2016 on strengthening the balance in the pharmaceutical systems in the EU and its Member States and the European Parliament resolution of 2 March 2017 on EU options for improving access to medicines (Texts adopted, P8-TA(2017)0061)) have stressed the need to ensure that public investments in research and development yield a fair return to ensure that the medical innovations supported by public investment focus on public health interests and the unmet medical needs of patients.

In order to ensure that public biomedical investments in research and development deliver the above-mentioned objectives of Horizon 2020 and ensure a fair return, it is crucial that a corresponding monitoring mechanism to measure the socio-economic impact be put in place. However, it is widely acknowledged that there is a huge time lag (estimated 17 years) before health research evidence reaches clinical practice, let alone generates measurable health impacts. It is therefore of the utmost importance to define what the notion of a 'fair return on public investment' implies for Union biomedical investments, especially for Union-financed public-private partnerships, in terms of directly observable/measurable indicators. With such benchmarks and metrics to quantify 'fair return' developed, the social impact of medical research and development projects would be considered at the stage where the projects are being scoped out and decisions are being made on the allocation of resources, which in turn would help to ensure the desired social impact of Union medical research and development projects and guarantee a fair return on public investments.

This pilot project seeks to address the above-mentioned concerns of the European public and Union institutions by creating a 'fair return' benchmark. With actual health impacts decades away and adequate monitoring mechanisms not yet in place, a benchmark for a 'fair return' on the Union's public investment is urgently needed. To that effect, this benchmark will define what a 'fair' public return for the Union's public investments implies for:

- priority allocation of research and development funding,
- the design of projects, including the expected health and other socio-economic impacts.

CHAPTER 08 03 — EURATOM PROGRAMME — INDIRECT ACTIONS (cont'd)Remarks

The Euratom research and training programme (2014-2018) ('Euratom Programme') complements Horizon 2020 in the field of nuclear research and training. Its general objective is to pursue nuclear research and training activities with an emphasis on continually improving nuclear safety and radiation protection, notably to contribute to the long-term decarbonisation of the energy system in a safe, efficient and secure way. By supporting this research, the Euratom Programme shall reinforce outcomes under the three priorities of Horizon 2020: excellent science, industrial leadership, and societal challenges.

The indirect actions of the Euratom Programme are focused on two areas: nuclear fission, safety and radiation protection, and fusion research and development programme.

Any revenue from the contributions from candidate countries and, if applicable, the Western Balkan potential candidates for participating in Union programmes entered in Item 6 0 3 1 of the statement of revenue may give rise to the provision of additional appropriations in accordance with points (b), (e) and (f) of Article 21(2) of the Financial Regulation.

08 03 01 Operational expenditure for the Euratom ProgrammeRemarks

The scope of the Euratom Programme for indirect actions includes nuclear fission safety and radiation protection as well as the fusion research and development which aim to ensure the success of the ITER project while enabling Europe to reap its benefits. It will reinforce outcomes under the three priorities of Horizon 2020: excellent science, industrial leadership and societal challenges.

The programme covers two thematic areas:

Fusion research, which includes activities that range from basic research to technology development, construction of major projects and training and education activities. It offers the prospect of an almost limitless supply of clean energy, with ITER being the crucial next step in the progress towards this ultimate goal. The realisation of the ITER project therefore lies at the heart of the present Union strategy. It must be accompanied by a strong and focused European research and development programme on fusion to prepare for the exploitation of ITER and to develop the technologies and knowledge base that will be needed during ITER operation and beyond.

Fission research, which aims to establish a sound scientific and technical basis in order to accelerate practical developments for the safer management of long-lived radioactive waste, to promote safer, more resource-efficient and cost-effective nuclear energy and to ensure a robust and socially acceptable system of protection of man and the environment against the effects of radiation.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

This pilot project provides financial support for Union research into the most promising and environmentally friendly steelmaking technology which could almost completely eliminate CO₂ emissions by replacing carbon with hydrogen, and by capturing, storing and processing any remaining CO₂ produced through more advanced and cost-efficient standard industrial techniques, and by deploying cutting-edge bio-industrial technologies, such as bio-sequestration and integrated CO₂ bio-refineries. This holistic approach seeks to achieve zero CO₂ emissions in steel production by maximising the complementarity of advanced versions of these technologies.

The first step – identifying technical barriers for upscaling carbon direct avoidance techniques (via hydrogen and electric steelmaking) and smart carbon usage (via process integration and carbon capture utilisation) – has been initiated under the Research Fund for Coal and Steel (RFCS) as a feasibility study which may lead in 2020 to a wider European innovation initiative.

This pilot project will explore synergies between the RFCS, Horizon 2020, the innovation fund created by Directive 2003/87/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 October 2003 establishing a system for greenhouse gas emission allowance trading within the Union and amending Council Directive 96/61/EC (OJ L 275, 25.10.2003, p. 32), the Fuel Cells and Hydrogen 2 Joint Undertaking (FCH 2 JU) and the Bio-Based Industries Joint Undertaking (BBI JU), as well as other relevant Union funding instruments in order to promote the establishment of an industrial steelmaking pilot plant with zero CO₂ emissions and its potential linkage to an integrated CO₂ bio-refinery.

Legal basis

Pilot project within the meaning of Article 58(2) of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2018/1046 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 July 2018 on the financial rules applicable to the general budget of the Union, amending Regulations (EU) No 1296/2013, (EU) No 1301/2013, (EU) No 1303/2013, (EU) No 1304/2013, (EU) No 1309/2013, (EU) No 1316/2013, (EU) No 223/2014, (EU) No 283/2014, and Decision No 541/2014/EU and repealing Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 966/2012 (OJ L 193, 30.7.2018, p. 1).

New technologies are dramatically and constantly changing the dynamics of opinion-making and the media landscape. While they allow easy distribution of information of public interest to wider audiences, fostering pluralism, the way in which information is created, searched for and distributed online may accentuate polarisation, exposing individuals to news, sources and ideas that match their stated preferences. This can significantly reduce the scope for encountering and debating opposing viewpoints and, as such, may pose a risk to media pluralism and democracy itself. As the impact of online information is growing, citizens are increasingly forming their opinions through information distributed online. This poses severe risks to effective pluralism when that information is false or is 'misinformation' or 'disinformation'. While some policy responses to proliferation of misinformation call on online intermediaries and social media platforms to adopt self-regulatory measures to limit the circulation of false and fake information, it is evident that entrusting those private companies with filtering information online may lead to a limiting of freedom of expression too.

This preparatory action supports the development of a study on a set of indicators to measure the risks to media pluralism in the online environment. The Union has already invested resources in devising a media pluralism monitor that can assess risks to media pluralism and freedom. This comprehensive tool has proved effective and useful for assessing risks to media pluralism at country level. It is of the utmost importance that the methodology of that tool should be reusable for a new monitor that fully takes into account the online dimension of pluralism. The preparatory action will map the threats to information pluralism online, create a tool to assess the risks to pluralism online and test it in the 28 Member States.

Legal basis

Preparatory action within the meaning of Article 58(2) of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2018/1046 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 July 2018 on the financial rules applicable to the general budget of the Union, amending Regulations (EU) No 1296/2013, (EU) No 1301/2013, (EU) No 1303/2013, (EU) No 1304/2013, (EU) No 1309/2013, (EU) No 1316/2013, (EU) No 223/2014, (EU) No 283/2014, and Decision No 541/2014/EU and repealing Regulation (EU, Euratom) No 966/2012 (OJ L 193, 30.7.2018, p. 1).

Remarks

With the deterioration of press and media freedom in Member States and candidate countries showing a worrying trend, this pan-European rapid response mechanism on violations of media freedom should provide tangible protection to journalists including fact-finding, advocacy, monitoring, informing the European public and awareness-raising.

The right to freedom of expression needs strong defence to protect democracy, strengthen public discourse and guarantee an enabling environment for investigative and independent journalists. Hence, it is crucial to set up a pan-European response mechanism on violations of press and media freedom.

This mechanism will make violations visible and provide practical help to journalists under threat, in collaboration with European, regional and local stakeholders in the field of media freedom. Practical help must encompass tools to protect journalists under threat: providing direct advice and legal support as well as offering shelter and assistance so they can continue their profession. Delegates will be sent to countries affected and advocacy will support fighting impunity. Monitoring of the situation provides reliable and comprehensive information for the public as well as European authorities. This promotes awareness-raising and allows early warnings. Instruments will be adjusted according to individual needs on a case-by-case basis. This unique toolkit contained in the rapid response mechanism will prevent further violations and will improve press and media freedom.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the preparatory action.

This preparatory action builds on the 'European research grants for journalistic investigations, #IJ4EU' project. Maintaining quality journalism and especially investigative journalism, which is a particularly resource-intensive genre, has become more difficult in the changing media landscape. The preparatory action will strengthen the European public sphere and help create a European public discourse. In this context, the Commission issued an open call for proposals for an independent body to implement consecutive rounds of grants supporting journalistic investigations involving journalists from at least two Member States so as to ensure maximum independence and journalistic freedom. Results will be published in at least the Member States involved.

The murders of Daphne Caruana and Ján Kuciak show that the work of investigative journalists is becoming increasingly difficult and that in the current political context, and amid the changing media landscape, not only political and legal support, but also continued financial support from the Union is essential.

Remarks

This appropriation is intended to cover commitments remaining to be settled from previous years under the pilot project.

While digital services have been increasingly developed and deployed by public administrations, their accessing and using them are still uneven both across and within countries in Europe. One reason for that is the limited scope of one-stop-shop platforms that are sufficiently user-friendly for citizens and business.

Distributed ledger technologies (DLTs) can provide a response to this challenge by supporting the integration of different services, ranging from identity and document exchange management to processing information flows and ensuring maintenance of repositories and registries.

DLTs can do that without the need for a central validation function and in a secure mode, which shortens processing time, encourages process automation and reduces the scope for errors and fraud. In addition, information can be securely processed in compliance with the principles set out in Regulation (EU) 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 April 2016 on the protection of natural persons with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data, and repealing Directive 95/46/EC (General Data Protection Regulation) (OJ L 119, 4.5.2016, p. 1) and on the basis of privacy-by-design computation processes.

While DLTs are being increasingly adopted in different domains, take-up of them in public administration is lagging behind because of the relative immaturity of the technology solutions and a lack of experimentation specifically addressing the need to offer service platforms to citizens.

This pilot project involves the creation of a small-scale digital public administration platform based on DLTs in order to provide integrated public services to users on the basis of key components such as digital identify management, notarised services and secure document exchange management. The platform will be based on the reuse of open source components supported by collaboration mechanisms with the blockchain community. The pilot project will assess the technical feasibility of such a service platform and its usability and performance. It will also assess its potential for reuse across different public administrations in Europe, with a view to creating the basis for a blockchain-based European public administration infrastructure.

Digitalisation is a major current and future challenge in Europe. However, it also represents an opportunity for the creation of new job types. These require in many cases programming skills which should be further promoted among young people, since they are often not part of school curricula. The Union should encourage young people to take an interest in technology and programming and help to develop their skills in order to prepare them for the future job market.

Organising a programming contest at Union level will have the following advantages:

- promoting an interest in programming and technologies and related skills,
- providing an incentive for young people to develop programming skills through game-based learning,
- promoting the European idea.

Framework of the programming contest:

- the contest should be implemented in the context of the EU Code Week 2019 and 2020, with the Union's objective being to involve at least 50 % of schools in the Union and Western Balkans by 2020; EU Code Week provides an existing infrastructure and context,
- a special initiative should be set up (possibly called a 'createathon') for talented young people who could be given tasks such as developing an app,

- a basic course in programming should be provided in this context at Member State level,
- the contest should cooperate with industry with a view to gaining first-hand experience of programming activities.

Remarks

The pilot project will provide dedicated Union grants for small-scale online media wishing to develop fact-checking capabilities, fact-checkers and academics for the development and dissemination of innovative solutions, including fostering collaboration between fact-checking organisations, media and universities. The support provided will not affect the independence of the organisations which receive it.

The pilot project will support Commission efforts in tackling online disinformation and in promoting media innovation in the wider context of the digital single market. It will facilitate and complement the objectives and actions provided for in the communication on 'Tackling online disinformation: a European Approach' and in the action plan on disinformation. In particular, the pilot project will facilitate the creation of national multidisciplinary teams, to be made up of media practitioners, fact-checkers and academic researchers. This will complement the Connecting Europe Facility programme, which provides infrastructure (European Platform on Disinformation) to foster cooperation at European level between national multidisciplinary teams.

The pilot project will also complement Commission support for the development of a code of practice. This includes enabling fact-checkers and academics, while maintaining their independence, to develop traceability, accountability and reliable indicators for source transparency, and to continuously monitor the scale, techniques, tools, nature and impact of disinformation. Moreover, the pilot project will support the development and testing of emerging technologies, including artificial intelligence to identify disinformation and technologies enabling customisable online experience, which could provide users with tools to identify and report disinformation.

The actions supported by the pilot project will build on the preparatory action on Media Literacy for All by complementing it and by focusing not on citizens but on media actors. The pilot project will support Commission initiatives to promote media freedom and pluralism and quality news media and journalism.

Remarks

Social media have revolutionised economies and societies. After only 15 years, the benefits of long-distance communication at close to zero costs are being enjoyed and a number of new business opportunities have emerged in many sectors, ranging from advertising and marketing to social sciences.

Over the last few years, the challenges that have also been posed have had to be dealt with: privacy concerns, an imbalance between digital and non-digital aspects of life, a lack of understanding of how social media work, dissemination of illegal or hateful content and, lastly, manipulation of citizen perception.

Manipulation of citizen perception has been the subject of a number of academic studies, which have shown that tinkering with a social media newsfeed can affect and influence the mood, choices and reactions of individuals. This was brought to light even more after the 2016 revelation that Cambridge Analytica used data collected from Facebook accounts to attempt to manipulate voters in the US elections and the Brexit referendum.

This pilot project will build on the work carried out by the Commission's Platform Observatory and fake-news initiatives and the European Science and Media Hub of the European Parliament. It will monitor, identify, study and eventually tackle attempts to manipulate user perception.

This work will focus on negative messages and how to tackle them and could also develop a pan-European certification scheme for anti-hoax initiatives, which could facilitate the Commission's efforts, as there are a number of fact-checker and anti-hoax websites operating across the Union but their reliability could sometimes be questioned. A checklist leading to certification could be a cost-effective solution for the Union and Member State authorities.

Remarks

For the medium and long term, cities across the Union should implement on a large scale the concept of autonomous/driverless electric cars, helping them to promote a better and green urban mobility policy for their citizens, tourists, other relevant stakeholders and the environment. This pilot project will involve a set of integrated actions in at least 10 cities (pilot cities), of various sizes, in different Member States, including congested urban centres and key neighbourhoods, tourist destinations, including fortresses, thematic amusement parks and resorts, airports, educational campuses, large hospitals, etc. The project will ensure a sound geographical balance between cities which are spread over Member States (north, south, east, west, centre), between wealthier and poorer cities, and between big or small to medium-sized cities. Drawing on strong political will and on competent administrative and technical capacity, action will be taken to test autonomous vehicles and customise a future initiative that turns the pilot phase into a communitarian one.

The project will combine, in an integrated manner, the acquisition of small driverless electric shuttle buses with a capacity of 15 people, including access for people with disabilities, which offer more, efficient and smart mobility for pilot cities and private sites.

The shuttles will draw on data from LIDAR sensors, cameras, GPS facilities, real-time kinetic positioning sources, IMU sensors and odometry, which will be merged and interpreted by in-depth learning programmes, using artificial intelligence and high-speed connectivity.

Acquisition will be complemented by intensive educational campaigns promoted through social media channels in city halls, schools, universities, tourist information centres, housing associations, unions etc. The goal is to develop a robust urban mentality that is geared to using this alternative transport model, enhance the importance of green mobility alternatives in the European urban environment, and to visibly promote the Commission's financial support. At the end of the pilot project, a lessons-learned guide will be produced and delivered publicly in all the official languages of the Union. It will be disseminated via relevant official channels (e.g. association of municipalities in every Member State, relevant umbrella networks for local government, tourist destinations, and transport unions). Public events (e.g. press conferences) and practical demonstrations will be held at the European Parliament, the Committee of the Regions and the Commission and in every pilot city.

The shuttles will be fitted with smart facilities (e.g. digital displays) providing relevant information about journeys, destinations, carbon footprint and educational messages about the importance of living in a green urban environment; they will measure air quality in real time, using sensors, and communicate arrivals and departures at stations, using audio and digital displayed messages; they will provide passengers with free wi-fi. During the pilot project, use of shuttles will be free of charge. The operational costs necessary for optimum functioning will be covered by the projects and warranties offered by the company winning a public tender for delivering the shuttles.

Another fundamental argument is that, by delivering tangible results, this kind of pilot project will create a scalable model usable for different cities across the Union, with different and specific mobility needs. Its results will help municipalities and other relevant stakeholders (including private operators) to prepare their future mobility projects that could be funded by the Commission and national governments during the next allocation period (2021–2024) through regional operational programmes and other programmes supporting Union's cohesion policy. They will become more aware of costs, safety and security requirements, logistics, maintenance costs, and affordability considerations. Cities could adapt and adopt new local decisions and policies for smart urban mobility, enhancing the importance of using integrated urban alternative modes, with mobility as a service facility and fleets of efficiently used green vehicles that are adapted in a proper urban environment.

Remarks

Digital technology has lowered the entry cost to mass media and opened up a tightly regulated market to a whole range of new players. As, however, the business model of traditional media is disintegrating in the process, a trend towards concentration of ownership can be observed. While the internet remains a technological tool for accessing an unlimited variety of offerings, market failures, regulatory shortcomings and the nature of algorithmic news distribution lead to significant limitations of media pluralism, which is an important precondition for the freedom of information and expression.

Transparency of media ownership is therefore considered a key prerequisite for safeguarding those freedoms. It elevates the general public's level of media literacy and enables meaningful concentration control and regulatory action.

The pilot project will:

- create publicly available, searchable databases for up to six European countries in the relevant languages to provide profiles of the most relevant media outlets that shape public opinion, as well as of the corporate entities and individuals behind them. The methodology selecting the sample, and for data research, analysis and presentation, will be based on an existing methodology that is well documented, has already been tested and implemented elsewhere in the world and can thus be considered a widely accepted and legitimate instrument in this field;
- feature a narrative part to accompany the database and contextualise the county-specific environment in which media operate, including a detailed legal assessment based on a widely applied template to allow for comparative global analysis;
- include the measurement, computation and publication of up to 10 indicators of risks to media pluralism in the legal, economic and technical domains, based on a reliable and tested methodology that builds on the existing work of the Media Pluralism Monitor in this field;
- publish and promote findings and the use thereof by means of the online resource itself, but also through supporting actions, such as launch events and press conferences.

This pilot project will run for two years.

Remarks

The pilot project supporting media councils in the digital age so as to enhance trust in media and address disinformation issues has been turned into a preparatory action, given its crucial importance and benefits. This will enable these independent self-regulation mechanisms to be sustainable, which is a precondition for their success. In order to protect media freedom and pluralism and to promote professionalism as regards journalistic content, the preparatory action will bring about a better understanding of the consequences and challenges of digital developments through a press council forum and, in parallel, support the transition of media self-regulatory bodies into the online world, and engage them in discussions with internet intermediaries and internet media stakeholders.

Activities:

- conducting a survey with a view to an in-depth examination of the state of and models for media self-regulation in the digital environment and to creating clarity as to how to achieve, in a converged media environment, the traditional goals of media regulation (i.e. a pluralistic and diverse media landscape in which the media benefit from independence from political, commercial and other influences and are accountable to the public);
- developing the first online database on the current functioning of media self-regulatory bodies and promoting the work of press councils in Europe;
- developing a pan-EU working group on the digital challenges so as to apply the recommendations emerging from the survey;
- providing direct support to newly established press councils in Europe;
- including press and media councils in a global dialogue on media ethics in the digital age (participation at global internet conferences, etc.);
- organising regular meetings with internet intermediaries with the aim of achieving online recognition of media content already under the supervision of a press council.

Remarks

Paediatric cancers are a collection of diverse rare diseases that together represent individually life-threatening diseases and collectively a major public health issue. With 35 000 new cases and more than 6 000 children and young people dying each year in Europe, paediatric cancer remains the leading cause of death from disease for children and adolescents. Moreover, there are more than 300 000 European childhood cancer survivors (nearly half a million by 2020). Two thirds of survivors live with the long-term treatment-related side effects that can be severe and impact on the daily life of half of those affected.

The effective implementation of machine-learning and AI technologies can bring solutions for many societal challenges, including improved diagnostic and treatment pathways. Integrated healthcare and research data platforms that collate information on clinical phenotypes, diagnostic tests (including pathology, genomics and radiological imaging), treatment interventions and clinical outcomes will be powerful tools for early and accurate diagnoses, enable precision in stratification of patient cohorts according to therapeutic needs, and facilitate development of new therapeutic innovation.

The particularity of paediatric cancers being rare diseases necessitates a collaborative approach to collate and integrate the data collected in all Member States, including best practices and new technologies in order to further develop common solutions. The use of big data for better insights into cancer genesis, outcomes and the long-term side effects of treatments is currently underdeveloped. AI and machine learning are future tools to digest complex data sets and foster precision cancer medicine for all young people in Europe.

Further advances in the diagnosis and treatment of paediatric oncology will require multinational, multidisciplinary integrated healthcare and research data platforms allowing real-world data simulations of machine-learning algorithms and AI that can be exploited in data-driven clinical decision support applications directly benefiting patients.

The pilot project will support research in AI technologies with precise application for diagnosis and treatment of paediatric cancers.

The pilot project will follow a two-stage approach:

1. Development of multinational approaches to facilitate capture of data from multiple sources. Building on existing multidisciplinary platforms and datasets, developing integrated healthcare and research data platforms that collate clinical data, including, for example, clinical history, relevant diagnostic tests (pathology, genomics, radiological imaging), treatment interventions and clinical outcomes for childhood cancers, connecting all relevant stakeholders from paediatric oncology and technology developers.
2. Development of applications using AI technologies to improve disease diagnosis, management, and the development of effective therapies: utilising integrated healthcare and research data platforms to develop clinically relevant machine-learning and AI technology applications. The pilot project may focus on one or more applications, including in connection with radiological imaging, digital pathology, integrated genotyping and outcome prediction algorithms and clinical decision making.

The Centre for Innovation and Civic Imagination (CICI) is an instrument for social innovation, communication, research and promotion, as well as a forum for discussion and information for citizens, the public and experts in various fields. The CICI also aims to become a permanent laboratory in which to develop and test different forms of collaboration between city actors in order to support participatory practice and promote discussions on urban innovation projects. It manages analysis processes, develops pilot projects for the community and seeks to solve the city's pressing problems and plan future projects, and identify complementary functions in relation to the current dynamics of the city. One of the particularities of the CICI is the effective organisation of open meetings and innovation methodologies recommended by the Commission, using the concept of the quadruple helix (addressing themes for analysis with the participation of experts in public administration location, academics, the business environment and the NGO sector), or even the quintuple helix model, by involving the citizen - a direct beneficiary of measures aimed at increasing the quality of life in the city. The CICI coordinates and guides complex networks of participatory governance.

This preparatory action will emphasise the proactivity of citizens vis-à-vis local government and stress the importance of their participation in the decision-making process.

Remarks

The preparatory action will establish a European platform of regions on Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Big Data (BD) so as to enhance public administration efficiency and user-centred services. The rapid integration of digital technologies poses a number of challenges for national, regional and local governments. An important aspect of this transformation concerns the expectations of citizens and businesses about their interaction with governments. This requires the digital transformation of governments to rise to the challenge.

Public administrations need to change the way they work and organise themselves. They have to ensure the skills needed to use new digital tools; they need to work collaboratively and engage with citizens and businesses.

The Union's vision is to make public administration open, interoperable, efficient, inclusive, borderless and user-friendly by providing a new digital environment for public services. In its Communication of 19 April 2016 entitled 'EU eGovernment Action Plan 2016-2020: Accelerating the digital transformation of government (COM(2016) 179 final) and Communication of 14 September 2016 entitled 'Connectivity for a Competitive Digital Single Market – Towards a European Gigabit society (COM(2016) 587 final), the Commission considers that digital transformation of public administration is the key to a successful Digital Single Market.

The Union's common effort includes a consistent legal basis, policies and financing programmes for digital interoperability and innovative solutions for public administrations.

However, there is a need for a Union tool to support a platform of regions able to address digital transformation of public administration across Europe.

AI and BD are driving a new social and economic paradigm in Europe and beyond. Regions need to be part of the process as the level of government closest to citizens.

Use of AI and BD by public administrations has increased, demonstrating great potential in a broad range of sectors - from mobility to environmental monitoring and geophysical simulations, and from smart power grids to personalised healthcare. A European platform of regions will contribute to exchanging and developing common responses and solutions. European regions can provide significant input into making public administration systems more efficient and capable of generating public value and delivering better public services.

A move towards a European platform of regions for digital transformation has already started, proving that regional engagement represents added value for the digital single market objectives to modernise public administration and reduce the digital divide. To that end, two European high-level seminars have been organised in Brussels, on digital transformation of public administration, with the participation of European regions, businesses and the Commission - (DG DIGIT, DG CONNECT, DG ECOFIN and the Secretary-General). The meetings have been promoted by the Regional Government of Emilia-Romagna, with the involvement of Hessen, Catalonia, Flanders, Wallonia, Ile-de-France, Nouvelle-Aquitaine and Trondheim and, from the business side, IT and AI providers. Emilia-Romagna hosts the European Centre for Medium-Range Weather Forecasts, has been selected to be a European HPC Supercomputing Centre and is establishing an international foundation on BD and AI for human development.

Objectives and activities

The digital transformation Platform of European Regions will:

- share knowledge on Union, national and regional legislation and regulatory frameworks so as to enhance the use of AI and BD,
- share models to enhance strategic drivers towards digitalisation, in particular infrastructures, data and services, digital skills and communities,

- improve sharing of data sets and knowledge on AI and BD applications for public services,
- enhance the AI and BD skills and capabilities of civil servants,
- develop and share new ways of working, including smart working.

Specifically, the preparatory action will focus on the following activities:

- establishment of the platform of regions for AI and BD, connecting regional governments, ICT agencies, suppliers and enterprises,
- development of pilot testing arrangements in connection with the cultural transformation stemming from the digital workplace and smart working,
- two European hackathons on the use of shared data, standards and interoperability for public administrations,
- two seminars for the co-creation of user-centred public services based on AI and BD,
- peer learning for managers in connection with AI and BD.

The platform will involve a dozen European regions from different Member States.

The preparatory action will complement the ISA2 programme. Specifically, the Join Up platform can contribute to the action.
