P6_TC1-COD(2006)0114

Position of the European Parliament adopted at first reading on 13 February 2007 with a view to the adoption of Decision No …/2007/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council amending and extending Decision No 804/2004/EC establishing a Community action programme to promote activities in the field of the protection of the Community's financial interests (Hercule II programme)

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Article 280 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the Court of Auditors [1],

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty [2],

Whereas:

(1) The Community and the Member States have set themselves the objective of countering fraud and any other illegal activities affecting the Community's financial interests, including cigarette smuggling and counterfeiting. All available means must be deployed to attain that objective, whilst maintaining the current distribution and balance of responsibilities between the national and Community levels.

(2) Activities with the purpose of providing better information, carrying out studies and providing training or technical assistance contribute significantly to improving the protection of the Community's financial interests.

(3) Support for such initiatives in the form of grants has made it possible in the past to enhance the activities of the Community and the Member States in terms of countering fraud and protecting the Community's financial interests, and to achieve the objectives of the Hercule programme for the period 2004 to 2006.

(4) Article 7(a) of Decision No 804/2004/EC [3] requires the Commission to present to the European Parliament and the Council a report by the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) on the implementation of the Hercule programme and the appropriateness of continuing it. The conclusions of this report state that the objectives set by the Hercule programme have been achieved. The report also recommends that the programme be extended for the period 2007 to 2013.

(5) In order to consolidate the activities of the Community and the Member States in the field of the protection of the Community's financial interests, including the fight against cigarette smuggling and counterfeiting, the new programme should cover all operational expenditure relating to the Commission's (OLAF's) general anti-fraud activities in a single basic act.

(6) The awarding of grants and public procurement contracts to promote and implement the programme must be carried out in accordance with the provisions of Council Regulation (EC, Euratom) No 1605/2002 of 25 June 2002 on the Financial Regulation applicable to the general budget of the European Communities [4] and its implementing rules. It is appropriate to exclude operating grants from the programme as they have not been used to support initiatives in the past.

(7) Acceding countries and candidate countries should be able to participate in the Hercule II programme, on the basis of a memorandum of understanding to be drawn up in accordance with the respective framework agreements.

(8) This Decision lays down, for the entire duration of the programme, a financial envelope constituting the prime reference, within the meaning of Point 37 of the Interinstitutional Agreement of 17 May 2006 between the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission on budgetary discipline and sound financial management [1], for the budgetary authority during the annual budgetary procedure,

Position of the European Parliament adopted at first reading on 13 February 2007 with a view to the adoption of Directive 2007/…/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council on waste

(Text with EEA relevance)

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Article 175(1) thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee [1],

Having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions [2],

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty [3],

Whereas:

(1) Directive 2006/12/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 April 2006 on waste [4] establishes the legislative framework for the handling of waste in the Community. It defines key concepts such as waste, recovery and disposal and puts in place the essential requirements for the management of waste, notably the obligation for waste management operations and economic operators to have a permit or to be registered, the obligation for Member States to set up waste management plans and major principles such as the obligation to handle waste in a way that does not have a negative impact on the environment, and the principle that producers of waste should have to pay the cost of its treatment.

(2) The first objective of any waste policy should be to minimise the negative effects of the generation and management of waste on human health and the environment. Waste legislation should also aim at reducing the use of resources, and favour the practical application of the waste hierarchy.

(3) In its Resolution of 24 February 1997 on a Community strategy for waste management [5], the Council confirmed that waste prevention should be the first priority of waste management, and that re-use and material recycling should be preferred to energy recovery of waste, where and insofar as they are the best ecological options.

(3) Position of the European Parliament of 13 February 2007.
(4) OJ L 114, 27.4.2006, p. 9.
(5) OJ C 76, 11.3.1997, p. 1.

(4) The Sixth Community Environment Action Programme laid down by Decision No 1600/2002/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 July 2002 [1] confirmed this orientation in order to achieve a significant overall reduction in the volumes of waste generated and to set targets to be achieved thereafter.

(5) Decision No 1600/2002/EC calls for development or revision of the legislation on wastes, including, inter alia, clarification of the distinction between waste and non-waste and development of adequate criteria for the further elaboration of Annexes IIA and IIB to Directive 2006/12/EC.

(6) The Commission Communication of 27 May 2003 towards a Thematic Strategy on the prevention and recycling of waste noted the need to assess the existing definitions of recovery and disposal, the need for a generally applicable definition of recycling and a debate on the definition of waste.

(7) In its resolution of 20 April 2004 on the abovementioned communication [2], the European Parliament called on the Commission to consider extending Council Directive 96/61/EC of 24 September 1996 concerning integrated pollution prevention and control [3] to the waste sector as a whole. It also asked the Commission to differentiate clearly between recovery and disposal and to clarify the distinction between waste and non-waste.

(8) In its conclusions of 1 July 2004 the Council called on the Commission to bring forward a proposal for a revision of certain aspects of the Directive on waste, in order to clarify the distinction between waste and non-waste and the distinction between recovery and disposal.

(9) It is therefore necessary to revise Directive 2006/12/EC in order to clarify key concepts such as the definitions of waste, recovery and disposal, to strengthen the measures that must be taken on waste prevention, to introduce an approach that takes into account the whole life-cycle of products and materials and not simply the waste phase, and to focus on reducing the environmental impacts of waste generation and waste management, thereby strengthening the economic value of waste. In the interests of clarity and readability, Directive 2006/12/EC should be replaced.

(10) A transformation of the present system of production and consumption is urgently needed, the main objective being to change consumption in a sustainable direction and bring the processes of raw material extraction, production and product design as much into line with natural processes and designs as possible.

(11) Society depends primarily on products made up of a set of different materials, i.e. biological, mineral and synthetic materials, which are often combined to produce composite materials. Such materials should be used and handled in such a way that, when the useful life of the products is over, they do not become useless waste.

(12) Since most significant waste management operations are now covered by Community legislation in the field of environment, it is important that this Directive be adapted to that approach. An emphasis on the environmental objectives laid down in Article 174 of the Treaty would enable a sharper focus upon the environmental impacts of waste generation and waste management throughout the life-cycle of resources. Consequently, the legal basis for this Directive should be Article 175.

(13) Economic instruments, when they are cost effective, have proven to be and should be effective in achieving waste prevention and management objectives. Waste has value as a resource and the further application of economic instruments will maximise environmental benefits. Their use at the appropriate level should therefore be encouraged in this Directive.

(14) Regulation (EC) No 1774/2002 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 3 October 2002 [1] lays down health rules concerning animal by-products not intended for human consumption. It lays down inter alia proportionate controls as regards the processing, use and disposal of all waste of animal origin, preventing it from presenting a risk to animal and public health. It is therefore necessary to clarify the link with that Regulation, avoiding duplication of rules by excluding animal by-products where they are intended for uses that are not considered waste operations.

(15) In the light of the experience gained in applying Regulation (EC) No 1774/2002, it is appropriate to clarify the scope of waste legislation and of its provisions on hazardous waste as regards animal by-products as regulated by Regulation (EC) No 1774/2002. Where animal by-products pose potential health risks the appropriate legal instrument to address these risks is Regulation (EC) No 1774/2002 and overlaps with waste legislation should be avoided.

(16) A definition of re-use should be added in order to clarify the ambit of this operation in the context of EU waste management policy. This definition should be worded so as to cover all operations defined as re-use under existing Community product-specific waste legislation.

(17) A definition of recycling should be added in order to clarify the scope of this concept.

(18) The definitions of recovery and disposal need to be modified in order to ensure a clear distinction between the two concepts, based on a genuine difference in environmental and health impact, and on whether or not the operation leads to substitution of natural resources in the economy, which would be the preferred option. In addition it is necessary to add a corrective mechanism to clarify where the classification of the activity as recovery does not match the real environmental impact of the operation.

(19) In order to clarify certain aspects of the definition of waste, it is necessary to specify when certain wastes are to be deemed to cease to be a waste and to become a secondary material or substance, on a category by category basis. The Commission should present legislative proposals on the criteria for such reclassification and on whether certain waste streams fall within the scope of this Directive.

(20) In order to clarify certain aspects of the definition of waste, it would also be useful to specify when a material or a substance, which is the result of a production or extraction process not primarily aimed at producing it, and which the holder intends not to discard but to exploit, becomes a by-product. The Commission should issue interpretative guidelines on the basis of existing jurisprudence. If this proves insufficient, the Commission should, if appropriate, having had particular regard to environment and health concerns and conditions established in the jurisprudence, put forward legislative proposals with clear criteria for determining case by case when such materials and substances could be considered as falling outside the scope of the definition of waste. In the absence of such measures adopted at Community level or applicable European jurisprudence, the materials or substances concerned should continue to be considered as waste.

(21) It is appropriate that costs be allocated in such a way as to reflect the real cost to the environment of the generation and management of that waste. The 'polluter pays' principle and producer responsibility should apply in this connection. In particular, individual producer responsibility is a tool that can be used to promote waste prevention, re-use and recycling by ensuring producers take into account the life-cycle impacts, including end-of-life impacts, of their products and develop appropriate design.

(22) It is necessary, in order to enable the Community as a whole to become self-sufficient in waste disposal and the Member States to move towards that aim individually, to make provision for a network of cooperation as regards disposal installations, taking into account geographical circumstances and the need for specialised installations for certain types of waste.

(23) While maintaining the necessary level of environmental protection, Member States should ensure sufficient and cost-effective management options for waste arising from recycling operations in recognition of the key contribution of the recycling installations in reducing final disposal. Such residual waste represents an important bottleneck for further increases in recycling capacities and the competent authorities should take the necessary action in line with the aim of achieving the 'recycling society'.

(24) It is necessary to specify further the scope and content of the waste management planning obligation, notably in terms of the coverage of historical contaminated sites and the use of economic instruments, and to integrate into the process of developing or revising such plans the need to take into account the environmental impacts throughout the life-cycle of products and materials. Account should also be taken, where appropriate, of the waste planning requirements laid down in Article 14 of Directive 94/62/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 December 1994 on packaging and packaging waste [1], and the strategy for the reduction of biodegradable waste going to landfills, referred to in Article 5 of Council Directive 1999/31/EC of 26 April 1999 on the landfill of waste [2].

(25) In order to improve the way in which waste prevention actions are taken forward in the Member States and to facilitate the circulation of best practice in this area, it is necessary to adopt Community targets and measures relating to waste prevention and to introduce a requirement for the Member States to develop waste prevention programmes concentrating on the key environmental impacts and taking into account the whole life-cycle. Such objectives and measures should aim to break the link between economic growth and the growth in waste volumes as well as the environmental and health impacts associated with the generation of waste by achieving a net reduction of waste generation, its harmfulness and its adverse impacts. Local and regional authorities, as well as stakeholders and the general public, should have the opportunity to participate in the drawing up of the programmes, and should have access to them once drawn up, in line with Directive 2003/35/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 May 2003 [3].

(26) Hazardous wastes are qualified by hazard and risk criteria. As a result, they need to be regulated under strict specifications in order to prevent or limit, as far as possible, negative effects due to inappropriate management which may affect the environment, and to prevent risks to human health and safety. Because of their hazardous properties, hazardous wastes need an appropriate management which involves specific and adapted collection and treatment techniques, particular controls and dedicated waste traceability modalities. All hazardous waste operators need to have adequate qualifications and training.

(27) The measures necessary for the implementation of this Directive should be adopted in accordance with Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission [4].

(28) In particular, the Commission should be empowered to amend the list of wastes and hazardous wastes, to adopt registration requirements and to adopt the amendments necessary for adapting Annexes IV and V to scientific and technical progress. Since those measures are of general scope and are designed to amend and supplement non-essential elements of this Directive, they should be adopted in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny provided for in Article 5a of Decision 1999/468/EC.

In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve those objectives,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Article 5

Producer responsibility

1. Member States and the Community shall, in order to reinforce producer responsibility, take measures to hold producers or importers responsible for the waste which is generated as a result of their product being placed on the market. This may be done, inter alia, in the following ways:

— by introducing take-back obligations for producers/importers,

Article 8

Recovery

1. Member States shall take the necessary measures, consistent with the provisions stated in Article 1, to ensure that where practicable all waste undergoes recovery operations. These shall include at least the operations listed in Annex II, provided that they satisfy the definition of recovery in Article 3(j).

For the avoidance of doubt, operations shall fall under Annex II despite producing some material which thereafter undergoes disposal operations if their primary purpose is a recovery operation falling under Annex II.

Further recovery operations may be added to the list of operations set out in Annex II, on the basis of a Commission proposal to the European Parliament and the Council.

2. The Commission shall put forward by… (*) a legislative proposal, in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty, for the adoption of implementing measures in order to set environmental and efficiency criteria based on best available techniques on the basis of which final operations listed in Annex II may be considered to have resulted in a recovery operation.

3. Before amending Annex II and adopting implementing measures pursuant to paragraph 2, the Commission shall consult the Member States and the industrial, environmental, workers' and consumer associations concerned.

4. Member States shall take measures to promote the re-use of products, notably through the establishment and support of accredited re-use and repair networks and by establishing, where necessary, the relevant process and product standards.

Member States may take other measures to promote re-use, such as the use of economic instruments, procurement criteria, quantitative objectives or prohibitions on the placing on the market of certain products.

(*) Two years after entry into force of this Directive.

5. In order to move towards a European Recycling Society and contribute towards a high level of resource efficiency, by 2020 Member States shall achieve at least an overall re-use and recycling level of 50 % for municipal solid waste and 70 % for construction, demolition, industrial and manufacturing waste. For those countries with less than 5 % recycling in either category or no official figures, according to Eurostat data of 2000-2005, an additional period of five years may be granted to reach the targets.

6. Member States shall take measures to promote high quality recycling and to this end they shall adopt separate collection schemes wherever necessary to guarantee the necessary quality standards for the relevant recycling sectors.

By 2015 the Member States shall set up separate waste collection schemes for at least the following: paper, metal, plastic, glass, textiles, other biodegradable wastes, oil and hazardous wastes. This shall apply without prejudice to existing or future waste stream legislation or the requirements of Article 22.

Disposal

1. Without prejudice to the second paragraph of Article 1, Member States shall ensure that where prevention, re-use, recycling or other recovery does not take place, all waste undergoes safe disposal operations which meet the objectives set out in Article 10.

They shall prohibit the abandonment, dumping or uncontrolled disposal of waste.

and without causing a nuisance through noise or odours or adversely affecting the countryside or places of special interest.

Any waste recovery and disposal requirements laid down by Member States in the form of generally binding provisions shall be based on best available waste management techniques.

In so far as this is necessary for protection of human health and the environment, the Commission shall submit proposals for individual directives laying down, for wastes or recovery operations which are of particular ecological or economic significance in quantitative terms, requirements with regard to recovery, to substances or objects resulting from recovery operations, and to subsequent use of those substances and objects. Those requirements shall be based on best available waste management techniques. The directives may also determine in detail when the recovered waste is to lose its status as waste.

Costs

In accordance with the 'polluter pays' principle the cost of waste management must be borne by:

— the holder of the waste collected or managed by a collector or by an enterprise, and/or — the previous holders, and/or — the producer of the product from which the waste is derived.

Article 13

Network of disposal installations

Within the Community waste shall be treated in the overall most environmentally sound manner.

Implementing measures

The Commission shall, if appropriate, make proposals for individual Directives laying down minimum standards for permits designed to ensure that the waste is treated in accordance with the objectives set out in Article 10.

Member States may set higher standards for permits on the basis of a national assessment of needs and the principle of proportionality and in accordance with the Treaties.

Article 32

Supplemental measures

By … (*) the Commission shall draw up a report with a view to considering measures that may contribute to achieving the fulfilment of the objectives set out in Article 1 more effectively. The report shall be submitted to the European Parliament and to the Council within six months of its completion, accompanied by proposals as appropriate.

The report shall in particular consider:

(a) whether Annex II should be amended in order to:

(i) omit cases where listed operations do not lead to a sufficiently high proportion of the waste serving a useful purpose to be consistent with the objectives set out in Article 1,

(ii) identify cases where the proportion of waste being used as opposed to that which is disposed of as part of a recovery operation should be specified in order to ensure that the objectives set out in Article 1 are met,

(iii) specify a different energy efficiency level or levels in relation to recovery operation R1,

(iv) adapt any references in the light of technical and scientific progress;

(*) Two years after the entry into force of this Directive.

(b) whether Annex I should be amended in order to:

(i) add any operations omitted from Annex II,

(ii) adapt any references in the light of technical and scientific progress; and

(c) whether specifying minimum standards for particular disposal or recovery operations will contribute to the objectives set out in Article 10.

The requirement for this report will not prevent the Commission from coming forward with any proposals in the meantime.

SUBSECTION 2

Exemptions

Eligibility

Member States may exempt from the requirement laid down in Article 28(1) establishments or undertakings carrying out their own waste treatment at the place of production.

This exemption shall not apply for the treatment of hazardous waste.

General rules

1. Where a Member State wishes to allow exemptions, as provided for in Article 33, it shall ensure that the competent authorities lay down, in respect of each type of activity, general rules specifying the types and quantities of waste that may be covered by an exemption, and the method of treatment to be used.

Those rules shall be based on best available techniques and shall be designed to ensure compliance with Article 10.

2. Member States shall inform the Commission of the general rules laid down pursuant to paragraph 1.

SECTION 2

Registration

Registration

Member States shall ensure that the national competent authority keeps a register of establishments or undertakings which collect or transport waste on a professional basis or which, as dealers or brokers, arrange for the treatment of waste on behalf of others, and which are not subject to a permit requirement pursuant to Article 28(1).

Those establishments or undertakings shall comply with certain registration requirements.

2. All establishments or undertakings exempted in accordance with Subsection 2 of Section 1 shall be entered in the register provided for in paragraph 1.

Where possible, existing records held by the competent authority will be used to obtain the relevant information for this registration process in order to minimise bureaucracy.

3. The Commission shall, in accordance with the regulatory procedure with scrutiny referred to in Article 46(3), and in consultation with industry, adopt the registration requirements referred to in the second subparagraph of paragraph 1.

4. Member States shall ensure that the system of waste collection, transport within their territory and transboundary shipments ensures that the waste collected and transported is delivered to appropriate treatment installations respecting the obligations in Article 10.

For all waste shipments the provisions of Regulation (EC) No 1013/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 14 June 2006 ([1]) shall apply.

Notes

1. Attribution of the hazardous properties 'toxic' (and 'very toxic'), 'harmful', 'corrosive' and 'irritant' is made on the basis of the criteria laid down by Annex VI, part I A and part II B, of Council Directive 67/548/EEC of 27 June 1967 on the approximation of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the classification, packaging and labelling of dangerous substances [1] as amended.

2. With regard to attribution of the properties 'carcinogenic', 'teratogenic' and 'mutagenic', and reflecting the most recent findings, additional criteria are contained in the 'Guide to the classification and labelling of dangerous substances and preparations' set out in Part II D of Annex VI to Directive 67/548/EEC as amended.

Test methods

The methods to be used are those described in Annex V to Directive 67/548/EEC as amended.

— having regard to the report of the Committee on the Environment, Public Health and Food Safety (A6-0438/2006),

Introduction

A. whereas Article 8 of the 6th EAP has set very clear objectives, targets and principles for EU waste policy,

B. whereas Article 8(2), point (iv) of the 6th EAP provides for the development or revision of the directives on construction and demolition waste, sewage sludge and biodegradable wastes,

The current situation

C. whereas, despite some successes achieved by the waste policy of the EU in the past 30 years, the following problems remain:

1. Waste volumes continue to grow, both for hazardous and non-hazardous waste;
2. The potential for waste prevention and recycling is not fully used;
3. Illegal (cross-border) waste shipments are still increasing;
4. Waste management generates emissions to air, water and soil;
5. Legislation is missing for certain important waste streams;
6. Waste legislation is in many cases poorly implemented;
7. Member States have different approaches to solving waste problems;
8. The current wording of Community waste legislation gives rise to some interpretation problems,

D. whereas economies are like ecosystems: both systems take in energy and materials and turn them into products and processes, the difference being that our economy follows linear resource flows whereas nature is cyclic; and whereas ecosystems perform functions which convert waste into resources, by transferring energy from the sunlight, and whereas industrial processes are not able to do this; whereas, against the backdrop of rapidly growing economies and populations, production and products that lead to waste streams which nature cannot absorb and turn into new resources are increasingly problematic from the point of view of sustainability,

E. whereas a transformation of the present system of production and consumption is urgently needed; whereas the main objective is to change consumption in a sustainable direction and bring the processes of raw material extraction, production and product design as much into line with natural processes and designs as possible,

F. whereas an enhanced understanding of how natural systems work and of structuring business along biological lines can both improve the environment and establish the bottom line,

G. whereas promotion of more integrated and systems-based practices, such as for instance the clustering of production, functional thinking (turning products into services), dematerialisation and technology development based on imitating nature is a means to prevent waste generation,

Aims of an evolving EU policy on waste

H. whereas in most Member States disposal, in particular landfill, is still the most common form of waste treatment,

I. whereas prevention, re-use, recycling and energy recovery of waste — with the order reflecting the degree of relevance — can save natural resources,

J. whereas Community and national prevention targets have never been achieved, although prevention is still the most important objective;

K. whereas there are no adequate Community minimum standards applying to many recovery and recycling facilities, which results in different levels of environmental protection in the Member States, eco-dumping and distortions of competition,

1. Recognises the Commission's Communication on 'Taking sustainable use of resources forward: A Thematic Strategy on the prevention and recycling of waste' as a basis for the discussion on future waste policy;

2. Stresses the substantial aim for waste management of achieving a high level of protection of the environment and human health rather than facilitating the functioning of the internal market for waste recovery;

3. Points out that account should be taken not only of the environmental impact in the EU but also of the impact outside the EU;

4. Underlines the importance of the general principles of waste management, such as the precautionary principle and the polluter pays principle, the principle of the waste generator's responsibility and, for specific waste flows, the principle of individual producer responsibility, as well as the principles of proximity and self-sufficiency;

Main actions

5. Emphasises that full implementation of existing Community waste legislation and equal enforcement across all Member States is a key priority;

6. Fails to understand why, despite a proposal for the revision of the Waste Framework Directive, many concrete implementing measures and instruments (which were foreseen in the 6th EAP) are missing;

Simplification and modernisation of existing legislation

7. Stresses that the changing of definitions should only be undertaken for reasons of clarification, and not to weaken environmental protection rules or encourage public acceptance of a concept (for instance by softening the negative connotation of 'waste' or 'disposal');

8. Stresses that political decisions, such as the definitions of waste, recovery and disposal, must not be taken in comitology, but by codecision;

9. Emphasises that use of the comitology procedure should be limited to non-political decisions, especially those of a technical and scientific nature;

10. Opposes a general declassification of waste that could lead to inappropriate environmental treatment and a lack of traceability of waste streams; emphasises that procedures for the declassification of waste could only be considered for exceptional cases of homogeneous waste streams, such as compost, recycled aggregates, recovered paper and recovered glass;

11. Emphasises that the end-of-waste status should only be achieved after the waste stream in question has been re-used or recycled or has undergone a recovery operation — which does not exclude the possibility that a recovery operation may generate new waste — and meets agreed European standards, making it fit for a purpose, and after traceability rules have been adopted and are being applied;

12. Demands that all waste intended for energy recovery or incineration should remain waste, in respect of which Directive 2000/76/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 December 2000 on the incineration of waste [1] (the Waste Incineration Directive) should apply;

13. Emphasises that the lists of recovery and disposal operations contained in the annexes to the Waste Framework Directive should be revised and adapted to current waste management practices in accordance with the codecision procedure;

14. Expresses strong reservations on the proposed energy efficiency calculation method, and the fact that it is to apply to municipal waste incinerators only; calls on the Commission to revise the Waste Incineration Directive, in order to set equal environmental standards (for emissions and energy efficiency) for both incineration and co-incineration of waste;

Introducing life-cycle thinking in waste policy

15. Emphasises the key importance of the waste hierarchy, which sets out priorities for action in descending order:

— prevention;

— re-use;

[1] OJ L 332, 28.12.2000, p. 91.

— material recycling;

— other recovery operations, for example energy recovery;

— disposal,

as a general rule of waste management in achieving the aim of reducing the generation of waste as well as the adverse impacts on health and the environment resulting from waste generation and management;

16. Regards life-cycle thinking as a useful concept to evaluate the environmental and human health impacts of waste; stresses that the hierarchy itself is based on this concept, but acknowledges that life-cycle and other analyses can be used in exceptional cases to deviate from the waste hierarchy, though only when there is clear evidence that another option is actually better on environmental or health grounds or to avoid unreasonably high costs;

Improving the knowledge base

17. Supports the improvement of the knowledge base with regard to EU waste policy, but stresses that the implementation of concrete actions is more important;

Waste prevention

18. Regrets the lack of quantitative and qualitative reduction targets covering all relevant waste, which were indicated as one of the priority actions in the 6th EAP; calls on the Commission to come forward with a proposal for targets in its final assessment of the 6th EAP;

19. Calls on the Commission to come forward with concrete waste prevention measures in the fields of product policy, chemicals policy and eco-design, to minimise both the generation of waste and the presence of hazardous substances in waste, and thereby foster the safe and environmentally sound treatment of waste; emphasises the importance of promoting products and technologies which are less harmful to the environment as well as products which are more suitable for re-use and recycling;

20. Draws attention to the interaction between waste strategies and other strategies, particularly the sustainable use of natural resources, sustainable development and integrated product policy;

21. Calls on the Commission to develop a set of indicators by 2008, as announced in the Resources Strategy;

22. Emphasises that proper implementation of the concept of producer responsibility is a strong instrument to prevent waste;

23. Draws attention to the role of information campaigns on waste policy, particularly on prevention and raising public awareness of the benefits of sustainable waste management;

24. Calls on the Commission to reinforce the waste prevention aspects of the Best Available Technique Reference Documents (BREFs) developed under Council Directive 96/61/EC of 24 September 1996 concerning Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control [1] (the IPPC Directive) and to include relevant guidance in these documents;

[1] OJ L 257, 10.10.1996, p. 26.

Re-use

25. Calls on the Commission to come forward with concrete measures to promote re-use and repair activities:

— setting up an accreditation for re-use centres;

— introducing a reduced VAT rate on products sold by accredited re-use centres;

— development of a road-map to elaborate re-use standards at EU level;

— ensuring monitoring and reporting on re-use activities;

Towards a European recycling society

26. Underlines the importance of achieving common minimum standards for recovery and recycling at EU level, and stresses that a level playing field will only be established when the use of economic instruments is approximated throughout the EU;

27. Emphasises the importance of source separation of waste, as well as recycling targets and producer responsibility in order to increase the recycling rate of certain waste streams;

28. Recognises the need for better EU cooperation in managing cross-border waste problems;

29. Points out that any material-based approach to boost recycling should go hand in hand with a waste stream based approach; calls on the Commission to investigate further the feasibility and economic viability of such a strategy;

30. Calls once again on the Commission to propose separate directives on biodegradable waste, construction and demolition waste and sewage sludge, as indicated in the 6th EAP;

31. Calls on the Commission to follow up on its Green Paper on environmental issues of PVC (COM(2000)0469);

32. Calls for the quantities of waste for disposal to be reduced to a minimum; calls on the Commission again to propose a revision of the Council Directive 1999/31/EC of 26 April 1999 on the landfill of waste ([1]), including a timetable:

— from 2010, a ban on landfill of non-pretreated waste with fermentable components;

— from 2015, a ban on landfill of paper, cardboard, glass, textiles, wood, plastics, metals, rubber, cork, pottery, concrete, brick and tiles;

— from 2020, a ban on landfill of all recyclable waste;

— from 2025, a ban on landfill of all residual waste, except where this is unavoidable or hazardous (e.g. filter ash);

33. Considers that Regulation (EC) No 1013/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 14 June 2006 on shipments of waste ([2]) implements legal obligations from the UN Basel Convention ([3]) and OECD Decisions ([4]); supports the prevention of eco-dumping and sham recovery and underlines that an objective of regulating shipments of waste is to enhance the re-use and recycling of waste ensuring a high level of environmental and human health protection;

([4]) Decision C(2001)107 final of the OECD Council of 14 June 2001 concerning the revision of Decision C(92)39 final on the control of transboundary movements of wastes destined for recovery operations.

34. Emphasises the right of Member States to apply the proximity and self-sufficiency principle in relation to recovery or disposal of mixed municipal waste in order to encourage national planning of waste management and waste incineration capacity;

35. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission, and the governments and parliaments of the Member States.

— having regard to the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights of 10 November 2005 on Turkey's regulations on wearing the Islamic headscarf in higher education institutions ([1]),

— having regard to the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) of 1979 and its Optional Protocol of 1999, which form part of international law and to which Turkey has been party since 1985 and 2002 respectively, and having regard to Article 90 of the Turkish Constitution which states that international law takes precedence over Turkish national law,

— having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Women's Rights and Gender Equality (A6-0003/2007),

A. whereas adoption of the Community acquis is obligatory for candidates for accession to the EU and whereas women's rights and gender equality are part of the Community acquis,

B. whereas the Commission's report on Turkey's progress towards accession, contained in its above-mentioned strategy paper of 9 November 2005, identifies, as regards the situation of women, the following main areas of concern, inter alia: violence against women, particularly domestic violence and crimes in the name of honour, a high illiteracy rate, a low level of participation by women in parliament and in local representative bodies, and the low level of women's participation and the prevailing discrimination in the labour market, given that economic independence is essential for their emancipation and should be of particular concern to Turkey,

C. whereas the Commission has concluded, in its 2006 progress report on Turkey, that the legal framework as regards women's rights is satisfactory overall, but that the implementation thereof remains a challenge,

1. Emphasises that respecting human rights, including women's rights, is a conditio sine qua non of membership of the EU and calls on the Commission to make the issue of women's rights central to the negotiations with Turkey;

2. Welcomes the fact that the active phase of the accession negotiations between Turkey and the European Union has begun; regrets, however, the slowing-down of the reform process in Turkey over the last year and the persistent problems with women's rights;

Implementation of legislation and coordination

3. Notes that the legal framework on women's rights has in general been satisfactory but considers that its implementation remains flawed; therefore, reiterates its call for full and effective implementation of the Community acquis in the field of women's rights, particularly in the poorer regions of the country;

4. Urges the Turkish Government to speed up implementation of the new legislation on women's rights and to ensure that it is absolutely in line with the requirements of the Community acquis and that it is effectively implemented in practice;

5. Points out that the new Turkish Penal Code, which entered into force in June 2005, substantially strengthens the basic rights of women, but that the European directives on the equality of men and women have still not been completely transposed; notes with concern the (unsuccessful) attempts made to repeal legislation on women's rights;

([1]) Leyla Şahin v Turkey, Application No 44774/98.

6. Deplores the fact that, in parts of south-east Turkey, girls are not registered at birth, and that this hampers the fight against forced marriage and crimes in the name of honour, since the victims have no official identity; urges the Turkish authorities to continue taking all necessary measures to ensure that all Turkish children are registered at birth;

7. Emphasises that the Turkish Government should maintain and establish, where necessary, its country-wide legal registration of marriages so as to guarantee the full entitlement of every man and woman to the benefits of citizenship, such as access to education and to health care as well as equal access to the labour market;

8. Welcomes the establishment in Turkey of an Advisory Board on the Status of Women ('the Board') which will provide advice on the planning and implementation of state policies related to women's rights;

9. Emphasises the need to include social partners, representatives of bodies and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) dealing with gender equality issues and representatives of trade unions within the Board, which is not currently the case, and urges the authorities concerned to use the Board effectively in order to achieve efficient coordination between stakeholders;

Civil society

10. Notes its continuing concern in relation to cooperation between NGOs and the Turkish Government;

11. Calls for all NGOs, including free and autonomous women's organisations, to be treated in the same way;

12. Considers that the meeting of Turkey's State Minister in Charge of Women's Rights with the representatives of 55 women's organisations in Turkey, together with the decision to establish more structured cooperation and effective coordination between the ministry and NGOs, constitute good practices which should be repeated regularly; expects to see this political will assume practical expression in future in the form of specific initiatives and measures;

13. Calls on the Commission and the Turkish Government to acknowledge the role of women's rights NGOs as fundamental and essential partners through official and permanent structures and institutions and to involve NGOs in the process of negotiating EU accession in a structured manner on the basis of the procedures laid down;

14. Calls on the Turkish Government to launch a large-scale campaign to convey to the whole of society the image of women as players driving economic and social development;

15. Acknowledges the growing concern of women's rights NGOs about the problems they face during the extensive procedures for obtaining grants from the EU and while conducting the projects for which they obtained grants; notes that many women's rights NGOs hesitate to apply and, as a result, fail to benefit from a critically important resource;

16. Welcomes the establishment of the STGM (Civil Society Development Centre), which works on helping civil society development;

17. Calls on the Commission to provide additional assistance, inter alia by building up the capacity of other assistance centres;

Data, benchmarks and goals

18. Notes that there is still a lack of accurate data on the situation of women in Turkey and that existing data do not yet cover all problems relating to the situation, role and rights of women;

19. Welcomes, in this respect, the initiative launched at the beginning of 2007 by the Turkish State Institute of Statistics to provide 'gender statistics' relating to social, cultural and economic life, including data on the gender pay gap;

20. Welcomes the EU-Turkey joint project entitled 'Promoting gender equality', the objective of which is to strengthen the capacity of stakeholders to protect women from domestic violence, and welcomes, as part of the project, the initiative entitled 'National research on the causes and consequences of violence against women', which is designed to set up a database on violence against women;

21. Calls on the Turkish Government to provide specific and reliable data on the illiteracy rate among women, on equal access for women to education, on problems related to the participation of women in the labour force, on violence against women and on honour killings and forced marriages;

22. Calls on the Commission, in its reports to the European Council on the pace of reforms, to come up with clear guidelines and precise short, medium and long-term goals for women's rights;

23. Calls on the Turkish Government to ensure that all women, regardless of their language, race, ethnicity, colour, political opinion, belief and religion are involved in women's rights programmes;

24. Is alarmed at the Commission's observation that the Law on the protection of the family is only partially applied, and calls upon the Turkish authorities forthwith to implement it correctly and effectively, since this will contribute to protecting the position and rights of women within the family;

Violence against women

25. Notes that violence against women is still a problem and condemns instances of violence against women, including honour killings, domestic violence, forced marriages and polygamy;

26. Takes note of the Commission's remark that, despite the provisions in the new Turkish Penal Code listing 'honour killings' as an aggravated circumstance for the crime of murder, the sentences issued by courts, as the Commission points out, reflect a mixed picture; calls on the judicial authorities to apply and interpret correctly and effectively the provisions of the Penal Code in order to avoid this kind of crime and to guarantee that crimes against women cannot benefit from reduced sentences or extenuating circumstances;

27. Is deeply concerned about the fact that suicides committed by women due to the influence of the family continue to occur, especially in the regions of the East and the South-East; urges the Turkish authorities to protect women from this kind of pressure exerted upon them by their families and to submit specific and reliable data on suicide among women, particularly in those regions;

28. Calls on the public institutions (the judiciary, the administration, the police, the health- care system, etc.) to ensure that women affected by violence in Turkey receive all necessary protection;

29. Stresses that, in cases in which there has been a failure to protect and assist victims, a judicial investigation should be initiated through the public institutions and efforts made to take disciplinary measures against those responsible;

30. Welcomes the official circular issued by the Prime Minister following a Turkish Parliamentary Commission report on custom and honour crimes and violence against women, instructing all ministries, public institutions and local administrators to enforce proposed solutions to deal with violence against women; calls on the Turkish Government to formulate binding and practical instructions for the implementation of that official circular, to provide a sufficient budget to take the necessary measures and to spell out the consequences of non-compliance;

31. Welcomes the official circular of the Turkish Ministry of Interior Affairs of 9 January 2007 establishing an action plan for the coordination of policies to prevent honour and custom crimes, which asks for firm implementation of the law on the establishment of a shelter in all municipalities with over 50 000 inhabitants, for the establishment of special committees in every city in order to coordinate the efforts to help the victims of honour and custom crimes and for taking measures to provide psychological and financial support and protection to the victims;

32. Welcomes the initiative designed to provide soldiers in military service with education on the prevention of violence against women and to include in the curriculum of police schools issues such as women's rights as part of human rights, gender equality, violence against women and honour crimes;

33. Calls on the Turkish Government and the Commission to tackle violence in general and honour crimes in particular as a priority and to set up special high-security shelters, including in regions in south-east Turkey, so that women have shelters in their own neighbourhood; calls for support and assistance measures for the free women's advisory centres in south-eastern Turkey, for example KA-MER, urges economic development that focuses on women in regions in which women are vulnerable to violence; stresses the importance of systematic investigation and effective punishment and therefore the training of police and judicial authorities in gender equality issues and the fight against violence; points out the need to instruct judges to apply new laws to severely punish violence in general and honour crimes, forced marriages and polygamy in particular and the importance of the protection of witnesses; urges the Turkish Government to conclude a special agreement with the Commission on participation in the programme to prevent and combat violence against children, young people and women and to protect victims and groups at risk (Daphne programme) and to set aside the necessary financial resources in the national budget for this purpose;

34. Points out that women must be offered not only protection but above all psychological care and advice; demands that such services be provided in women's shelters and on the ground in regions with high rates of suicide among women and violence against women;

35. Calls on Turkish Government to build alliances with all groupings — civil, social or religious — in society so as to initiate campaigns, targeted in particular at the young, to spread awareness that violence against women and children is a serious breach of human rights, and to generate repugnance for all forms of violence;

Shelters

36. Notes that the shelters in Turkey for women who have been victims of violence, which are reported to have capacity for 469 women and which have thus far provided services for 5 512 women [1], do not meet the needs of a population of approximately 70 million, while even the modest possibilities afforded under the law in force, namely a shelter in all municipalities with over 50 000 inhabitants, are not being sufficiently utilised;

37. Calls on the Turkish Government to ensure the efficiency, security and availability of sufficient numbers of shelters for the needs of women;

[1] Source: Nimet Çubukçu, Turkey's State Minister in Charge of Women's Rights.

38. Welcomes the establishment of the '183 Family, Woman, Child and Handicapped Social Services' telephone helpline to report violence and also welcomes the establishment of a nationwide urgent assistance line, 157, for the victims of human trafficking, and believes that these helplines may serve as a good example for the EU;

39. Once again calls on Turkey to ratify Additional Protocol No 12 to the European Convention on Human Rights1;

40. Calls on the Turkish Government to carry out structural and personnel improvements in women's shelters and to eliminate shortcomings that have given rise to complaints;

41. Encourages the Turkish Government to do more to promote cooperation between state institutions/local authorities and independent women's organisations; urges it also to provide financial support for independent and autonomous women's shelters;

Political participation

42. Notes that the political participation by women in Turkey is too low; underlines the fact that discrimination against women can sometimes best be remedied by temporary positive discrimination measures, as allowed by, inter alia, CEDAW, and that there is an absolute need for female role models in positions of power and decision-making;

43. Suggests the proposal of measures to ensure appropriate representation of women on election lists as the best way to improve female participation in Turkish politics in the short term;

44. Calls on the Turkish political parties to adopt internal rules guaranteeing the presence of women in their management bodies at all levels;

45. Urges the political parties in Turkey, starting from the upcoming elections in 2007, to include more female candidates on election lists, to give women an appropriate role in the party hierarchy and to raise awareness of the importance of female political participation;

46. Strongly regrets that a standing committee on women's rights and gender equality has still not been established within the Turkish Parliament; emphasises that promises made by the Turkish Government and by some political parties in their party programmes should be upheld and underlines that the committee should be established as soon as possible;

47. Is concerned by the Commission's comment that women remain vulnerable to discriminatory practices, due inter alia to a lack of education and a high illiteracy rate in the country, and calls on the Turkish Government to ensure gender equality in access to education and the labour market, especially in the south-eastern regions; calls, in this regard, for measures in the educational sector in order to equip teaching staff with gender competence and to maintain a system of incentives to keep girls in school; calls also for schoolgirls and schoolboys to be made aware of equal rights for men and women and women's rights to self-determination, including through gender-sensitive education manuals;

Education

48. Notes that, according to Unicef estimates, each year between 600 000 and 800 000 girls who have attained the mandatory age for going to school are either prevented by their families from doing so or do not attend school because of logistical difficulties;

49. Welcomes the girls' education campaign entitled 'Let's go to school, girls', which has resulted in the enrolment of 222 800 girls in school; also welcomes the 'Campaign to Support National Education' that reached almost 5 million adults in four years, most of whom are women from rural areas and girls who could not attend school;

50. Underlines the importance of education and its potential contribution to the economic independence of women; calls on the Turkish authorities to establish a monitoring system to keep girls in the education system; stresses the importance of females in school having increased access to colleges and universities and greater involvement in disciplines such as psychology, to prepare and educate them so that they are able to assist other female victims of abuse.

Participation in the labour market

51. Notes that the percentage participation of women in the labour market remains exceptionally low, below 25 %, and is very low compared to the average women's employment rate in the EU-27 of 49 % and that the female employment rate has dropped to around 20 %, in contrast to the rise of women's participation in the informal sector, which is often the result of a combination of the low level of education of many women, the lack of an institutionalised, widespread, accessible and affordable system of care facilities for children, elderly and disabled relatives and the gender division of labour in society;

52. Highlights the Commission's remark, as regards equal opportunities, that alignment is required in respect of the Community acquis, in particular concerning parental leave, equal pay, equal access to employment and statutory and occupational social security;

53. Welcomes, in the light of the above, projects such as the joint Dutch-Turkish project entitled 'Strengthening Equality in Employment' and the forthcoming project entitled 'Support for Women's Entrepreneurship', and the cooperation between Garanti Bank and KAGIDER (Female Entrepreneurs Association) concerning credit facilities of up to USD 30 000 and free training provided for women entrepreneurs;

54. Calls on the Turkish Government to establish a body or bodies for the promotion, analysis, monitoring and support of equal treatment on the labour market, including vocational training within the meaning of Article 8a of Council Directive of 76/207/EEC 9 February 1976 on the implementation of the principle of equal treatment for men and women as regards access to employment, vocational training and promotion, and working conditions ([1]);

55. Calls on the social partners and the Turkish Government to take all necessary measures to ensure the transition of the informal economy to the formal economy; asks the Commission to make support for this effort one of its priorities;

56. Requests the Turkish Government to provide accurate data on discrimination against women, including the access of women wearing headscarves to the labour market, in order to establish whether there is a risk of indirect discrimination based on gender;

57. Calls on the Turkish Government to improve the situation of home workers, most of whom are women; in this connection, urges Turkey to sign and ratify the above-mentioned ILO Home Work Convention No 177 and to expand the Turkish Labour Code in order to cover home workers;

58. Once again calls on the Turkish Government to draft and implement national action plans on women and employment with a limited time-frame and concrete goals, as is currently the practice in the Member States of the EU;

([1]) OJ L 39, 14.2.1976, p. 40. Directive as amended by Directive 2002/73/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council (OJ L 269, 5.10.2002, p. 15.).

59. Calls on the Turkish Ministry of Labour and the social partners to include gender equality issues in their policies and in the collective labour agreements, and calls on the Turkish trade unions to organise labour in the informal sector and to train union representatives on gender equality issues; welcomes in this respect the initiatives of the trade union confederation Türk-IS;

Final report on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners [2006/2200(INI)] — Temporary Committee on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transport and illegal detention of prisoners.
Rapporteur: Giovanni Claudio Fava (A6-0020/2007)

(Simple majority)
(Voting record: 'Results of votes', Item 1)

The President announced that the UEN Group had, in view of the number of amendments that had been tabled to the report, proposed under Rule 155(5) that a number of the amendments be put to the vote collectively.

The following spoke: Umberto Pirilli, on behalf of the UEN Group, who clarified the proposal, Ewa Klamt, who called for the PPE-DE Group's requests for separate and split votes to be met (the President replied that they would be), and Ignasi Guardans Cambó, who objected to the proposal.

The House agreed to the UEN Group's proposal.

The President announced that the vote on the report would have to be suspended at noon for the formal sitting.

Cristiana Muscardini suggested that the report by Giovanni Claudio Fava be put to the vote after the formal sitting, so that the vote would not be interrupted (the President replied that given the length of the vote, he could not agree to her suggestion).

MOTION FOR A RESOLUTION

— Ignasi Guardans Cambó, who, having objected to the voting procedure, requested a separate vote on amendment 38 (the President agreed to his request);

Miscellaneous

On behalf of the ALDE Group, Ignasi Guardans Cambó moved an oral amendment to amendment 31, which José Ignacio Salafranca Sánchez-Neyra added to on behalf of the PPE-DE Group. The amendment then read as follows:

> 110. Thanks the Chief Prosecutor Javier Zaragoza and Prosecutor Vicente González Mota of the Audiencia Nacional for their testimony to the Temporary Committee and applauds their investigations into the use of Spanish airports for the transit of CIA aircraft within the context of the programme of extraordinary rendition; encourages the prosecutors to investigate further the stopovers of the aircraft involved in the extraordinary rendition of Khaled El-Masri; takes note of the decision by the Spanish authorities, at the request of the Audiencia Nacional, to declassify secret documents held by the intelligence services concerning the use by CIA-operated aircraft of Spanish airports;

On behalf of the PSE Group, Giovanni Claudio Fava (rapporteur) moved an oral amendment to paragraph 60, which then read as follows:

> 60. Regrets that the documents on US-Italian cooperation in the fight against terrorism, which would have assisted the investigation into the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar, were classified by the former Italian Government and that the current government has confirmed the classified status of these documents;

The PSE Group had proposed that:

— amendment 228 should be taken as an addition to amendment 15, replacing the deletion in the second part;

— amendment 234 should be taken as an addition to amendment 18, replacing the deletion in the second part;

— amendment 235 should be taken as an addition to amendment 19, replacing the deletion in the second part.

The PPE-DE Group had proposed moving paragraphs 70 to 79 after paragraph 5.

Konrad Szymański had also signed motion for a resolution B6-0044/2007 on behalf of the UEN Group.

Stephen Hughes, on behalf of the PSE Group, moved an oral amendment to paragraph 47, which then read as follows:

47. Stresses that the experiences of last winter and the drastically increasing energy demand of booming economies (i.e. China, India) have made it clear that no sustainable and safe source of energy must be left unused in order to safeguard security of energy supply;

10. Radio Spectrum

Transportation and illegal detention of prisoners

European Parliament resolution on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners (2006/2200(INI))

The European Parliament,

— having regard to its resolution of 15 December 2005 on the presumed use of European countries for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners by the CIA [1],

— having regard to its decision of 18 January 2006 setting up a Temporary Committee on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners [2],

— having regard to its resolution of 6 July 2006 on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners, adopted midway through the work of the Temporary Committee [3],

— having regard to the delegations which the Temporary Committee sent to the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, the United States, Germany, the United Kingdom, Romania, Poland and Portugal,

— having regard to the hearings, numbering no fewer than 130, held by the Temporary Committee in the course of its meetings, delegation missions and confidential interviews,

— having regard to all the written contributions received by the Temporary Committee or to which it has had access, particularly the confidential documents forwarded to it, notably by the European Organisation for the Safety of Air Navigation (Eurocontrol) and the German Government, or which it has obtained from various sources,

— having regard to its resolution of 30 November 2006 on the progress made in the EU towards the Area of freedom, security and justice (AFSJ) (Articles 2 and 39 of the EU Treaty) [4], notably its paragraph 3,

— having regard to its resolution of 13 June 2006 on the situation of prisoners at Guantanamo [5],

— having regard to Rule 175 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Temporary Committee on the alleged use of European countries by the CIA for the transportation and illegal detention of prisoners (A6-0020/2007),

A. whereas, in its resolution of 6 July 2006, Parliament decided that the Temporary Committee would 'continue its work for the remainder of its established 12-month term, without prejudice to the provisions of Rule 175 of its Rules of Procedure on the possibility of extending the term',

B. whereas, in adopting its resolution of 22 November 1990 on the Gladio affair [6], Parliament drew attention, more than 16 years ago, to the existence of clandestine operations involving intelligence services and military organisations without adequate democratic control,

C. whereas the Member States cannot circumvent the requirements imposed on them by Community and international law by allowing other countries' intelligence services, which are subject to less stringent legal provisions, to operate on their territory; whereas, in addition, the operations of intelligence services are consistent with fundamental rights only if adequate arrangements exist for monitoring them,

D. whereas the principle of the inviolability of human dignity is enshrined in international human rights law, notably in the preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the preamble to and Article 10 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and whereas that principle is guaranteed by the case law of the European Court of Human Rights; whereas that principle is reiterated in most Member States' constitutions, as well as in Article 1 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union [1] and whereas that principle should not be undermined, even for the purposes of security, in times of peace or war,

E. whereas the principle of inviolability of human dignity underlies every other fundamental right guaranteed by international, European and national human rights instruments, in particular the right to life, the right to freedom from torture and inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, the right to liberty and security, the right to protection in the event of removal, expulsion or extradition and the right to an effective remedy and to a fair trial,

F. whereas extraordinary rendition and secret detention involve numerous violations of human rights, in particular violations of the right to liberty and security, the freedom from torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, the right to an effective remedy, and, in extreme cases, the right to life; whereas, in some cases, where rendition leads to secret detention, it constitutes enforced disappearance,

G. whereas the prohibition of torture is a peremptory norm of international law (jus cogens) from which no derogation is possible and the obligation to protect against, investigate and sanction torture is an obligation owed by all states (erga omnes), as provided by Article 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Article 7 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, Article 3 of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR) and the related case law, Article 4 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, and national constitutions and laws of the Member States; whereas specific conventions and protocols on torture and monitoring mechanisms adopted at the European and international level demonstrate the importance attached to this inviolable norm by the international community; whereas the use of diplomatic assurances is incompatible with this obligation,

H. whereas in democracies in which the respect for the rules of law is inherent, the fight against terrorism cannot be won by sacrificing or limiting the very principles that terrorism seeks to destroy, notably, the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms must never be compromised; whereas terrorism can and must be fought by legal means and must be defeated while respecting international and national law,

I. whereas it is necessary to create efficient legal instruments to combat terrorism within the framework of both international and national law,

J. whereas the United States (US) Government's strategy to combat terrorism has made use of pervasive instruments to monitor sensitive data relating to European citizens, such as the Passenger Names Record (PNR) agreement, and to monitor bank details through the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication (Swift) network,

K. whereas this report is not intended to be an attack on the secretive nature of the secret services, but rather is intended to denounce the unlawfulness of those secret activities which, in the circumstances under investigation, led to the infringement of national and international law in the absence of appropriate democratic control,

L. whereas on 6 September 2006, US President George W. Bush confirmed that the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was operating a secret detention programme outside the United States,

M. whereas President George W. Bush said that the vital information derived from the extraordinary rendition and secret detention programme had been shared with other countries and that the programme would continue, which raises the strong possibility that some European countries may have received, knowingly or unknowingly, information obtained under torture,

N. whereas the Temporary Committee has obtained, from a confidential source, records of the informal transatlantic meeting of European Union (EU) and North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) foreign ministers, including US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, on 7 December 2005, confirming that Member States had knowledge of the programme of extraordinary rendition, while all official interlocutors of the Temporary Committee provided inaccurate information about this matter,

O. whereas the Temporary Committee has obtained, from a confidential source, records of meetings of the Council's Working Party on Public International Law (COJUR) and Transatlantic Relations Working Party (COTRA) with senior representatives of the US Department of State during the first half of 2006 (notably on 8 February and 3 May 2006), while it was provided by the Council Presidency only with a summarised version of these documents; whereas the documents sent by the Council to Parliament concerning those meetings in answer to Parliament's specific request, were incomplete summaries of the proceedings with essential parts missing,

P. whereas the fact that those meetings took place was kept from Parliament and absolute secrecy was maintained in relation to their proceedings,

Q. whereas, in the present resolution, 'European countries' should be understood as meaning Member States and candidate and associate countries, as outlined in the mandate of the Temporary Committee adopted on 18 January 2006,

1. Recalls that terrorism represents one of the main threats to the security of the European Union and that it must be fought with lawful and coordinated efforts by all European governments, in close collaboration with international partners and notably with the United States, along the lines of the strategy defined at United Nations (UN) level; underlines that the fight against terrorism must be fought on the basis of, and in order to protect, our common values of democracy, the rule of law, human rights and fundamental freedoms; furthermore stresses that all the work carried out by the Temporary Committee is intended to make a contribution towards the development of clear and focused measures in the fight against terrorism, which are commonly accepted and respect national and international law;

2. Considers that after 11 September 2001, the so-called 'war on terror' — in its excesses — has produced a serious and dangerous erosion of human rights and fundamental freedoms, as noted by the outgoing UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan;

3. Is convinced that the rights of the individual and full respect for human rights contribute to security; considers it necessary that in the relationship between the need for security and the rights of individuals, human rights must always be fully respected, ensuring that suspected terrorists are tried and sentenced while due process is observed;

4. Emphasises that the positive obligation to respect, protect and promote human rights is binding, regardless of the legal status of the individual concerned, and that any discrimination among nationals of, residents in or any other person entitled to protection from, or otherwise under the jurisdiction of, the Member States must be avoided;

5. Recalls that the purpose of this resolution, based on the report of the Temporary Committee, is to determine responsibility for the facts that it has been able to examine on the one hand and to consider ways of preventing any repetition of the abuses and violations perpetrated in connection with measures against terrorism on the other;

6. Notes the statement made by US President George W. Bush on 6 September 2006, according to whom 'a small number of suspected terrorist leaders and operatives captured during the war have been held and questioned outside the United States, in a separate programme operated by the CIA', that many of the persons who had been detained there, had subsequently been transferred to Guantanamo and that it is strongly suspected that other prisoners are still held in secret places of detention; notes the report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) of 2 January 2007 mentioning 26 testimonies of mistreatment in Guantanamo since 11 September 2001;

7. Deplores, in this context, the inability of the Council — due to the opposition of certain Member States — to adopt conclusions in response to that statement at the General Affairs and External Relations Council of 15 September 2006, and requests that the Council adopt them urgently in order to dissipate any doubt as to the Member State governments' cooperation with and connivance in the extraordinary rendition and secret prisons programme in the past, present and future;

8. Calls on the Council and the Member States to issue a clear and forceful declaration calling on the US Government to put an end to the practice of extraordinary arrests and renditions, in line with the position of Parliament;

9. Deplores the fact that the governments of European countries did not feel the need to ask the US Government for clarifications regarding the existence of secret prisons outside US territory;

10. Notes the statements by the legal adviser to the US State Department at his meeting on 3 May 2006 with representatives of the Member States meeting within the Council, according to which, in carrying out the extraordinary rendition programme, whose existence he confirmed, the sovereignty of the countries concerned had always been fully respected; notes that his remark was subsequently confirmed at his meeting with the Temporary Committee delegation which visited Washington;

11. Thanks the former CIA agents who agreed to cooperate with the Temporary Committee, particularly at certain confidential meetings at which they confirmed that the extraordinary rendition programme had already begun during the 1990s;

12. Welcomes the announcement by the new majority established by the elections to the US Senate that it will investigate the CIA's extraordinary rendition programme; notes that this is further confirmation of the relevance of the work of the Temporary Committee;

13. Denounces the lack of cooperation of many Member States, and of the Council of the European Union towards the Temporary Committee; stresses that the behaviour of Member States, and in particular the Council and its Presidencies, has fallen far below the standard that Parliament is entitled to expect;

14. Believes that the serious lack of concrete answers to the questions raised by victims, non-governmental organisations (NGOs), the media and parliamentarians has only served to strengthen the validity of already well-documented allegations;

15. Stresses the serious and rigorous work undertaken by the judicial authorities of Italy, Germany and Spain and Portugal concerning the allegations that fall within the remit of the Temporary Committee, and invites the judicial authorities in other Member States to act similarly on the basis of the substantial information made available by the Temporary Committee;

16. Encourages the national parliaments of European countries to continue or launch thorough investigations, in the manner that they consider most appropriate and efficient, into these allegations, including by setting up parliamentary committees of inquiry;

17. Pays tribute to the world press, in particular the US journalists who were the first to disclose the abuses and breaches of human rights related to extraordinary rendition, thus demonstrating the great democratic tradition of the US press; also recognises the efforts and good work undertaken by several NGOs in relation to these matters, in particular Statewatch, Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch;

18. Recognises that some information in the report from the Temporary Committee, including the existence of secret CIA prisons, comes from official or unofficial US sources, demonstrating the vitality and self-policing inherent in the US democracy;

19. Expresses its profound gratitude to all victims who had the courage to share their very traumatic experiences with the Temporary Committee;

20. Calls on all European countries to refrain from taking any action against officials, former officials, journalists or others who, by providing testimony or other information, either to the Temporary Committee or to other investigating bodies, have helped shed light on the system of extraordinary rendition, illegal detention and the transportation of terrorism suspects;

21. Reiterates its call on the Council, as expressed in its resolution of 6 July 2006, to adopt a common position ruling out the acceptance of mere diplomatic assurances from third countries as a basis for any legal extradition provision, where there are substantial grounds for believing that individuals would be in danger of being subjected to torture or ill-treatment;

Cooperation with EU institutions and international organisations

22. Deplores the failure by the Council and its Presidency to comply with their obligations to keep Parliament fully informed of the main aspects and basic choices of the common foreign and security policy (CFSP) and of work carried out in the field of police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters pursuant to Articles 21 and 39 of the Treaty on European Union;

23. Stresses, in this context, that it is wholly unacceptable that the Council should first have concealed and then, at Parliament's request, only supplied piecemeal information on the regular discussions held with senior officials of the US Government, asserting that this was the only available version; furthermore denounces the fact that the Council also referred to the request by the government of a third country that the information remain confidential;

24. Points out that these shortcomings of the Council implicate all Member State governments since they have collective responsibility as members of the Council;

25. Is outraged by the proposal which was to have been made by the then Council Presidency to set up a joint framework with the US Government on standards for the rendition of terrorism suspects, as confirmed by those who took part in the meeting of the COJUR and the COTRA with senior representatives of the US Department of State in Brussels on 3 May 2006;

26. Calls for the disclosure of the results of the discussions conducted with the United States, according to EU Counter-terrorism Coordinator Gijs de Vries, on the definitions of 'rendition' and 'extraordinary rendition';

27. Takes note of the fact that the Secretary-General of the Council of the European Union and High Representative for the CFSP, Javier Solana, reaffirmed that Member States must ensure that any measures they take to combat terrorism comply with their obligations under international law; expresses its concern about the omissions in the statements made to the Temporary Committee by the Council and its Secretary-General, regarding the Council's discussions and knowledge of the methods used by the United States in its campaign against terrorism; deplores the fact that he was unable to supplement the evidence already in the possession of the Temporary Committee; asks the Council to disclose all facts and discussions about matters within the remit of the Temporary Committee and to promote a European foreign policy and an international anti-terrorism strategy that respect human rights and fundamental freedoms;

28. Questions the real substance of the post of EU Counter-terrorism Coordinator occupied by Gijs de Vries, since he was unable to give satisfactory answers to the questions raised by the Temporary Committee; is of the opinion that a revision and strengthening of his competence and power, as well as the increased transparency and monitoring of his activities by Parliament must be undertaken in the near future, so as to enhance the European dimension of the fight against terrorism;

29. Deplores the refusal by the Director of the European Police Office (Europol), Max-Peter Ratzel, to appear before the Temporary Committee, particularly because it has emerged that liaison officers, in particular for the US intelligence services, were seconded to Europol requests that the Director provide Parliament with comprehensive information concerning the role of those liaison officers, their tasks, the data to which they had access and the conditions of such access;

30. Thanks Commission Vice-President Franco Frattini for his cooperation with the work of the Temporary Committee and encourages the Commission to step up its work in the context of the continuing efforts to ascertain the truth and prevent any repetition of the facts analysed by the Temporary Committee;

31. Welcomes, in particular, the commitment shown by Vice-President Frattini to launching a Euro-Atlantic cooperation framework in the fight against international terrorism, with harmonised rules on the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

32. Thanks Eurocontrol, and notably its Director, for its excellent cooperation and for the very useful information which it shared with the Temporary Committee;

33. Appreciates the close cooperation which the Temporary Committee has maintained with the Council of Europe, particularly its Parliamentary Assembly and Secretary-General, and encourages its Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights, and its Chairman, Senator Dick Marty, to continue their work; stresses the convergence of the findings of the two committees to date; endorses the recommendations made to the Committee of Ministers by the Secretary-General, Terry Davis;

34. Expresses its deep concern about the refusals of the former and current Secretaries-General of NATO, Lord Robertson and Jaap de Hoop Scheffer, to appear before the Temporary Committee or with that organisation's rejection of its request for access to the decision taken by the North Atlantic Council on 4 October 2001 concerning the implementation of Article 5 of the North Atlantic Treaty following the attacks on the United States on 11 September 2001; reiterates its request to make the decision public and at least to provide information on its contents, its past and current implementation, whether it still remains into force and whether CIA flights have operated within its framework;

35. Thanks the special rapporteurs of the United Nations, Manfred Nowak (on torture) and Martin Scheinin (on the promotion and protection of human rights in connection with counter-terrorism measures) for their contributions to the work of the Temporary Committee, while regretting that it was not possible for the High Commissioner for Human Rights, Louise Arbour, to meet the Temporary Committee; thanks the European Network of Experts on Human Rights and notably its Coordinator, Olivier De Schutter, for their contribution to the works of the Temporary Committee;

Information analysed by the Temporary Committee

Extraordinary rendition and the misuse of airspace and airports

36. Recalls that the programme of extraordinary rendition is an extra-judicial practice which contravenes established international human rights standards and whereby an individual suspected of involvement in terrorism is illegally abducted, arrested and/or transferred into the custody of US officials and/or transported to another country for interrogation which, in the majority of cases, involves incommunicado detention and torture;

37. Deplores the fact that the families of the victims are kept in complete ignorance of the fate of their relatives;

38. Underlines, notwithstanding an intended confusion created by some US representatives in private and public speeches, that extraordinary rendition is a wholly different practice from one that has been used by some European countries, in very exceptional circumstances only, namely the detention or reception into custody in third countries of individuals formally accused of very serious crimes, in order to transfer them to European soil to face criminal charges before a court with all the legal guarantees of a judicial system;

39. Condemns extraordinary rendition as an illegal instrument used by the United States in the fight against terrorism; condemns, further, the condoning and concealing of the practice, on several occasions, by the secret services and governmental authorities of certain European countries;

40. Condemns any participation in the interrogation of individuals who are victims of extraordinary rendition, because it represents a deplorable legitimisation of that type of illegal procedure, even where those participating in the interrogation do not bear direct responsibility for the kidnapping, detention, torture or ill-treatment of the victims;

41. Considers that the practice of extraordinary rendition has been shown to be counterproductive in the fight against terrorism and that extraordinary rendition in fact damages and undermines regular police and judicial procedures against terrorism suspects;

42. Stresses that at least 1 245 flights operated by the CIA flew into European airspace or stopped over at European airports between the end of 2001 and the end of 2005, to which should be added an unspecified number of military flights for the same purpose; recalls that, on one hand, there may have been more CIA flights than those confirmed by the investigations carried out by the Temporary Committee, while, on the other, not all those flights have been used for extraordinary rendition;

43. Regrets that European countries have been relinquishing their control over their airspace and airports by turning a blind eye or admitting flights operated by the CIA which, on some occasions, were being used for extraordinary rendition or the illegal transportation of detainees, and recalls their positive obligations arising out of the case law of the European Court of Human Rights, as reiterated by the European Commission for Democracy through Law (Venice Commission);

44. Is concerned, in particular, that the blanket overflight and stopover clearances granted to CIA-operated aircraft may have been based, inter alia, on the NATO agreement on the implementation of Article 5 of the North Atlantic Treaty, adopted on 4 October 2001;

45. Notes that the US Supreme Court ruling which calls for the closure of the Guantanamo prison states that the majority of detainees at the Cuban base came from Afghanistan and must therefore have transited through Europe;

46. Recalls that Article 1 of the Convention on International Civil Aviation (the Chicago Convention) establishes the principle that contracting States have complete and exclusive sovereignty over the airspace above its territory, and accordingly does not imply any exclusion from the States' full responsibility for the observance of human rights within their territory, including the airspace above it;

47. Emphasises that the CIA has been using civil aviation rules to bypass the legal obligations for state aircraft, including those operated by the military and the police, as provided in the Chicago Convention; recalls that Article 4 of the Chicago Convention provides that: 'Each contracting State agrees not to use civil aviation for any purpose inconsistent with the aims of this Convention';

48. Confirms, in view of the additional information received during the second part of the proceedings of the Temporary Committee, that it is unlikely that certain European governments were unaware of the extraordinary rendition activities taking place in their territory;

49. Stresses that the Temporary Committee's working documents Nos 7 and 8 ([1]) provide additional information about the extraordinary renditions analysed by the committee, as well as of the companies linked to the CIA, the aircraft used by the CIA and the European countries in which CIA aircraft made stopovers;

ITALY

50. Deplores the fact that the representatives of the current and former Italian Governments who are or were responsible for the Italian secret services declined the invitation to appear before the Temporary Committee;

([1]) Reference numbers: PE 380.593v04-00 and PE 380.984v02-00.

51. Condemns the extraordinary rendition by the CIA of the Egyptian cleric Abu Omar, who had been granted asylum in Italy and who was abducted in Milan on 17 February 2003, transferred from Milan to the NATO military base of Aviano by car, and then flown, via the NATO military base of Ramstein in Germany, to Egypt, where he was held incommunicado and tortured;

52. Condemns the active role played by a carabinieri marshal and certain officials of the Italian military security and intelligence services (SISMI) in the abduction of Abu Omar, as shown by the judicial investigation and the evidence collated by Milan's Public Prosecutor Armando Spataro;

53. Concludes, and deplores the fact, that General Nicolò Pollari, former Director of SISMI, concealed the truth while appearing before the Temporary Committee on 6 March 2006, when he stated that Italian agents had played no part in any CIA kidnapping and that SISMI was not aware of the plan to kidnap Abu Omar;

54. Considers it very likely, in view of the involvement of SISMI, that the Italian Government of the day was aware of the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar from within its territory;

55. Thanks Public Prosecutor Spataro for his testimony to the Temporary Committee, applauds the efficient and independent investigations he carried out in order to shed light on the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar and fully endorses his conclusions and the decision of the GUP (Giudice dell'Udienza Preliminare) to bring to judgment 26 US citizens, CIA agents, 7 senior SISMI officials, a carabiniere from Raggruppamento Operativo Speciale (ROS, Special operations group), and the assistant editor of the 'Libero' daily newspaper; welcomes the opening of the proceedings at the Milan Court;

56. Regrets that the abduction of Abu Omar jeopardised Public Prosecutor Spataro's investigation into the terrorist network to which Abu Omar was connected; recalls that had Abu Omar not been illegally seized and transported to another country, he would have faced a regular and fair trial in Italy;

57. Takes note that the testimony provided by General Pollari is inconsistent with a number of documents found on SISMI premises and confiscated by Milan prosecutors; considers that such documents show that SISMI was regularly informed by the CIA about the detention of Abu Omar in Egypt;

58. Deeply regrets that the SISMI board systematically misled, among others, Milan prosecutors, with the aim of jeopardising the investigation into the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar; is extremely concerned about the fact that the SISMI board appeared to be working to a parallel agenda, and about the lack of appropriate internal and governmental controls; requests the Italian Government to remedy the situation urgently by establishing enhanced parliamentary and governmental controls;

59. Condemns the fact that Italian journalists investigating the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar were illegally pursued, their telephone conversations were tapped and their computers were confiscated; stresses that testimonies from those journalists have been of the utmost benefit to the work of the Temporary Committee;

60. Criticises the length of time that it took for the Italian Government to decide to remove from office and replace General Pollari;

61. Regrets that the documents on US-Italian cooperation in the fight against terrorism, which would have assisted the investigation into the extraordinary rendition of Abu Omar, were classified by the former Italian Government and that the current government has confirmed the classified status of these documents;

62. Urges the Italian Minister of Justice to process, as soon as possible, the requests for extradition of the 26 US citizens referred to, for the purpose of standing trial in Italy;

63. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of Italian citizen Abou Elkassim Britel, who was arrested in Pakistan in March 2002 by the Pakistani police and interrogated by US and Pakistani officials, and subsequently rendered to the Moroccan authorities and imprisoned in the detention facility 'Temara', where he remains detained; emphasises that the criminal investigations in Italy against Abou Elkassim Britel were closed with no charges having been brought;

64. Regrets that, according to the documentation provided to the Temporary Committee by Abou Elkassim Britel's lawyer, the Italian Ministry of Internal Affairs was in 'constant cooperation' with foreign secret services concerning the case of Abou Elkassim Britel, following his arrest in Pakistan;

65. Urges the Italian Government to take concrete steps in order to obtain the immediate release of Abou Elkassim Britel and ensure that any judicial proceedings against Abu Omar can be prosecuted in the Court of Milan;

66. Deeply regrets that Italian territory was used by the CIA to make a stopover during the flight that was used to carry out the extraordinary rendition of Maher Arar, who gave testimony to the Temporary Committee, from the United States to Syria, via Rome;

67. Notes the 46 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Italian airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees;

THE UNITED KINGDOM

68. Welcomes the meeting in London with the UK Minister for Europe and the fact that the UK Government supplied documents and explanations; notes that the UK authorities could not answer all the questions raised by the Temporary Committee delegation to London;

69. Takes note of the declarations made by UK Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Margaret Beckett, in a written response to a parliamentary question whereby she admitted that the UK Government had been aware of a secret CIA prison network before US President George W. Bush acknowledged its existence in September 2006; asks the UK Government to state whether it has raised the issue with the US authorities and whether, and, if so, when, it informed or discussed the issue with other European governments;

70. Thanks the UK's All-Party Parliamentary Group on Extraordinary Renditions (APPG), comprising members of the House of Commons and the House of Lords, for its work and for providing the Temporary Committee delegation to London with a number of highly valuable documents;

71. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, an Iraqi citizen and resident in the United Kingdom, and Jamil El-Banna, a Jordanian citizen and resident in the United Kingdom, who were arrested by Gambian authorities in Gambia in November 2002, turned over to US agents, and flown to Afghanistan and then to Guantanamo, where they remain detained in the absence of a trial or any form of judicial assistance;

72. Points out that the telegrams from the UK security service MI5 to an unspecified foreign government, which were released to the Chairman of the APPG, Andrew Tyrie, suggest that the abduction of Bisher Al-Rawi and Jamil El-Banna was facilitated by partly erroneous information supplied by MI5;

73. Criticises the unwillingness of the UK Government to provide consular assistance to Bisher Al-Rawi and Jamil El-Banna on the grounds that they are not UK citizens;

74. Condemns the extraordinary rendition, on two occasions, of Binyam Mohammed, Ethiopian citizen and resident in the United Kingdom; points out that Binyam Mohammed has been held in at least two secret detention facilities, in addition to military prisons;

75. Is deeply disturbed by the testimony of Binyam Mohammed's lawyer, who gave an account of the most horrific torture endured by his client to the official delegation of the Temporary Committee to the United Kingdom;

76. Emphasises that the former UK Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Jack Straw, conceded in December 2005 that UK intelligence officials met Binyam Mohammed when he was arrested in Pakistan; points out in this respect that some of the questions put by the Moroccan officials to Binyam Mohammed appear to have been inspired by information supplied by the United Kingdom;

77. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of UK citizen Martin Mubanga, who met the official delegation of the Temporary Committee to the United Kingdom, and who was arrested in Zambia in March 2002 and subsequently flown to Guantanamo; regrets the fact that Martin Mubanga was interrogated by UK officials at Guantanamo, where he was detained and tortured for four years without trial or any form of judicial assistance and then released without charge;

78. Takes note of the testimony to the Temporary Committee by Craig Murray, former UK Ambassador to Uzbekistan, on the exchange of intelligence obtained under torture and the legal opinion of Michael Wood, former legal advisor to the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office;

79. Expresses its concern about Michael Wood's legal opinion, according to which receiving or possessing information extracted under torture, insofar as there is no direct participation in the torture, is not per se prohibited by the UN Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhumane or Degrading Treatment or Punishment; expresses its condemnation of any attempt to obtain information by means of torture, regardless of who is involved;

80. Notes the 170 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at UK airports, and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers at UK airports of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed, Abu Omar and Maher Arar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El Zari;

GERMANY

81. Acknowledges the good cooperation on the part of the German Government by providing restricted documents to the Chairman and the rapporteur of the Temporary Committee; regrets, on the other hand, that no representative of the German Government was able to appear before the Temporary Committee;

82. Welcomes the excellent work of the German parliamentary inquiry committee and expresses its full support for the continuation of that committee's work;

83. Thanks Munich Public Prosecutor Martin Hofmann for his testimony to the Temporary Committee and applauds all ongoing judicial inquiries in Germany; notes and welcomes the fact that the Munich Court has issued warrants for the arrest of 13 suspected CIA agents in connection with the illegal abduction and wrongful imprisonment of Khaled el-Masri, and expects the German Government to take all necessary steps to obtain their extradition from the United States;

84. Thanks the German Parliament inquiry committee for having examined the case of Khaled El-Masri; takes note that, to date, the committee's inquiries have shown that there was no involvement of the German authorities in the illegal abduction; looks forward to the final conclusions by the German Parliament inquiry committee into this matter;

85. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of Murat Kurnaz, a Turkish citizen resident in Germany, who gave testimony to the Temporary Committee and who was arrested in Pakistan in November 2001, transferred to the US units across the border in Afghanistan by the Pakistani police on no legal basis and with no judicial assistance, and finally flown to Guantanamo at the end of January 2002, whence he was released on 24 August 2006 without charge, having been tortured in all the locations where he had been held;

86. Points out that, according to information given by Murat Kurnaz's lawyer and information provided by the German authorities, there was a prospect of the release of Murat Kurnaz from Guantanamo in 2002 but this was not accepted by the German authorities; notes that on many occasions since 2002, Murat Kurnaz's lawyer was told by the German Government that it was impossible to open negotiations with the US Government on his release because Murat Kurnaz was a Turkish citizen; notes that according to information available to the Temporary Committee as early as at the end of October 2002, Murat Kurnaz posed no terrorist threat; expects a full clarification of all relevant actions or failures to act on the part of the German authorities by the German Parliament inquiry committee and welcomes the fact that those inquiries have already begun;

87. Regrets the fact that Murat Kurnaz was interrogated twice, in 2002 and in 2004, by German officials at Guantanamo, where he was detained subject to neither a formal charge nor a trial and without judicial assistance; regrets the fact that German officials denied him any assistance and were interested only in questioning him;

88. Fully supports the investigation launched by the public prosecutor in Potsdam, transferred to the Public Prosecutor in Tübingen/Karlsruhe on 25 October 2006, into unknown perpetrators in order to establish whether Murat Kurnaz was ill-treated in Afghanistan by German soldiers belonging to the Kommando Spezialkräfte (KSK), the German army's special operational forces, before being sent to Guantanamo;

89. Notes that during his interrogation, Murat Kurnaz was confronted with details from his personal life; notes that this gives rise to the suspicion that, even before his departure from Germany, he was the subject of surveillance of a closeness which can normally be undertaken only by domestic intelligence services;

90. Appreciates the German Government's initiative in January 2006 which led to the release of Murat Kurnaz;

91. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of the German citizen Mohammed Zammar, who was arrested without formal charge on 8 December 2001 at Casablanca airport in Morocco and detained and tortured in Morocco and Syria;

92. Notes that, according to a confidential institutional source, on 26 November 2001 the German Federal Criminal Police Office provided details of Mohammed Zammar's whereabouts to the FBI, and that this facilitated Mohammed Zammar's arrest;

93. Points out that, subsequently to a meeting between the officials of the German Federal Chancellery and Syrian intelligence officials in July 2002, German prosecutors dropped charges against several Syrian citizens in Germany while the Syrian authorities allowed German officials to interrogate Mohammed Zammar in the Syrian prison Far' Falastin, which has been confirmed by a confidential institutional source; regrets that Mohammed Zammar was interrogated by German agents in that prison;

94. Calls on the German Bundestag's First Committee of Inquiry, in the context of the forthcoming expansion of its remit, to investigate the case which recently came to light involving the illegal rendition of the Egyptian citizen and long-term resident in Germany, Abdel-Halim Khafagy; Abdel-Halim Khafagy was probably arrested in Bosnia and Herzegovina in September 2001 on suspicion of being a terrorist and abducted to a prison on the US 'Eagle Base' military base in Tuzla, where he was severely mistreated and detained under inhumane conditions;

95. Is deeply concerned at information contained in an unclassified document made available to the Temporary Committee which shows that the illegal rendition of at least six Algerians from Tuzla via Incirlik to Guantanamo was planned at the US European Command (USEUCOM) military base near Stuttgart; calls on the German Bundestag to investigate without delay whether those alleged renditions involved breaches of the Forces Status Agreement or other agreements or treaties concluded with US military forces on German territory, whether further illegal renditions were planned by USEUCOM and whether German liaison officers were involved in any way;

96. Notes the 336 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at German airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Germany of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary renditions of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed, Abu Omar and Maher Arar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El Zari; is particularly concerned that one of the flights referred to was destined for Guantanamo; strongly encourages the German authorities further to investigate that flight;

97. Notes the allegations concerning the temporary detention and mistreatment of suspected terrorists at the US military prison in Mannheim-Blumenau, welcomes the investigations opened by the Federal Public Prosecutor's Office and hopes that the German Bundestag and/or the competent committee of inquiry will investigate this case more closely;

SWEDEN

98. Takes note of the position of the Swedish Government, expressed in the letter transmitted to the Temporary Committee by its Foreign Minister Carl Bildt; regrets that no representative of the government was able to appear before the Temporary Committee in order to hold an exchange of views on its position;

99. Condemns the fact that Sweden's expulsion in December 2001 of Mohammed El-Zari and Ahmed Agiza, Egyptian citizens who were seeking asylum in Sweden, was based on diplomatic assurances from the Egyptian Government alone, which did not provide effective safeguards against torture; also acknowledges that the Swedish Government hindered the men from exercising their rights in accordance with the provisions of the ECHR, by not informing their lawyers until they had arrived in Cairo; deplores the fact that the Swedish authorities accepted an US offer to place at their disposal an aircraft that benefited from special overflight authorisation in order to transport the two men to Egypt;

100. Deplores the fact that the Swedish security police lost control over the enforcement of the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El-Zari to Egypt, outside the rule of law, by remaining passive during the degrading treatment of the men by US agents at Bromma airport;

101. Underlines that the decision to expel the men was taken at the highest executive level, from which no appeal was possible;

102. Fully endorses the UN Human Rights Committee's decision of 6 November 2006 in which it found that Sweden had breached the absolute ban on torture; similarly endorses a separate ruling by the UN Committee against Torture of 20 May 2005, which concluded that Sweden had violated the UN Convention against Torture and stated that 'procurement of diplomatic assurances (from Egypt), which, moreover, provided no mechanism for their enforcement, did not suffice to protect against this manifest risk';

103. Thanks the Swedish Chief Parliamentary Ombudsman, Mats Melin, for his testimony to the Temporary Committee and applauds his investigation which concluded that the Swedish security service and airport police 'were remarkably submissive to the American officials' and 'lost control of the enforcement', resulting in the ill-treatment of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El-Zari, including physical abuse and other humiliation, at the airport immediately before they were transported to Cairo;

AUSTRIA

104. Notes the written explanations given on behalf of the Austrian Government but regrets that the Austrian Government did not consider it appropriate to appear before the Temporary Committee in order to hold an exchange of views about its position;

105. Notes that, according to these written explanations, the men referred to in the paragraphs that follow, Masaad Omer Behari and Gamal Menshawi, were resident in Austria, did not have Austrian citizenship, and their freedom of movement was unrestricted; notes that the two men left Austria voluntarily and without undergoing checks by the Austrian authorities, and that they were arrested by foreign agencies, outside Austrian territory and outside the area of influence of the Austrian authorities, with no Austrian involvement; notes that, accordingly, these are clearly not cases of rendition of persons to foreign authorities;

106. Recalls, nonetheless, that under the ECHR, State parties have jurisdiction as concerns residents within their territory, and, consequently, a duty to protect them and to inquire into any human rights violations against them;

107. Condemns the fact that Masaad Omer Behari, a Sudanese citizen and resident in Austria since 1989, who gave testimony to the Temporary Committee, was abducted at Amman airport on 12 January 2003 on his way back to Vienna from Sudan;

108. Deplores the fact that Masaad Omer Behari was later illegally secretly detained in a prison close to Amman run by the Jordan General Intelligence Department, in the absence of a trial or legal assistance, and that he was tortured and ill-treated there until 8 April 2003, when he was released without charge;

109. Condemns the abduction of Egyptian citizen and resident in Austria, Gamal Menshawi, who was arrested on his way to Mecca at Amman airport in February 2003, and later brought to Egypt where he was secretly detained until 2005 in the absence of a trial or legal assistance;

110. Regrets that, having considered the above paragraphs, neither a special nor a parliamentary inquiry was undertaken in Austria into the possible involvement of the Austrian authorities in the two cases referred to; urges the Austrian Parliament to start appropriate inquiries as soon as possible;

SPAIN

111. Welcomes the declaration of good cooperation with the Temporary Committee of the Spanish Government, in particular, the testimony given to the Temporary Committee by its Minister for Foreign Affairs; regrets, nevertheless, that the Spanish Government ultimately did not authorise the Director of the Spanish Intelligence Services to appear before the Temporary Committee, several months after having been requested to do so;

112. Thanks the Chief Prosecutor Javier Zaragoza and Prosecutor Vicente González Mota of the Audiencia Nacional for their testimony to the Temporary Committee and applauds their investigations into the use of Spanish airports for the transit of CIA aircraft within the context of the programme of extraordinary rendition; encourages the prosecutors to investigate further the stopovers of the aircraft involved in the extraordinary rendition of Khaled El-Masri; takes note of the decision by the Spanish authorities, at the request of the Judge of the Audiencia Nacional, to declassify secret documents held by the intelligence services concerning the use by CIA-operated aircraft of Spanish airports;

113. Applauds the investigative journalism of Diario de Mallorca, which played an important role in revealing the transit of CIA aircrafts through the Balearic Island airports and the identification of their crews;

114. Recalls the words of Chief Prosecutor Zaragoza that 'there was no obstacle, objection or trouble from the side of the Spanish Government in the investigations by the Audiencia Nacional';

115. Calls on the Spanish authorities to take all necessary steps to allow Spanish citizen Mustafa Setmariam Nasarwho, abducted in Syria in October 2005 and rendered to US agents, to face a fair trial before competent judicial authorities;

116. Notes the 68 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Spanish airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Spain of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA in other countries for the extraordinary rendition of Ahmed Agiza, Mohammed El-Zari, Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed, Abu Omar and Maher Arar, according to the legal investigations under way in Spain and Italy; is particularly concerned that, of the above flights, three originated from or were destined for Guantanamo; strongly encourages the Spanish prosecutors further to investigate those flights;

PORTUGAL

117. Welcomes the meeting in Lisbon with the Portuguese Minister of Foreign Affairs and the fact that the Portuguese Government supplied documents and explanations; regrets that the Portuguese authorities could not answer all the questions raised by the Temporary Committee delegation to Portugal;

118. Welcomes the judicial inquiry into the possible use of Portuguese territory for the transfer of prisoners suspected of terrorism and subjected to torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, opened on 5 February 2007, by the competent authorities in Portugal;

119. Notes, in particular, the case of Abdurahman Khadr, allegedly carried on board the Gulfstream IV N85VM from Guantanamo to Tuzla in Bosnia and Herzegovina on 6 November 2003, with a stopover at a Portuguese airport on 7 November 2003; calls on the authorities to examine other possible cases of detained people transported via Portugal;

120. Welcomes the establishment of the inter-ministerial working group on 26 September 2006 and the entry into force, on 13 October 2006, of a regulation stipulating that lists of the names of crew members and passengers on private flights must be submitted to the Portuguese frontier authorities;

121. Notes the 91 stopovers at Portuguese airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights that came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; is particularly concerned that of those flights, at least three originated from or were destined for Guantanamo; notes that the aircraft involved in the rendition of Maher Arar and Abou Elkassim Britel made stopovers in Portugal on their return flights;

122. Expresses concern at an additional list that the Temporary Committee has obtained, which indicates that civil and military aircraft from a number of countries, travelling to or from Guantanamo in Portuguese airspace, between 11 January 2002 and 24 June 2006, made a further 14 stopovers at Portuguese airports; notes that the Portuguese Government provided information concerning 7 of those stopovers, carried out within the framework of operation 'Enduring Freedom';

IRELAND

123. Welcomes the testimony given to the Temporary Committee by the Irish Minister for Foreign Affairs on behalf of the Irish Government as well as his unequivocal criticism of the process of extraordinary rendition; notes the fact, however, that he failed to answer all the questions in relation to the concerns that Irish airports may have been used by CIA aircraft travelling to or from extraordinary rendition missions (as in the case of Abu Omar);

124. Thanks the Irish Human Rights Commission (IHRC) for its testimony to the Temporary Committee and endorses its view which considers that the acceptance by the Irish Government of diplomatic assurances does not fulfil Ireland's human rights obligations, which oblige the government actively to seek to prevent any actions that could in any way facilitate torture or ill-treatment in Ireland or abroad; regrets the decision of the Irish Government not to follow the IHRC's advice in this matter to date; notes that there is a continuing dialogue between the IHRC and the Irish Government;

125. Notes the 147 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Irish airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Ireland of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed, Abu Omar and Maher Arar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El Zari;

126. Notes the absence of Irish parliamentary scrutiny of either Irish or foreign intelligence services and the potential that this creates for abuse;

127. Considers, that, in the absence of a system of random searches, a ban should be imposed on all CIA-operated aircraft landing in Ireland;

128. Urges the Irish Government, in view of the findings of the Temporary Committee, to agree to launch a parliamentary inquiry into the use of Irish territory as part of the CIA rendition circuit;

GREECE

129. Notes the 64 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Greek airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Greece of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed and Maher Arar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El-Zari;

CYPRUS

130. Notes the 57 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Cypriot airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Cyprus of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed and Abu Omar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El-Zari;

DENMARK

131. Welcomes the cooperation received from the Danish authorities, while regretting that no representative of the government considered it appropriate to appear before the Temporary Committee;

BELGIUM

132. Calls on the Belgian Government to disclose the results of all investigations that have taken place concerning the use of Belgian airports and Belgian airspace by aircraft involved in the extraordinary rendition programme or the transport of detainees;

133. Notes the statements of the President of the Belgian Senate Anne-Marie Lizin which deplore the lack of cooperation by the Belgian intelligence services and the Belgian authorities at the beginning of the inquiry; but refers to the final conclusions of the report of the Belgian Senate, which testify to Belgium's willingness to overcome the problems encoutered;

TURKEY

134. Expresses its serious concern about the failure of the Turkish authorities to extend diplomatic protection to Turkish citizen Murat Kurnaz and about the absence of any step to secure his release from the prison at Guantanamo;

135. Regrets that, on the contrary, the same authorities used the illegal detention of Murat Kurnaz to interrogate him at Guantanamo;

136. Deplores the silence of the Turkish authorities concerning the use of their territory for the stopover of an aircraft that had taken to Guantanamo the six citizens of or residents in Bosnia and Herzogovina, of Algerian origin, who were illegally arrested in Bosnia and Herzegovina;

FORMER YUGOSLAV REPUBLIC OF MACEDONIA

137. Emphasises that a delegation of the Temporary Committee was received in Skopje in April 2006 by the President of the Republic, members of the government and several officials and thanks them for the welcome given to the delegation; notes, however, a lack of thorough investigation into the Khaled El-Masri case by the authorities of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia;

138. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of the German citizen Khaled El-Masri, abducted at the border-crossing Tabanovce in the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia on 31 December 2003, illegally held in Skopje from 31 December 2003 to 23 January 2004 and then transported to Afghanistan on 23 to 24 January 2004, where he was held until May 2004 and subjected to degrading and inhuman treatment;

139. Urges the Council and its High Representative for the CFSP to shed full light on the fact that the EU police mission (Proxima) was incorporated into the Ministry of Interior of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and was involved in the work of the Macedonian Security and Counter-Espionage Service (DBK) at the time when Khaled El-Masri was handed over to the CIA; would like to know if it is true that the Council questioned the EU staff involved in the Proxima mission so as to evaluate the level of information in their possession regarding the case of Khaled el Masri; if appropriate, asks the Council to provide Parliament with a full account of the investigation;

140. Fully endorses the preliminary findings of Munich Public Prosecutor Martin Hofmann that there is no evidence on the basis of which to refute Khaled El-Masri's version of events;

141. Deeply regrets the fact that the authorities of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia failed to follow up the recommendations made by the Temporary Committee in its interim report of 6 July 2006;

142. Points out again that the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia authorities are expected to carry out investigations; urges the newly elected national parliament of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to set up a committee of inquiry as soon as possible to deal with the case of Khaled El-Masri and to cooperate fully with the ongoing inquiry of the German Parliament;

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

143. Welcomes the fact that the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina is the only European government that does not deny its participation in the extraordinary rendition of four citizens of and two residents in Bosnia and Herzegovina, all of Algerian origin, and stresses that the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina is the only European government to have accepted formal responsibility for its illegal actions; regrets, however, that the steps undertaken by the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina have not yet resulted in the release of the six men from Guantanamo;

144. Condemns the extraordinary rendition of those six men, who were abducted in Sarajevo on 17 January 2002, turned over to US soldiers and then flown to Guantanamo, where they remain detained without trial or legal guarantees;

145. Takes note of the testimony given to the Temporary Committee by Wolfgang Petritsch, former High Representative of the international community in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and by Michèle Picard, former President of the Human Rights Chamber of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which stated that representatives of the international community in Bosnia and Herzegovina were given adequate notice of the imminent transfer of the men to the US forces before events unfolded; condemns in this respect the governments of the Member States for their lack of action;

146. Regrets the fact that the international community, as represented in Bosnia and Herzegovina, turned a blind eye to the failure to implement the decisions of the Supreme Court and the Human Rights Chamber of Bosnia and Herzegovina ordering the release of the six men from custody;

147. Points out that, according to the information that the Temporary Committee received from the lawyers of the six men, the authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina were subject to unprecedented pressure from the US Government, which threatened to close its embassy, withdraw all staff and cease diplomatic relations with Bosnia and Herzegovina unless the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina immediately arrested the six men on terrorism charges;

148. Notes that Wolfgang Petritsch confirmed that the United States put considerable pressure on the authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the international community not to interfere in the renditions and that the commander of the international NATO-led Stabilisation Force in particular rejected any questioning of his activities since he acted in his capacity as US military officer;

OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

149. Notes the stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at other European countries' airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; encourages the authorities of those European countries to launch adequate investigations into this matter;

Secret detention facilities

150. Welcomes the investigations carried out into the existence of secret detention facilities in Europe by Human Rights Watch, the Washington Post and American Broadcasting Company News (ABC News);

151. Recalls that some journalists at the Washington Post and ABC News, as they confirmed to the Temporary Committee, were put under pressure not to name the eastern European countries, namely Poland and Romania, where there were said to have been secret detention facilities;

152. Emphasises that the concept of 'secret detention facility' includes not only prisons, but also all places where persons are held incommunicado, such as private apartments, police stations or hotel rooms, as in the case of Khaled El-Masri in Skopje;

153. Is deeply concerned that in some cases temporary secret detention facilities in European countries may have been located at US military bases;

154. Calls for the appropriate implementation of bilateral agreements, Status of Forces Agreements and military base agreements (between Member States and third countries) to ensure the monitoring of respect for human rights and, where appropriate, for a review and renegotiation of those agreements to this effect; stresses that, according to the Venice Commission, the legal framework of foreign military bases on the territory of Council of Europe's Member States must enable them to exercise sufficient powers to fulfil their human rights obligations;

155. Points out in this regard the allegations concerning the US Coleman Barracks in Mannheim, Germany, and calls on both the judiciary and the German Bundestag's inquiry Committee to investigate this case further;

156. Regrets that there may have been a lack of control over US military bases by host European countries; recalls, however, that the ECHR provides that all State parties are bound to exercise jurisdiction over their entire territory, including any foreign military bases;

157. Recalls that the ECHR also provides that every case of detention must be lawful and must be the result of proceedings prescribed by law, whether national or international;

158. Recalls that imposing or executing or allowing directly or indirectly secret and illegal detentions, which are instruments resulting in people's 'disappearance', constitute serious violations of human rights per se and that the active or passive involvement in such secret and illegal detentions by a European country renders that county responsible under the ECHR;

ROMANIA

159. Welcomes the excellent hospitality and good cooperation extended by the Romanian authorities to the Temporary Committee, including meetings with members of the Romanian Government, as well as the establishment of an ad hoc inquiry committee of the Romanian Senate;

160. Notes, however, the reluctance on the part of the competent Romanian authorities to investigate thoroughly the existence of secret detention facilities on its territory;

161. Regrets that the report issued by the Romanian inquiry committee was entirely secret except for its conclusions, included in Chapter 7, categorically denying the possibility that secret detention facilities could be hosted on Romanian soil; regrets that the Romanian inquiry committee heard no testimony from journalists, NGOs, or officials working at airports, and has not yet provided the Temporary Committee with the report contrary to its commitment to do so; regrets that taking these elements into consideration, the conclusions drawn in the Romanian inquiry committee's report appear premature and superficial; takes note, however, of the intention expressed by the Chairwoman of the inquiry committee to the Temporary Committee delegation to consider the conclusions provisional;

162. Regrets the lack of control of the Gulfstream aircraft with Registration Number N478GS that suffered an accident on 6 December 2004 when landing in Bucharest; recalls that the aircraft took off from Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan, and that its seven passengers disappeared following the accident; appreciates, however, the good cooperation of the Romanian authorities in handing over the accident report to the Temporary Committee;

163. Is deeply concerned to see that the Romanian authorities did not initiate an official investigation process into the case of a passenger on the aircraft Gulfstream N478GS, who was found carrying a Beretta 9 mm Parabellum pistol with ammunition;

164. Notes the 21 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Romanian airports, and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Romania of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri, Binyam Mohammed and Abu Omar and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El Zari; is particularly concerned that, of the flights referred to, two originated from or were destined for Guantanamo; strongly encourages the Romanian authorities further to investigate those flights;

165. Is concerned about the doubts expressed in regard to the control exercised by the Romanian authorities over US activities at Kogalniceanu airport;

166. Cannot exclude, based only on the statements made by Romanian authorities to the Temporary Committee delegation to Romania, the possibility that US secret services operated in Romania on a clandestine basis and that no definitive evidence has been provided to contradict any of the allegations concerning the running of a secret detention facility on Romanian soil;

POLAND

167. Deplores the glaring lack of cooperation by the Polish Government with the Temporary Committee, in particular when receiving the Temporary Committee delegation at an inappropriate level; deeply regrets that all those representatives of the Polish Government and Parliament who were invited to do so, declined to meet the Temporary Committee;

168. Believes that this attitude reflects an overall rejection on the part of the Polish Government of the Temporary Committee and its objective to examine allegations and establish facts;

169. Regrets that no special inquiry committee has been established and that the Polish Parliament has conducted no independent investigation;

170. Recalls that on 21 December 2005, the Special Services Committee held a private meeting with the Minister Coordinator of Special Services and the heads of both intelligence services; emphasises that the meeting was conducted speedily and in secret, in the absence of any hearing or testimony and subject to no scrutiny; stresses that such an investigation cannot be defined as independent and regrets that the committee released no documentation, save for a single final statement in this regard;

171. Notes the 11 stopovers made by CIA-operated aircraft at Polish airports and expresses serious concern about the purpose of those flights which came from or were bound for countries linked with extraordinary rendition circuits and the transfer of detainees; deplores the stopovers in Poland of aircraft that have been shown to have been used by the CIA, on other occasions, for the extraordinary rendition of Bisher Al-Rawi, Jamil El-Banna, Abou Elkassim Britel, Khaled El-Masri and Binyam Mohammed and for the expulsion of Ahmed Agiza and Mohammed El Zar;

172. Regrets that following the hearings carried out by the Temporary Committee delegation in Poland, there was confusion and contradictory statements were made about the flight plans for those CIA flights, which were first said not to have been retained, then said probably to have been archived at the airport, and finally claimed to have been sent by the Polish Government to the Council of Europe; acknowledges that in November 2006, the Szymany Airport's management provided the Temporary Committee with partial information on flight plans;

173. Thanks the former manager of the Szymany airport, for the valuable testimony given before the Temporary Committee; notes the fact that during 2006 he or she was questioned in the framework of a late enquiry concerning the CIA flights, immediately after his or her testimony was made public;

174. Takes note that, according to different sources, several high-value detainees who had been held secretly in Afghanistan in 2003 were transferred out of the country in September and October 2003; underlines with concern that a Boeing 737 with Registration Number N313P, used by the CIA for ascertained renditions, flew from Kabul to Szymany airport on 22 September 2003 and was then directed to Guantanamo;

175. Recalls that as regards the landing of the aircraft referred to at Szymany airport, seven staff on board were joined by five passengers and no customs control was carried out on those passengers;

176. Takes note of the declarations made by Szymany airport employees, and notably by its former manager, according to which:

— in 2002, two Gulfstream jets, and in 2003, four Gulfstream jets with civilian registration numbers were parked at the edge of the airport and did not enter customs clearance;

— orders were given directly by the regional border guards about the arrivals of the aircraft referred to, emphasising that the airport authorities should not approach the aircraft and that military staff and services alone were to handle those aircraft and to complete the technical arrangements only after the landing;

— according to a former senior official of the airport, no Polish civilian or military staff were permitted to approach the aircraft;

— excessive landing fees were paid in cash — usually between EUR 2 000 and EUR 4 000;

— one or two vehicles waited for the arrival of the aircraft;

— the vehicles had military registration numbers starting with 'H', which are associated with the intelligence training base in nearby Stare Kiejkuty;

— in one case, a medical emergency vehicle belonging to either the police academy or the military base was involved;

— one airport staff member reported following the vehicles on one occasion and seeing them heading towards the intelligence training centre at Stare Kiejkuty;

177. Acknowledges that shortly thereafter and in accordance with President George W. Bush's statements on 6 September 2006, a list of the 14 detainees who had been transferred from a secret detention facility to Guantanamo was published; notes that 7 of the 14 detainees had been referred to in a report by ABC News, which was published 9 months previously on 5 December 2005 but withdrawn shortly thereafter from ABC's webpage, listing the names of twelve top Al Qaeda suspects held in Poland;

178. Encourages the Polish Parliament to establish a proper inquiry committee, independent of the government and capable of carrying out serious and thorough investigations;

179. Regrets that Polish human rights NGOs and investigative journalists have faced a lack of cooperation from the government and refusals to divulge information;

180. Takes note of the statements made by the highest representatives of the Polish authorities that no secret detention centres were based in Poland; considers, however, that in the light of the above circumstantial evidence, it is not possible to acknowledge or deny that secret detention centres were based in Poland;

181. Notes with concern that the official reply of 10 March 2006 from Under-Secretary of State Witold Waszykowski to the Secretary-General of the Council of Europe, Terry Davis, indicates the existence of secret cooperation agreements, initialled by the two countries' secret services themselves, which exclude the activities of foreign secret services from the jurisdiction of Polish judicial bodies;

KOSOVO (UNDER UN SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 1244(1999))

182. Expresses deep concern about the fact that the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CPT) obtained access to NATO-run detention facilities in Kosovo only in July 2006;

183. Regrets the refusal of NATO to provide evidence of the allegations of illegal detention of terrorist suspects in the prison run by the NATO-led peacekeeping force in Kosovo (KFOR) at Camp Bondsteel, the only detention facility in Europe where CPT inspectors were not allowed unlimited access until very recently;

184. Points out in this respect that the testimony given to the Temporary Committee by the former Kosovo Ombudsman, Marek Antoni Nowicki, confirmed that from July 1999, inmates were frequently detained at Camp Bondsteel, subject only to a decision by the Commander of KFOR and subject to no judicial decision or any form of other external control; recalls that from 2000 to 2001, a number of people were detained also following administrative decisions of the Special Representative of the UN Secretary-General and that, according to official data available, 23 people were imprisoned at Camp Bondsteel for a short period of time by the KFOR Commander in connection with violent events in Kosovo in spring 2004;

Other relevant information collected by the Temporary Committee

185. Points out that the Temporary Committee came across information — including the direct testimony of Murat Kurnaz — about the interrogation of Guantanamo detainees carried out by agents of Member State governments; emphasises that those interrogations were aimed at collecting information from individuals illegally detained, which is clearly in contradiction with the public condemnation of Guantanamo, as expressed on several occasions at both EU and Member State level;

186. Encourages the Member States involved to launch adequate investigations into this matter;

Recommendations

Political recommendations

187. Considers it necessary that those European countries that have started inquiries and investigations at governmental, parliamentary and/or judicial level on matters within the remit of the Temporary Committee should conduct their work as speedily as possible and make public the results of the investigations;

188. Urges European countries in relation to which serious allegations have been made regarding active or passive cooperation with extraordinary rendition and that have not undertaken governmental, parliamentary and/or judicial investigations to commence such proceedings as soon as possible; recalls that, according to the case law of the European Court of Human Rights, there is a positive obligation on Member States to investigate allegations of and sanction human rights violations in breach of the ECHR;

189. Calls for the closure of Guantanamo and for European countries immediately to seek the return of their citizens and residents who are being held illegally by US authorities;

190. Considers that all European countries that have not done so should initiate independent investigations into all stopovers made by civilian aircraft carried out by the CIA, at least since 2001, including those cases already analysed by the Temporary Committee;

191. Expects to be kept fully informed about all developments concerning all the above-mentioned procedures;

192. Calls on European countries to compensate the innocent victims of extraordinary rendition and to ensure that they have access to effective and speedy compensation, including access to rehabilitation programmes, guarantees that there will be no repetition of what happened as well as appropriate financial compensation;

193. Asks the Commission to undertake an evaluation of all anti-terrorist legislation in the Member States and of both formal and informal arrangements between Member State and third-country intelligence services, from a human rights perspective, to review legislation which international or European human rights bodies consider could lead to a breach of human rights and to present proposals for actions in order to avoid any repetition of the matters under the remit of the Temporary Committee;

194. Considers it necessary to review by limiting and restrictively defining the exceptions that flow from the notion of 'State secret', also in the framework of the impending review of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 ([1]), as well as the adoption of common principles by the EU institutions as regards the treatment of confidential information, to avoid abuses and deviations that are more and more unacceptable in modern democratic States and that contradict human rights obligations; deems it necessary to establish specific mechanisms to allow for access to secret information by parliaments and judges, as well as for the release of the information after a certain period of time;

([1]) Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2001 regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents (OJ L 145, 31.5.2001, p. 43).

195. Notes the recent creation of a High-Level Working Group composed of representatives of the Commission, the Council and US governmental representatives of the Justice Ministry and the Homeland Security, which constitutes the political framework for EU-US dialogue on security matters, including differences in the approach to terrorism as well as the concerns raised by the Temporary Committee; deems it necessary to associate in this High-Level Working Group the European Parliament and the US Congress, as well as to publish its agendas, minutes, documents examined and decisions taken, in order to ensure and increase its democratic legitimacy and transparency;

196. Encourages European countries when they conduct military operations in third countries to:

— ensure that any detention centre established by their military forces is subject to political and judicial supervision and that incommunicado detention is not permitted; — take active steps to prevent any other authority from operating detention centres which are not subject to political and judicial oversight or where incommunicado detention is permitted;

Legal recommendations

197. Considers that the powers of Parliament's temporary inquiry committees should be reinforced and the inter-institutional decision governing the exercise of Parliament's right of inquiry be amended accordingly;

198. Considers that Parliament should be adequately involved when the Community or the Union adopt measures affecting civil rights and liberties;

199. Calls for the establishment of an adequate and structured system of cooperation between Parliament and competent bodies of the United Nations and the Council of Europe when dealing with matters related to internal security of the European Union;

200. Calls for enhanced cooperation with national parliaments in order to share all information in the public domain related to the fight against international terrorism;

201. Underlines the importance of a common definition of 'terrorism' and calls for the establishment of efficient legal tools for combating terrorism within the framework of international law; believes that the United Nations is the most suitable organisation to define the concept;

SECRET SERVICES

202. Fully endorses the conclusions of the Secretary-General of the Council of Europe, Terry Davis, about the lack of oversight and judicial control mechanisms in respect of security services, as expressed in the 'Follow-up to the Secretary General's reports under Article 52 ECHR' and expects his recommendations to be duly taken into consideration; calls on Member States to provide adequate and effective parliamentary monitoring (by establishing oversight committees with appropriate powers to access documents and budgetary information) and legal supervision over their secret and intelligence services and the formal and informal networks of which they are part;

203. Considers it necessary to enhance the Conference of the Oversight Committees on the Intelligence bodies of the Member States, in which Parliament should be fully involved;

204. Considers that all European countries should have specific national laws to regulate and monitor the activities of third countries' secret services on their national territories, to ensure better monitoring and supervision also of their activities, as well as to sanction illegal acts or activities, in particular those in violation of human rights;

205. Considers the reinforcement of cooperation between the secret and security services of Member States to be highly desirable, either on a multilateral basis, preferably within an EU framework, or on a bilateral basis, provided that a legal framework for it is created ensuring full democratic parliamentary and judicial control and human rights are respected and protected at all times;

206. Urges the Council and the Member States to establish as a matter of priority a system for the democratic monitoring and control over the joint and coordinated intelligence activities at EU level; proposes an important role for Parliament in this monitoring and control system;

AIR TRAFFIC

207. Urges the Member States to ensure that Article 3 of the Chicago Convention, which excludes state aircraft from the scope of the Convention, is properly implemented in order that all military and/or police aircraft fly over or land on another State's territory only if they have prior authorisation and, in accordance with that Convention, that a ban or system of inspections be introduced for all CIA-operated aircraft known or suspected to have been involved in extraordinary rendition;

208. Calls on Member States to take adequate measures to ensure that overflight clearances for military and/or police aircraft should be granted only if accompanied by guarantees that human rights will be respected and monitored;

209. Considers it necessary to enforce effectively, both at EU and national level, the Tokyo Convention on Offences and Certain Other Acts Committed on Board Aircraft so that the exercise of jurisdiction is used to ensure the observance of any obligation under a multilateral international agreement, in particular concerning the protection of human rights, and that, when appropriate, inspections on board should be undertaken;

210. Calls on the Commission to adopt adequate legislative proposals on transport safety, as provided for in Article 71 EC Treaty, taking into account the recommendations included in this resolution;

211. Recalls the Community competence in the field of transport, and notably transport security; asks the Commission, therefore, to take immediate action to ensure that the recommendations made by the Secretary-General of the Council of Europe as well as by Parliament are implemented;

212. Calls on the Commission to consider adopting rules on the use, monitoring and management of European airspace, on the use of EU airports and on the monitoring of non-commercial aviation;

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTIONS AND AGREEMENTS

213. Urges the Member States that have not yet done so to complete as soon as possible ratification of the 2003 EU-US Extradition Agreement, while taking adequate steps to avoid wrongly interpreting Article 12 of the Agreement, thereby ensuring that its scope does not extend beyond formal extradition and does not legitimise extraordinary renditions;

214. Calls on European countries to ratify and implement the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons Against Enforced Disappearance, adopted on 20 December 2006 by the UN General Assembly;

215. Believes that, in providing for the adequate interpretation and enforcement of the UN Convention Against Torture, all European countries should ensure that their definition of torture is in accordance with Article 1 of the Convention and that, moreover, the obligations relating to the prohibition of torture are also fulfilled with respect to other acts of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment referred to in Article 16 of the Convention; considers that all European countries should ensure that Article 3 of the Convention is properly enforced, in particular in relation to the activities of their secret services;

216. States that, given that the protection against refoulement is higher under the ECHR than under the UN Convention against Torture, European countries should ensure in any event the protection afforded by the ECHR; recalls, in this context, that the principle of non-refoulement is also recognised by the Court of Justice of the European Communities;

217. Calls on all European countries to sign and ratify the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention Against Torture and establish independent national mechanisms to monitor places of detention; emphasises the need to ensure that all such procedures used by the different international conventions on human rights are compatible;

218. Takes the view that the CPT should be granted access without delay or obstruction to any place of detention within the European countries, including foreign military bases, and provided with all relevant information concerning such detention, and that, to this end, any bilateral agreements that restrict the access of the CPT should be revised;

219. Urges all European countries to comply with the provisions of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court;

220. Believes that the European Union should encourage all third countries to become party to the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture and to the UN Convention on Enforced Disappearances;

221. Asks European countries to establish clear rules that provide for the possibility of State immunity being waived where illegal actions violate human rights;

Administrative recommendations (at EU level)

222. Takes the view that all internal services within the Council (inter alia, the Policy Unit and the Joint Situation Centre) and the Commission (the Crisis Management and Conflict Prevention Unit in the Directorate-General for External Relations and relevant services in the Directorate-General for Justice, Freedom and Security), should be strengthened in the framework of the implementation of the EU Security Strategy and the counter-terrorism strategy in close cooperation with all Member States, and that their cooperation with each other, as well as with Member States, be clearly regulated and data protection be ensured; considers that Parliament should be involved fully in this regard by granting it oversight powers similar to those of national parliamentary oversight committees, and that the Court of Justice be granted competence in this area; underlines that the competence of the EU in the field of combating terrorism should be significantly strengthened;

EU relations with third countries

223. Urges the European Union to stress in its contacts with third countries that the appropriate legal framework for governing the international fight against terrorism is criminal law and international human rights law;

224. Stresses the necessity of political dialogue with the United States, as well as with other strategic partners of the European Union, on security matters in order to combat terrorism effectively and by legal means;

225. Calls on the European Union to recall that the full application of the 'democratic clause' is fundamental in its relations with third countries, especially those with which it has concluded agreements; calls on the governments of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Morocco to provide clarity on their role in the extraordinary renditions programme;

226. Strongly believes that it is necessary to promote within the UN framework codes of conduct for all security and military services based on respect for human rights, humanitarian law and democratic political control, similar to the 1994 Code of Conduct on Politico-Military Aspects of Security of the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe;

Final conclusions

227. Stresses, in view of the powers it was provided with and of the time which it had at its disposal, [and the secret nature of the investigated actions, that the Temporary Committee was not put in a position fully to investigate all the cases of abuses and violations falling within its remit and that its conclusions are therefore not exhaustive;

228. Recalls the principles and values on which the European Union is based, as provided in Article 6 of the Treaty on European Union, and calls on the EU institutions to meet their responsibilities in relation to Article 7 of the Treaty on European Union and all other relevant provisions of the Treaties, and to take all appropriate measures in the light of the conclusions of the work of the Temporary Committee, the facts revealed in the course of the Temporary Committee's investigation and any other facts that may emerge in the future; expects the Council to put pressure on all the governments concerned to give full and through information to the Council and the Commission and, where necessary to start hearings and commission an independent investigation without delay;

229. Believes that the principle of loyal cooperation enshrined in the Treaties — which requires Member States and the EU institutions to take measures to ensure the fulfilment of their obligations under the Treaties, such as the respect of human rights, or resulting from action taken by the EU institutions, such as ascertaining the truth about alleged CIA flights and prisons, and to facilitate the achievement of EU tasks and objectives — has not been respected;

230. Recalls that in light of European Court of Human Rights case law, a signatory State bears responsibility for the material breach of the provisions of the ECHR, and therefore also of Article 6 of the Treaty on the European Union, not only if its direct responsibility can be established beyond reasonable doubt, but also by failing to comply with its positive obligation to conduct an independent and impartial investigation into reasonable allegations of such violations;

231. Notes the reports by reputable media operators that extraordinary rendition, illegal detention, and systematic torture involving many people is continuing, and considering the declaration by the current US Government that the use of extraordinary rendition and secret places of detention will be continued; therefore calls for an EU-US counter-terrorism summit to seek an end to such inhumane and illegal practices, and to insist that cooperation with regard to counter-terrorism is consistent with international human rights and anti-torture treaty obligations;

232. Instructs its Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs, where necessary in cooperation with the Committee on Foreign Affairs, notably its Sub-Committee on Human Rights, to follow up politically the proceedings of the Temporary Committee and to monitor the developments, and in particular, in the event that no appropriate action has been taken by the Council and/or the Commission, to determine whether there is a clear risk of a serious breach of the principles and values on which the European Union is based, and to recommend to it any resolution, taking as a basis Articles 6 and 7 of the Treaty on European Union, which may prove necessary in this context;

233. Calls on its Secretary-General to publish, at least in compliance with Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001, all the documents received, produced and examined, as well as the records of the proceedings of the Temporary Committee on the Internet as well as in any other appropriate manner and calls on the Secretary-General to ensure that the developments in fields falling within the remit of the Temporary Committee after its disbandment are monitored;

234. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the candidate countries and the associated countries, and to the Council of Europe, NATO, the United Nations and the government and both Houses of Congress of the United States, and to request them to keep Parliament informed of any development that may take place in the fields falling in the remit of the Temporary Committee.

Conservation of stocks of highly migratory species *

European Parliament legislative resolution on the proposal for a Council regulation laying down technical measures for the conservation of certain stocks of highly migratory species (COM(2006)0100 — C6-0106/2006 — 2006/0030(CNS))

(Consultation procedure)

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the Commission proposal to the Council (COM(2006)0100) ([1]),

TEXT PROPOSED BY THE COMMISSION	AMENDMENTS BY PARLIAMENT

Recital 4a (new)

(4a) According to the ICCAT Scientific Committee, current catch levels of bluefin tuna are not sustainable in the long term with the current exploitation patterns, and consequently the European Union should propose measures to rebuild the stock to ICCAT as a matter of urgency, including a recovery plan if necessary, together with control measures which will help to resolve the problems of overfishing and the underreporting of catches.

Recital 4b (new)

(4b) The scientific analyses point to a risk of collapse in the bluefin tuna fishery, and the European Union and its Member States should therefore urgently introduce control measures which will help to resolve the problem of overfishing, accompanied by a recovery plan, as recommended by the scientific analyses.

Recital 4c (new)

(4c) If they are to be effective, those control measures must enjoy general consensus, and it is therefore necessary for the Commission and the Member States to pursue an active policy to defend those measures in international fora as a matter of urgency, particularly vis-à-vis the regional fisheries organisations responsible for managing this resource and countries which are the main destination for bluefin tuna, such as Japan.

Recital 4d (new)

(4d) The growing demand for bluefin tuna has caused an increase in fishing pressure, both for direct sale and for supplying specimens to tuna farms, which requires, on the part of the European Union and the Member States, strict monitoring and improved information on both fishing and farming activity, since this is vital in order to be able to make a scientific assessment of the state of the resource.

TEXT PROPOSED BY THE COMMISSION	AMENDMENTS BY PARLIAMENT

Recital 4e (new)

Amendment 6

Recital 6a (new)

(6a) Given the current threat facing certain stocks of migratory species, the EU should promote and support the use of more selective and environmentally friendly fishing gear, in line with the commitments made under the common fisheries policy.

Amendment 7

Recital 13a (new)

(13a) The high commercial value attained by some of these migratory species in the world market for fish requires a stringent inspection policy with regard to illegal fishing practices, which are responsible for the current depleted state of some of these stocks.

The Court of Auditors' Special Report No 6/2005 on the Trans-European Network for Transport

European Parliament resolution on the European Court of Auditors' Special Report No 6/2005 on the Trans-European Network for Transport (TEN-T) (2006/2238(INI))

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the European Court of Auditors' Special Report No 6/2005 on the Trans-European Network for Transport (TEN-T), together with the Commission's replies [1],

— having regard to Article 248(4), second subparagraph, Article 276(3) and Article 280(5) of the EC Treaty,

— having regard to the Committee on Budgetary Control working document on the issue [2],

— having regard to its resolution of 26 October 2006 on the draft general budget of the EU for the financial year 2007 [3],

— having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Budgetary Control and the opinion of the Committee on Transport and Tourism (A6-0022/2007),

1. Welcomes the close and constructive cooperation between the Commission and the Court of Auditors on the programme for a TEN-T;

2. Welcomes the accurate analysis and clarity of the Special Report, and notes that it shares most of the European Court of Auditors' concerns and endorses most of its suggestions;

3. Notes the corrective actions taken by the Commission by, inter alia, modifying the governing Council regulations in 2004, with some of the European Court of Auditors' early findings being taken into consideration;

4. Points out that the new 2007-2013 financial framework will have a considerable impact on the TEN-T, as the amount agreed upon is approximately 40 % of that contained in the original Commission proposal of 14 July 2004 (COM(2004)0475), which proposed an amount of EUR 20 350 million for TEN-T for the period 2007 to 2013, whereas the financial framework made only EUR 8 013 million available; believes that, as a consequence, selecting, prioritising and ensuring efficient implementation of the projects will become even more important;

5. Regrets the meagre increase in the appropriations available for TEN-T;

6. Is concerned about the slow speed of implementation of the priority TEN-T projects;

7. Is of the opinion that the Commission has to further improve cooperation with Member States when priority projects at national and EU level are selected;

8. Considers it important for projects which are not completed on schedule to be subject to more stringent checks, with a possibility for subsidies under the multi-annual indicative programme to be transferred to projects which are progressing more rapidly;

(1) OJ C 94, 21.4.2006, p. 1.
(2) PE 374.326v02-00.
(3) Texts Adopted, P6_TA(2006)0451.

9. Stresses the importance of appropriate monitoring of the projects, including on-site checks by the Commission;

10. Welcomes, in this context, the first annual activity reports of the European coordinators [1], and agrees with the Commission's finding that failure to complete the trans-European transport network as a whole would lead to a loss of economic competitiveness;

11. Calls on the Member States to develop an integrated transport network policy to ensure the proper functioning of the trans-European transport network and the efficiency of national networks and to support a European added-value approach rather than fighting for the principle of 'fair share';

12. Emphasises that the selection of European transport projects has to be based on comprehensive studies assessing the need for any particular project at a very early stage;

13. Notes that the presence of a European coordinator has in general had a positive impact on strengthening coordination between Member States and has highlighted the need to set up common planning and management structures;

14. Emphasises, therefore, that the money available under the 2007-2013 financial framework should be allocated with account being taken of the European coordinators' comments, analyses and recommendations;

15. Asks the Commission to clarify the procedure for the appointment of the European coordinators when setting up the regulatory framework for the content of their reports;

16. Is of the opinion that in the current financial environment preference should be given to cross-border sections of priority projects with high Community added-value and to certain major 'bottlenecks' in order to contribute significantly to the completion of a trans-European, interconnected and interoperable transport network; welcomes in this context the cooperation agreement with the European Investment Bank (EIB);

17. Calls on the Commission to continue its efforts to establish clear legal frameworks and procedures, to guarantee rigorous monitoring and thorough evaluation of projects and programmes, and to draw up a comprehensive list of clear criteria which allow for the prioritisation of projects in a transparent manner;

18. Stresses the need to clarify the definitions of the terms 'studies' and 'works' by harmonising the structure for the description of works and by standardising technical and financial reporting;

19. Considers it essential, when selecting and assessing projects, to draw on the experience of external experts and the EIB and to promote the exchange of experience and information with DG REGIO;

20. Urges the Commission to establish a clear and transparent division of institutional responsibilities and to define a framework for the coordination of activities between DG REGIO and DG TREN with a view to avoiding double-financing of the same projects; considers it good practice to have clear agreements in place between the Member States and the Commission on the separation of funding from different EU sources;

21. Advocates a single entity for managing projects by focusing on the main activity, in the process maintaining centralised information, facilitating better monitoring by the Commission and improving the coordination of the different legal, administrative and technical issues between the Member States involved; believes that a single entity responsible for managing projects could reduce the risk of double funding;

22. Notes that payments from the Commission have taken excessive time to reach the final beneficiary; calls therefore for money to be paid out swiftly and efficiently; is of the opinion that in this context a direct payment flow from the Commission to the beneficiary could be a better solution;

[1] http://ec.europa.eu/ten/transport/coordinators/index_en.htm.

23. Considers the coordination of TEN-T projects to be essential, particularly in the case of cross-border projects, and hopes that the establishment of the TEN-T Executive Agency, which has now been announced by the Commission, may contribute to the implementation of the TEN-T projects; points out that the Commission should present a progress report on the activities and the possible future added value of the TEN-T Executive Agency to Parliament before the first reading of the 2008 Budget;

24. Points out that Council Regulation (EC) No 58/2003 of 19 December 2002 laying down the statute for executive agencies to be entrusted with certain tasks in the management of Community programmes [1] requires, in its Article 3(1) a cost-benefit analysis, taking into account a number of factors, before the establishment of an executive agency can be requested; regrets that the Commission was not in a position to present the European Court of Auditors with a satisfactory cost-benefit analysis of the establishment of an executive agency at the outset; remains, together with the European Court of Auditors, doubtful with regard to the quality of the revised version of the cost-benefit analysis concerning the externalisation of the management of Community financial support to the TEN-T networks; for the future, calls on the Commission to seek a positive opinion on cost-benefit analyses from the European Court of Auditors before forwarding a request for the establishment of an executive agency to the budgetary authorities;

25. Regrets that DG TREN's establishment plan does not reflect more adequately the fact that 54 % of its budget concerns TEN-T, but that only 5 % of its staff work in that area;

26. Stresses the use of modern project monitoring systems (GPS) and the sharing of best practices for project implementation monitoring systems;

27. Notes, in this context, the projected creation of an executive agency in 2007 which, according to the Commission, will be staffed by eight seconded officials from the Commission, 32 temporary staff (agency) and 48 contract staff; also notes that the cost of setting up the agency is estimated at EUR 78 600 000;

28. Underlines the fact that (co-)financing of TEN-T should take place transparently and that therefore regular information to Parliament and citizens should be guaranteed;

29. Calls on the European Court of Auditors to verify, at the appropriate time before 2009, the effectiveness of executive agencies and report back to the Committee on Budgetary Control;

30. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the European Court of Auditors.

Climate change

European Parliament resolution on climate change

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the twelfth session of the Conference of the Parties (COP 12) to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) and the second session of the Conference of the Parties serving as the Meeting of the Parties to the Kyoto Protocol (COP/MOP 2) held in Nairobi, Kenya, from 6 to 17 November 2006,

— having regard to its previous resolutions relating to climate change, and in particular those of 16 November 2005 on 'Winning the Battle against Global Climate Change' [1] and of 26 October 2006 on the European Union strategy for the Nairobi Conference (COP 12 and COP/MOP 2) [2],

[2] Texts Adopted, P6_TA(2006)0460.

— having regard to the Communication from the Commission to the Council, the European Parliament, the European Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of Regions entitled 'Limiting Global Climate Change to 2 degrees Celsius — The way ahead for 2020 and beyond' (COM(2007)0002),

— having regard to the conclusion formally approved on 2 February 2007 at the 10th Session of Working Group I of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), held in Paris, as a contribution to the IPCC Fourth Assessment report describing the current knowledge of the human and natural drivers of climate change and providing an estimate of projected future climate change,

— having regard to Rule 103(2) of its Rules of Procedure,

A. whereas the recent extreme weather events, such as the devastating storm Kyrill, have led to an even more intensive debate on climate change,

B. whereas a single extreme weather event cannot be directly linked to climate change, but the fact cannot be ignored that many scientists see the increased intensity of extreme weather events as having a link to climate change,

C. whereas recent scientific reports give cause for concern that the processes of climate change that are already underway may accelerate due to various forms of positive feedback,

1. Stresses the urgency of taking concrete action at global level to tackle climate change, as well as the need for political leadership to drive the process forward;

2. Welcomes, in this context, the fact that both the Commission and the Presidency-in-Office have put climate change at the core of their political agenda;

3. Urges the European Union to maintain its leading role in the negotiations with a view to a post-2012 international framework on climate change and to maintain a high level of ambition in future discussions with its international partners;

4. Urges the European Union to demonstrate its resolve by addressing climate change through measurable progress in reducing its greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and meeting its domestic and international emission reduction targets;

5. Recognises that the EU's share of GHG emissions — which according to the Fourth national communication from the European Community under UNFCCC (COM(2006)0040) amounts to 14 % — may appear low; stresses, however, that, when measured in terms of per capita emissions, the EU share is among the highest in the world; in order to narrow these differences, reminds the Commission and the Member States of their obligations under the Kyoto Protocol and Marrakesh Accords to ensure supplementarity of their use of flexible mechanisms;

6. Stresses the need to accelerate significantly international negotiations on the post-2012 framework so as to ensure that there is no gap between the first and second commitment periods under the Kyoto Protocol and give the international community time to plan the necessary measures; reiterates its call for an agreement to be reached by the end of 2008 or, at the very latest, by 2009;

7. Underlines that the EU should base its strategy on the assumption that an agreement will be achieved at international level on a post-2012 framework on climate change; believes, therefore, that it is premature to discuss at this stage a fall-back strategy in case such an international agreement is not reached;

8. Recalls that, as set out in its abovementioned resolutions of 16 November 2005 and 26 October 2006, and partly acknowledged by the Commission in its communication, the EU strategy on climate change should be based on the following key objectives:

(i) to limit the average global temperature increase to 2 °C above pre-industrialisation levels;

(ii) to undertake overall emission reductions for all industrialised countries of 30 % in comparison with 1990 emission levels by 2020 with a view to achieving a reduction in the order of 60 to 80 % by 2050;

9. Regrets the lack of clarity of the Commission's 'energy and climate package' with regard to the target for GHG emission reductions for 2020; emphasises that an overall 30 % reduction for all industrialised countries is necessary to have a reasonable chance of attaining the EU objective of limiting the average temperature increase to 2 °C;

10. Insists that the EU must base all internal policies and measures on the reduction target of 30 % by 2020 compared to 1990 levels;

11. Underlines that, in order to reach agreement at international level on a 30 % reduction of GHG emissions in all industrialised countries, the European Union has to focus not only on environmental policy but also on foreign policy and international trade policy, as well as on a willingness to change demand for energy and other natural resources, and that this broader picture has, therefore, to be part of the debate on the strategy to achieve the abovementioned objective;

12. Considers that economically developed Member States have exported a large amount of their energy- and natural resource-consuming activities and technologies to less developed countries, where the same activity causes possibly higher GHG emissions; therefore urges the Commission and Member States to establish policies to prevent such practices;

13. Insists on the specific responsibility of developed countries to tackle climate change at world level; calls, therefore, on Annex I Parties to the UNFCCC to meet their existing commitments and to take on ambitious targets for a second commitment period after 2012; calls, moreover, on those industrialised countries that have not ratified the Kyoto Protocol to reconsider their position, to take vigorous domestic measures and to play an active role in future international negotiations, with a view to their participation in the future climate change regime;

14. Calls on the Commission and Member States to investigate the possibility of adopting border adjustment measures applicable to trade in order to offset any short-term competitive advantage that producers in industrialised countries without carbon constraints might have;

15. Reiterates its proposal to revise the Emissions Trading Scheme (ETS) with the goal of harmonising the allocation method on the basis of benchmarks and auctioning; proposes that the cost-free allocation of emission certificates should be reduced and suggests to the Member States that the money generated by, for instance, auctioning should be given back to the citizens and enterprises affected;

16. Agrees with the Commission that non-Annex I Parties to the UNFCCC have to be further involved in the process, but underlines that developing countries cannot be treated as one block and that activities undertaken by or within developing countries must be differentiated on the basis of their particular national circumstances; further emphasises that the least developed countries should not be required to take on any commitments;

17. In order to ensure an international level playing field, calls on the Commission and Member States to consider proposing sectoral targets for energy-intensive export industries in countries without binding emission reduction commitments as a supplement to binding emission targets for industrialised countries;

18. Stresses that energy policy is a crucial element of the EU global strategy on climate change and that diversification of renewable energy resources and a switch to the most energy-efficient technologies has great potential for emission reductions while ensuring less energy dependency on external sources;

19. Believes that the current inefficiency of many electricity power plants is a major contributor to the problem of global warming and calls on the Commission to bring forward proposals requiring all Member States to ensure that the energy released as a by-product of electricity generation is harnessed through combined heat and power technology;

20. Considers that there is a huge potential for emission reductions in the field of energy efficiency; calls on the Commission and Member States to adopt ambitious measures and targets in this field and to explore the possibility of going above the 20 % reduction target proposed by the Commission;

21. Considers that with well balanced national tax/levy systems, energy efficiency can be increased in Member States and unnecessary energy consumption can be prevented;

22. Furthermore calls on the Commission and Member States to scrutinise the possibility of establishing an EU-wide tax system aimed at promoting a low-carbon economy, encouraging the use of the best available technologies and production processes and more sustainable modes of consumption to this end;

23. Calls on the Member States to fulfil their commitments by taking the appropriate measures to ensure the prompt implementation of Directive 2002/91/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 December 2002 on the energy performance of buildings [1], which entered into force on 4 January 2003, whose cost-effective savings within the building sector are estimated at around 22 %; calls therefore on the Commission to open proceedings against those Member States which have not yet taken adequate measures, as requested, to implement Directive 2002/91/EC;

24. Underlines that energy consumption is increasing most in the transport sector and that road transport contributes to roughly 25 % of the Community's CO_2 emissions; calls, therefore, for binding measures for the transport sector, including aviation, to make emission reductions equivalent to those in other sectors by 2020 and for the development of more integrated and greener public transport, respecting the environment and natural resources;

25. Stresses the urgent need to reduce CO_2 emissions from cars and therefore insists that the Commission impose a binding target of 120 grams per kilometre (gpk) by 2012 for new passenger cars marketed in the European Union;

26. Reiterates its call for aviation and maritime transport emissions to be included in international greenhouse gas reduction commitments for the post-2012 period, and calls for renewed efforts to introduce kerosene taxes at EU and global level;

27. Notes the proposal of a binding target to increase the level of renewable energy in the EU energy mix to 20 % by 2020 as a good starting point, but considers that this target should be increased to 25 % of the EU energy mix;

28. Notes the absence of binding sectoral renewables targets; points out that these would bring about a real reduction in GHG emissions in order to tackle climate change; urges the Commission to propose, in addition to the general target, the submission of sector-specific targets, notably for electricity generation, heating and cooling, by Member States for renewable energy taking into account their different situations as proposed by the impact assessment of the Renewable Energy Roadmap (COM(2006)0848);

29. Reiterates that heating and cooling with renewable energy offers huge potential for a cost-effective reduction of CO_2 and of dependence on fossil fuels; regrets that the Commission has not submitted a proposal for a directive to support heating and cooling with renewable energies as promised to the European Parliament but notes that legislative measures in the field are still planned by the Commission;

30. Reiterates with insistence its recommendations for a proposal on heating and cooling from renewable sources of energy contained in its resolution of 14 February 2006 [1];

31. Notes the Commission proposal for a binding minimum target for biofuels of 10 % of vehicle fuels in 2020; takes the view that a target of 12,5 % would also be realistic and desirable; underlines the importance of the sustainable production of biofuels; calls on the Commission to introduce a certification scheme and standards (e.g. technical legislation) allowing sustainable production of biofuels which is applicable to biofuels produced within, and imported into, the European Union;

32. Notes that the Commission recognises in the medium term the important role of fossil fuels and the possibility of undertaking further studies to reduce their carbon intensity in line with the 2 °C target for CO_2 reduction; considers that this should include continuous modernisation and improvement of their efficiency; the development of a new generation of installations; the further development of an efficient and economical method of carbon capture and storage in relation to coal, gas and oil, in accordance with the decisions taken by the European Technology Platform for Zero Emission Fossil Fuel Power Plant, and the removal of barriers posed by EU legislation; recognises the role of carbon capture and storage technologies in reducing greenhouse gas emissions;

33. Supports the proposed energy partnership with Africa; however, strongly recommends that a similar partnership be established with China and India as well, bearing in mind the very rapid growth of GHG emissions in those countries and the urgent need to assist them in capacity-building as well as investments in carbon-free, low-carbon and energy-efficient technologies (with special attention to renewables), while insisting that the EU work with the relevant regions to stop tropical deforestation and instead encourage afforestation and reforestation; proposes, furthermore, that energy cooperation with Russia, Ukraine, North African and Caspian countries be stepped up;

34. Considers that significant efforts to reduce emissions can go hand in hand with economic development and are even a prerequisite for sustainable economic development in the coming decades; reiterates that environmental technologies can give the European Union a competitive edge while greatly contributing to emission reductions; notes that environmental technologies are, therefore, at the heart of a sustainable development strategy compatible with the EU's Kyoto commitments and the Lisbon Strategy;

35. Underlines economic, social and health costs of inaction shown, inter alia, by the Stern Review on the economics of climate change; recalls that the absence of action would cause damage corresponding to 5-20 % of global GDP per year, whereas the cost of a sound climate policy and investment in clean technologies is estimated at between 0.5 % and 1 % of global annual GDP up to 2050, without taking account of ancillary environmental and health benefits; recognises that delaying action will increase the risk of adverse environmental effects and mitigation costs;

36. Recognises that climate change is causing serious environmental problems requiring immediate EU and international action; believes that by 2050 the overwhelming proportion of EU energy needs must come from carbon-free sources or be produced with technologies which withhold greenhouse gas emissions, with a focus on energy saving, efficiency and renewable energies, and that there is therefore a need to set out a clear roadmap for attaining this objective; calls on the Commission to set ambitious but realistic targets for ultra-low or non-CO_2-emitting and CO_2-neutral energy technologies to supply 60 % of EU electricity demand by 2020, in support of European climate and security-of-supply objectives;

37. Takes the view that research in this field should be boosted and clear environmental performance targets should be adopted in order to encourage the development and use of better and more environment-friendly technologies;

38. Maintains that reducing global emissions must not lead to other threats such as nuclear proliferation or terrorism; therefore believes that nuclear power should remain excluded from the Clean Development Mechanism and Joint Implementation or other mechanisms aimed at rewarding emission reductions in developing countries;

39. Encourages much greater direct involvement in mitigation efforts at European citizen level; calls on the Commission therefore to intensify its awareness-raising activities concerning the urgency of the situation with the aim of informing individuals about their role in controlling climate change;

40. Calls again on the European Union and its Member States to adopt an ambitious policy of technology partnerships with and transfers of clean technologies to developing countries, in order to help them develop their economies and increase their welfare in a more sustainable way;

41. Calls on the Commission to evaluate climate change repercussions on the increase in ground temperature, the reduction of rains and the groundwater status; considers it especially important to study the effects of the reduction of the area of cultivable land as a source of biomass and as a carbon pool; underlines the importance of certain agricultural management practices;

42. Calls for all of its relevant committees and delegations to work together closely on climate change, so that its industrial policy, energy policy and transport, agriculture, research and development and other initiatives are better coordinated with climate change targets, and so that climate change is regularly raised at interparliamentary delegation level and in the context of the Transatlantic Legislative Dialogue;

43. Calls on the three Presidencies (Germany, Portugal and Slovenia) in 2007 to ensure that the momentum on climate change is accelerated, whilst increasing the level of political commitment and the number of international partners within the process at international level;

44. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States and the Secretariat of the UNFCCC, with the request that it be circulated to all non-EU contracting parties.

PNR-SWIFT

European Parliament resolution on SWIFT, the PNR agreement and the transatlantic dialogue on these issues

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the statements from the Council and the Commission during the debate held in Parliament on 31 January 2007, following the oral question on SWIFT, as well as the negotiations for a new EC-US Passenger Name Record (PNR) agreement,

— having regard to the letter of reply by the European Central Bank (ECB) of 30 January 2007 to the question of whether the ECB had failed to inform the relevant data protection authorities and the national banks of the US practice of accessing data related to financial transactions generated by SWIFT, as well as to use its power of moral persuasion towards SWIFT in this matter,

— having regard to the opinion of the Working Party on the Protection of Individuals with regard to the Processing of Personal Data, as foreseen in Article 29 of the Data Protection Directive [1] (the Article 29 Working Party) on the future PNR agreement and to that of the European Data Protection Supervisor (EDPS) as regards the role of the ECB in the SWIFT case,

— having regard to Rule 103(2) of its Rules of Procedure,

[1] Directive 95/46/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 October 1995 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and on the free movement of such data (OJ L 281, 23.11.1995, p. 31).

A. whereas the sharing of data and information is a valuable tool in the international fight against terrorism and related crime,

B. whereas businesses with operations on both sides of the Atlantic increasingly find themselves caught between the conflicting legal requirements of the US and EC jurisdictions,

C. whereas the sharing of personal data must take place on a proper legal basis, linked to clear rules and conditions, and must be covered by adequate protection of the privacy and civil liberties of individual citizens,

D. whereas the fight against terrorism and crime must have proper democratic legitimacy, meaning that data-sharing programmes must at all times be subject to Parliamentary scrutiny and judicial review,

General

1. Stresses that during the last few years several agreements prompted by US requirements and adopted without any involvement of Parliament, notably the PNR agreement, the SWIFT memorandum and the existence of the US Automated Targeting System (ATS), have led to a situation of legal uncertainty with regard to the necessary data protection guarantees for data sharing and transfer between the EU and the US for the purposes of ensuring public security and, in particular, preventing and fighting terrorism;

2. Reaffirms that the solutions envisaged so far by the Council and the Commission as well as by private companies do not adequately protect the personal data of EU citizens (as also noted in the letter from Mr Schaar, Chairman of the Article 29 Working Party, regarding the new interim PNR agreement), and that this could constitute a violation of Community as well as national legislation, as in the SWIFT case (see Opinion 10/2006 of the Article 29 Working Party of 22 November 2006 and the EDPS' opinion of 1 February 2007);

3. Notes that in the fight against terrorism the US Congress has for some time asked the US administration to adopt more targeted measures that better ensure privacy and are subject to parliamentary and judicial control (as was demanded when Congress was made aware of the existence of the National Security Agency (NSA) programme of telephone tapping);

4. Confirms its reservations that have recently been shared by Congress as regards the method of profiling and data mining, which consists in accumulating in an indiscriminate manner larger and larger volumes of personal data, as in the case of the ATS used by the US administration;

5. Welcomes the fact that the US administration has recently taken note of these reservations and that it will seek to improve the situation by means of the following steps:

(a) the establishment of privacy officers and/or an independent privacy agency within the federal administration, who are to undertake privacy assessments of all initiatives that could potentially impinge on privacy;

(b) setting up a mechanism to guarantee US citizens a right of appeal in the event of incorrect use of their data;

6. Believes, however, that these improvements are insufficient as regards data protection for EU citizens and that it would be warmly welcomed if the 1974 Privacy Act could also apply to EU citizens on a reciprocity basis in order for them to have access to their data, with a right of rectification and modification, as well as having access to a legal redress mechanism and to an independent data protection authority;

7. Recalls its belief that such data protection guarantees would facilitate data sharing while ensuring protection of privacy, and that such transfers would in any case need to be based on one or more international agreements similar in structure to that of the EC/US agreement on judicial cooperation in criminal matters and extradition which is currently being examined by Congress;

8. Believes that since such international agreements concern the fundamental rights of EU as well as US citizens, the European Parliament and the national parliaments of the Member States should be fully involved, as should Congress;

9. Insists that in matters of data protection the agreements should strive to achieve a high level of protection as regards risks of abuse and should be supplemented with binding principles at EU level as regards the protection of data for security purposes (third pillar);

10. Stresses the need for the adoption of a framework decision on the protection of personal data in the third pillar; draws attention to the fact that, in the position it adopted unanimously on 27 September 2006 [1], it called for such a decision to be comprehensive and ambitious in scope and to provide for data protection rules also covering the exchange of personal data with third countries;

11. Believes that it is necessary to define with the US a common and shared framework to safeguard the necessary guarantees that are needed in the special EU-US partnership in the fight against terrorism, which could also deal with all aspects concerning the free movement of persons between the EU and the US;

12. Expects that this strategy of transatlantic partnership will be discussed at the next EU-US summit on 30 April 2007 and considers that, in this perspective, contacts should be strengthened between Parliament and Congress; requests that:

(a) rapporteurs from Parliament be allowed to attend a hearing in Congress on themes that are of mutual interest (the EC-US agreement on judicial cooperation in criminal matters and extradition, ATS, SWIFT);

(b) the chairs of the competent Congressional committees be invited with a view to the next transatlantic dialogue (Brussels-Berlin in mid-April 2007) and in any event before the next EU-US spring summit;

As regards the negotiation of the long-term PNR agreement

13. Stresses that, in addition to the points already adopted by Parliament its above-mentioned position of 27 September 2006, a future long-term PNR agreement should be founded on the following principles:

(a) evidence-based policy-making: a thorough evaluation must be carried out before a new agreement is concluded; the question of the effectiveness of the current agreement (and the previous one) should be addressed, as should the issue of the costs and competitiveness of European airline companies; the evaluation must address the implementation of the undertakings and the matter of PNR data in ATS;

(b) transfers of PNR must be based on a clear purpose limitation principle;

(c) justification and proportionality: it would seem that in practice, for law enforcement and security purposes, Advance Passenger Information System (APIS) data are more than sufficient; these data are already collected in Europe in accordance with Council Regulation (EEC) No 2299/89 of 24 July 1989 on a code of conduct for computerized reservation systems [2], and may therefore be exchanged with the US under a comparable regime; behaviour data in the PNR seem to be of limited use, as they cannot be identified if not linked to APIS; the justification for the general transfer of PNR data is therefore not satisfactory;

(d) a future agreement must be based on an adequacy finding with regard to the protection of personal data; from the EU side, it is clear that rules for the protection of personal data in the third pillar are urgently needed, as well as global standards covering all categories of personal data;

(e) there must be a regular evaluation of the programme's data protection adequacy and effectiveness, involving Parliament and, if possible, Congress; an annual evaluation must be part of any future agreement; the evaluation report must be made public, and must be submitted to Parliament;

(f) alternative solutions, such as the Electronic Travel Authorisations within a Visa Waiver Programme, instead of the transfer of PNR by airline companies, must equally comply with EU data protection standards;

(g) the conditions currently laid down in the US undertakings must become an integral part of the agreement and must be legally binding; a future agreement must have more democratic legitimacy, with the full involvement of the European Parliament and/or ratification by national parliaments;

(h) in any event, a future agreement must be based on the PUSH system, and the PULL system should no longer be acceptable given that PUSH should already have been introduced under the previous agreement, as soon as it was technically feasible;

(i) passengers should be informed of the transfer of PNR records and have access to their data, with a right to rectify and modify them, as well as having legal recourse to a legal procedure or to an independent data protection authority;

(j) expects that the US authorities in the case of an acknowledged terrorist threat are obliged immediately to inform the EU authorities about such suspicion;

As regards the access to SWIFT data

14. Reiterates its concern over the fact that for four years SWIFT, upon receipt of subpoenas, has been transferring to the US administration a subset of data treated in its US system, including data that did not concern US citizens and data not generated on US territory, based on commercial and systemic reasons, to have systematic duplication of the data onto a mirroring information system based in the US, in violation of EU and national data protection legislation;

15. Considers it very worrying that this situation, in breach of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms and the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, as well as of the Treaties and secondary legislation (Data Protection Directive and Regulation (EC) No 45/2001 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2000 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data by the Community institutions and bodies and on the free movement of such data [1]), has not been strongly criticised at an earlier stage either by the ECB or by the Group of 10 Central Banks that oversee SWIFT's activities, and that it is only recently that European banks and their customers have been made aware of the situation through press reports;

16. Deeply regrets the fact that, several months after these matters came to light, the Council has not yet taken a stance on this subject affecting so many citizens, consumers and enterprises, and that only seven out of 27 Member States have responded to the questionnaire sent by the Commission to obtain clarification in relation to respect for national and Community data protection laws;

17. Repeats its concerns as regards the current system of supervision of SWIFT whose responsibility belongs to the Group of 10 Central Banks, with oversight by the ECB, but without formal competence; calls on the Council and the ECB to reflect together on the way to improve this system so as to ensure proper functioning of the alert process with full consequences in terms of action to be taken;

18. Endorses the opinion expressed by the EDPS on the role of the ECB and calls on the ECB:

— as SWIFT overseer, to explore solutions in order to ensure compliance with data protection rules and to ensure that rules on confidentiality do not prevent information from being supplied in good time to the relevant authorities;

— as user of the SWIFT Net-FIN, to explore solutions to bring its payment operations into compliance with data protection legislation, and to prepare a report on the measures taken no later than April 2007;

— as policymaker, to ensure, in cooperation with central banks and financial institutions, that European payment systems, including the updated 'TARGET2' system for wholesale payments, fully comply with EC data protection law; calls for the ECB to provide the Parliament with the assessment of such compliance;

19. Reiterates its belief that, under clearly defined conditions, data generated in financial transactions can be used exclusively for judicial investigative purposes in connection with suspicion of terrorism financing and recalls that both the EC and the US in their respective legislation (Regulation (EC) No 1781/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 November 2006 on information on the payer accompanying transfers of funds [1] and the US Bank Secrecy Act) have implemented Financial Action Task Force (FATF) Recommendation VII;

20. Recalls that, as from 31 December 2006, under FATF Recommendation VII, financial institutions are bound to collect and retain records of certain specified data regarding fund transfers of USD 1 000 or more in Europe (USD 3 000 in the US); any of these records must be submitted or made available to the authorities upon request [2];

21. Believes that the EU and the US are fundamental and loyal allies in the fight against terrorism and that this legislative framework should therefore be the basis for the negotiation of a possible international agreement, based on the assumption that SWIFT as a Belgian company is subject to Belgian law and is consequently responsible for the treatment of data in accordance with Article 4(1) of Directive 95/46/EC; points out that the natural consequence would be for SWIFT to be obliged to stop its current practice of mirroring all data concerning EU citizens and enterprises in its US site or to move its alternative database site outside US jurisdiction; urges that this international agreement provide the necessary guarantees against abuse of data for economic and business purposes;

22. Draws attention to the fact that SWIFT provides services outside the EU and the US and therefore considers that any measure adopted should take into account the global aspect of SWIFT's services;

23. Calls on the Commission, which has competence both for data protection and for payment systems legislation, to analyse the potential for economic and business espionage stemming from the current design of payment systems in the broadest sense, thus including, in particular, messaging providers, and to report on ways of tackling the problem;

24. Notes that financial services may be exempted from the Safe Harbour Agreement, as stated by the Article 29 Working Party in its Opinion 10/2006; is concerned over the fact that EU companies and sectors with operations in the US not covered by the Safe Harbour agreement may currently be forced to make personal data available to US authorities, in particular US branches of European banks, insurance companies, social security institutions and providers of telecoms services; calls on the Commission to investigate this as a matter of urgency;

25. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the governments and parliaments of the Member States, as well as to the US Congress.

General observations

1. Welcomes the efforts of the Commission and the Member States to make the Lisbon Strategy a success and notes that the Lisbon Strategy is Europe's response to the challenges of globalisation; moreover, emphasises, once again, that growth and employment are prerequisites for the success of the Lisbon Strategy, together with economic, social and environmental reforms, with the aim of creating a dynamic and innovative economy and society; warns against reducing the strategy to only a few priorities that are linked to the completion of the internal market and better regulation; draws attention to the many complementary features of the new Sustainable Development Strategy and the Lisbon Strategy, such as their common goal of increased competitiveness, the creation of more and better-quality jobs, greater social inclusion, environmental protection and risk prevention;

2. Welcomes the steps taken at the 2005 Spring European Council to revive the Lisbon Strategy, including a clarification of the division of responsibility for the implementation of individual measures between the Member States and the Community;

3. Believes that, in a world with limited resources and a fragile ecological system, the European Union should strive to become the most resource and energy-efficient economic area in the world; points to the costs of inaction or delayed action in this respect and emphasises the huge economic potential for energy-efficient technologies and renewable energies on the world market, which the European Union is best placed to exploit;

4. Believes that innovation plays a critically important role in the European Union's ability to respond effectively to the challenges and opportunities of the global economy, as well as other major challenges, such as climate change;

5. Points out that implementing the Lisbon Strategy calls for the provision of sufficient and well-targeted financial resources through the Community budget; regrets in this context the lack of financial resources earmarked to achieve the goals set by the Lisbon Strategy;

6. Recognises the unique added value of regional policy in the pursuit of the Lisbon Strategy objectives, which is also reflected in the 'Community Strategic Guidelines 2007-2013: Cohesion Policy in support of Growth and Jobs'; points out that for the current programming period the EU-15 are being asked to earmark 60 % of expenditure for the Structural Funds' Convergence objective and 75 % of expenditure for the Regional Competitiveness and Employment objective in order to pursue the Lisbon Strategy objectives; calls on the Commission to monitor the performance of Member States in achieving the Lisbon Strategy objectives through their Structural Fund interventions;

Improving Lisbon governance for better law-making

Better law-making

7. Supports all the efforts made by the institutions to carry forward the better law-making agenda; believes that Parliament should retain the lead role in promoting better law-making by securing the basis for common procedures with other institutions, for independent impact assessments of proposed legislation, for greater openness in Council decision-making and for improved democratic scrutiny of the adoption, by the Commission, of delegated legislation; recalls that better law-making does not mean deregulation or minimal regulation;

8. Insists on the full recognition of the Parliament's role in the area of comitology, which would help to simplify legislation by removing truly implementing measures while guaranteeing the full respect for Parliament's legislative powers; notes that impediments to democracy and cost-intensive obligations do not arise only from legislation, but also, and primarily from comitology decisions; calls, therefore, for comitology decisions also to be the subject of comprehensive and independent impact assessments;

9. Welcomes the Commission's initiative on reducing administrative and cost burdens for businesses; asks to be more closely involved in obtaining solid cost-benefit analyses as a basis for informed decision-making, and therefore calls on the Commission to develop a methodology for an independent ex ante assessment of administrative costs; urges the Council, the Commission and the Member States to commit to a joint cost reduction target at the 2007 next EU Spring European Council; calls on the Commission regularly to consider all policy instruments, legislative and non-legislative, with a view to achieving the desired objectives; insists that all simplification initiatives comply fully with the principles and conditions outlined in its resolution of 16 May 2006 on a strategy for the simplification of the regulatory environment [1];

10. Suggests that a 25 % reduction in the administrative burden on the Member States would lead to an increase in real GDP of 1 to 1,4 %; urges all Member States to set quantitative and qualitative targets in this area and to contribute, within the framework of better transposition, in particular, to simplifying existing regulations and to introducing impact assessment procedures, whilst establishing consultation and complaint procedures with relevant stakeholders; underlines the important role of national parliaments and the need for cooperation structures in this context;

Early and better transposition

11. Calls, in the interests of increasing transparency and fostering a better understanding of the Lisbon Strategy and its implementation, for the development of a common and coherent structure for NRPs, making for a better comparative analysis of the impact of the proposed actions at Member State level, as well as an open and constructive dialogue at European level on the progress achieved; supports the idea, in this respect, of establishing country-specific recommendations and a best practice ranking system on reform agendas in the different policy fields; calls on all national governments to publish and to communicate to the Commission the text of the provisions when transposing EU directives: the so-called correlation tables;

12. Calls for the broad involvement of civil society to bring about changes to increase growth and jobs; recalls that the success of reforms depends on the involvement and ownership of the whole of society; therefore proposes to establish an exchange of views on best practice with regard to the participation of representatives of civil society in this reform process;

Improving Lisbon governance and national ownership

13. Stresses that Member State specific recommendations must be discussed and adopted in Council in order to develop a real European framework, to strengthen the economic and employment coordination work and to foster greater national ownership;

14. Reiterates that EU economic and employment problems will not be overcome without the active involvement of parliaments, at national and European level; supports the Commission's request that Member States promote wider discussion of their NRPs and Implementation Reports, including national recommendations, with their national parliaments and establish closer links between NRPs and national budget debates;

15. Encourages the Commission to introduce a form of benchmarking surveillance, using structural policy indicators with a clearly identified link to economic and employment performance and indicators underpinning the structural surveillance exercise, taking into account policies that stimulate innovation and job creation;

16. Stresses the need for a more effective role for government representatives specifically responsible for implementing the Lisbon Strategy in all Member States, at the highest political level, with a view to convincing national decision-makers to improve the policy-mix-approach of this reform agenda at both national and European level;

17. Points out that it is the guiding role of the 2007 Spring European Council to establish the growth and employment reform agenda for the European Union; calls on the European Council to ensure the equal involvement of all the Council formations concerned; underlines its own role in monitoring the implementation of the Lisbon Strategy as a whole;

Growth, employment and competitiveness

Creating more employment and employment opportunities

18. Considers that labour market reform must aim to reconcile the demands of industry for greater flexibility with the demands of workers for more security, for example by creating new job prospects and new forms of security; is convinced that this combination of flexibility and social security makes it easier for employees, enterprises and small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to adapt to the challenges of a dynamic economy and a changing society; calls, therefore, on the European Council and the Member States to define clear and objective principles and to introduce an intensified benchmarking exercise and exchanges of best practices with a view to developing and implementing flexicurity;

19. Calls for more investment and better-trained and more highly qualified workers, in order to raise productivity and employment rates and to achieve the goals of the Lisbon Strategy, which should enable the European Union to meet the challenge of global competition; points out that modernising employment and social security systems in all Member States, including the promotion of active labour market measures (as in the Danish model), is a political imperative and that prosperity and solidarity are truly mutually supportive objectives of the Lisbon Strategy;

20. Recalls that unemployment is most highly concentrated in vulnerable groups, especially among less-qualified workers and that a special effort is therefore needed to promote active policies of vocational training for unemployed workers who may be less qualified, and to improve the education system so as to reduce the high level of failure among school children;

21. Believes that barriers to job creation, including disincentives to take up moderately paid employment, must be removed; recognises the responsibility of unemployed people to take up job offers; acknowledges the need for working-time arrangements to be sufficiently flexible to meet the needs of employers and employees and to allow people to balance their work and family life;

22. Deplores the fact that the proportion of women in the workforce still falls far short of the Lisbon Strategy objectives; believes that older workers should be able to remain in the workforce on a voluntary basis, supported by appropriate training and health care at work; also believes that early retirement must be discouraged and that workers should be allowed to work past their legal retirement age voluntarily if they and their employers so agree; insists that these measures are needed to stimulate economic growth and strengthen the sustainability of public finances;

23. Underlines that older workers account for an increasing share of the European Union's working population and economic production capacity; calls on the Member States to increase efforts to modify tax and social security systems to encourage a longer active working life and calls for the effective implementation of anti-age-discrimination legislation;

24. Notes that there is a lack of skilled labour in the European Union, and that lifelong learning is a key to achieving the Lisbon Strategy objectives; urges the Member States, in cooperation with the social partners, to do more to create employment and raise labour market participation among young, female and older workers in particular, by:

— ensuring that every school leaver is offered a job, training or other employment and related opportunities within six months of leaving school and providing broader access to training for unemployed workers regardless of gender, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation;

— ensuring a higher employment rate amongst disabled people, fully harnessing their creative capacity;

— reducing the start-up time for new businesses to no more than one week, together with low start-up fees and administrative costs;

— raising investment in comprehensive and affordable childcare and other care networks;

— further reducing the tax burden on employment;

— combating social exclusion and discrimination and developing immigration and integration policies which respond to the needs of the European economy and society;

— lending fresh impetus to knowledge and innovation by raising investment; establishing clearer rights and duties in the areas of education, professional training and lifelong learning; using information and communication technology (ICT); improving the correlation between the educational system and the needs of new labour markets; and including entrepreneurship in educational curricula;

25. Supports the policy of allowing universities to be privately funded and encourages the private sector to make its views known on the education and training that the market requires;

26. Considers that the health-care aspects of demographic change are of extreme importance and points out that the longer that people enjoy good health, the longer they can and will stay economically active and not send health-care costs escalating; is convinced that investment in measures to protect people from factors causing chronic and long-term illness is of particular importance; at the same time, efforts should be made to ensure that individuals suffering from those illnesses are not discriminated against in the workplace;

27. Urges Member States to review inefficient social models in the light of their financial sustainability, changing global dynamics and demographic patterns in order that these become more sustainable;

Elimination of persistent internal market shortcomings

28. Stresses that if the European economy is to be globally competitive, it also needs a dynamic internal market; recommends measures to facilitate market access and promote innovation-friendly policies, consistent with the principles of public interest and a high level of consumer protection, so as to enable citizens to reap the full benefit from the internal market; welcomes the Commission's initiative to review the functioning of the internal market and fully endorses its ambition finally to complete the project; calls on the Member States to take ownership of the internal market and establish a culture of cooperation among themselves, with a view to policing and promoting participation by firms in pan-EU activity; highlights, in particular, the importance of proper implementation and enforcement of EC legislation and stresses the role of adequately trained national judges in this respect;

29. Notes that the long-term strengthening of the internal market is fundamental to achieving the Lisbon Strategy objectives and, in particular, to making the European Union sustainably competitive in a globalised economy; notes also that the European institutions and the Member States must maintain their efforts to strengthen this key aspect of the integration process;

30. Stresses that the free movement of goods is one of the cornerstones of the internal market; points out that, in the case of products that have not been the subject of Community harmonisation, Articles 28 to 30 of the EC Treaty prohibit Member States from maintaining or imposing barriers to intra-Community trade in goods; therefore calls on the Member States and the Commission definitively to remove all obstacles to the free movement of goods within the European Union;

31. Notes that, as regards the free movement of goods, there are still serious shortcomings in the area of the mutual recognition of non-harmonised products; supports, therefore, the Commission's plans to secure the adoption of a legal instrument making the relevant case law of the European Court of Justice binding in all Member States;

32. Highlights, following the final adoption of the Services Directive, the Commission's obligation to provide guidance to Member States and monitor their progress; urges the competent authorities in the Member States to cooperate so as to ensure consistent implementation across the European Union; stresses that this is essential for the European economy in order to comply with the Treaty provisions and to continue to complete the internal market;

33. Underlines that the free movement of services is one of the cornerstones of the internal market; points out that the services industry accounts for no less than 70 % of GDP and the labour market; calls for improved cooperation between health services, in particular as regards patient mobility;

34. Underlines that the enforcement and protection of intellectual property rights remains relatively costly and time-consuming in Europe, impeding innovation-related competitiveness; the issue of standardisation has received the necessary attention neither at European nor at national level; reiterates its call for an improvement in the framework conditions for a better intellectual property and patents policy, which is to be achieved through EU-wide standards, improved cooperation between national standardisation bodies and simplified procedures; reiterates the need effectively to address counterfeiting (drug counterfeiting) in the interests of patient safety;

35. Regards as exceptionally regrettable the failure to make any progress with European patent policy and as unacceptable the failure to develop a uniform European patent strategy; draws attention to the outcome of its consideration of the European patent regulation at first reading, which points to a solution to the problems which have not yet been resolved in the Council; calls on the Commission immediately to submit proposals for a new patent strategy so that a fresh basis for negotiations in the Council can be established without delay; calls on the Member States to adopt an effective patent system based on past consultations, including consideration of participation in the European patent litigation agreement, to ensure progress and legal security as fast as possible;

36. Underlines the importance of an effective, innovative and properly functioning public procurement regime to the creation of a competitive internal market; calls on the Commission to continue its reform of the public procurement framework, to maximise participation and minimise bureaucracy and to examine the best ways of ensuring fair access to public procurement for SMEs;

37. Welcomes the progress which has been made through the implementation of the first Financial Services Action Plan and points out that a properly functioning financial market is fundamental to the growth prospects of the European economy; strongly urges the Member States and the Commission to ensure that European legislation on financial services is correctly implemented in all Member States and is fully complied with by our international partners;

38. Points out that effective financial markets are fundamental to the proper functioning of a single market; believes that ensuring the development of high-quality financial products on a cross-border basis will contribute to an innovative business environment in Europe; believes that rapid innovation and growth in international financial transactions are creating new challenges for the business sector and for the international finance system; calls on the Commission to improve transparency and define more effective regulatory policies to promote financial stability, appropriate consumer protection and market integrity; urges the Council and the Commission to examine the need for more effective supervisory rules for private equity and hedge funds;

39. Calls on the Member States and the Commission to make the free movement of capital a reality; deplores recent instances of national governments trying to impede cross-border mergers within the European Union; commends the Commission for its unambiguous defence of the EC Treaty in this regard; calls, therefore, on the Commission to propose, without delay, including in the area of company law, new draft legislation to facilitate the mobility of firms and capital in the European Union; this applies, in particular, to the 14th Directive on the transfer of the registered office and to the European Private Company;

40. Calls for more attention to be given to other flanking policies which will make the internal market work better; considers that priority should be given in particular to transport and to demonstrating the potential of better logistics and faster roll-out of the TENs; supports the EU German Presidency initiative in this area;

Strengthening the EU's external competitiveness

41. Points out that free and fair trade enhances prosperity in Europe and the wider world; notes that companies within the internal market operate in a global environment, with interdependent markets and global players; calls on Member States to refrain from protectionism; considers that further global economic integration can boost competitiveness, growth and jobs in the European Union; points to the importance of international regulatory cooperation, especially in the fields of supervision, regulatory reform and simplification; notes, however, that international trade may also have negative consequences for the most vulnerable and least qualified workers in some sectors;

42. Considers that market access, a more balanced regional approach and the promotion of International Labour Organization Core Labour Standards and decent work worldwide are vital to strengthening the European Union's external competitiveness and that avoiding environmental dumping is a crucial element of fair competition; states its readiness to consider appropriate trade measures against 'free rider' countries, which do not shoulder their fair share of the burden of combating global climate change, whilst taking into account the different stages reached in their socio-economic development by our trading partners;

43. Points out that corporate social responsibility (CSR) should not be interpreted as being imposed unilaterally by the state, through new legal burdens on business, which would lead to a reduction in competitiveness and in the capacity to generate employment; believes that CSR should instead be brought into play through company initiatives, whether of a fiscal or other nature, so that companies voluntarily take on social interest functions;

44. Emphasises the need to secure better financial, labour and fiscal conditions for SMEs, the source of European economic competitiveness, which will help to make for constant product innovation; regards the implementation of effective policies as imperative if the challenges of globalisation are to be faced;

45. Points to the importance of international regulatory cooperation, especially as regards regulatory reform and simplification; considers that cooperation on the basis of multilateralism and democratic accountability should be stepped up in order to open up foreign markets to European companies' products and services on a balanced basis; in this context, stresses the need to rebalance the World Trade Organization Government Procurement Agreement by ensuring that the exclusions in favour of SMEs retained in the commitments of several signatories are counterbalanced in the European commitments by a similar exclusion or a provision entitling the signatories to grant SMEs preferential treatment, provided that such treatment is extended without discrimination to any SME within any signatory;

46. Believes that EU assistance to third-country governments in implementing social and environmental regulation consistent with international conventions, together with effective inspection regimes, are a necessary complement to advancing the CSR of European business worldwide; stresses that CSR must be part of the business dialogue with other markets;

Boosting the EU's innovative capacity

47. Stresses the vital importance of boosting EU investment in R&D, embracing both products and services;

48. Welcomes the adoption of the Seventh Framework Programme (FP7), the main objective of which is to strengthen the scientific and technological basis of Community industry, thereby ensuring a high level of international competitiveness; reiterates, once again, the importance of research funding targets of 3 % of GDP and urges the Member States to honour the commitments into which they entered during the 2002 Spring European Council in Barcelona; emphasises the overriding aim of FP7 and its contribution towards the European Union becoming the world's leading research area; points out that it has repeatedly stressed the importance of R&D and the increased role of knowledge in fostering economic growth and social and environmental well-being;

49. Strongly endorses the work of Joint Technology Platforms in promoting coherent strategic research agendas in key areas for Europe's competitiveness; calls on Member States to promote participation in these platforms by small enterprises and research organisations;

50. Commends the Commission for directing targeted funds through joint technology initiatives to help translate research concepts into concrete programmes; calls on Member States to promote these programmes through their national innovation initiatives;

51. Notes the disparity in ICT investment per employee between the United States and the European Union, and the correlation between ICT investment and productivity growth; endorses the need to sustain and develop a highly competitive ICT sector within the European Union, in particular by fully implementing the EU communications regulation framework in all Member States;

52. Stresses the strong potential for public procurement funds to be used to promote innovation; notes that pre-competitive procurement of innovative goods and services can be carried out within the existing public procurement framework; calls on the Member States to promote this activity within their own public authorities; notes that the effective application of ICT to the delivery of public services will improve customer experiences and help EU companies to produce globally competitive products;

Securing sustainable energy policies

53. Is convinced that the Lisbon Strategy can be a success only if further efforts are made to establish a common energy policy; is of the opinion, however, that policy should not lead to the communitarisation and standardisation of national energy policies, but rather create more competition and benefits for consumers; points out that not only Europe's strength, but also its security in the area of energy supply, lies in its diversity;

54. Draws attention to the importance of the three key energy policy objectives, namely security of supply, sustainability and competitiveness, for stability and growth in the European Union; emphasises the need constantly to revise these three objectives in the light of changing circumstances and to strike a fresh balance between them;

55. Draws attention to the fundamental importance of sufficient and cheap supplies of energy for the competitiveness and growth of European industry;

56. Welcomes the Commission's Green Paper on a European Strategy for Sustainable, Competitive and Secure Energy (COM(2006)0105), but underlines the need to acknowledge the ever-changing conditions on the broader global energy market and highlights the importance of extending the producer perspective to a systematic approach embracing production, distribution and consumption in order to develop a European energy policy which can secure affordable energy for European businesses and private households;

57. Agrees with the Commission that an essential element of a common energy policy should be enhanced solidarity between Member States in order to deal with difficulties relating to the physical security of infrastructures and security of supply; considers, furthermore, that such enhanced solidarity would considerably strengthen the capacity of the European Union to defend its common interests with regard to energy issues at international level;

58. Notes that energy policy, and in particular security of energy supply, must become an integral part of the European Union's common foreign, trade development and security policies and calls for a common strategy to secure and diversify supplies and transit routes, thereby demonstrating solidarity within the European Union; urges the Commission and the Member States, in this context, to take very seriously the real danger of a deficit in gas supplies from Russia after 2010, due, inter alia, to a lack of investment; insists that Member States and the European Union, in its energy-related discussions with Russia, press for the signing and ratification of the Transit Protocol and the ratification of the Energy Charter Treaty; is of the opinion that partnership and cooperation agreements should be used to create a stable but open regulatory framework in supplier countries and that the Commissioner responsible for energy should follow a well-defined mandate, which sets out a long-term European approach to energy planning;

59. Stresses that the experiences of the winter of 2005 to 2006 and the drastically increasing energy demand of booming economies such as China and India have highlighted the fact that no sustainable and safe source of energy must be left unused in order to safeguard security of energy supply;

60. Welcomes the efforts to achieve the targets for reductions in CO_2 emissions agreed at Kyoto; recognises that nuclear energy is an important part of the energy mix in a number of Member States; notes the role that it currently plays in some Member States in maintaining security of electricity supply, as part of the energy mix, and in preventing CO_2 emissions; emphasises, however, that there are risks relating to its production and that there is, at present, no final solution for the recycling of nuclear waste; supports research in the areas of reactor safety and new technologies, considers that decisions on whether nuclear energy production should continue to play a role in some Member States can only be taken at Member State level within the framework of subsidiarity;

61. Draws attention to the European Union's growing dependence on imports of oil and natural gas, which could reach 94 % and 85 % respectively by 2030, whilst dependence on imports of solid fuels will increase to no more than 59 %; points out that imports of oil and natural gas will increasingly come from politically unstable regions, into which, as a result, large volumes of money will flow and be put to uses over which the European Union will have no influence;

62. Stresses that inflationary pressure due to the rise in oil prices increases uncertainty about the extent of monetary tightening connected to it, leading to a higher perception of risk, tighter global liquidity, and increased volatility, particularly on commodity and equity markets; warns against the negative impact of oil price speculation on the financial markets, which in turn amplifies the oil price crisis; calls on the Commission and the Council to draw up a detailed plan to reduce the European Union's dependence on oil imports and initiate a shift towards clean energy; calls for an integrated EU emergency mechanism to guarantee security of supply;

63. Stresses the fact that a new form of political dialogue and cooperation among consumer countries has become indispensable, especially with the United States, China, India and Japan; notes that a similar dialogue between key consumer and producer countries has also become necessary in order to develop a global approach to energy; believes that these new forms of global energy dialogue should aim at making global energy markets stable, secure and transparent, and at the same time provide a continued boost in support for clean energy sources and energy efficiency;

64. Calls on the Council and the Commission to promote an internationally recognised mediation system for conflicts and disputes concerning the delivery and distribution of energy; believes that the European Union could initiate such a process by developing a mediation system as part of its neighbourhood policy and also with other key supplier countries, as well as by actively promoting this mediation system globally; takes the view that the EU should therefore develop a model approach to the international management of energy distribution;

65. Welcomes the draft Energy Community Treaty as an essential contribution to the stabilisation of south-east Europe, to the openness of energy markets and to the security of transit routes in Europe; calls for the gradual extension of the Energy Community to encompass Norway and Turkey and all countries involved in the European Neighbourhood Policy;

Making energy policy environmentally sound

66. Stresses that the need to change the current energy production mix is not a burden but an opportunity and that the use of solar, wind, biomass, hydro or geothermal energy and more energy-efficient technologies will help to fulfil the commitments made in Kyoto and under the UN Framework Climate Change Convention and will also strengthen innovation, job creation and competitiveness in Europe;

67. Supports, therefore, the efforts to develop renewable energy sources with a view to securing a sustainable supply of energy; welcomes the steady growth of this sector and its positive impact on jobs; sees major potential for exports of renewable energy production plants to third countries;

68. Urges the 2007 Spring European Council to endorse the Energy Efficiency Action Plan action plan proposed by the Commission, which should at least contain the following elements: the placing of consumers, whether they are householders or commercial and industrial users, at the centre of energy policy; a road map at Council and Commission level for reaching a target for renewable energy of 50 % by 2040, a 30 % reduction at EU level in the CO_2 target for 2020, an EU target for energy efficiency improvements of at least 20 % by 2020 and a 60 to 80 % reduction for 2050; reform of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (ETS) to guide the market into investment in a low carbon economy, which should be driven by a set target for EU carbon emissions by 2020, including a target of 25 % of energy from renewable sources by 2020 and a binding target for car emissions; a step change in energy efficiency, faster implementation of existing EC rules in the Member States, or failing that, concrete improvements in the regulatory framework; a clearer separation of energy production from energy distribution through stronger independent regulatory control, which takes into account the interests of Europe as a whole, an effort to address missing interconnections, stimulate investment and innovation, minimum binding guidelines set out for regulators, including a procedure for the appointment of regulators, independence, transparency and accountability; an ambitious R&D strategy on clean energy technologies, including an increase of at least 50 % in its annual spending on energy research over the next seven years; the development of an effective solidarity mechanism to deal with any energy supply crisis; a common foreign energy policy strategy so that it can increasingly speak with one voice to third countries; a doubling of the efforts to prompt global action to combat climate change, since the European Union cannot tackle the problem alone; and the full implementation of all current EC legislation on energy; finally, calls on the Commission to propose a framework for options for harmonised renewable energy support schemes as part of the renewable energy roadmap;

69. Recognises that climate change is causing serious environmental problems requiring immediate EU and international action; believes that by 2050 the overwhelming proportion of EU energy needs must be produced from carbon-free sources or using technologies which cut greenhouse gas emissions, with a focus on energy saving, efficiency and renewable energies, and that there is therefore a need to set out a clear roadmap for attaining that objective; urges the governments of the Member States to agree, by the end of 2008, on a binding 2020 CO_2 target and an indicative 2050 CO_2 target; calls on the Commission to set ambitious but realistic targets for ultra-low or non-CO_2-emitting and CO_2-neutral energy technologies to supply 60 % of EU electricity demand by 2020, in support of European climate and security of supply objectives;

70. Acknowledges the significant role which renewable energy sources play in helping SMEs achieve the objectives of the Lisbon Strategy; calls on the Commission and the Member States to take practical measures to improve the energy efficiency of SMEs; notes that those measures should include, in particular, measures to raise awareness of the issues involved and to facilitate access to funding, for example from the Structural Funds, the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the European Investment Bank, so that firms can make investments aiming at a reduction in energy consumption;

71. Calls on the Council and the Commission to ensure that the European Union becomes the most energy efficient economy in the world by 2020 and to make energy efficiency measures a horizontal priority for all sectors of the EU economy; calls on the Commission to ensure timely implementation of EC directives in that field and urges the Council to adopt the proposals in the Commission's Action Plan to improve Energy Efficiency in the European Community (COM(2000)0247) and Member States to use best practices as a basis for their first national Energy Efficiency Action Plans, which Directive 2006/32/EC requires be submitted by 30 June 2007; points out that if Member States were to fully implement existing EC legislation, half the EU target of a 20 % energy saving by 2020 would already be met; calls on the President of the Commission to promote a global energy efficiency agreement;

72. Calls for the Spring 2007 European Council to ensure that Europe's future energy policy is backed up by an ambitious R&D strategy in the field of energy, including more adequate public funding and strong incentives for increased private R&D funding; encourages Member States to set out a strategy for increasing the budget for energy research, especially when there is a mid-term review of the EC budget for the FP7 and for the Intelligent Energy Specific Programme, and therefore welcomes the Commission's proposal that the European Union should increase, by at least 50 %, its annual spending on energy research over the next seven years; calls for a European strategic energy technology plan and hopes that it will cover research fields focusing on new energy technologies, such as all renewable energy sources, including wave and tidal power, coal gasification and in particular energy storage, as far as the medium and long-term prospects are concerned;

Creating the internal market for energy

73. Stresses that further action is required to deliver a functioning internal market for energy through a clearer separation of energy production from energy distribution; therefore welcomes the Commission proposal for further action aiming to achieve this separation, accompanied by stronger independent regulatory control which considers the interest of Europe as a whole; insists that this action, together with national measures, must deliver on the European Union's target of 10 % minimum interconnection levels, by identifying key bottlenecks and appointing coordinators; believes that a clear and stable political framework and a competitive energy market are needed to establish a high degree of competitiveness, energy independence, long-term stability, efficiency, environmental sensitivity and security of supply, and calls on the 2007 Spring European Council to provide a broader vision of the common European interest in the energy field, in order to place the completion of the internal market within a clear political framework, which is currently lacking;

74. Believes that cross-border trade will lead to the elimination of the existing bottlenecks between national markets; urges the Commission and the Member States to promote improved cooperation among transport system operators (TSOs), especially in areas such as cross-border capacity allocation, transparency, intraday markets, planning of grids and investments relevant to development of regional markets; calls on the Commission to draw up, together with TSOs, a European grid code ensuring interoperability of national energy grids;

75. Congratulates the Commission on the energy sector inquiry, calls on the Commission to pursue enforcement action, including fines against companies which breach competition rules, and encourages the Commission to take action against Member States which unduly protect national energy champions;

76. Believes that consumers must be placed at the centre of all future energy policies and that energy poverty should feature more clearly in the Commission's proposals; recalls that consumers, particularly public authorities, which must set an example in this area, also have obligations in terms of energy saving; recognises the central role that smart metering and billing can play in increasing consumer awareness of how and why energy is being used and therefore in changing consumer behaviour; calls on the Council and the Commission to propose measures which help low income households to achieve energy savings in their homes, thereby reducing their energy bills and their exposure to future price increases;

77. Points out that energy policy calls for cost-intensive, long-term investment decisions which must be based on a high degree of transparency and predictability; calls on the Member States and the Commission to provide undertakings with legal certainty and to avoid new regulatory proposals at regular intervals, which create uncertainty and delay vitally needed investments in energy infrastructure;

78. Reaffirms its strong support for renewable energy sources; in order to boost the diversification of energy sources, proposes that the Commission should set a stable, long-term policy framework in order to create the necessary investment climate; this framework should contain an EU target for energy efficiency improvements of at least 20 % by 2020; asks the Commission to propose a framework for a range of harmonised support schemes for renewable energies as part of the renewable energy roadmap;

79. Stresses that further action is required to deliver a functioning internal market for energy through a clearer separation of energy production from energy distribution; calls, therefore, for stronger independent regulatory control, taking into account the European market, as well as national measures to deliver on the European Union's target of 10 % minimum interconnection levels, by identifying key bottlenecks and appointing coordinators;

A. whereas in recent years Europe has witnessed an increased pace of technological evolution, with copper networks being replaced by fibre optic networks and increasing use of wireless communications and multimedia platforms,

B. whereas technological convergence is beneficial to consumers as it offers a greater choice of infrastructure and services,

C. whereas radio spectrum is key to the provision of a wide range of services,

D. whereas spectrum shortage has been an obstacle to the deployment of new services,

E. whereas the success of WiFi has demonstrated that it is now possible to use the unlicensed band more efficiently than before,

F. whereas efficient use of spectrum is critical in ensuring access to spectrum for the various interested parties who want to offer services, and is therefore a key factor in the growth, productivity and development of European industry in accordance with the Lisbon Strategy,

G. whereas efficient and prudent use of spectrum serves the cultural objectives of EU policies pursuant to Article 151 (4) of the EC Treaty and should facilitate cultural and linguistic diversity as well as media pluralism,

H. whereas access to spectrum needs common technical parameters,

I. whereas, through the digital switchover and the transition from analogue to digital, several hundred megahertz of spectrum will be released, thus offering the possibility of reallocating spectrum and new opportunities for market growth,

J. whereas the legal framework for electronic communications is a prerequisite for an open and competitive electronic communications market; whereas, however, not all Member States have transposed its provisions in a timely and correct manner,

K. whereas the Commission's position is that digital electronic communication is of fundamental importance for the entire economy, the Lisbon process and the i2010 strategy, and a reform of the system of spectrum management is therefore essential,

L. whereas information and communication technology offers European industry great prospects for growth and development and can also contribute to social welfare,

M. whereas access to spectrum can facilitate the development of technology-driven markets,

N. whereas the Commission in its various communications on radio spectrum adopted in 2005 and 2006 proposed a more flexible and efficient approach to spectrum management, including spectrum tradability,

1. Considers that the European Union needs to adopt a sustainable approach to spectrum which will promote competition and the development of innovative technologies, inhibit the hoarding of frequency rights and the aggregation of monopolies and benefit consumers, and that this approach should take into consideration technological change as well as the needs of market players and of citizens;

2. Emphasises that the importance of spectrum has increased during recent years and that the growth of the technology sector relies, inter alia, on the efficient use of spectrum;

3. Notes that, in the EU, the regimes for assigning spectrum to interested parties differ from Member State to Member State and that this divergence can cause additional delays and costs; takes the view therefore that the EU will require efficient and responsive guidelines for common decision-making mechanisms and that, furthermore, a European register will be needed with the completion, expansion and accessibility of the EFIS database;

4. Agrees with the Commission's view that part of the spectrum dividend should be earmarked for technical harmonisation at European level;

5. Encourages the Commission to take into account the reality of the spectrum dividend when defining the future direction of the radio spectrum policy and consider the appropriateness of allowing unlicensed users access to the spectrum dividend;

6. Emphasises that implementation of the new conditions for spectrum usage must ensure an unrestricted choice of the technology which can be used and the service to be delivered in a given spectrum band;

7. Welcomes the development of new radio technologies that make efficient and flexible use of the radio spectrum and that make interoperability and coexistence possible;

8. Rejects a one-sided market model of spectrum management and urges the Commission to reform the system of spectrum management in such a way as to facilitate the coexistence of different types of licensing models, i.e. traditional administration, use without numerical restrictions and new, market-based approaches; stresses that the aim must be to boost economic and technical efficiency as well as the usefulness to society of this valuable resource;

9. Emphasises, with regard to spectrum management, the general principles of technological neutrality together with service neutrality in order to promote competition and innovation, within the context of the Lisbon Strategy; points out that spectrum should be managed in a manner which is flexible and transparent and which facilitates cultural and linguistic diversity, freedom of expression, and media pluralism and takes into account the technical, social, cultural and political needs of all Member States;

10. Emphasises the importance of technical neutrality to the promotion of innovation and interoperability and calls for a more flexible and transparent policy for the consideration of the public interest;

11. Considers that, given technological evolution, the approach to frequency use adopted until now needs to be adapted to meet the requirements of a rapidly-changing information society and also provide for guarantees of high-quality service delivery and related customer protection; considers that spectrum management should not be based only on a market-driven approach but also needs to take into account wider social, cultural and political considerations;

12. Welcomes the Commission's proposal to adopt differentiated spectrum management models including the unlicensed model which provides additional flexibility by allowing for free access within some technical limitations; considers that developing the right mix between the different types of licensing model will be important in achieving EU policy objectives;

13. Agrees that radio spectrum is a key resource for many activities and important for the proper functioning of the internal market; emphasises that the use of market mechanisms should safeguard the interests of consumers and encourage the take up of innovative products and services; agrees also that social, cultural and political considerations must also be taken into account in line with Article 151(4) of the EC Treaty; considers, furthermore, that audiovisual policy, the promotion of cultural and linguistic diversity and the pluralism of the media may justify exceptions from the principle of service neutrality;

14. Considers that the administrative method of allocating spectrum rights could be supplemented by Member States opening up more frequencies to unlicensed, and therefore possibly shared use, and by allowing spectrum trading on condition that this opening up does not harm the continuity and quality of services concerned with public information and safety; takes the view that the phenomenon and the standard conditions of spectrum trading should be clarified;

15. Emphasises the importance of communication for rural and less developed regions, for which the diffusion of broadband, of lower frequency mobile communications and of new wireless technologies could provide efficient solutions to achieving universal coverage of the 27 EU Member States with a view to the sustainable development of all areas; believes that complete coverage of all areas must not be achieved by transferring the burden to the regions concerned;

16. Emphasises the risk of frequency shortage and of interference problems due to analogue-digital simulcasting between Member States and bordering third countries and emphasises also that all EU countries and regions should benefit from the digital dividend;

17. Notes that, given the scarcity of the resource, adequate amounts of spectrum should be allocated to meet the needs of consumers and of services of public and general interest, including broadcasting services; stresses also the need to include a clause on reallocating frequencies where the commitments made when frequencies are assigned are not fulfilled;

18. Urges Member States to take a decision on the priority to be given to the protection of the public interest and of frequencies of strategic importance as a key principle in developing spectrum management policies;

19. Recognises spectrum efficiency as a common duty of Member States, national regulators and industry; insists on the necessity of securing the stability and continuity of the media services provided by broadcasters, but emphasises the importance of a level playing field for new entrants and for new technologies; believes that room for innovation must be guaranteed, in the interest of consumers, enterprises and employment generally; calls on the Commission to clarify the specific risks relating to interferences and conditions of applications of new rules in the new Member States and to propose adapted solutions;

20. Calls on the Commission to ensure, when reviewing the legal framework for electronic communications networks and services, that sufficient account is taken of the significance of broadcasting, with regard to the freedom of opinion of individuals, and of diversity of opinion, when transmission capacities are allocated at European level;

21. Notes that, in order to preserve their high quality, services of public and general interest need to adapt to changing technology;

22. Notes that access to harmonised frequency bands is essential for the development of new services and new types of wireless technology, as industry seeks common conditions of use that provide flexibility and efficient use of the spectrum, in order to prevent severe constraints on the growth of the ICT sector in the EU, if the frequencies intended to meet these new needs are not allocated;

23. Welcomes the Commission's proposal to introduce a market-based approach to spectrum, and acknowledges that the traditional model will continue to be relevant, in particular where important public interests are at stake;

24. Considers that the introduction of a market-based approach to spectrum will be most effective if based on a consensual agreement backed by regulators, operators and other actors; draws attention, in this regard, to the work of the European Regulatory Group (ERG) and the Radio Spectrum Policy Group (RSPG);

25. Asks that the proposals of the European Commission on spectrum management and tradability be carefully considered and that a common agreement at political level be reached for their implementation;

26. Notes that the freeing-up of spectrum raises a number of issues for existing users and calls, therefore, for a clear legal framework providing for competition-based solutions and defining, inter alia, conditions for entry and exit, the maintenance of spectrum rights, responsibilities with regard to interference and dispute resolution mechanisms;

27. Suggests that in order to achieve technological harmonisation, minimal common technical and regulatory conditions be developed with a view to ensuring technical co-existence and the avoidance of interference, with particular attention being paid to ensuring that the utilisation of frequency bands already assigned cannot be adversely affected and that cross border issues are settled;

28. Calls for a balanced and efficient approach to spectrum management in order to maximise the social, cultural and economic benefits arising from its use, encourage the development of innovative services, deliver jobs and growth in accordance with the Lisbon Strategy and make European industry a global leader in electronic communications;

29. Is convinced that we will see in the future even more sophisticated packages on offer than the already existing triple play packages, offering voice telephony, internet access and television and that, as a result, the borders between products and services in the area of electronic communications will in the future become even more blurred;

30. Considers that, besides the market-based approach, attention should also be given to ensuring access to the spectrum market for everyone; notes that, in order to guarantee such access, information, knowledge and technological infrastructure should be provided via education or alternative training opportunities;

31. Notes that the divergence in Member State regimes for spectrum allocation and exploitation differ widely and that these differences represent serious obstacles to the achievement of a well-functioning single market;

32. Calls on Member States to support enhanced cooperation measures between spectrum management authorities, to consider areas where common spectrum allocation would allow new technologies and services to emerge, to step up their information exchanges and to remove over-prescriptive regulatory constraints;

33. Emphasises the need for sufficient time for transition and calls, therefore, for a step-by-step approach in this field; is of the opinion that effects for smaller networks — especially local wireless networks — for which no license requirements currently apply must be taken into account and that universal access to broadband, especially in rural areas, should be promoted;

34. Emphasises the potential value of the spectrum released by the digital switchover (digital dividend) which could increase the widespread availability of affordable mobile/wireless broadband, including in rural areas;

35. Urges the establishment of clear definitions of rights and obligations to promote legal certainty; underlines the importance of separation between providers of infrastructure and providers of electronic communications services and the importance of avoiding the creation of monopolies;

36. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission.

Shareholders' voting rights I

European Parliament legislative resolution on the proposal for a directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on the exercise of voting rights by shareholders of companies having their registered office in a Member State and whose shares are admitted to trading on a regulated market and amending Directive 2004/109/EC (COM(2005)0685 — C6-0003/2006 — 2005/0265(COD))

(Codecision procedure: first reading)

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the Commission proposal to the European Parliament and the Council (COM(2005)0685) [1],

— having regard to Article 251(2) and Articles 44 and 95 of the EC Treaty, pursuant to which the Commission submitted the proposal to Parliament (C6-0003/2006),

— having regard to Rule 51 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Legal Affairs and the opinion of the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs (A6-0024/2007),

1. Approves the Commission proposal as amended;

2. Calls on the Commission to refer the matter to Parliament again if it intends to amend the proposal substantially or replace it with another text;

3. Asks the Commission to consult Parliament before finalising a Recommendation related to issues and topics in the context of the proposed Directive;

4. Instructs its President to forward its position to the Council and Commission.

[1] Not yet published in OJ.

P6_TC1-COD(2005)0265

Position of the European Parliament adopted at first reading on 15 February 2007 with a view to the adoption of Directive 2007/…/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council on the exercise of certain rights of shareholders in listed companies

THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Articles 44 and 95 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the Opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee [1],

Acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 251 of the Treaty [2],

Whereas:

(1) In its Communication to the Council and the European Parliament of 21 May 2003, entitled 'Modernising Company Law and enhancing Corporate Governance in the European Union — A Plan to Move Forward', the Commission indicated that new tailored initiatives should be taken with a view to enhancing shareholders' rights in listed companies and that problems relating to cross-border voting should be solved as a matter of urgency.

(2) In its Resolution of 21 April 2004 [3], the European Parliament expressed its support for the Commission's intention to strengthen shareholders' rights, in particular through the extension of the rules on transparency, proxy voting rights, the possibility of participating in general meetings via electronic means and ensuring that cross-border voting rights are able to be exercised.

(3) Holders of shares carrying voting rights should be able to exercise those rights given that they are reflected in the price that has to be paid at the acquisition of the shares. Furthermore, effective shareholder control is a pre-requisite to sound corporate governance and should, therefore, be facilitated and encouraged. It is therefore necessary to adopt measures to approximate the laws of the Member States to this end. Obstacles which deter shareholders from voting, such as making the exercise of voting rights subject to the blocking of shares during a certain period before the general meeting, should be removed. However, this Directive does not affect existing Community legislation on units issued by collective investment undertakings or on units acquired or disposed of in such undertakings.

(4) The existing Community legislation is not sufficient to achieve this objective. Directive 2001/34/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 28 May 2001 on the admission of securities to official stock exchange listing and on information to be published on those securities [4] focuses on the information issuers have to disclose to the market and accordingly does not deal with the shareholder voting process itself. Moreover, Directive 2004/109/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 December 2004 on the harmonisation of transparency requirements in relation to information about issuers whose securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market [5] imposes on issuers an obligation to make available certain information and documents relevant to general meetings, but such information and documents are to be made available in the issuer's home Member State. Therefore, certain minimum standards should be introduced with a view to protecting investors and promoting the smooth and effective exercise of shareholder rights attaching to voting shares. As regards rights other than the right to vote, Member States are free to extend the application of these minimum standards also to non-voting shares, to the extent that those shares do not enjoy such standards already.

(5) Significant proportions of shares in listed companies are held by shareholders who do not reside in the Member State in which the company has its registered office. Non-resident shareholders should be able to exercise their rights in relation to the general meeting as easily as shareholders who reside in the Member State in which the company has its registered office. This requires that existing obstacles which hinder the access of non-resident shareholders to the information relevant to the general meeting and the exercise of voting rights without physically attending the general meeting be removed. The removal of these obstacles should also benefit resident shareholders who do not or cannot attend the general meeting.

(6) Shareholders should be able to cast informed votes at, or in advance of, the general meeting, no matter where they reside. All shareholders should have sufficient time to consider the documents intended to be submitted to the general meeting and determine how they will vote their shares. To this end, timely notice should be given of the general meeting, and shareholders should be provided with the complete information intended to be submitted to the general meeting. The possibilities which modern technologies offer to make information instantly accessible should be exploited. This Directive presupposes that all listed companies already have an internet site.

(7) Shareholders should, in principle, have the possibility to put items on the agenda of the general meeting and to table draft resolutions for items on the agenda. Without prejudice to different time-frames and modalities which are currently in use across the Community, the exercise of those rights should be made subject to two basic rules, namely that any threshold required for the exercise of those rights should not exceed 5 % of the company's share capital and that all shareholders should in every case receive the final version of the agenda in sufficient time to prepare for the discussion and voting on each item on the agenda.

(8) Every shareholder should, in principle, have the possibility to ask questions related to items on the agenda of the general meeting and to have them answered, while the rules on how and when questions are to be asked and answered should be left to be determined by Member States.

(9) Companies should face no legal obstacles in offering to their shareholders any means of electronic participation in the general meeting. Voting without attending the general meeting in person, whether by correspondence or by electronic means, should not be subject to constraints other than those necessary for the verification of identity and the security of electronic communications. However, this should not prevent Member States from adopting rules aimed at ensuring that the results of the voting reflect the intentions of the shareholders in all circumstances, including rules aimed at addressing situations where new circumstances occur or are revealed after a shareholder has cast his vote by correspondence or by electronic means.

(10) Good corporate governance requires a smooth and effective process of proxy voting. Existing limitations and constraints which make proxy voting cumbersome and costly should therefore be removed. But good corporate governance also requires adequate safeguards against a possible abuse of proxy voting. The proxy holder should therefore be bound to observe any instructions he may have received from the shareholder and Member States should be able to introduce appropriate measures ensuring that the proxy holder does not pursue any interest other than that of the shareholder, irrespective of the reason that has given rise to the conflict of interests. Measures against possible abuse may, in particular, consist of regimes which Member States may adopt in order to regulate the activity of persons who actively engage in the collection of proxies or who have in fact collected more than a certain significant number of proxies, notably to ensure an adequate degree of reliability and transparency. Shareholders have an unfettered right under this Directive to appoint such persons as proxy holders to attend and vote at general meetings in their name. This Directive does not, however, affect any rules or sanctions that Member States may impose on such persons where votes have been cast by making fraudulent use of proxies collected. Moreover, this Directive does not impose any obligation on companies to verify that proxy holders cast votes in accordance with the voting instructions of the appointing shareholders.

(11) Where financial intermediaries are involved, the effectiveness of voting upon instructions relies, to a great extent, on the efficiency of the chain of intermediaries, given that investors are frequently unable to exercise the voting rights attached to their shares without the cooperation of every intermediary in the chain, who may not have an economic stake in the shares. In order to enable the investor to exercise his voting rights in cross-border situations, it is therefore important that intermediaries facilitate the exercise of voting rights. Further consideration should be given to this issue by the Commission in the context of a Recommendation, with a view to ensuring that investors have access to effective voting services and that voting rights are exercised in accordance with the instructions given by those investors.

(12) While the timing of disclosure to the administrative, management or supervisory body as well as to the public of votes cast in advance of the general meeting electronically or by correspondence is an important matter of corporate governance, it can be determined by Member States.

(13) Voting results should be established through methods that reflect the voting intentions expressed by shareholders, and they should be made transparent after the general meeting at least through the company's internet site.

(14) Since the objective of this Directive, namely to allow shareholders effectively to make use of their rights throughout the Community, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States on the basis of the existing Community legislation and can therefore, by reason of the scale and effects of the measures, be better achieved at Community level, the Community may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve that objective.

(15) In accordance with paragraph 34 of the Interinstitutional Agreement on better law-making [1], Member States are encouraged to draw up, for themselves and in the interests of the Community, their own tables illustrating, as far as possible, the correlation between this Directive and the transposition measures, and to make them public,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Chapter I

General provisions

Article 1

Subject-matter and scope

1. This Directive establishes requirements in relation to the exercise of certain shareholder rights attaching to voting shares in relation to general meetings of companies which have their registered office in a Member State and whose shares are admitted to trading on a regulated market situated or operating within a Member State.

2. The Member State competent to regulate matters covered in this Directive shall be the Member State in which the company has its registered office, and references to the 'applicable law' are references to the law of that Member State.

3. Member States may exempt from this Directive the following types of companies:

(a) collective investment undertakings within the meaning of Article 1(2) of Council Directive 85/611/EEC of 20 December 1985 on the coordination of laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) [2];

(b) undertakings the sole object of which is the collective investment of capital provided by the public, which operate on the principle of risk spreading and which do not seek to take legal or management control over any of the issuers of their underlying investments, provided that these collective investment undertakings are authorised and subject to the supervision of competent authorities and that they have a depositary exercising functions equivalent to those under Directive 85/611/EEC;

(c) cooperative societies.

Article 3

Further national measures

This Directive shall not prevent Member States from imposing further obligations on companies or from otherwise taking further measures to facilitate the exercise by shareholders of the rights referred to in this Directive.

Chapter II

General meetings of shareholders

Article 4

Equal treatment of shareholders

The company shall ensure equal treatment for all shareholders who are in the same position with regard to participation and the exercise of voting rights in the general meeting.

Article 5

Information prior to the general meeting

1. Without prejudice to Articles 9(4) and 11(4) of Directive 2004/25/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 April 2004 on takeover bids [1], Member States shall ensure that the company issues the convocation of the general meeting in one of the manners specified in paragraph 2 of this Article not later than on the twenty-first day before the day of the meeting.

Member States may provide that, where the company offers the facility for shareholders to vote by electronic means accessible to all shareholders, the general meeting of shareholders may decide that it shall issue the convocation of a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting in one of the manners specified in paragraph 2 of this Article not later than on the fourteenth day before the day of the meeting. This decision is to be taken by a majority of not less than two thirds of the votes attaching to the shares or the subscribed capital represented and for a duration not later than the next annual general meeting.

Member States need not apply the minimum periods referred to in the first and second subparagraphs for the second or subsequent convocation of a general meeting issued for lack of a quorum required for the meeting convened by the first convocation, provided that this Article has been complied with for the first convocation and no new item is put on the agenda, and that at least ten days elapse between the final convocation and the date of the general meeting.

2. Without prejudice to further requirements for notification or publication laid down by the competent Member State as defined in Article 1(2), the company shall be required to issue the convocation referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article in a manner ensuring fast access to it on a non-discriminatory basis. The Member State shall require the company to use such media as may reasonably be relied upon for the effective dissemination of information to the public throughout the Community. The Member State may not impose an obligation to use only media whose operators are established on its territory.

The Member State need not apply the first subparagraph to companies that are able to identify the names and addresses of their shareholders from a current register of shareholders, provided that the company is under an obligation to send the convocation to each of its registered shareholders.

In either case the company may not charge any specific cost for issuing the convocation in the prescribed manner.

[1] OJ L 142, 30.4.2004, p. 12.

3. The convocation referred to in paragraph 1 shall at least:

(a) indicate precisely when and where the general meeting is to take place, and the proposed agenda for the general meeting;

(b) contain a clear and precise description of the procedures that shareholders must comply with in order to be able to participate and to cast their vote in the general meeting. This includes information concerning:

(i) the rights available to shareholders under Article 6, to the extent that those rights can be exercised after the issuing of the convocation, and under Article 9, and the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised; the convocation may confine itself to stating only the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised, provided it contains a reference to more detailed information concerning those rights being made available on the internet site of the company,

(ii) the procedure for voting by proxy, notably the forms to be used to vote by proxy and the means by which the company is prepared to accept electronic notifications of the appointment of proxy holders, and

(iii) where applicable, the procedures for casting votes by correspondence or by electronic means;

(c) where applicable, state the record date as defined in Article 7(2) and explain that only those who are shareholders on that date shall have the right to participate and vote in the general meeting;

(d) indicate where and how the full, unabridged text of the documents and draft resolutions referred to in points (c) and (d) of paragraph 4 may be obtained;

(e) indicate the address of the internet site on which the information referred to in paragraph 4 will be made available.

4. Member States shall ensure that, for a continuous period beginning not later than on the twenty-first day before the day of the general meeting and including the day of the meeting, the company shall make available to its shareholders on its internet site at least the following information:

(a) the convocation referred to in paragraph 1;

(b) the total number of shares and voting rights at the date of the convocation (including separate totals for each class of shares where the company's capital is divided into two or more classes of shares);

(c) the documents to be submitted to the general meeting;

(d) a draft resolution or, where no resolution is proposed to be adopted, a comment from a competent body within the company, to be designated by the applicable law, for each item on the proposed agenda of the general meeting; moreover, draft resolutions tabled by shareholders shall be added to the internet site as soon as practicable after the company has received them;

(e) where applicable, the forms to be used to vote by proxy and to vote by correspondence, unless those forms are sent directly to each shareholder.

Where the forms referred to in point (e) cannot be made available on the internet for technical reasons, the company shall indicate on its internet site how the forms can be obtained on paper. In this case the company shall be required to send the forms by postal services and free of charge to every shareholder who so requests.

Where, pursuant to Articles 9(4) or 11(4) of Directive 2004/25/EC, or to the second subparagraph of paragraph 1 of this Article, the convocation of the general meeting is issued later than on the twenty-first day before the meeting, the period specified in this paragraph shall be shortened accordingly.

Article 6

Right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting and to table draft resolutions

1. Member States shall ensure that shareholders, acting individually or collectively:

(a) have the right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting, provided that each such item is accompanied by a justification or a draft resolution to be adopted in the general meeting; and

(b) have the right to table draft resolutions for items included or to be included on the agenda of a general meeting.

Member States may provide that the right referred to in point (a) may be exercised only in relation to the annual general meeting, provided that shareholders, acting individually or collectively, have the right to call, or to require the company to call, a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting with an agenda including at least all the items requested by those shareholders.

Member States may provide that those rights shall be exercised in writing (submitted by postal services or electronic means).

2. Where any of the rights specified in paragraph 1 is subject to the condition that the relevant shareholder or shareholders hold a minimum stake in the company, such minimum stake shall not exceed 5 % of the share capital.

3. Each Member State shall set a single deadline, with reference to a specified number of days prior to the general meeting or the convocation, by which shareholders may exercise the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (a). In the same manner each Member State may set a deadline for the exercise of the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (b).

4. Member States shall ensure that, where the exercise of the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (a) entails a modification of the agenda for the general meeting already communicated to shareholders, the company shall make available a revised agenda in the same manner as the previous agenda in advance of the applicable record date as defined in Article 7(2) or, if no record date applies, sufficiently in advance of the date of the general meeting so as to enable other shareholders to appoint a proxy or, where applicable, to vote by correspondence.

Article 7

Requirements for participation and voting in the general meeting

1. Member States shall ensure:

(a) that the rights of a shareholder to participate in a general meeting and to vote in respect of any of his shares are not subject to any requirement that his shares be deposited with, or transferred to, or registered in the name of, another natural or legal person before the general meeting; and

(b) that the rights of a shareholder to sell or otherwise transfer his shares during the period between the record date, as defined in paragraph 2, and the general meeting to which it applies are not subject to any restriction to which they are not subject at other times.

2. Member States shall provide that the rights of a shareholder to participate in a general meeting and to vote in respect of his shares shall be determined with respect to the shares held by that shareholder on a specified date prior to the general meeting (the 'record date').

Member States need not apply the first subparagraph to companies that are able to identify the names and addresses of their shareholders from a current register of shareholders on the day of the general meeting.

3. Each Member State shall ensure that a single record date applies to all companies. However, a Member State may set one record date for companies which have issued bearer shares and another record date for companies which have issued registered shares, provided that a single record date applies to each company which has issued both types of shares. The record date shall not lie more than thirty days before the date of the general meeting to which it applies. In implementing this provision and Article 5(1), each Member State shall ensure that at least eight days elapse between the latest permissible date for the convocation of the general meeting and the record date. In calculating that number of days those two dates shall not be included. In the circumstances described in Article 5(1), third subparagraph, however, a Member State may require that at least six days elapse between the latest permissible date for the second or subsequent convocation of the general meeting and the record date. In calculating that number of days those two dates shall not be included.

4. Proof of qualification as a shareholder may be made subject only to such requirements as are necessary to ensure the identification of shareholders and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving that objective.

Article 8

Participation in the general meeting by electronic means

1. Member States shall permit companies to offer to their shareholders any form of participation in the general meeting by electronic means, notably any or all of the following forms of participation:

(a) real-time transmission of the general meeting;

(b) real-time two-way communication enabling shareholders to address the general meeting from a remote location;

(c) a mechanism for casting votes, whether before or during the general meeting, without the need to appoint a proxy holder who is physically present at the meeting.

2. The use of electronic means for the purpose of enabling shareholders to participate in the general meeting may be made subject only to such requirements and constraints as are necessary to ensure the identification of shareholders and the security of the electronic communication, and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving those objectives.

This is without prejudice to any legal rules which Member States have adopted or may adopt concerning the decision-making process within the company for the introduction or implementation of any form of participation by electronic means.

Article 9

Right to ask questions

1. Every shareholder shall have the right to ask questions related to items on the agenda of the general meeting. The company shall answer the questions put to it by shareholders.

2. The right to ask questions and the obligation to answer are subject to the measures which Member States may take, or allow companies to take, to ensure the identification of shareholders, the good order of general meetings and their preparation and the protection of confidentiality and business interests of companies. Member States may allow companies to provide one overall answer to questions having the same content.

Member States may provide that an answer shall be deemed to be given if the relevant information is available on the company's internet site in a question and answer format.

Article 10

Proxy voting

1. Every shareholder shall have the right to appoint any other natural or legal person as a proxy holder to attend and vote at a general meeting in his name. The proxy holder shall enjoy the same rights to speak and ask questions in the general meeting as those to which the shareholder thus represented would be entitled.

Apart from the requirement that the proxy holder possess legal capacity, Member States shall abolish any legal rule which restricts, or allows companies to restrict, the eligibility of persons to be appointed as proxy holders.

2. Member States may limit the appointment of a proxy holder to a single meeting, or to such meetings as may be held during a specified period.

Without prejudice to Article 13(5), Member States may limit the number of persons whom a shareholder may appoint as proxy holders in relation to any one general meeting. However, if a shareholder has shares of a company held in more than one securities account, such limitation shall not prevent the shareholder from appointing a separate proxy holder as regards shares held in each securities account in relation to any one general meeting. This does not affect rules prescribed by the applicable law that prohibit the casting of votes differently in respect of shares held by one and the same shareholder.

3. Apart from the limitations expressly permitted in paragraphs 1 and 2, Member States shall not restrict or allow companies to restrict the exercise of shareholder rights through proxy holders for any purpose other than to address potential conflicts of interest between the proxy holder and the shareholder, in whose interest the proxy holder is bound to act, and in doing so Member States shall not impose any requirements other than the following:

(a) Member States may prescribe that the proxy holder disclose certain specified facts which may be relevant for the shareholders in assessing any risk that the proxy holder might pursue any interest other than the interest of the shareholder;

(b) Member States may restrict or exclude the exercise of shareholder rights through proxy holders without specific voting instructions for each resolution in respect of which the proxy holder is to vote on behalf of the shareholder;

(c) Member States may restrict or exclude the transfer of the proxy to another person, but this shall not prevent a proxy holder who is a legal person from exercising the powers conferred upon it through any member of its administrative or management body or any of its employees.

A conflict of interest within the meaning of this paragraph may in particular arise where the proxy holder:

(i) is a controlling shareholder of the company, or is another entity controlled by such shareholder,

(ii) is a member of the administrative, management or supervisory body of the company, or of a controlling shareholder or controlled entity referred to in point (i),

(iii) is an employee or an auditor of the company, or of a controlling shareholder or controlled entity referred to in (i),

(iv) has a family relationship with a natural person referred to in points (i) to (iii).

4. The proxy holder shall cast votes in accordance with the instructions issued by the appointing shareholder.

Member States may require proxy holders to keep a record of the voting instructions for a defined minimum period and to confirm on request that the voting instructions have been carried out.

5. A person acting as a proxy holder may hold a proxy from more than one shareholder without limitation as to the number of shareholders so represented. Where a proxy holder holds proxies from several shareholders, the applicable law shall enable him to cast votes for a certain shareholder differently from votes cast for another shareholder.

Formalities for proxy holder appointment and notification

1. Member States shall permit shareholders to appoint a proxy holder by electronic means. Moreover, Member States shall permit companies to accept the notification of the appointment by electronic means, and shall ensure that every company offers to its shareholders at least one effective method of notification by electronic means.

2. Member States shall ensure that proxy holders may be appointed, and that such appointment be notified to the company, only in writing. Beyond this basic formal requirement, the appointment of a proxy holder, the notification of the appointment to the company and the issuance of voting instructions, if any, to the proxy holder may be made subject only to such formal requirements as are necessary to ensure the identification of the shareholder and of the proxy holder, or to ensure the possibility of verifying the content of voting instructions, respectively, and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving those objectives.

3. The provisions of this Article shall apply mutatis mutandis for the revocation of the appointment of a proxy holder.

Article 12

Voting by correspondence

Member States shall permit companies to offer their shareholders the possibility to vote by correspondence in advance of the general meeting. Voting by correspondence may be made subject only to such requirements and constraints as are necessary to ensure the identification of shareholders and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving that objective.

Article 13

Removal of certain impediments to the effective exercise of voting rights

1. This Article applies where a natural or legal person who is recognised as a shareholder by the applicable law acts in the course of a business on behalf of another natural or legal person (the 'client').

2. Where the applicable law imposes disclosure requirements as a prerequisite for the exercise of voting rights by a shareholder referred to in paragraph 1, such requirements shall not go beyond a list disclosing to the company the identity of each client and the number of shares voted on his behalf.

3. Where the applicable law imposes formal requirements on the authorisation of a shareholder referred to in paragraph 1 to exercise voting rights, or on voting instructions, such formal requirements shall not go beyond what is necessary to ensure the identification of the client, or the possibility of verifying the content of voting instructions, respectively, and is proportionate to achieving those objectives.

4. A shareholder referred to in paragraph 1 shall be permitted to cast votes attaching to some of the shares differently from votes attaching to the other shares.

5. Where the applicable law limits the number of persons whom a shareholder may appoint as proxy holders in accordance with Article 10(2), such limitation shall not prevent a shareholder referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article from granting a proxy to each of his clients or to any third party designated by a client.

Voting results

1. The company shall establish for each resolution at least the number of shares for which votes have been validly cast, the proportion of the share capital represented by those votes, the total number of votes validly cast as well as the number of votes cast in favour of and against each resolution and, where applicable, the number of abstentions.

However, Member States may provide or allow companies to provide that if no shareholder requests a full account of the voting, it shall be sufficient to establish the voting results only to the extent needed to ensure that the required majority is reached for each resolution.

2. Within a period of time to be determined by the applicable law, which shall not exceed fifteen days after the general meeting, the company shall publish on its internet site the voting results established in accordance with paragraph 1.

3. This Article is without prejudice to any legal rules that Member States have adopted or may adopt concerning the formalities required in order for a resolution to become valid or the possibility of a subsequent legal challenge to the voting result.

C. whereas the need to engage in development cooperation requires continuous justification not only vis-à-vis the general public but also in the context of interaction with other stakeholders in the field of public expenditure,

D. whereas budget support is acknowledged as an essential instrument of European Community development cooperation and whereas approximately one fifth of EDF aid is in the form of untargeted budget support,

E. whereas the importance of providing predictable government-to-government support using recipient countries' own systems, as far as possible, was recognised by the DAC high level meeting held in Paris in March 2005,

F. whereas budget support allows for closer donor coordination,

G. whereas effective recipient state structures, both in terms of a functioning democracy respecting fundamental freedoms, human rights and political pluralism and in terms of budgetary processes, expenditure competency and service provision that are amenable to scrutiny, are crucial to the effectiveness of budget support,

H. whereas budget support can empower the recipient to determine its development process,

I. whereas the budget support process takes place within a framework of partnership, in terms of priority setting and assessment, through continuous donor-recipient policy dialogue,

J. whereas budget support should also encourage the strengthening of democratic processes, affording policy space to civil society, especially through involvement in the shaping of a poverty reduction and development strategy, and promoting parliamentary scrutiny of development policy and budget spending,

K. whereas budget support can be either general budget support, which covers the overall macroeconomic and budget framework, or sectoral budget support,

L. whereas the key considerations in deciding the allocation of budget support funding are: the 'external financing gap', the degree of poverty, good governance, past performance, development commitment and a realistic assessment of possible results, in terms of poverty reduction, growth and institutional reform,

M. whereas funds provided as general budget support are fully fungible, as transfers are made directly into the treasury account of a country, which effectively means that control over, ownership of and accountability with regard to the utilisation of those funds rests with the recipient,

N. whereas Articles 61(2) and 67 of the Cotonou Partnership Agreement clearly determine the conditions governing the eligibility of a recipient country for budget support, expressly stating the need for standards regarding public expenditure management, macroeconomic and sectoral policies and public procurement and, furthermore, requiring the donor and recipient to ensure that adjustment is economically viable and socially and politically workable,

O. whereas a functioning parliamentary democracy respecting fundamental freedoms and human rights, including political pluralism, and an effective public financial management system are prerequisites for budget support, and should be assessed in terms of the extent to which the recipient country is characterised by good governance, scrutiny by a democratically elected parliament, the rule of law, government accountability, competence, well-defined macroeconomic, developmental and sectoral policies and the degree of openness and transparency of its public procurement,

P. whereas risk should be measured in terms of the ability of the state bodies concerned to administer and implement funds, good governance, commitment to development principles, the incidence of corruption, democracy and human rights,

Q. whereas effective public financial management and budgetary systems aimed at creating a stable macroeconomic climate are essential preconditions for development,

R. whereas a number of budget support partner countries, especially in the ACP states, have extremely poor public financial management systems,

S. whereas the donor-recipient partnership needs to ensure an effective joint analysis of the results of development policy implementation and reforms which are crucial to the assessment of the viability of budget support,

1. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to use budget support only if the net benefits of such a mechanism can be demonstrated in the light of clearly objectifiable criteria, and only after a full assessment of the risks involved;

2. Stresses that budget support as an aid modality can be successful only if both partners fully assume their responsibilities in a true spirit of partnership and ownership;

3. Calls for budget support to focus, as far as possible, on poverty reduction development priorities, for those priorities to be given a central role in the donor-recipient policy dialogue and for parliamentary scrutiny to be ensured in respect of both the donor and the recipient;

4. Stresses the importance of capacity-building by recipient governments, which have to assume a stronger leadership role in development assistance coordination;

5. Stresses the importance of creating a culture of accountability which fully involves parliaments and the supreme audit institutions; recognises that budget support must go hand in hand with the strengthening of civil society;

6. Regards the equitable application of clear, explicit and realistic conditions, agreed upon by all parties and attached to the budget support programme, as essential to the instrument in question and necessary in order to counteract unpredictable volatility in the granting of aid;

7. Commends the eligibility criteria for the use of budget support with ACP states, as enshrined in Articles 61(2) and 67 of the Cotonou Partnership Agreement;

8. Is concerned about the decision to use budget support in Malawi, where there were considerable known risks, and Kenya, in regard to which all Member States have suspended budget support, thus calling into question the Commission's ability to use this instrument effectively;

9. Is concerned by the findings of the Court of Auditors that, in some cases, the Commission's reasons for granting budget support to countries with poor public financial management systems were insufficient, and that Articles 61(2) and 67 of the Cotonou Partnership Agreement were often given a broad and subjective interpretation;

10. Is alarmed that the Court of Auditors has found inadequacies in the Commission's overall coherence of the budget support instrument and in the controls and monitoring and support for the recipient countries' own budgetary scrutiny mechanisms, namely the parliaments and supreme audit institutions of the countries concerned, and that technical assistance is being underused; all of these elements being indispensable to the instrument;

11. Recognises that there can only be one macroeconomic reform programme in any given country, which is usually directed by the international financial institutions, but in relation to which the Commission and Member States should seek to play an active role in an effort to influence policy;

12. Recalls that macroeconomic reforms can have a sustainable effect only when they fully embrace the objectives of human and social development;

13. Believes that sectoral budget support or sector-wide approaches should be considered as privileged instruments for intervention in the health and education sectors;

14. Reaffirms that 20 % of total annual commitments should be allocated to activities in the sectors of basic and secondary education and basic health (including sexual and reproductive health);

15. Calls on the Commission to adopt and apply the new international performance measurement framework in order to assess a country's public financial management, as established by PEFA;

16. Calls on the Commission to react coherently and even-handedly when countries cease to respect the principles of democracy and human rights;

17. Calls on the Commission to assess the prevalence and risks posed by corruption, in line with Articles 9(3) and 97 of the Cotonou Partnership Agreement;

18. Calls upon the Commission to seek coherence in policy and decision-making within donor budget support partnerships and demands that donor funds be administered effectively so as to eliminate the possibility of unpredictable volatility in the granting of aid, and considers that the Commission is best placed to facilitate EU donor coordination;

19. Considers it crucial that the disbursement of funds and the evaluation process be aligned with the recipients' own development strategy, budget and evaluation processes;

20. Calls on the Commission to maintain its strong focus on equity and poverty reduction, concentrating on the most marginalised and poor amongst society;

21. Commends the use of variable tranches, which offer results-based incentives, but notes that any variance of disbursement should be predictable, as far as possible, so as not to impact negatively on budgetary planning;

22. Is concerned about the difficulty inherent in assessing the achievement of performance indicators and especially poverty impact results, and calls on the Commission to support capacity development in statistics, data collection, quality assessment and analysis;

23. Calls on the Commission to verify at regular intervals, in collaboration with all stakeholders, that the economic policies of the recipient countries are in accordance with the objectives and principles of the development assistance and that its conditions are being fulfilled;

24. Calls on the Commission, Member States and the beneficiary countries to provide regular information to the general public in this sector, in order to make the impact of budget aid visible to the European taxpayer and to raise awareness of the need for development cooperation in general and the effects of budget support in particular, to counter general allegations of misuse of funds and to provide information on the basic requirements for the use of budget support and also on the cases where such support has proven ineffective; urges the Commission to improve the visibility of the EU in development aid and to document and demonstrate the progress made by beneficiary third countries in administering budget aid independently;

25. Calls on the Commission to assess at regular intervals the effectiveness of budget aid in combating poverty from the point of view of cost-effectiveness, and to show progress made by the third-country beneficiaries in independently administering the budget aid; in doing so, it should distinguish between general and sector-specific budget aid, so as to achieve greater clarity with regard to the effectiveness of the various aid instruments in reducing poverty; the administrative costs of budget and project aid must also be evaluated; the aim should be to be in a position to give a reasoned account of when each instrument should be used;

26. Calls on the Commission to tackle the shortcomings in control and supervision by introducing an external control for budget aid (for example via the Court of Auditors); the Commission should be encouraged to take the initiative of setting up a joint supervisory institution together with the other large financial donors;

27. Insists that, in order to support the beneficiary 'own budgetary control mechanisms, the parliament of any given beneficiary country should participate in adopting the budget, and the budget law should be published; insists further that budget aid should be evaluated annually by the parliament in terms of the progress achieved;

28. Calls on the Commission to state how budget aid can be limited in time; notes that the ultimate aim of budget support must be to build up the self-sufficiency of the beneficiary country, so the Commission should state over what (reasonable) timescale this can be achieved;

29. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and the Commission.

Illegal fishing

European Parliament resolution on the implementation of the EU action plan against illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing (2006/2225(INI))

The European Parliament,

— having regard to the communication from the Commission entitled 'Community action plan for the eradication of illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing' (COM(2002)0180) and the Council Conclusions of 11 June 2002 thereon,

— having regard to its resolution of 20 November 2002 on the Community action plan for the eradication of illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing [1],

— having regard to the Commission's three-yearly communications on monitoring the implementation of the Common Fisheries Policy (CFP) and Parliament's corresponding resolutions on that subject,

— having regard to the Commission's annual communications and Parliament's respective resolutions on conduct seriously infringing the rules of the CFP,

— having regard to the FAO international plan of action on illegal, unreported and unregulated (IUU) fishing and the technical documents adopted subsequently by the FAO,

— having regard to Council Regulation (EC) No 768/2005 of 26 April 2005 establishing a Community Fisheries Control Agency [2], and in particular Article 3, point (h) thereof,

— having regard to its resolution of 13 December 2001 on the role of flags of convenience in the fisheries sector [3],

— having regard to the Green Paper entitled 'Towards a future maritime policy for the Union: a European vision for the oceans and seas' (COM(2006)0275),

— having regard to its resolution of 7 September 2006 on launching a debate on a Community approach towards eco-labelling schemes for fisheries products [4],

— having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Fisheries (A6-0015/2007),

A. whereas IUU fishing is a major problem around the world, causing considerable environmental degradation, contributing to the depletion of commercial and non-commercial fish stocks and other species and resulting in difficulties for communities dependent on fishing for their livelihoods in both developing and developed countries,

B. whereas the fight against IUU fishing has been hindered by factors such as the use of flags of convenience, transshipments on the high seas, lack of adequate port control and scant cooperation between control authorities,

(1) OJ C 25 E, 29.1.2004, p. 179.
(2) OJ L 128, 21.5.2005, p. 1.
(3) OJ C 177 E, 25.7.2002, p. 324.
(4) Texts Adopted, P6_TA(2006)0347.

C. whereas, according to the FAO's definition of IUU fishing, 'illegal fishing' refers to activities conducted by vessels in contravention of the laws and regulations of states belonging to a regional fisheries management organisation (RFMO), 'unreported fishing' refers to activities which have been misreported or have not been reported to the competent national authority or the relevant RFMO, and 'unregulated fishing' refers to activities carried out by vessels without nationality or under the flag of a state which does not belong to a particular RFMO, in contravention of the conservation and management measures of that organisation,

D. whereas, even though IUU fishing may occur in any segment of the fleet, its greatest impact can be seen in the offshore fishing segment, which by preference operates in international waters and on the continental shelf of developing countries with scant means of control, which means that the European Union's action must focus on those areas and on that segment of the fleet,

E. whereas vessels engaging in IUU fishing help to weaken the social conditions and living and working conditions of crews,

F. whereas IUU fishing and marketing activities linked thereto also constitute unfair competition for those fishers and commercial players who abide by the rules laid down in law, including legislation in the EU, its Member States and other countries and the management measures agreed by RFMOs,

G. whereas the European Union and its Member States must increase their commitment in the fight against all forms of illegal fishing, but it is also necessary to distinguish between infringements by Community vessels of Community rules and IUU fishing as interpreted at international level, and bearing in mind that activities carried out within the framework of the CFP are indeed regulated, which means that the fight against those two activities will in the majority of cases involve different procedures,

H. whereas the Commission itself recognises the difficulty of differentiating between licit and illicit catches, particularly in certain cases such as when the fish landed is frozen, or where there are commercial networks with third countries and the fish has been processed before it reaches the European market,

I. whereas RFMOs are the best means of combating IUU fishing at international level and the Community's participation in them enables it to establish joint actions and speak with one voice in the competent international organisations,

J. whereas the existence of an effective and coherent control system is a key component for a sustainable resource conservation and management policy, and involves not simply introducing more restrictive measures but also applying existing measures better and more equitably,

K. mindful of the importance of the exchange of information and international cooperation in combating IUU fishing,

L. whereas the profits resulting from IUU fishing may in some cases be helping to finance activities of organised criminal networks,

1. Reiterates its commitment to combating IUU fishing in all its forms, as expressed in its resolution of 20 November 2002, referred to above;

2. Welcomes the progress that has been made at the international level and by the EU in combating IUU fishing, but considers that the phenomenon continues to escalate and, consequently, that further efforts are needed;

3. Considers that the extent of IUU fishing, the diversity of factors contributing to it and the wide range of legal, logistical and financial tools necessary to combat it are such as to require cooperation at all levels, including the various Directorates-General of the Commission (especially, but not limited to, the Fisheries and Maritime Affairs, Trade, Development and Health and Consumer Protection DGs), the Council, the individual Member States and the international community; takes the view, to that end, that the Green Paper on a new maritime policy for the Union could serve as a framework for cooperation on the basis of which the fight against IUU fishing might be approached more effectively;

Thursday 15 February 2007

4. Considers that the importance of the EU in the world, in its various roles as a major fishing power and as the world's largest market for fish, obliges it to be at the forefront of the fight against IUU fishing;

5. Notes that the EU is among the world's wealthiest and most technologically advanced entities and that it bases itself on the rule of law, all of which behoves the EU to broaden and intensify its efforts to combat IUU fishing;

6. Considers that the EU can only act credibly on the world scene if it has already taken effective action to halt its own involvement in IUU fishing, both in EU waters and by EU vessels or interests outside the EU;

7. Urges the Commission to help developing countries, above all those with which the Community has fishing agreements, to comply fully with the commitments of the abovementioned international plan of action designed to prevent illegal fishing, helping to strengthen the scant means available to them by including specific actions in the new partnership agreements;

8. Reiterates its conviction that a crucial and obvious first step for the European Union to take is, first, to fully implement the existing provisions of the CFP and other relevant Community legislation in an effective, fair and rigorous manner, in order to reduce unreported and illegal fishing by Community vessels and in Community waters and, second, to prevent the landing and marketing of products from illegally caught fish from outside the EU; notes that these duties fall primarily on the governments of the Member States, in application of Community law and as port states;

9. Urges the Commission and the Member States to strengthen deterrence mechanisms (surveillance, control, sanctions, etc.) and to propose measures that will make it possible to prevent infringements and improve the application of existing rules;

10. Notes that poor traceability of fish leads to confusion over its origin, making it difficult or impossible to distinguish between legally caught fish and illegally caught fish;

11. Considers it necessary to improve assistance and cooperation among the Member States in order to strengthen controls and surveillance and to promote commercial regulation measures that will make it possible to identify the origin of catches landed;

12. Considers it necessary to intensify port state control of landings and transhipments of frozen fish from third countries and to improve cooperation between the Member States and those countries;

13. Recalls its resolution of 7 September 2006 on eco-labelling, referred to above, and reiterates its belief that the improvements in the traceability of fish, from the net to the plate, that would be required by eco-labelling schemes would be of considerable help in identifying IUU fish and keeping it off the EU market; calls on the Commission to present its proposal on eco-labelling by June 2007;

14. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to redouble their efforts to implement the 15 actions included in the EU action plan on IUU fishing as agreed in 2002, and in particular to:

i. guarantee equal treatment for economic players, discouraging those within the Community who wish to use flags of convenience;

ii. incorporate rules in Community legislation to ban trade in IUU-origin fish;

iii. put in place binding rules on control and inspection within a common legal framework across the European Union;

iv. expand the Community information campaign so as to improve public awareness of the extent and serious nature of IUU fishing;

v. promote detailed control and inspection plans for each RFMO to which the EU belongs;

vi. work to ensure that coverage by RFMOs is extended to include all major fisheries in the world's oceans, including demersal species, small pelagic species and highly migratory species;

vii. contribute actively to the creation and revision, as appropriate, of lists adopted by RFMOs of vessels that undermine conservation measures, including by providing sightings; encourage the implementation of trade sanctions against countries whose flag those vessels fly;

viii. promote the adoption of uniform action plans by RFMOs by pushing for the most effective measures possible;

ix. work actively to promote the development of catch documentation schemes, starting with the most endangered species, and ensure that fish allowed onto the EU market has not been caught illegally;

x. strengthen international cooperation in the MCS (Monitoring, Control and Surveillance) network as well as regional schemes with a view to the establishment, under the auspices of the FAO, of an international information system on offshore fishing vessels;

xi. define a 'substantial link' between a fishing vessel and the flag she flies;

xii. define the rights and obligations of port States;

xiii. assist developing countries in their ability to monitor fishing activities in their waters and to combat IUU fishing;

15. Welcomes the inclusion in the Commission's work programme for 2007 of a package on IUU fishing, including a communication from the Commission and a proposal for a Council regulation on stepping up the fight against IUU fishing; welcomes the revival of the Commission's inter-service consultation group, which was originally set up in 2002;

16. Calls on the Community Fisheries Control Agency to include the fight against illegal fishing and coordination of Member States' activity in this field among its priorities as part of its annual work programme;

17. Calls on all those interested in eliminating IUU fishing, including all EU institutions, the governments of the Member States, the various segments of the fishing, processing and retail industry, NGOs and other concerned parties to present their proposals on what the EU should do during the discussion to be launched by the Commission with its upcoming communication on IUU fishing;

18. Considers that the Commission should include the following actions in its proposal to be adopted in EU law:

— all fishing vessels and fish transport vessels registered in the EU or flying the flags of third countries and wishing to enter an EU port must be readily identifiable by means of the markings included in the FAO's Standard Specifications for the Marking and Identification of Fishing Vessels;

— a Community register of vessels engaging in IUU fishing must be created which would include vessels on RFMO blacklists; such a register will facilitate the swift exchange of information among the Member States and make it possible to monitor vessels taking account of possible re-flagging;

— common minimum penalties for serious infringements must be applicable in all Member States, and must be sufficiently dissuasive; — Council Regulation (EEC) No 2847/93 of 12 October 1993 establishing a control system applicable to the common fisheries policy [1] and Council Regulation (EC) No 104/2000 of 17 December 1999 on the common organisation of the markets in fishery and aquaculture products [2] must be strengthened in such a way as to provide for fish to be fully traceable from the time it is brought aboard a fishing vessel until it reaches its final customer;

— all black lists of fishing vessels and fish transport vessels, including their owners or operators, adopted by RFMOs must be published and incorporated directly into Community law; non-EU vessels on those lists must be prohibited from entry into Community ports for any purpose, except in cases of force majeure or for humanitarian reasons; all EU-flagged vessels must be prohibited from providing support (fuel, supplies, transhipment, etc.) to those vessels while at sea;

Thursday 15 February 2007

— the legal origin of fish must be demonstrated before it is allowed to be offloaded in EU ports or imported into the EU; such proof must include, for both landings from fishing vessels and transshipments:

  — in the case of fish products from waters regulated by an RFMO, documents establishing that the fish products to be landed have been caught in accordance with the rules of that RFMO and that the quotas allocated to the contracting party under whose flag the vessel is sailing have been respected;

  — in the case of fish products caught in the exclusive economic zones of third countries, documentation establishing that the vessel is authorised to fish or is in possession of a fishing licence for those waters and for the species to be landed;

— Member States should discourage the transfer of vessels from their national registry if they are to be re-flagged under the flag of a country that has been identified by an RFMO as a country whose vessels have been fishing in a manner that diminishes the effectiveness of the conservation measures adopted by that RFMO;

— vessels and producers in third countries that are allowed to export fish or fishery products to the EU, as included on lists drawn up by the third country and published by the Commission's Directorate-General for Health and Consumer Protection, must be cross-checked with black lists of vessels drawn up by RFMOs or other third countries; the Commission should use all possible means to ensure that vessels on such black lists are not allowed to export fish or fishery products to the EU; to that end, consideration could be given to an amendment to Regulation (EC) No 854/2004 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2004 laying down specific rules for the organisation of official controls on products of animal origin intended for human consumption [1];

19. Welcomes the establishment of the new control agency and is confident that the agency will play an important role in the fight against IUU fishing; calls upon the Commission to consider the idea of the establishment of an EU coastguard;

20. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to prevent fishing in Community waters and entry to Community ports by vessels which are involved in IUU fishing in accordance with the rules in force and to prohibit the importing of fish from those vessels; calls, likewise, on the Member States not to allow this type of vessel to be flagged under their flag, and to invite importers, transporters and other sectors concerned not to tranship or deal with fish caught by those vessels;

21. Urges the Commission to ensure that any natural or legal persons guilty of IUU fishing in accordance with the rules in force do not receive any type of aid or subsidy from Community funds for any branch of their activities, and to ask the Member States to take similar action with regard to their respective national aid;

22. Calls on the Commission to carry out and present a study on tariffs and rules of origin, containing an examination of the ways in which these tools may be used in order to encourage third countries to ensure that their vessels abide by relevant international management measures;

23. Calls on the Commission to carry out and submit a study on compliance with Community labour, health and safety legislation and on respect for the social rights of workers on that type of vessel, and on their living and working conditions on board;

24. Calls on the Commission to use its considerable influence in RFMOs to encourage them to establish lists of vessels that are authorised to fish (white lists) and of vessels that have been caught fishing illegally (black lists); such lists must be drawn up in a transparent and coherent manner in accordance with clear criteria; also calls on the Commission to encourage RFMOs to identify countries which do not control the activities of vessels flying their flag and to use those lists as tools to allow the acceptance or rejection of fish;

25. Urges the Commission to continue giving maximum priority to cooperation with RFMOs such as the North-East Atlantic Fisheries Commission, the North-West Atlantic Fisheries Organisation and the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources which, with their initiatives designed to combat illegal fishing, have proved to be the most suitable instruments for ensuring good governance on the high seas;

26. Urges the Commission and the Council to strengthen the resources allocated to the fight against corruption and organised crime at all levels;

27. Is convinced that the keys to reducing and eliminating IUU fishing are full traceability all along the chain of custody, transparency of decisions, cooperation within the EU and the wider international community and, most importantly, a demonstration of political will by all parties; reiterates that, unless much more is done, fish stocks will continue to be depleted and fishing communities in the EU and elsewhere will suffer even greater hardship;

28. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the Committee on Fisheries of the FAO and the secretariats of the RFMOs to which the EU belongs.

Country Strategy Papers — Malaysia, Brazil and Pakistan

European Parliament resolution on the draft Commission decisions establishing Country Strategy Papers and Indicative Programmes for Malaysia, Brazil and Pakistan

The European Parliament,

— having regard to Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 18 December 2006 establishing a financing instrument for development cooperation, ([1])

— having regard to the draft Commission decisions establishing Country Strategy Papers and Indicative Programmes for Malaysia, Brazil and Pakistan (CMT-2007-0001, CMT-2006-3525 and CMT-2006-3021), — having regard to the opinions delivered on 25 January 2007 by the committee referred to in Article 35 (1) of the above regulation (hereinafter referred to as 'the Development Cooperation Instrument (DCI) management committee'),

— having regard to Article 8 of Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission, ([2])

— having regard to Rule 81 of its Rules of Procedure,

A. whereas, on 25 January 2007, the DCI management committee voted in favour of the draft Commission decisions establishing Country Strategy Papers and Indicative Programmes for Malaysia, Brazil and Pakistan (CMT-2007-0001, CMT-2006-3525, CMT-2006-3021),

B. whereas, pursuant to Article 7(3) of Decision 1999/468/EC and point 1 of the Agreement between the European Parliament and the Commission on procedures for implementing Council Decision 1999/468/EC, ([3]) the European Parliament received the draft implementing measures submitted to the DCI management committee and the results of voting,

([2]) OJ L 184, 17.7.1999, p. 23. Decision as amended by Decision 2006/512/EC (OJ L 200, 22.7.2006, p. 11).
([3]) OJ L 256, 10.10.2000, p. 19.

Thursday 15 February 2007

C. whereas Article 2(1) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulates that 'the primary and overarching objective of cooperation under this Regulation shall be the eradication of poverty in partner countries and regions in the context of sustainable development',

D. whereas Article 2(4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulates that 'measures referred to in Article 1 (1)[[1]] shall be designed so as to fulfil the criteria for Official Development Assistance (ODA) established by the [Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development] (OECD/DAC)',

E. whereas, in its 'Reporting Directives for the Creditor Reporting System' (DCD/DAC(2002)21), the OECD/DAC defines ODA as financial flows to countries on the DAC list of ODA recipients for which, inter alia, 'each transaction is administered with the promotion of the economic development and welfare of developing countries as its main objective',

F. whereas paragraphs 3 and 8 of Article 19 of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 stipulate respectively that 'strategy papers shall, in principle, be based on a dialogue with the partner country or region which involves civil society and regional and local authorities' and that 'the Commission and the Member States shall consult each other, as well as other donors and development actors including representatives of civil society and regional and local authorities, at an early stage of the programming process in order to promote complementarity among their cooperation activities',

1. Takes the view that in most draft Strategy Papers and draft Indicative Programmes the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) are not clearly presented as a main priority; considers that this is not in compliance with Article 2(1) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 as the pursuit of the MDGs is established there as one of the overarching principles of cooperation under the DCI;

Malaysia

2. Takes the view that, in its draft Strategy Paper and draft National Indicative Programme 2007-2010 for Malaysia, the Commission exceeds its implementing powers laid down in the basic act by selecting as the only focal sector (for which 100 % of the funds are earmarked) 'EU-Malaysia Policy Dialogue Facility on Trade and Investment', 'the overall objective of which is to facilitate trade and investment relations between the EU and Malaysia' and by including two specific objectives for the actions, namely 'to increase EU market knowledge for the Malaysian business community and vice versa' and 'to raise … EU visibility in Malaysia through joint initiatives'; considers that these objectives are not in compliance with Article 2(1) and (4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006, in that the primary objective of the Strategy Paper is not the eradication of poverty and in that the stated objectives do not fulfil the criteria for ODA established by the OECD/DAC;

Brazil

3. Takes the view that in its draft Strategy Paper and draft National Indicative Programme 2007-2010 for Brazil the Commission exceeds its implementing powers laid down in the basic act by earmarking 70 % of the National Indicative Programme for Priority I 'Enhancing Bilateral Relations', which has as specific objectives: '(i) [to] improve the sectoral dialogues between the EU and Brazil on themes of mutual interest; (ii) [to] expand cooperation and exchanges between relevant European and Brazilian institutions and civil society organisations; (iii) [to] strengthen links between EU and Brazilian academia; (iv) [to] enhance mutual awareness between EU and Brazilian institutions and societies', and under which a facility 'to promote and support sectoral dialogues on themes of common interest' will be financed, as well as the establishment of a European Studies Institute, with the main purpose of 'raising the EU's profile' and 'strengthening higher education links'; considers that these objectives are not in compliance with Article 2(1) and (4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006, in that the primary objective of the Strategy Paper is not the eradication of poverty and in that the stated objectives do not fulfil the criteria for ODA established by the OECD/DAC;

Pakistan

4. Takes the view that in its draft Strategy Paper and draft National Indicative Programme 2007-2010 for Pakistan the Commission exceeds its implementing powers laid down in the basic act by including in Non-focal area 3 of the National Indicative Programme 'Anti-money laundering' [1] activities with the overall objective of 'contributing to the efforts of the Pakistani authorities to implement UNSCR 1373'; [2] considers that this objective is not in compliance with Article 2(4) of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006 in that it does not fulfil the criteria for ODA established by the OECD/DAC;

5. Calls on the Commission to withdraw or amend its draft decisions establishing Country Strategy Papers and Indicative Programmes for Malaysia, Brazil and Pakistan, and to submit to the DCI management committee new draft decisions fully respecting the provisions of Regulation (EC) No 1905/2006;

6. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission, and the parliaments and governments of the Member States.

— having regard to the Commission's working documents on 'Wine — Common Market Organisation' and 'Wine: Economy of the Sector' of February 2006 ([1]),

— having regard to the conclusions of the seminar 'Challenges and Opportunities for European Wines' organised by the Commission on 16 February 2006 ([2]),

— having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development and the opinions of the Committee on International Trade and the Committee on Regional Development (A6-0016/2007),

A. whereas wine-growing is a key element of the European multifunctional agricultural model, is practised in more than 1,6 million holdings covering 3,4 million hectares and accounts for 5,4 % of the value of EU agricultural production, but receives only 2,5 % of European Agricultural Guarantee Fund spending; whereas, in principle, wine-growing has a positive effect on the environment, mainly by protecting soil from erosion, but also because it generally involves the extensive use of natural resources,

B. whereas European wine-growing is an important export sector accounting for 60 % of world production,

C. whereas the vitality of this sector in terms of exports is based on a globally recognised tradition of quality,

D. whereas the EU is the world's first producer, first consumer and first exporter of wine,

E. whereas important developments in the common agricultural policy (CAP) and in international agreements concluded and negotiations conducted by the EU, chiefly within the framework of the World Trade Organisation (WTO), which have taken place since the last radical reform of the common market organisation (CMO) in wine based on Regulation (EC) No 1493/1999, the situation of the market in this sector and experience in applying that regulation all mean that an adjustment to the new circumstances is necessary, and no further concessions can be asked of the EU,

F. whereas the reform of the wine sector must ensure a secure future for the CMO in wine and stability for wine-growers, and it is necessary to ensure that the reform is not called into question once more during the Doha round negotiations, in particular as regards internal support,

G. whereas the EU wine sector demands a firm political assertion by the EU in order to promote the place of wines and the wine sector in our society by the formulation through the CMO in this sector of a genuine European wine policy,

H. whereas the Commission must ensure that the reform of the sector focuses on developing a genuine Community wine policy that will help to improve production, processing and above all marketing structures in the EU, developing new and expanding markets and consolidating traditional ones,

I. whereas the abovementioned Commission Communication recognises the need for a specific CMO in wine and proposes a profound reform of the present CMO,

([1]) http://ec.europa.eu/agriculture/capreform/wine/index_en.htm
([2]) http://ec.europa.eu/agriculture/capreform/wine/sem_concl_en.pdf
([3]) http://europa.eu.int/griculture/eval/reports/wine/index_en.htm

J. whereas, on the basis of the abovementioned Commission Communication and the accompanying studies and documents, an integrated proposal for the reform of the CMO in wine may be drawn up which will make use of elements contained in the alternative scenarios studied by the Commission, without, however, being identical to any one of these scenarios, and that therefore the option of a thorough reform of the CMO in wine with fundamental changes to the measures proposed should be viewed as suitable to achieve the objectives sought,

K. whereas the main objective of the reform of the wine sector should be to make the European wine sector more dynamic and competitive without losing its market share in international markets, with due regard to the interests of European wine producers and consumers, the European wine-growing tradition and the quality and authenticity of European wines,

L. whereas market stabilisation cannot be achieved through controlling quantities and political interference in production,

M. whereas the situation in the wine sector calls for fair and ambitious reform, which must ensure, by radical adjustment of the CMO in wine, that European wine-growing has a real future, without damaging production potential,

N. whereas this ambitious reform must provide sufficient resources that will cover both the financing of the adjustments required for the modernisation of the CMO in wine and any possible social consequences,

O. bearing in mind that the scenario of a 'profound reform' of the CMO in wine chosen by the Commission is open to criticism, in particular on the following grounds:

(i) the Commission's basic analysis is wrong: the fall in internal consumption is overestimated (see the data of the International Organisation of Vine and Wine (OIV)) and is considered a major cause of the difficulties facing the industry; the recommended solutions, particularly mass grubbing-up, are inappropriate and do not respond to the main challenge facing the industry, which is competitiveness; one of the solutions for getting the European wine-growing industry out of the difficulties it is going through is an upturn in demand by means of the conquest of European and world markets;

(ii) the massive, indiscriminate grubbing-up plan that it recommends represents an unjustified attack on the European wine-growing heritage, especially in the most vulnerable areas, and is an inappropriate way of preventing European overproduction and strengthening the sector's competitiveness in an expanding world market;

(iii) total liberalisation of potential is dangerous because it could harm efforts to restore the balance between supply and demand and lead to a relocation of wine-growing; the real issue, which is better circulation of planting rights within Member States, has not been tackled;

(iv) essentially the Commission's proposals seek gradually to water down the measures to regulate the market and support wine-growers, by transferring funds from the first to the second pillar of the CAP, namely to rural development;

(v) European citizens are largely critical of the development of the sector, the way the regime is being managed and the commercial possibilities of European wines, while on the contrary the position of imported 'New World' wines on the market is largely strengthened;

(vi) no adequate measures are proposed with respect to the need to improve consumer information on wine quality of wine and the beneficial effects of wine on health when taken in reasonable quantities;

(vii) the Commission is envisaging a restructuring of European wine-growing that would lead to a concentration of production in the hands of several large wine-growing holdings and standardisation of the wines produced, which would thus endanger the diversity of European wines and the economic, social and cultural wealth of a number of European regions;

P. whereas, in response to the aggressive commercial policy of the 'New World', the CMO in wine needs to evolve in order to foster greater competitiveness in the Community wine sector and help the sector to adjust to changes in the world market without becoming a 'safety valve' for the world market;

Q. whereas the reform of the CMO in the European wine sector is a unique opportunity to rebuild the competitiveness of that sector within an increasingly competitive international context;

R. whereas the review of the CMO in wine must seek to stabilise wine-growing regions and the sector as a whole, to regulate supply and demand in the most effective and integrated manner in line with the European wine-growing tradition and the quality and authenticity of European wines, convince consumers in Europe and elsewhere of the quality advantage of European wines and show that this is achieved by integrated and transparent Community legislation which has taken into account cultural considerations;

S. whereas the Community wine sector has a number of specific features in terms of growing methods and production and marketing structures which set it apart from other agricultural sectors; whereas the decoupled single payments system should therefore not be applied in this sector;

T. whereas only systematic information and promotion measures can make the wine sector more competitive, so as to be able to regain market share within the Community and conquer other markets in emerging countries; whereas an ad hoc promotion fund managed by professional and interprofessional organisations, associations for the protection of individual products or public regional development agencies should be set up to provide funding for such promotional activities;

General principles of the reform

1. Considers it indispensable to promote a reform of the CMO in wine based on the following essential principles:

(a) a simplification and harmonisation of legislative measures, based on recognition of the specific characteristics of the sector;

(b) reinforcing and improving the competitiveness of the European wine sector within an increasingly competitive international context;

(c) the maintenance of the CMO in wine and of the Community budget allocated to it under the first CAP pillar;

(d) the compatibility of the wine sector with CAP policies for a viable reform of the CMO in wine;

(e) a territorial approach that takes account of natural resources by ensuring the wine-growing sector's compliance with cross-compliance rules, and sound agricultural cultivation practices, i.e. introducing incentives which help it turn towards production methods which contribute to more and better ways of controlling production and protection of the environment with the ultimate objective of maintaining decent income levels for wine growers and improving product quality;

(f) the preservation of common rules within the CMO in wine with the addition of an extensive programme of structural support aimed at strengthening the competitiveness and sustainability of the European wine growing sector;

(g) subsidiarity in implementing the new regime, based on the realisation of national programmes of support and development for the wine sector, which must include Community policies and measures eligible for CMO appropriations in the wine sector, i.e. under the first pillar of the CAP;

(h) the gradual realisation of the new CMO in wine in two stages enabling an assessment to be made of the results following the first stage — and any possible adjustments of Community policies selected by the Member States and included in the national support and development programmes for the wine sector, without however any changes being made to the allocation of the CMO in wine budget appropriations between the Member States;

(i) an increase in the role and the co-responsibility of producer organisations and other professional organisations in the sector and the adjustment of the vineyard register;

(j) specific promotion campaigns to regain market share and open up new markets within and outside the EU, and consumer information campaigns to promote responsible and moderate consumption of wine in Europe;

2. Emphasises that the reform must also take into account:

(a) the enlargement of the EU to include Bulgaria and Romania, two countries with significant wine production sectors, which will have to adapt both to the new market and intervention measures, and to the controls and monitoring of the new regime;

(b) the increasingly competitive international context in terms of both production and consumption;

(c) the steadily developing market in China which is actively embarking on wine production, and the increase in production of the other new wine-producing countries, such as Australia, New Zealand, the USA, Canada and South Africa;

(d) the impact of the EU's trade agreements;

(e) international negotiations in the WTO in the context of the Doha Round, which should under no circumstances call into question the principles of the reform, which should be incorporated in the commitments under this Round, especially as regards internal support;

(f) the prospects of the CAP, in particular future funding, in respect of which discussions will begin in 2009;

Deregulation of the CMO in wine — single Community policy

3. Believes that the reform of the CMO in wine should set objectives and make policies, market balance measures, structural interventions and rules governing the labelling and classification of wines more consistent by defining CMO in wine objectives and the policies that may help achieve them; considers that this overall consistency must, however, be based on the principle of subsidiarity so as to respect national and regional particularities and signal that the EU will endeavour, through coordinated policies, to conquer markets and win the confidence of consumers;

4. Considers that the transfer of funds from the first to the second pillar of the CAP which implies co-funding through the agricultural development programmes is illogical and should be rejected in favour of allowing the national financial frameworks to be provided with financial resources and ensuring a viable development for the sector through the national financial framework measures notified by the Commission;

5. Recalls that the distribution of Community funds in other agricultural sectors reformed within the framework of the new CAP by creating 'national envelopes' took place by adopting an approach based on the full or partial decoupling of Community aid; stresses that the new CMO in wine must be based on the implementation of uniform measures, common to all Member States, and on measures within the scope of subsidiarity that make it possible to take account of the sector's specific needs in all Member States and production regions; adds that in each Member State the sector (production, trade, inter-trade bodies, production regions, etc.), in cooperation with the regional and national administration, should set out, by means of a series of programmes, how to achieve the aim of adapting production to the market by means of one or more of the measures among those defined in the context of the national envelopes; considers that the measures coming within the scope of subsidiarity must be defined and supervised at European level, to prevent distortions of competition, and must be entirely financed by the Community budget;

Reform in two phases (2008-2011 and 2012-2015)

6. Takes the view that if it is to attain its objectives, the reform must be phased in two stages: in the first phase (2008-2011) the objective must be to balance, reorganise and increase the transparency of the market, strengthen productive bodies and wine-growing regions, by gradually adopting measures — which will be essentially of a uniform Community nature — and prepare the European wine sector for a more aggressive opening of the markets, gradually moving the resources recovered from distillation over to support for competitiveness and development;

7. Points out that, in view of the probable scale of the consequences of the reform, its complexity and the need for a gradual approach in its implementation, a mid-term review, accompanied by an intermediate phase, following the first phase, is essential, to assess the first impact and perhaps readjust all the resources already laid out or not yet expended taking account of the original aims;

8. Stresses that, because the present situation calls for immediate measures to resolve the problems of the European wine-growing sector, the policies designed to support the reform — either with the current Community budget or, where necessary, with an increase therein — should be implemented from the outset, to an increasing extent in the case of some, such as the promotion of marketing and improving quality, but to a decreasing extent in the case of others, such as market intervention mechanisms;

Profound reform of the CMO in wine — compatibility with the new CAP

9. Emphasises that, in principle, wine-growing has a positive effect on the environment, mainly by protecting soil from erosion, but also because it generally involves the extensive use of natural resources; considers that, for these reasons, and in order to bring the regime in line with the spirit of the new CAP, environmentally friendly basic agricultural cultivation practices can be supported and funded from the CMO in wine budget at Community level;

Controls on production to monitor quality, environmental impact and market equilibrium

10. Points out that laying down a framework for the method of producing table wines will also help clarify their terms of marketing and differentiate them from wines with geographical indications which are subject to much stricter conditions of production and are protected at local and regional level;

11. Considers indispensable the compulsory compliance of wine-growers with agricultural cultivation practices and environmental, plant health and other standards so as to contribute to environmental protection, controls on primary production, limiting potential yield, combating surpluses and improving the quality of wines, thereby reducing the volumes which are distilled;

Distillation — mechanism for crisis management and market stabilisation, environmental protection and quality enhancement

12. Stresses that the Commission's proposals to maintain the distillation or withdrawal of by-products without funding do not make sense, since distillation concerns wine producers, but is carried out by distillers, which in effect makes the measure inoperative; stresses also that the Commission proposal for the controlled withdrawal of wine by-products will create serious environmental problems in major wine-producing regions; notes that the proposal for abolishing dual-purpose distillation will lead to the vinification of large volumes, thereby significantly disrupting the regional and European market and creating problems within regions; points out that, as the Commission proposal suggests, a failure to absorb existing surpluses will create shock waves which will significantly affect the market and wine-growers' incomes;

13. Emphasises that distillation of wine was originally introduced as an urgency measure only, but has become the most costly and disputable part of the CMO in wine; therefore distillation schemes should be phased out over a reasonable transition period which allows wine producers to consolidate or move towards sustainable production methods and quality wine production; points out that, during this transition period, wine producers having taken advantage of distillation should be enabled to establish themselves on quality markets, using grubbing-up schemes, voluntary supply management and rural development measures for better marketing of the quality wines and diversification;

14. Is opposed to the immediate abolition of the distillation mechanism and other market support measures because, although there is obviously room for improvement in the planning and use of such measures, it does not seem appropriate to abolish them without a transitional period in order to take advantage of the benefits offered by some of those measures; stresses that, during the transitional period, there should be a gradual reduction in the amounts allocated to market intervention mechanisms at the same time as including measures designed to improve quality, to promote and to market European wines;

15. Takes the view that aid for the distillation of wine by-products should be continued in order to maintain the quality of European wines and obviate any damage to the environment caused by the withdrawal of such products; believes, furthermore, that continued support should be provided for potable alcohol distillation, given that this is the only form of distillation for which there is a genuine market outlet;

16. Considers that the distillation of by-products must be reviewed as regards implementation, in order to make it less costly at Community level, in particular by permitting the sale of some of the alcohol to other outlets, such as potable alcohol;

17. Considers it necessary, during the initial phase of the reform, to convert the four present distillation measures into two:

(a) compulsory distillation, which will act as a safety net and allow the gradual reorganisation of the market, serving environmental and quality objectives;

(b) voluntary distillation of wine alcohol which will allow the adaptation of the sector for wine alcohol used for incorporation into certain wine products (liqueur wines, brandies) or in the wine balance;

18. Considers it necessary to create a new crisis management mechanism to be used in the event of specific, serious and real situations of emergency that should be identified in accordance with objective criteria defined beforehand at Community level;

19. Believes that the public storage of alcohol should be abolished and that the sale of alcohol obtained through crisis distillation should be replaced by the immediate organisation of direct sales through invitations to tender;

Unrestricted grubbing-up — grubbing-up subject to criteria

20. Stresses that the above Commission communication emphasises grubbing-up as a measure to reduce production and the workforce in the sector instead of promoting production control through measures to regulate supply and demand; considers that the consequence of this policy will be that the desired strengthening of the competitiveness of the wine-growing sector will not be achieved; asserts that enhanced subsidiarity may not be used as an alibi for reckless deregulation which will lead to unfair competition even within the borders of the EU;

21. Considers that the issue of permanent abandonment of wine-growing must not be the centrepiece of the reform of the CMO in wine, but that it should instead be one of the parameters of structural interventions financed by the CMO in wine budget through national financial frameworks, aimed at reviving wine-growing potential and gradually adapting the wine sector to market requirements;

22. Considers that the initiative of permanent abandonment must lie with the producer, provided that Member States are able to approve or reject permanent abandonment using environmental, social, national and/or regional criteria that are compatible with conditions defined beforehand at Community level; considers it essential to make provision for each Member State or each region to set a permissible upper limit for grubbing-up for each region and that they should have the opportunity to select which categories of wine will take priority in the grubbing-up programme;

23. Considers that the objective Community criteria restricting the possibility of permanent abandonment may include the following: (a) vineyards in mountainous, coastal and island regions mainly producing wines with geographical indications; (b) vineyards on slopes where soil erosion and the loss of biodiversity must be prevented or in traditional regions of historical importance; (c) vineyards producing wines with a commercial outlet; (d) vineyards where excessive reduction would threaten the existence of a whole terroir or a registered designation of origin; (e) vineyards which received structural aid under Community programmes; (f) cases where the abandonment of wine growing creates environmental risks;

24. Considers that objective Community criteria which are in line with a more general restructuring of the productive and human potential in the countryside and which may facilitate the choice of permanent abandonment include the following indicative cases: (a) vineyards which now have a very low yield and have no prospect of recovering their potential; (b) cases in which wine growers are included in the early retirement scheme; (c) vineyards unsuited to the production of quality wines or which have commercial opportunities;

25. Recommends that, in addition to the permanent abandonment scheme, temporary grubbing-up could be introduced with each Member State deciding whether to introduce it; considers that temporary grubbing-up would allow the wine grower to receive some financial support, as the planting rights would be consolidated for several years, at the end of which the wine grower could replant, dispose of his planting rights or apply for conversion to permanent grubbing-up if the scheme is opened by the relevant Member State;

26. Maintains that grubbed-up areas for which flat-rate compensation is to be paid must be able to be added to the areas eligible for the award of rights to uniform decoupled aid; believes that, when fixing the grubbing-up premiums and the single payment, the minimum environmental requirements should be considered in order to avoid land degradation; considers that Member States should be able to provide wine growers in the grubbing-up programme with additional support from the resources of the support and development programmes for the wine sector) or by applying the fluctuation mechanism and/or through the redivision of the national reserve of single-payment rights so that producer support can reach the level of the national or regional direct decoupled payment; considers that no compensation can be paid for the grubbing-up of illegal plantations;

Ban on new plantings — gradual liberalisation of new plantings

27. Considers that it is appropriate to proceed in a prudent and transparent manner as regards the progressive reattribution of new planting rights, in order to avoid unverifiable development in the EU's wine-growing potential having negative effects on the market: considers that the Member States must submit programmes which indicate the targeted level of plantation, an assessment of the developments in the granting of rights, the varieties concerned in each region and the time-table for application; stresses that the new plantation rights should primarily be given to young farmers, producers of quality wines and undertakings which have been integrated into the programmes for improvement of quality and marketing and which must be integrated into the readjusted wine register; considers that each Member State, in cooperation with the regions, sectoral organisations and producer groups must, with the launching of the grant of new planting rights, assess the grubbing-up programme and the way it has developed; considers that, before granting new planting rights, it will be necessary to evaluate the situation of plantings which have not been legalised or are illegal;

28. Emphasises that, regarding areas producing wines with geographical indications it may be necessary for decisions regarding liberalisation to be taken by the competent regional authorities, given the need to protect the value of investments by wine growers in such areas, to prevent the geographical indication in question from being devalued and to ensure continued product quality control;

29. Considers that new plantings may not be considered as actions eligible for funding such as restructuring, cultivation practices, cross-compliance and crisis management, but that they may on the other hand be considered, inter alia, as collective actions of producers organisations and/or the sectoral organisations pursuing policies for promotion, consumer information, market research and compensation for natural disasters which are included in the national support and development programmes for the wine sector;

Vineyard register — tool for effective control and management of the CMO in the wine sector

30. Recommends that Member States keep a register of the vineyards indicating varietals planted and number of vines in each unit (pursuant to Regulation (EEC) No 2392/86) [1];

31. Emphasises that the vineyard register is the basic tool for controlling compliance with production limits;

Enrichment

32. Is aware that enrichment has a direct impact on production levels, as it may entail an increase in the quantity produced per hectare; stresses, nevertheless, that the issue of maintaining or abolishing aid for concentrated grape must or rectified concentrated must is closely and inseparably linked to the abolition or maintaining of enrichment with sucrose, bearing in mind also the fall in sugar prices resulting from the reform of the CMO in sugar, the various oenological traditions of the Member States, the advisability and technical feasibility of confining the use of such practices to certain precise maximum quantities, as well as possible alternative uses of must that would have a positive impact on reducing wine surpluses;

33. Considers that approval for enrichment with sugar may be linked by Member States to conditions such as checks on measures to raise quality (e.g. compliance with yield ceilings) and to climatic conditions;

34. Believes that enrichment has to be allowed in every wine growing region, where it was traditionally used and where no structural surpluses exist; believes that the Commission's proposal on reducing the maximum level of enrichment is not justified and that the present rules have to remain in force;

35. Takes the view that the use of sugar to enrich wine should not be banned because to do so would be to discriminate against Member States located in parts of the EU where it is more difficult to grow wine owing to a less favourable climate;

36. Emphasises the need to provide for aid for concentrated grape must or rectified concentrated used for enrichment, since it is necessary to preserve an historical oenological practice;

37. Stresses the need to maintain aid for must used to produce grape juice, the aim being to maintain a product used for a purpose other than wine production that is important for the sector and helps to maintain market equilibrium;

38. Considers that, in the event of enrichment by the addition of concentrated must, the must should come from the same production area;

39. Points out that the study linking enrichment using sugar with over-production of wine in the EU dates back to 1991, does not reflect current market conditions and in any case did not provide meaningful data;

Public intervention concerning alcohol — private storage of wine and must

40. Considers that the possibility should be examined of maintaining the private storage of wine and must, at least during the first phase of the reform (2008-2011), taking into account the proposed restrictions on distillation and the abolition of public storage;

Professional and sectoral organisations

41. Stresses that sectoral organisations may take initiatives, provided that a Community authorisation framework is established, which could cover, for example: the fuller exploitation of the production potential, consumer information concerning moderate wine consumption, the conduct of the research necessary to channel production to products which are better geared to domestic and export market requirements, indispensable commercial investments, the search for new means of restricting the use of plant protection substances, the switch towards organic farming, etc.;

42. Calls on the Commission, in its proposal, to demonstrate a determination to reform the wine-making sector, in particular by means of an effective and concrete Community policy to promote European wine, by making provision for appropriate financial commitments;

43. Considers it appropriate to set up a specific fund for the promotion of European wines via professional, sectoral and consumer protection organisations and public agencies for regional development;

44. Believes that the Commission should lay down some activity guidelines for the promotion of European wines, based on moderate and responsible wine consumption and accompanied by the requisite funding;

Labelling and promotion of European wine

45. Takes the view that the EU must seek to achieve the consolidation of market share, recognition and protection of wines with a specific geographical origin at a worldwide level; points out that these wines will be more easily recognised if labelling is simplified;

46. Considers that to produce a quality wine by traditional methods and to label it specifically, without at the same time promoting it properly on the world market, is insufficient to ensure that demand is maintained or possibly increased; considers it essential to this end to devise specific, properly financed measures aimed at enhancing the ability to communicate the quality of European wine to the world market;

47. Considers, in view of the recent redefinition of the provisions concerning labelling in Regulations (EC) No 1991/2004 ([1]) and (EC) No 1427/2004 ([2]), that an assessment should be made of the effects of the changes introduced before any further change is made;

48. Stresses that oenological practices which are not allowed in the EU must clearly be labelled on imported beverages which refer to the image of wine;

49. Believes the labelling of EU wines to be essential; considers, however, that it should not be more complicated that the labelling of wines from third countries;

50. Calls for harmonisation of the Member States' rules concerning the language to be used on labels, in order to ensure that operators are not obliged to translate certain information from one language into another in cases where the term used in the target country is very similar and hence there is no risk of creating confusion amongst consumers;

A proactive and ambitious EU external trade policy for wines as a pillar of the CMO in wine

51. Points out that the difficulties facing the wine sector arising mainly from increasing wine imports from third countries and increasing numbers of wine stocks which exceed one year's production and have little prospect of being disposed of, exert a downward pressure on prices and producers' incomes and need to be tackled by the establishment of a set of basic priorities not taken into account in the abovementioned Commission communication, including, for example, encouraging moderate and responsible consumption, reallocating budgetary resources with a view to reaching new consumers and winning new markets or even recapturing markets, promoting quality and boosting research;

52. Calls on the Commission to make all possible efforts in order to strengthen the protection of geographical indications, by increasing the requirements and creating a common framework for them at European level as well as at biregional and multilateral level, particularly within the WTO and the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS Agreement) for the setting up of a multilateral register of wines and spirits, and to combat counterfeiting and any form of misuse of European geographical indications and traditional denominations in third countries;

([1]) Commission Regulation (EC) No 1991/2004 of 19 November 2004 amending Regulation (EC) No 753/2002 laying down certain rules for applying Council Regulation (EC) No 1493/1999 as regards the description, designation, presentation and protection of certain wine sector products (OJ L 344, 20.11.2004, p. 9).

([2]) Commission Regulation (EC) No 1427/2004 of 9 August 2004 amending Regulation (EC) No 1622/2000 laying down certain detailed rules for implementing Regulation (EC) No 1493/1999 on the common organisation of the market in wine and establishing a Community code of oenological practices and processes (OJ L 263, 10.8.2004, p. 3).

53. Considers it necessary to secure better protection of protected geographical indications and protected designations of origin within the framework of the WTO negotiations and bilateral agreements, as a major contribution to maintaining quality wine production linked to local areas and practices;

54. Stresses that, in order to enhance the sector's competitiveness on international markets, a proactive and ambitious external trade policy for European wines needs to be drawn up in close cooperation with organisations representing European operators, together with a redeployment of budgetary resources and appropriate means;

55. Stresses the need, as part of this external trade policy for European wines, to conclude bilateral agreements with third countries on the wine trade, on the basis of mutual recognition and protection of geographical indications;

56. Recalls that the EU has pledged to phase out its export subsidies by 2013; calls on the Commission to mitigate the consequences of reduced subsidies by improving the availability of resources for income diversification of wine producers and by introducing qualified market access for wine products, in so far as this is necessary to preserve equilibrium in the European market;

57. Calls for wine to be included in the WTO list of sensitive products;

58. Believes that owing to the existing particularities of the regime of geographical indications of wines, the possibility could be examined, during the first phase of the reform (2008-2011), of incorporating the provisions of Council Regulation (EC) No 510/2006 of 20 March 2006 on the protection of geographical indications and designations of origin for agricultural products and foodstuffs [1] subject to the necessary adjustments, in the new CMO for the wine sector; points out that during the second phase of the reform (2012-2015), once the gradual classification and uniform registration of wines has been achieved at Community and national level during the first phase, the advisability of incorporating the provisions of the future regulation on the new CMO for the wine sector relative to geographical indications in Regulation (EC) No 510/2006 should be examined;

59. Stresses the importance of non-trade concerns within the WTO framework; calls on the Commission to develop a labelling scheme for imported wine derived alcoholic drinks, which do not comply with the European oenological practices and therefore should not be labelled as wine;

60. Points out that lifting the ban on vinification of imported must poses one of the most significant risks as regards the adulteration of wine, the distortion of the market and a reduction in Community production, and that any agreement to this end must be prevented by the Commission within the framework of the WTO;

61. Considers that under Community law there should be a ban on the fermentation of imported musts and on the mixing thereof with Community musts, since such procedures are not consistent with other measures proposed by the Commission, such as grubbing-up and the withdrawal of funding relating to the use of concentrated must for the purpose of increasing alcoholic proof;

62. Emphasises that there is no obligation to negotiate within the WTO on the possibility of blending imported wines from third countries and blending them with Community wines, and opposes such a development, since it will create enormous problems as regards the origin, provenance and identification of products, and the degradation of wine produced in European countries;

63. Considers it essential that in order to protect the quality and the reputation of European wines, only wines and musts produced within the EU should be admissible for the purpose of making European wines;

International Organisation of Vine and Wine — bilateral trade agreements

64. Believes, at a time when the EU is conducting difficult negotiations in the WTO and concluding bilateral agreements aimed at safeguarding European food products, products with geographical indications, organic produce, etc., the Council should — subject to consultation of the European Parliament — be the body responsible for approving new oenological practices, because if this competence is transferred to the Commission the designation and classification of quality wines in the EU would be jeopardised; considers that such oenological practices should be entered on a positive Community list;

65. Calls on the Commission to use every possible means to prevent fraud and abuses of designations of geographical origin in third countries;

66. Considers that the CMO in wine must not be deprived of all financial means at European level through transfers to the second pillar of the CAP and the return to national competence of measures opening the way to distortions of competition and discrimination between production/marketing structures and between Member States;

67. Maintains that oenological practices must not cause confusion among consumers, adulterate quality or create unfair competition; stresses that hitherto authorised oenological practices cannot be automatically authorised and approved for use in the EU, even where wines are intended for export to regions where such practices are authorised;

68. Considers that bringing together all oenological practices under the International Organisation of Vine and Wine is a step in the right direction provided that those practices are assessed and established on the basis of scientific and technical studies, whilst guaranteeing food safety and public health;

Information and promotion of moderate responsible consumption of wine

69. Notes that there has been a steady drop in wine consumption in Europe, mainly in the traditional wine consuming countries, which is one of the causes of the structural surplus of wine; notes that in recent years exports of wine have stagnated, while imports have grown dynamically, making it vital that the European wine-growing sector becomes more competitive; asks the Commission to submit a report directly explaining the reasons for the fall in European wine exports in recent years and the dynamic growth in imports from third countries, specifying in particular the extent to which bilateral trading agreements with third countries have been implemented, the account taken of the legitimate trading interests of the EU and European producers and the appropriate use made of common trading policy mechanisms in response to these problems;

70. Points out that the sustainable development of the European wine sector requires the redeployment of substantial budgetary resources within the CMO in wine for the promotion of moderate responsible consumption of wines; considers that reinforcing the trend towards an increased moderate and responsible consumption of wines is a positive major contribution to the protection of European consumers and the public health; these measures must be developed by an effective partnership between the Community, the Member States, the regions and the wine sector itself, which has a major role to play;

71. Calls on the Commission to introduce a proactive trade policy to promote the quality of European wines and defend European wine-making processes;

72. Stresses that the Commission's priorities should also include stepping up promotion of wine products and efforts to win new consumers and markets, especially in connection with exports and the new emerging markets, through a proactive and ambitious external trade policy with appropriate resources;

73. Considers that it is essential to promote and provide funding for consumer information concerning the qualitative characteristics of wine produced in Europe in accordance with controlled traditional oenological practices, in order to protect consumers from imported products of dubious quality and to promote wine produced in Europe on the internal and world markets;

National envelopes — uniform Community policies based on support and development programmes for the wine sector

74. Stresses the need to maintain the Community budget and not to transfer funds from the first pillar to the second pillar of the CAP, which concerns rural development, since this might result in the dilution of resources at the expense of the wine sector; demands that measures eligible for funding be clearly specified, so as to guarantee that funds are in fact used for the wine sector;

75. Recommends, on the basis of the objectives of a viable and competitive reform of the CMO in wine, that a Community framework be laid down, which may be implemented at national/regional level, including in relation to means of funding which must come under the first pillar of the CAP, i.e. CMO in wine resources; believes that these policies may include: restructuring of vineyards, measures to improve recording and marketing structures, agricultural cultivation practices and environmental standards within the framework of quality management, crisis management mechanisms, research into the production and improved marketing of products, addressing natural disasters and promotion and information of consumers and grubbing-up, and, during a transitional phase, private storage, distillation measures and other valid market mechanisms;

76. Stresses that the reform of the CMO in wine should give priority to framing policies which will contribute to strengthening competitiveness and improving the quality of European wines; maintains that Community resources should be allocated to the national support and development programmes for the wine sector on the basis of common criteria so that there are no disparities between Member States or regions;

77. Stresses that, in selecting the method of allocating Community resources to each national support and development programme for the wine sector, account should be taken of the fact that market intervention measures — which have been used in totally different ways by Member States — absorb a significant portion of the resources of the current CMO in wine;

78. Considers that, based on statistical data of production and surface area of wine cultivation, in each Member State during a given period, for instance the period 2001-2005, the budget of the national envelopes may be allocated at the outset, so as to enable each Member State to use — within its appointed 'envelope' — whatever tools it considers appropriate within a regulatory framework established in advance at Community level in accordance with objective criteria, within which framework the measures laid down will provide the same support for all the Member States;

79. Considers, however, that a second valid solution might also be one based on the amounts used by each Member State during the current CMO in wine, or the drawing up of a formula and/or mixed criterion that takes into account historical data, the size of the vineyard and the quantities produced and marketed for each Member State, thereby ensuring a system of premiums that would meet the objectives of the reform;

80. Considers it indispensable, where a Member State considers supplementary aid for improving its structural interventions in the wine sector to be necessary, that it can also co-fund them from the second pillar of the CAP in the case of eligible actions; considers that these actions concern chiefly a combination of structural interventions and early retirement schemes and policies for supporting young men and women farmers;

81. Considers that new plantings may not be included in eligible funded actions;

82. Notes that any reform of the CMO in wine must protect and strengthen the competitiveness of European wine producers; stresses that innovative capacity and dynamism are vital aspects in this connection;

Thursday 15 February 2007

A. whereas international terrorism (including its ideology) now constitutes one of the greatest threats to security, peace, stability and the democratic values of the international community and in particular a direct threat to European citizens, EU Member States, democracy and the rule of law, values on which the European Union is founded,

B. conscious of the diverse nature of terrorism, of the organisations which practise it and of the States and non-state agents which sponsor it, finance it and practise it for their own ends; conscious also of the emerging and unpredictable nature of a phenomenon which presupposes an obvious sense of opportunity (particularly in the case of the terrorism practised by radical groups which claim to be defending Islam) and the need for the European Union to pursue a proactive (and not just a reactive) policy in order to combat it,

C. whereas Europe, from being mainly a platform for logistical support, has turned into a major target of planned attacks,

D. whereas, pursuant to the ESS, the fight against terrorism constitutes a priority for the European Union and a key element in its external action,

E. whereas the pursuit of security beyond the EU's borders should be guided by the principles of the human security doctrine, namely the primacy of human rights, the imperatives of multilateralism, a bottom-up approach based on knowledge of the local situation, a regional focus and the establishment of a clear and legitimate political authority,

F. whereas the European Union has its own strategy for combating terrorism which must be integrated in a multilateral strategy and be firmly based on the unconditional respect of human rights and of the principles underlying states governed by the rule of law, whereas terrorism constitutes precisely a direct attack on both, and whereas any action outside that framework constitutes a failure of democracy,

G. whereas terrorism is always criminal and unjustifiable, in any circumstance, wherever and by whomsoever it is practised, and whereas it may never be used in the pursuit of political objectives,

H. whereas the victims of terrorism are a moral reference point for our societies and for democracy and whereas the public authorities should listen to their voice and ensure that they are taken into account whenever decisions are taken with a view to combating those who made them unwilling protagonists,

I. whereas terrorist groups exploit extreme poverty, the failure to uphold human rights and constitutional government, collective frustration, the lack of access to training and social exclusion in pursuit of their capture and infiltration strategies,

J. whereas societies which suffer from high levels of political, social, economic, ethnic, religious and other discrimination and from a lack of democracy and human rights constitute an ideal breeding ground for terrorism,

K. whereas, in order for terrorism to be fought effectively, a detailed knowledge is required of the terrorist group which is being fought, of that group's ideology and of the social, political, economic and religious context from which it emerges and on which its perpetrators and supporters feed,

L. whereas specific action should be taken in order to combat each terrorist organisation, in view of the fact that each one has its own objectives, organisation and modus operandi, and whereas, in particular, specific action should be taken against the Al-Qaeda organisation,

M. whereas the threat of terrorism is not restricted to specific geographic zones and whereas terrorist organisations are to be found both within and outside the Union's borders and have provided ample proof of their ability to carry out attacks and acts of violence in any continent and against various countries simultaneously,

N. whereas the Member States individually and the European Union and its institutions have already been or may be direct targets of international terrorism,

O. whereas the painful experiences to date show that no Member State can on its own successfully face terrorism and whereas it is therefore of fundamental importance that there be, first, a common Union policy to combat terrorism, making use of all the instruments and resources at the disposal of states governed by the rule of law and of the Union itself, and, second, effective and democratically controlled international cooperation in the fight against international terrorism,

P. whereas essential requirements in an effective fight against terrorism are an enhancement of transatlantic cooperation and coordination and full implementation of the above-mentioned EU-US declarations on Combating Terrorism and on Enhancing Cooperation in the field of Non-Proliferation and the Fight Against Terrorism, and the EU-US declaration issued at the Vienna Summit,

Q. whereas the fight against international terrorism calls for a strong linkage between internal and external aspects of security and whereas the EU must aim for a holistic, coherent and cross-pillar approach to this challenge,

R. aware that the global dimension of terrorism also requires a global response, tackling terrorism in all its dimensions, including the security, political, economic social and cultural aspects,

S. whereas the European Union is founded on a set of values, as expressed, for instance, in the Copenhagen criteria, and whereas those values should be promoted all over the world as the only way to prevent terrorism in the long term,

T. aware that the external and internal dimensions of the fight against terrorism are interlinked and inseparable,

U. whereas prevention, and hence the need for exhaustive consideration of intelligence reports, are basic elements in the fight against terrorism, as evidenced by some of the attacks which have recurred,

V. whereas in order for the actions of the Union in the fight against terrorism to be effective, close cooperation and an enhanced exchange of information between the institutions of the Union, the Member States and their respective intelligence services, and the Union's specialised agencies (such as Europol and Eurojust) are vital,

W. whereas the EU Counter-Terrorism Coordinator has an essential role to play and whereas he must be given more powers and resources,

X. whereas the Union must develop a proactive, rather than merely reactive, prevention, protection and suppression policy to combat international terrorism effectively,

Y. whereas, in order to be effective, the fight against international terrorism and its ideology must be backed by real conviction and determination within the Union and the Member States and have the backing of an aware and well-informed public,

Z. whereas the Member States must not delay implementation of all commitments associated with the fight against terrorism, based on counter-terrorism cooperation both within the Union and at the international level,

AA. convinced that demonising any culture, civilisation or religion in the name of combating terrorism is a mistake which may have counter-productive effects,

AB. whereas Muslims are themselves among the victims of Islamist terrorism, which is linked in turn to inherent conflicts within the Muslim world and to struggles for power and natural resources, including oil,

Thursday 15 February 2007

Fundamental principles of the external dimension of the fight against international terrorism

1. Supports the need for a strategic objective of combating terrorism globally, respecting human rights, with the ultimate aim of achieving a more secure European Union, and allowing its citizens to enjoy a true area of freedom, security and justice; shares the view of the Council that, other forms of terrorism notwithstanding, the most serious threat to Europe at the moment is posed by violent radical groups claiming to defend Islam, such as the criminal Al-Qaeda network and the groups which are affiliated to it or are inspired by its ideology;

2. Emphasises the need for the European Union, its Member States and its partner countries to base their global counter-terrorism strategy on the fundamental principles which also serve to guide the actions of the United Nations, on a constructive and serious dialogue between peoples and nations, as well as between cultures, religions and civilisations, taking account of the respective perceptions and concerns, and on respect for international law;

3. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to ensure that certain groups of people from various diasporas living in Europe are not stigmatised, in particular by supporting policies to combat xenophobia and human rights violations against immigrant and refugee communities, as well as development aid projects undertaken by migrants or migrants' associations;

4. Expresses its regret at the failure of the UN World Summit in 2005 to reach an agreement on a comprehensive definition of terrorism, and stresses the need to arrive at a generally accepted definition of international terrorism; therefore calls on the Council to adopt a common position establishing a definition of terrorism on the basis of Council Framework Decision 2002/475/JHA of 13 June 2002 on combating terrorism [1] and taking into account the definition proposed by the former Secretary-General of the United Nations, Kofi Annan [2];

5. Stresses the urgent need fully and properly to implement all the political measures adopted at the highest political level in the European Union Counter-Terrorism Strategy, the Action Plan and the Strategy for Combating Radicalisation and Recruitment to Terrorism, so that the ambitious mechanisms and proposals set out in those documents result as soon as possible in specific and effective practical measures to combat terrorism;

6. Welcomes the adoption by the General Assembly of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and its annexed Plan of Action on 8 September 2006; stresses the need for terrorism in all its forms and manifestations to be combated by all available means, pursuant to the UN Charter as reflected in the Security Council's Resolution 1624 (2005); expresses concern at the delay in the adoption of the global convention on international terrorism; encourages the Institutions of the European Union and the various Member States to continue working unstintingly to achieve an international consensus permitting, on the one hand, the adoption of the global convention and, on the other, the effective implementation of the measures set out in the said Strategy and Plan of Action;

7. Regrets the fact that, despite evidence of the terrorist threat, some Member States have not yet signed and/or ratified some of the 17 United Nations universal instruments on combating terrorism; notes that as yet only two countries have ratified 13 conventions and 78 other countries have ratified or acceded to 12 of them; considers it particularly worrying, however, that 33 other countries have ratified or acceded to only 6 or fewer such international conventions;

8. Calls on those Member States of the European Union and their partners which have not already done so to adopt swiftly the national legislation necessary for the effective implementation of those conventions and to inform the relevant bodies of the United Nations thereof in good time;

9. Recommends that, in its external actions, the European Union should make use of appropriate means in order to encourage countries to become parties to all universal instruments against terrorism and to enact, as appropriate, the domestic legislation necessary to implement the provisions of those conventions and protocols, also benefiting from the UN's technical expertise;

[2] 'In addition to actions already proscribed by existing conventions, any action constitutes terrorism if it is intended to cause death or serious bodily harm to civilians or non-combatants with the purpose of intimidating a population or compelling a Government or an international organization to do or abstain from doing any act.' (definition as originally proposed by the High-level Panel on Threats, Challenges and Change in its report of 2 December 2004).

10. Emphasises that the European Union's external actions to combat international terrorism should in the first place be aimed at prevention, in order to ensure that radical or extremist groups, and also States, do not resort to terrorism and do not support it as a strategy in the pursuit of their objectives; urges the Member States to acquire greater institutional capacity for combating terrorism; considers that in broad terms the objectives relating to prevention set out in the European Union Counter-Terrorism Strategy are in keeping with that objective;

11. Calls on the EU to ensure that measures taken with a view to fighting terrorism do not lead to curbs on the ability of the media in countries in the South to deal in an independent way with issues relating to the rights of poor, vulnerable people and to publish information that is essential when it comes to determining the specific aid to be provided to those countries;

12. Calls on the countries with which the EU has commenced accession negotiations or which have expressed their intention of joining the EU to take immediate measures to disband nationalistic and fanatical organisations which are directly opposed to the democratic principles of the Union and which stir up animosities and racial hatred;

13. Reiterates the need at all times to drive home the message that terrorism is unacceptable and unjustifiable by all state and non-state actors in all circumstances and in all cultures, whatever the considerations of a political, philosophical, ideological, racial, ethnic, religious or any other nature that may be invoked to justify it, and to eliminate all factors which may be exploited by terrorists, such as the dehumanisation of victims, the outbreak and persistence of violent conflicts, bad governance, the lack of civil rights and violation of human rights, religious and ethnic discrimination, political exclusion and socio-economic marginalisation;

14. Considers it likewise fundamental that the European Union's external actions to combat international terrorism, while complying with the relevant case law of the Court of Justice of the European Communities and the European Court of Human Rights, should aim to prevent terrorists from gaining access to the means for carrying out their attacks, for example by depriving them of the opportunity to travel, to gain access to means of communication and to proselytise, to use the Internet for their purposes, to receive financial support, to engage in money laundering, to gain access to arms, be they conventional, nuclear, biological, chemical or radiological, and to easily attain their objectives and achieve their aims;

15. Considers that the protective measures included in the European Union Counter-Terrorism Strategy are in line with this objective but that their actual effectiveness varies greatly and that there are various other options in terms of the Union's external action;

16. Reiterates the need to fight against flows of illicit capital and money laundering within the Union (through the implementation by December 2007 of Directive 2005/60/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 October 2005 on the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering and terrorist financing [1]) and elsewhere, and to exercise effective control over various Islamic charities;

17. Notes that Member States have an obligation to exercise vigilance and recommends that determined use be made of the instruments at the disposal of the Union in its external actions in order to make countries which support terrorist groups and which organise, finance, encourage or support terrorist activities by any other means desist from doing so, if necessary through the imposition of sanctions or through coercive measures;

18. Supports unreservedly the development of the capacity of States to prevent terrorism through the promotion of the rule of law, respect for human rights and the establishment of effective criminal justice systems as well as through the promotion of high-quality education and religious and cultural tolerance; to that end, urges all the States within the international community to ensure that incitement to commit terrorist acts is banned by law and to prevent such conduct, as called for in the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy of 8 September 2006;

19. Considers that the development of a preventative capacity also requires States to directly oppose the financing of terrorist organisations by practical means, to seek to ensure that transport is safe (as stipulated in the European Programme for Critical Infrastructure Protection (EPCIP) (COM(2004)0702)), to make use of the possibilities offered by the Internet to combat terrorism, to improve the protection of potential terrorist targets and the capacity to respond to attacks, and to improve their capacity to prevent terrorists from acquiring conventional weapons or nuclear, biologic, chemical or radiological materials;

20. Emphasises the need to continue defending human rights and fundamental freedoms in the fight against terrorism by means of the international instruments available, taking account of the fact that human rights are a universal value and an integral part of European external action but also of the fact that their violation clearly jeopardises the fight against terrorism and constitutes a failure of democracy; considers, therefore, that the only effective instruments employed in the fight against international terrorism are legal means and that all activities that escape independent international scrutiny, such as extraordinary renditions or prisons that operate outside the international legal framework, should be prohibited under international law;

21. Considers it fundamental to have sufficient human and budgetary resources available to combat terrorism; supports the various proposals of the Commission in this regard; proposes that, in the event of a European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP) operation to combat terrorism, the cost of the common expenditure be charged to the budget of the European Union; supports the setting-up of an international fund to provide economic assistance to States with fewer resources in order that they may successfully assume their responsibilities in the fight against terrorism;

22. Considers that including financial support for a range of activities connected with preventing and fighting terrorism in ODA can only further undermine the concept of official development assistance and its primary aim, namely to eliminate poverty;

23. Stresses that any EU programme designed to foster cooperation on counter-terrorism, surveillance technology and exchanges of information should include a financial clause setting aside part of the budget for fundamental rights issues as well as for a subsequent independent impact assessment;

24. Strongly stresses to the Member States that nothing can justify diverting aid away from countries that are devoting themselves to reducing poverty and achieving the MDGs and towards countries directly involved in the war on terror;

25. Stresses that additional financial resources released via the implementation of innovative financial instruments cannot replace commitments already entered into in terms of ODA, and considers that, when those new resources become available, they should not be used to finance measures to prevent or fight terrorism at the expense of measures for fighting poverty, into which it is essential that the new resources be channelled;

26. Draws attention to the fact the development of a common approach to the management of the European Union's external frontiers could constitute one element of the fight against terrorism, and consequently is concerned that the technical equipment at the disposal of the authorities responsible for controlling the borders is not of a uniformly high standard;

27. Underlines the crucial role played by civil society and NGOs in the promotion of cross- cultural and inter-religious understanding through constructive dialogue;

28. Considers that it is essential to develop intercultural dialogue and other confidence-building measures within and outside the EU, the first requirement being to reach a common understanding of the concept of 'intercultural dialogue' inside the EU; also considers it essential to examine the contributory factors leading to the radicalisation and recruitment of Muslims inside and outside Europe;

Means available to the European Union in the area of its external action to combat terrorism

29. Emphasises the many-faceted nature of the responses available to the European Union in the area of external action to combat terrorism and the need for Member States to bring together and use in a coherent manner their political, preventive and suppressive instruments involving police and judicial cooperation, intelligence and communication, and all other types of responses called for and endorsed by the United Nations and forming part of a multilateral strategy;

30. Draws attention to the recommendations contained in its resolution of 28 September 2006 [1], and stresses in particular that if, with a view to implementing development cooperation, a large number of objectives are pursued that are only indirectly linked, or not linked at all, to the strategy laid down in the European Consensus on Development and the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) (for which the UN believes additional annual aid of USD 50 billion is needed), it will become significantly more difficult to take effective action against poverty;

31. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to pursue an anti-terrorism policy that is careful not to undermine the contribution made by European development cooperation to drawing up and implementing strategies aimed at effectively combating poverty and at preventing — increasingly prolonged — violent conflicts, particularly in Africa;

32. Stresses that the response adopted by the EU in the face of terrorism must be proportionate and properly targeted on the fight against terrorism, bearing in mind that, until proved otherwise, the most productive measures in the fight against new forms of terrorism are effective intelligence and police services, in other words activities which, however legitimate, do not come within development cooperation policy or the fight against poverty;

33. Reiterates, therefore, its proposal to render the Union's anti-terrorist policy more coherent and effective in its relations with third countries through:

(a) the enhancement of political dialogue in this regard, in particular with those countries with which the European Union and/or its Member States have concluded or are negotiating Association or Cooperation Agreements;

(b) political and commercial support and development aid to moderate Islamic countries, relating both to the fight against terrorism and to the political, economic and social reforms implemented in those countries;

(c) a stepping-up of the dialogue on and cooperation in the fight against terrorism with the major partners of the Union (Israel, Japan, Australia, Canada, Russia, etc.) and, in particular, the United States, which is in the front line in the fight against terrorism, without affecting under any circumstances the level of protection afforded to human rights;

(d) the promotion of international consensus for the adoption of the Global Convention on International Terrorism and the development of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy of 8 September 2006, including a common definition of terrorism;

(e) the requirement that all third countries with which the Union maintains relations sign and ratify the 17 United Nations universal instruments on combating terrorism, as well as the optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture or Other Cruel, Inhumane or Degrading Treatment or Punishment;

(f) the strict implementation of the anti-terrorism clause as well as application of the human rights clause included in agreements with third countries, without any 'ad hoc' modifications which detract from their substance;

(g) the suspension of political and trade relations with States which persistently fail to comply with their obligations to provide information to the Counter-Terrorism Committee of the United Nations;

Thursday 15 February 2007

(h) the establishment of an interinstitutional Code of Conduct for external relations of the Union as proposed by the European Parliament in its resolution of 25 April 2002 on the Communication from the Commission to the Council and the European Parliament on the European Union's role in promoting human rights and democratisation in third countries ([1]);

(i) the strengthening of cooperation with international and regional organisations playing a key role in peacekeeping and global security, first and foremost the United Nations (in particular the Security Council and its Counter-Terrorism Committee and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime) the OSCE, the Council of Europe and NATO;

(j) the promotion and strict implementation of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1540 (2004), with the aim of preventing non-state actors and States which are not party to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty from acquiring nuclear, chemical or biological weapons, in pursuit of the EU strategy against the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, support for and the development of new initiatives on nuclear disarmament and the revitalisation of the UN Conference on Disarmament;

(k) the stepping-up of cooperation as regards the exchange of information and cooperation between security and intelligence services including military intelligence, and police, judicial and customs authorities of the Member States, including with the Joint Situation Centre (SitCen), the European Agency for the Management of Operational Cooperation at the External Borders (Frontex), Europol, Interpol and Eurojust and the various competent authorities at European level, the Counter-Terrorism Coordinator, Gijs de Vries and the Commissioner with responsibility for justice, freedom and security, Franco Frattini; the enhancing of security protocols and interoperability, by keeping the activities of intelligence and law-enforcement agencies strictly separate as stipulated in numerous national constitutions and on the condition that parliamentary and judicial scrutiny are provided;

(l) the organisation of regular meetings (held at least once a year) to be attended by the relevant ministers from the Member States, by the Commissioner responsible for freedom, security and justice, by the EU Counter-Terrorism Coordinator and by the heads of Europol, Eurojust, SitCen and Frontex, and to be devoted solely to the topic of combating international terrorism;

(m) the promotion of a global consensus about the need to put an end to off-shore banking and other forms of opaque fiscal paradises used by terrorists to conceal their financial transactions;

(n) the implementation of the Protocol against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Their Parts and Components and Ammunition, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, and the UN Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects;

(o) the strengthening of counter-terrorist military forces through training and other measures;

(p) an increase in Europol's powers in order to ensure that the role it plays in the fight against terrorism is an effective one;

(q) the enhancement of cooperation with the United States as regards exchanges of information and cooperation between security and intelligence services as well as police, judicial and customs authorities;

(r) the enhancement of cooperation between Member States' special forces and those of third countries;

34. Commends the various initiatives to promote dialogue, tolerance and understanding among different cultures, civilisations and religions; regards the idea of creating a 'Euro-Med citizenship' as an example of a broad and concrete initiative that can help bring forward views of the region's common future;

35. Emphasises the need for greater cooperation and coordination with the United States in the fight against international terrorism, while stressing the need to protect the fundamental principles of human rights;

36. Emphasises the need for an increase in the powers and the resources available to the EU Counter-Terrorism Coordinator (with particular reference to the inadequate resources made available to him), so that his work can have a greater impact and assume a higher profile;

37. Calls on the Commission and the Council, in their external relations, to insist on the signature and the ratification of the Rome Statute and, consequently, on the universal recognition by all third countries of the binding nature of the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court;

38. Calls on the Council, the Commission and the governments of the Member States to take effective practical action to bring about the proscription of terrorist organisations;

39. Considers it essential to encourage greater stability outside the Union through the use of all available instruments, programmes and means in the ambit of external action, including:

(a) the new Instrument for Stability established by Regulation (EC) No 1717/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 November 2006 [1], which provides a new legal basis for long-term aid in such areas as the fight against terrorism, the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, the fight against organised crime, conventional disarmament and human security; recalls the declaration by the Commission on anti-terror measures, annexed to the Instrument for Stability, in which the Commission undertakes that all anti-terrorism measures financed under that instrument will respect human rights obligations and related humanitarian law and that the Commission will monitor compliance with that principle by the recipient countries;

(b) the support, once the said Instrument enters into force, of the aid strategy designed by the Commission to help third countries face the terrorist threat through both the European Neighbourhood and Partnership Instrument (ENPI) established by Regulation (EC) No 1638/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24 October 2006 [2] and the Instrument for Stability, and through the mainstreaming of counter-terrorist assistance into all its assistance programmes as requested by the European Council;

(c) the extension of the said aid strategy to all areas of the Union's external action and to all the major development aid programmes except for those relating to humanitarian aid, which are by their very nature unconditional;

(d) the strengthening of the use of the Civilian and Military Rapid Reaction Mechanism;

(e) the Council and the Commission ensuring that attention for the victims of terrorism becomes a cornerstone of the Union's policy in this field, thus ensuring full regard for them so that they are listened to, kept informed and given every assistance;

(f) the creation of a similar office in the context of the new United Nations Counter-Terrorism Strategy of 8 September 2006, aimed at providing assistance to all victims of terrorism regardless of their citizenship;

40. Calls on the Commission to present as soon as possible a communication setting out the existing assistance mechanisms and programmes to reduce and face up to the threats to the security of the Union and its citizens, including in particular proposals and recommendations to improve the effectiveness and coherence of the Union's assistance programmes;

41. Calls on Member States to contribute more to an integrated EU-wide threat assessment by increasing the flow of information to SitCen in the Secretariat of the Council of the EU; calls on Member States to increase staff and resources at the disposal of the Situation Centre and to make increasing use of its combined terrorism assessments, which include information on external threats and information from internal security services and Europol;

42. Recommends the adoption of measures leading to establishment of a new configuration for meetings of the Council, involving the participation of Foreign Ministers and Interior Ministers when dealing with the fight against terrorism;

43. Recommends implementation of the provisions of the EU Treaty concerning the ESDP applied to the fight against terrorism and also of the Declaration on Combating Terrorism of 25 March 2004, the Plan of Action adopted by the European Council on 21 September 2001 and the Counter-Terrorism Strategy of 14 and 15 December 2005, through the adoption of measures such as:

(a) the joint elaboration of contingency plans to render effective the mutual-assistance solidarity clause in the Declaration on Combating Terrorism;

(b) recourse, where necessary, to specific police and/or military operations under the ESDP as part of the Union's response to terrorism;

(c) the adaptation to the new tasks of the permanent structured cooperation and the combat units provided for in Protocol 23 to the Treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe;

(d) derogation from the unanimity rule in certain areas of police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters;

Parliamentary control of the fight against international terrorism by the Institutions of the Union

44. Highlights the vital importance of prevention in the fight against international terrorism and the need to share in real time with the other Member States and Institutions of the Union all information obtained through reliable and efficient information systems and for a rigorous and professional assessment of the reports drawn up by the various police and intelligence services;

45. Asks the Council for the Interinstitutional Agreement of 20 November 2002 between the European Parliament and the Council concerning access by the European Parliament to sensitive information of the Council in the field of security and defence policy [1] to be reviewed and brought up-to-date in order to improve the current system for the transmission of classified information and to guarantee the transmission to the European Parliament of all available information relating to the fight against international terrorism, without its being under any circumstances denied information which, in the internal sphere, has been or should be transmitted to national parliaments by the respective governments of the Member States or the international organisations of which they form part;

46. Calls on the Council not to limit itself in its annual report on the CFSP to describing the activities of the Union in the area of the fight against terrorism, but rather, on the basis of Article 21 of the Treaty on European Union, to really consult the European Parliament as regards the principal aspects and basic options of that fight, which constitutes a priority under the ESS, the Union's external action and the CFSP as a whole; considers it indispensable that it be informed and consulted in the event of a large-scale terrorist attack, where necessary through the Special Committee provided for in the above-mentioned Interinstitutional Agreement of 20 November 2002;

47. Considers the High Level Political Dialogue on Counter-Terrorism, which brings the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission together on a six-monthly basis, to be a good example of the possibilities available for the indispensable interinstitutional cooperation needed in the fight against terrorism; proposes that such meetings be held at least on a quarterly basis and that the European Parliament Delegation also include the chairmen of the permanent committees on the three main areas of external action (foreign affairs, international trade and development cooperation);

48. Asks for the reports drawn up by SitCen for the Council of the Union to be transmitted regularly to the European Parliament, if necessary pursuant to the modalities provided for in the above-mentioned Interinstitutional Agreement;

49. Considers it of fundamental importance that the European Parliament be closely involved in the mechanism for implementing the solidarity clause (the introduction of which was approved in the Declaration on Combating Terrorism), essentially in cases where the decisions adopted have implications as regards the ESDP;

50. Calls on the Commission and on the European Counter-Terrorism Coordinator to submit an annual report to the European Parliament on their activities in the fight against terrorism and to take due account of Parliament's observations and recommendations in that regard;

51. Calls on the Council anew to inform Parliament on the regular updating of Council Common Position 2001/931/CFSP of 27 December 2001 on the application of specific measures to combat terrorism [1] (list of terrorist organisations and groups) and on developments since 2001;

52. Pledges to establish an enhanced dialogue with the national parliaments on the fight against terrorism with a view to guaranteeing joint parliamentary control of the activities of the various security and intelligence services, given that, in its capacity as representative of the peoples of the European Union, it is incumbent upon the European Parliament to exercise public and transparent control over the measures adopted by the Union in relation to the fight against terrorism, including the activities of the European Counter-Terrorism Coordinator and of the various bodies dedicated to that task;

53. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the European Council, the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the Council of Europe, the United Nations and its specialised agencies.

A. whereas the Integrated Guidelines are a central instrument of EU policy on the economy and employment focusing on a medium-term period of three years; whereas that instrument should, based on the version of 2005 and its forthcoming review, be assessed carefully and developed further in the interest of improving its implementation,

B. whereas the Integrated Guidelines, the reformed Stability and Growth Pact and the Financial Framework for 2007 to 2013 will contribute together to creating greater coherence in the policy-making process and improving the economic governance of the European Union,

C. whereas the Integrated Guidelines should not be regarded merely as the relabelling of existing policies but should become a genuinely integrated package of policies encompassing and converging macroeconomic, microeconomic and employment dimensions,

D. whereas the Integrated Guidelines are an essential component of the Lisbon Strategy and should, as its central implementing instrument, with the aid of a balanced 'policy-mix' approach, pursue reciprocally inspiring reforms in the areas of the economy, employment, the environment and social security,

E. whereas economic growth is not an end in itself but a necessary condition, and as such, part of an integrated approach, for securing the welfare and living standards of citizens; whereas the endeavour to achieving sustainable growth must be based on a policy for the economy, social security, employment, the environment and the budget that does justice to its responsibility towards future generations,

Making good use of the upswing in the economy and employment in the European Union

1. Notes that after six years of low economic growth, stagnation or even recession in many Member States, the European economy is now achieving better results with a growth rate that exceeds that of previous years, that is to say a growth rate in 2006 of 2,8 % of GDP in the European Union and of 2,6 % in the euro area falling in 2007, however, to 2,4 % in the European Union and 2,1 % in the euro area; raises the question as to the extent to which European growth may be cyclical and stresses the need to enhance Europe's growth potential so as to be able to generate employment;

2. Points out that there are wide disparities between the growth rates of the Member States and expresses concern at the relatively low growth rate in a number of the larger Member States, which is primarily attributable to stagnant internal demand; notes in this context the above-average growth rate enjoyed by the Scandinavian countries accompanied by a recent substantial reduction in unemployment;

3. Stresses the improvement in public finances with a reduction in the average budget deficit to 2 % of GDP in 2006; expects further improvements in the quality of public finances which do not only mirror cyclical factors;

4. Notes the positive development in the employment market, with a doubling of the annual growth rate of labour productivity from 0,6 to 1,2 % and a decline in unemployment to 8 % in both the European Union and the euro area in 2006, and a predicted unemployment rate of 7,3 % in the European Union and 7,4 % in the euro area by 2008, employment growth around 1,4 %, representing 2,9 million new jobs in 2006 with the prospect of a further 7 million new jobs during the period 2007 to 2008, which would mean a rise in the employment rate from 63,7 % in 2005 to 65,5 % by 2008; notes, however, that unemployment rates, particularly among women, are still high and far from achieving the Lisbon Objectives; calls, therefore, for further efforts to be made towards attaining an effective and inclusive European labour market, which combines flexibility and security and is able to achieve a significantly higher participation rate; stresses in this context that necessary reforms should be designed and implemented in best collaboration with the social partners;

5. Is concerned at the constantly high level of poverty in the European Union which, following a fall from 17 to 15 % in the mid-1990s, has recently risen again to 17 % in 2005; considers it unacceptable in this connection that, in the enlarged European Union, around 80 million people now have a disposable income of below 60 % of the national equalised median income;

6. Points out that in 2006, the European Union expanded its leading role as a world champion exporter, with an 8 % growth in exports, but underlines the fact that the export surplus accounts for only about 0,3 percentage point of the current GDP growth in the euro area and stresses the risk factor attached to the high euro-dollar exchange rate; draws attention to the fact that the present economic upswing is predominantly riding on recovering domestic demand and that this is largely as a result of short-term investment; points out that the fundamental problem facing the European economy in the last decade has been inadequate domestic demand attributable to a lack of confidence caused by unemployment; expresses concern as to how far a continual increase in investment and consumer expenditure, together with a sustained improvement in the employment situation, can be achieved to ensure that the mainly cyclical upswing will turn into a structural upward trend;

7. Considers that the European economy has been strengthened by the main achievements of the economic and monetary union and the single market; calls for full completion of the internal market, particularly in financial services and the energy sector by means of rapid and complete implementation of the electricity and gas directives; accordingly, stresses the importance of investment in the infrastructures needed to achieve this objective; expects further economic stimuli from a European market in services that will guarantee service providers' access free of discrimination and the protection of labour and social security laws at the place of the service provision; urges the Member States, with regard to the latest enlargements, to maintain an open and free labour market that supports economic growth;

8. Points out that a more permanent increase in economic growth potential in the European Union under the umbrella of the Lisbon Strategy requires the ongoing implementation of well-balanced reforms, including measures aimed at strengthening innovation, technological advance and human capital accumulation, removing remaining barriers hampering the operation of the internal market, and creating a more conducive environment for business activities in Member States;

9. Draws attention, against the background of an expected decline in growth in the United States and hence in world trade, of potential external shocks, such as the abrupt adjustment of global imbalances with massive effects on exchange rates and financial markets, and of a possible further rise in the price of oil, to the need to support and strengthen the economic upswing by an economic policy improving the effectiveness in the markets of goods, services, labour and capital, that promotes growth and is equally geared to export and domestic demand;

10. Is concerned about a euro exchange rate which could harm Europe's competitiveness as against the United States; expects the European Central Bank to monitor developments closely and to take appropriate measures in order to safeguard Europe's economic interests in the international financial system;

Encouraging the Member States to produce benchmark results

11. Notes that the real economic growth in the European Union is characterised by old and new divergences, with the lowest growth rates in Portugal (1,2 % of GDP) and Italy (1,7 %), and high growth rates among the EU-15 in Spain (3,8 %), Greece (3,8 %) and, in particular, Sweden (4 %), Finland (4,9 %) and Luxembourg (5,5 %); notes that the new Member States are registering particularly high growth rates in Slovakia (6,7 %), Lithuania (7,8 %), Estonia (10,5 %) and Latvia (11 %); underlines that these divergences also reflect important structural differences, different domestic economic policies and demographic structures as well as asymmetric impacts of common policies, illustrating underlying risks to the European Union's internal cohesion; therefore stresses the need for policies that strengthen economic cohesion and thus foster the internal market and monetary union;

12. Points out that, in the case of modernising efforts and economic performance, the Member States that are most successful are those that combine forward-looking and well-balanced structural reforms with higher-than-average investment in transport, information technology, research and development (R&D) as well as innovation, education, lifelong learning and care facilities, and the renewal of reliable social networks; notes that, for the most part, the same Member States have a highly efficient and transparent administration, an innovative entrepreneurial environment, budget surpluses, lower-than-average debt rates and high-quality public spending, while showing signs of a contribution by technical progress to the national growth result that is almost twice the size of the EU average; concludes that those Member States policies that seek to achieve high employment rates, including the employment of women and older workers, will enable the European Union to face with greater confidence present and future challenges such as an ageing population and growing competition as a result of globalisation;

13. Emphasises in this connection that the most successful Member States with regard to their strategies of economic and social renewal can also be seen as role models for the successful implementation of the Lisbon Strategy, and encourages other Member States to be guided by them, even if the measures implementing the Lisbon Strategy must be developed to suit the situation of the relevant Member State and must remain the responsibility of that Member State;

14. Notes, with regard to the Member States' national reform programmes, that, by and large, there are signs of greater harmonisation and also of a new commitment to direct policy towards objectives agreed throughout Europe; underlines, however, that Member States have different points of departure and show considerable variations as regards the content, pace and intensity of reforms across policy areas; takes the view that the reforms only respond to a limited extent to the present economic and employment situation, and that in many cases such central tasks as innovation, job creation, energy supply, a sustainable environment and better law-making are still not adequately incorporated into an integrated reform agenda; regrets that even in the fields of boosting the employment rate and active employment policy, progress and reform efforts are moving less rapidly than in other fields; welcomes, however, the efforts to strengthen responsibility at national and regional level ('ownership') and the involvement of the parliaments and social partners, and calls for the further expansion of such endeavours;

Strengthening potential — extending success: what still needs to be done

15. Calls on the Member States to make good use of the new economic situation and the resulting margin for manoeuvre to promote a more sustainable form of economic growth, and one that is more closely geared towards quality objectives; underlines that a healthy and stable macroeconomic environment requires improving the quality of public finances with budgets that are further consolidated, and an intelligent private and public investment policy that delivers forward-looking infrastructure and opens up tomorrow's markets today;

16. Stresses that in order to benefit fully from the potential of the internal market and to strengthen Europe's position in the global market, current protectionist and anticompetitive tendencies must be curbed;

17. Emphasises the role played by small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in generating employment; accordingly, stresses the need to create a favourable climate for them through more favourable tax arrangements, a reduction in regulation and administrative burdens, improved access to financing, an improvement of their situation regarding business costs in terms of energy, transport, communications and services, improved access to information and communication technologies and increased investment in R&D and innovation;

18. Stresses the importance to the European economy of excellent competitiveness as well as the need to sustain demand potential, and expects the economic policy actors to make further efforts to achieve a higher long-term growth rate in conditions of economic stability and sustained development also by effectively coordinating economic policies;

19. Stresses in this context the importance of education, in particular tertiary education, to the strengthening of future growth potential and increasing skills levels, mobility and adaptability of European citizens; calls on Member States to step up efforts aimed at making European education systems more attractive, accessible and competitive;

20. Recalls that the achievement of the Lisbon Objectives requires sufficient financial resources through the Community budget; regrets in this context the insufficiency of financial resources to achieving the said objectives;

21. Takes the view that a simultaneous and coordinated approach by the Member States to growth-intensive spending, the stimulation of private investment and joint initiatives in the area of private and public cooperation can unleash substantial synergies, improve Europe's ability to meet the existing challenges in the fields of science and research, transport and communication, energy and environmental sustainability and will support the efficient allocation of resources throughout Europe; notes in this connection the importance of a coordinated fiscal framework including corporate tax arrangements favourable to SMEs and geared to generating employment; considers that Member States should improve the efficiency of tax and social contribution arrangements in order to ease job creation, particularly for specific social groups such as women, the long-term unemployed and older people; considers that competitive tax regimes should encourage the establishment of new businesses without undermining national funding capacity and should shift the burden from taxation on labour to environmental taxation, including fiscal incentives to support R&D and the use of renewable resources;

22. Calls once again, in view of the forthcoming review of the Financial Framework, further to adapt the EU budget in the light of the Lisbon Objectives and in this way to support the full implementation of the Lisbon Strategy as a whole;

23. Recognises that much progress has been made in shifting the focus of State aid to horizontal objectives; encourages Member States to continue this trend and further to align State aid with the Lisbon Objectives such as employment, innovation and sustainability;

24. Underlines the need in the future to direct the competitiveness of European economies even more strongly towards an intelligent and sustainable economic process, to go hand-in-hand with the more efficient use of resources; recommends here in particular looking into the following measures at national level, which serve the aims not only of modernising the economy, developing new technologies and strengthening competitiveness, but also of environmental compatibility and opening up new areas of employment:

(a) in the fields of R&D, promoting:

— incentives to extend private R&D activities;

— public investment in the context of R&D, namely public-private partnerships;

— networks and cooperation between universities, research institutes and companies;

— national or regional coordination offices in the field of R&D;

— innovation and the development of new technologies by SMEs and small service providers, particularly by improved access to all sources of capital, in particular to venture capital; and — training and retraining in the interest of an active employment policy in the area of modern technologies;

(b) in the fields of energy and the environment:

— implementing the electricity and gas directives in the interest of a fair, competitive, functioning and non-discriminating European energy market;

— securing energy supplies for the European economies through the diversification of sources and transit routes of energy imports;

— introducing fiscal incentives, performance incentives and investment to promote energy efficiency measures, including the implementation of energy-saving objectives;

— introducing fiscal incentives, performance incentives and investment to promote renewable energies and environmentally efficient technologies and innovation;

— ensuring the independence of national regulatory authorities and their coordination at EU level;

— expanding and networking of regional energy generation;

— increasing the transparency in the energy market and a clear separation of energy production, distribution and marketing ('unbundling'); and

— establishing stronger 'environment certificates';

25. Regards it as a priority to open up new chances of and opportunities for work for all sectors of society in a rapidly changing economy; underlines that the most vulnerable members of society are most at risk in this context and that priority should be given to promoting 'active inclusion' and to creating better jobs more broadly; underlines also the need to balance new demands for workers' flexibility and readiness to retrain with new job prospects and the safeguarding of new forms of security ('flexicurity') also in order to promote chances better to combine professional and private life; calls in this connection for an improvement in the opportunity for participation in and access to the employment market by women, older workers, young people, the long-term unemployed and immigrants, for which the following measures, among others, should be more strongly pursued at national level in the fields of employment and education:

— ensuring that every school leaver is offered a job, training or other equivalent measures within six months;

— introducing a legal entitlement to retrain and participate in lifelong learning;

— providing incentives and investment to promote training, retraining and lifelong learning, and successful models for combining family with career, education and training;

— promoting flexible models for the transition from working to pensionable age on a voluntary basis, also with a view to facilitating access to the labour market for young people;

— promoting the establishment of new businesses and ensuring the hand-over of existing businesses on grounds of age;

— further reducing the overall burden of taxation and social contributions on low and average earnings;

— securing the qualification and first employment of young people by suitable private and public initiatives;

— increasing the availability and affordability of high-quality child care;

— ensuring a start-up time for new businesses of no more than one week as well as low start-up fees and administrative costs;

— including entrepreneurship education in lifelong learning curricula;

— ensuring a proper policy for legal immigration along the lines of the proposal for a European green card system;

26. Points out that in the interest of macroeconomic stability, the rise in productivity must go hand in hand with fairer distribution of the fruits of growth and a strengthening of social cohesion; draws attention in this connection to the call for the rise in incomes to keep pace with medium-term growth in productivity; underlines the urgent need to strengthen a culture of encouragement and involvement as part of the concepts of corporate governance and corporate social responsibility;

27. Stresses the need for enhanced and structured cooperation in the European Union and especially in the euro area, to strengthen governance and the process of European integration, as this is the only way to tackle the global economic challenges; calls, therefore, on the Council and the Commission to ensure that the annual statement on the euro area delivers a more practical range of instruments in future, to make it possible to hold a more detailed dialogue between the various EU bodies that are involved in strengthening the economic governance of the European Union; further takes the view that the Euro Group should focus on ensuring that when national budget plans are drawn up and implemented they are better balanced and harmonised, both in content and timing, as this would make a big contribution to seeing through an economic policy reform agenda; proposes in the framework of a more enhanced and structured cooperation within the euro area to invite the other Council formations concerned to participate in such cooperation;

Stimulating necessary institutional reforms

28. Welcomes the Commission's new approach to following up the assessment of the national reform programmes by proposing country-specific recommendations to guide Member States and urges the European Council to approve these; underlines, in this context, the urgent need to strengthen the mutually reinforcing approach of the Integrated Guidelines which must be reflected in national reform policies; calls once again for the transparent exchange of best practices and the publication of an annual 'league table' of Member States with the best and worst reform records by the Commission in the interest of learning from both successes and failures; points out, however, in this connection that a sufficient number of integrated indicators are needed to cover all the policy areas of the Lisbon Strategy;

29. Regrets the still weak visibility of the Lisbon Strategy in the national politics of many Member States; takes the view that the mobilisation of all economic stakeholders is essential to ensuring its effective implementation; in particular, believes that a better involvement of social partners, national parliaments and civil society will increase the visibility of the Lisbon Strategy, enhance the quality of public debate on economic reforms, reinforce accountability and raise the awareness of public opinion about the need to coordinate closely economic policies with a view to addressing the main challenges posed by the ongoing globalisation process and to adopt a collective position to improve economic governance inside the European Union; urges the Member States to implement the Integrated Guidelines and the national reform programmes in the spirit of 'ownership', in a committed way, with the enhanced involvement of the national parliaments and other interested actors such as the social partners, and requests a regular review of the relevance of the national reform programmes according to the 'benchmarking' principle, including a broader consultation process in those Member States in which it is not yet the norm; expects the priorities of national reform programmes to be better reflected in the timetable as well as the content of national budget decisions;

30. Welcomes the consolidation and integration of the guidelines for economic, structural and employment policy measures; repeats in this connection that the economic and structural policy guidelines must receive the same legislative status as the guidelines for employment policy measures and that an inter-institutional agreement must be drawn up in order to clarify Parliament's participation in this context;

31. Expects, with a view to the forthcoming work on revising the Integrated Guidelines, to see a joint process of reflection between the EU institutions concerned and proposes an inter-institutional working party to be established after the Spring 2007 European Council; recommends the following aspects for improving implementation of the EU reform agenda for discussion and reflection:

— presenting a thorough analysis of structural reforms and their direct impact on productivity, employment and internal market demand with a view to revising the Integrated Guidelines;

— developing clearer and more focused integrated guidelines, while enlarging the range of reform areas to be covered as regards, for example, the comprehensive reform agenda for a more active policy of ecological sustainability, going beyond the scope of energy policy, and for a more committed policy to promote lifelong learning;

— developing a more standardised reporting structure in the context of the national reform programmes, without compromising the right of Member States to set national reform priorities;

— developing guidelines and benchmarks for national consultations, including recommendations for the involvement and active participation of national parliaments both in drawing up and reviewing the national reform programmes;

— developing and exchanging successful models for information and communication strategies;

— increasing the effectiveness of the EU reform agenda by consolidating the content and timing of economic policy instruments that are still deployed separately, with the goal of a 'smart-growth strategy', which further concentrates the reporting and assessment work in the area of the national reform programmes, but at the same time also involves the national stability and convergence programmes and systematic initiatives to incorporate the principle of ecological sustainability;

32. Regrets, once again, that no clear plan and code of practice has, to date, been agreed between Parliament, the Council and the Commission, which would guarantee appropriate cooperation and the full involvement of the three EU institutions concerned in the appropriate further handling of the Integrated Guidelines as a key instrument of the Lisbon Strategy; calls in this connection on the Council and the Commission to submit forthwith proposals for the close cooperation of the three EU institutions concerned with a view to the impending revision of the Integrated Guidelines;

Situation in Darfur

European Parliament resolution on the situation in Darfur

The European Parliament,

— having regard to its previous resolutions on the situation in Darfur, and in particular those of 16 September 2004 [1], 23 June 2005 [2], 6 April 2006 [3] and 28 September 2006 [4],

— having regard to UN Security Council Resolution 1706(2006) proposing a 22 000-strong peacekeeping force for Darfur,

— having regard to the Darfur Peace Agreement signed in Abuja, Nigeria, on 5 May 2006,

— having regard to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, which is binding and applied without exception,

— having regard to Rule 103(4) of its Rules of Procedure,

[2] OJ C 133 E, 8.6.2006, p. 96.
[3] OJ C 293 E, 2.12.2006, p. 320.
[4] Texts Adopted, P6_TA(2006)0387.

A. deeply concerned by the fact that the conflict in the Darfur region involving regular troops, pro-government militias and rebels has resulted in at least 400 000 deaths and created more than two and a half million refugees and displaced persons during the past three years, despite the signing of the Darfur Peace Agreement on 5 May 2006 in Abuja, Nigeria,

B. whereas the Government of Sudan and rebel groups agreed to a 60-day ceasefire on 11 January 2007, but indiscriminate attacks on civilians and aid workers are continuing unabated with what aid agencies are describing as 'violence on a scale not seen before in Darfur' ([1]),

C. whereas the Darfur conflict — together with impunity from prosecution — is increasingly affecting the stability of the Central African region and constitutes a threat to international peace and security,

D. whereas the UN 'Responsibility to Protect' doctrine provides that where 'national authorities manifestly fail to protect their populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity,' others have a responsibility to provide the protection needed,

E. whereas the UN Security Council, in its Resolution 1706(2006), has authorised a new UN peacekeeping force of up to 22 500 soldiers and police officers to take over Darfur operations from the Africa Mission in Sudan (AMIS), while reaffirming its full respect for Sudanese sovereignty, unity, independence and territorial integrity,

F. whereas sexual violence against women and children has been recognised as a crime against humanity, but systematic rape continues to be used as a weapon of war by parties in the Darfur conflict and, despite numerous assurances by the Sudanese Government, sexual violence continues unabated,

G. whereas the International Criminal Court (ICC) opened an investigation into crimes in Darfur in June 2005,

H. whereas torture and forced conscription of adults and children have become a feature of the human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law in Darfur, with the victims of torture too scared to report the abuse to either AMIS or humanitarian workers for fear of retribution,

1. Calls on the UN to act in line with its 'Responsibility to Protect' doctrine, basing its action on the failure of the Government of Sudan to protect its population in Darfur from war crimes and crimes against humanity, and also its failure to provide humanitarian assistance to the population;

2. Calls therefore on the UN, even in the absence of consent or agreement from the Sudanese Government, clearly to set a date for deployment of a UN-supported peacekeeping force in Darfur, under Chapter VII of the UN Charter, in line with UN Security Council Resolution 1706(2006), and the UN Agreement of 16 November 2006, in order to secure humanitarian aid corridors without any further delay to support the increasingly isolated and suffering population in the region;

3. Calls on the governments of the Member States of the European Union, the Council and the Commission to assume their responsibilities and make every possible effort to provide effective protection for the people of Darfur from a humanitarian disaster;

4. Deplores the Sudanese Government's support for the Janjaweed militia and its bombing of the Darfur region, amounting to a clear and flagrant breach of the Darfur Peace Agreement;

5. Calls on the international community, including the Member States of the European Union, to make equipment available in the region for the enforcement of the no-fly zone over Darfur established by UN Security Council Resolution 1591(2005);

([1]) 'Humanitarian agencies warn Darfur operations approaching breaking point', press release from Action Against Hunger, CARE International, Oxfam International, Norwegian Refugee Council, World Vision and Save the Children on outcome of AU Summit, 29 January 2007.

Thursday 15 February 2007

6. Calls on the EU institutions and other international actors to apply sanctions that target any side, including the Sudanese Government, that violates the ceasefire or attacks civilians, peacekeepers or humanitarian operations and to take all necessary action to help end impunity by enforcing and implementing the UN Security Council sanction regime through targeted economic sanctions, including travel bans and asset freezes, as the EU has done in the past with other countries [1]; underlines that sanctions against Sudan should also include the threat of an oil embargo;

7. Calls on the EU institutions and the international community to reconvene peace talks to improve the content of the Darfur Peace Agreement and make it acceptable to all parties; calls on international actors to hold accountable all parties to the resulting agreement and urges all parties to the conflict in Darfur to show their commitment to a peaceful solution to the crisis by implementing that agreement without delay;

8. Calls on the Sudanese Government to cooperate fully with the ICC in order to end impunity;

9. Calls on China to use its significant leverage responsibly in the region to hold the Government of Sudan to its commitments under the Comprehensive Peace Agreement of 9 January 2005 and the Darfur Peace Agreement; further calls on China to cease exporting arms to Sudan and to cease blocking decisions on targeted sanctions against the Government of Sudan in the UN Security Council;

10. Notes the UN Human Rights Council decision to send a High-Level Mission to Darfur to investigate human rights abuses in the region, which should provide a basis for action to bring to account any perpetrators of such crimes, and underlines the need for independence and credibility of the Mission team; is critical of the delays caused by visas not being granted to members of this Mission;

11. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission, the Heads of State and Government of the Member States, the Government and Parliament of Sudan, the United Nations Security Council, the Heads of State and Government of the Arab League, the governments of the ACP countries, the ACP-EU Joint Parliamentary Assembly and the African Union institutions.

EIB Annual Report 2005

European Parliament resolution on the EIB Annual Report for 2005 (2006/2269(INI))

The European Parliament,

— having regard to Articles 266 and 267 of the EC Treaty, establishing the European Investment Bank (EIB) and the Protocol on the Statute of the European Investment Bank, annexed to the Treaty,

— having regard to the EIB Group Activity Report 2005 and its Corporate Operational Plan for the period 2006 to 2008, the European Investment Fund (EIF) Annual Report 2005, the Audit Committee Annual Reports 2005 and the response from the Management Committee, the Operations Evaluation Overview Report 2005, and the EIB President's hearing before the relevant Parliament committee on 20 June 2005,

— having regard to the European Action for Growth, endorsed in the Presidency conclusions following the Brussels European Council on 12 and 13 December 2003,

— having regard to its resolution of 8 March 2005 on the activity report for 2003 of the European Investment Bank [1], and its resolution of 4 April 2006 on the situation of the European economy: preparatory report on the broad economic policy guidelines for 2006 [2],

[2] OJ C 293 E, 2.12.2006, p. 163.

— having regard to the EIB's Environmental Report 2004,

— having regard to the EIB's publication, the Social Assessment of Projects outside the European Union: the approach of the European Investment Bank, of 2 October 2006,

— having regard to the Convention on access to information, public participation in decision-making and access to justice in environmental matters (the Aarhus Convention), under which the Community committed itself to guaranteeing 'the rights of access to information, public participation in decision-making and access to justice in environmental matters',

— having regard to Rules 112(2) and 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs (A6-0011/2007),

A. whereas the EIB is a public bank with a political dimension, established under of the EC Treaty as the main financial institution charged with achieving the European Union's objectives,

B. whereas the growth potential of the European economy continues to be fairly low, at around 2 %, which is much lower than that achieved by other areas of the world, and is insufficient to provide employment for the more than 12 million unemployed Europeans and for the development of an enlarged Europe,

C. whereas in 2005 the EIB granted loans worth EUR 47 400 million, of which EUR 42 300 million was allocated to the Member States, EUR 2 000 million to the acceding countries, and EUR 3 100 million to associated countries, and whereas some EUR 9 000 million was distributed through the intermediary banks,

D. whereas out of the loans granted by the EIB Group, EUR 34 000 million was allocated to economic and social cohesion, EUR 10 700 million to the Innovation 2010 initiative, EUR 12 300 to environmental protection, EUR 8 200 million to the development of the Trans-European Networks, EUR 4 200 million to support for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), EUR 3 600 million as a contribution to European external cooperation and development aid policy, EUR 400 million to venture capital funds, and EUR 1 700 million to guarantees for SMEs,

E. whereas the Commission's Integrated Guidelines for Growth and Jobs (2005-2008) (COM(2005)0141) point to the need to promote a more entrepreneurial culture and the creation of new enterprises, and whereas one way of achieving those objectives is to improve access to finance for SMEs,

F. whereas SMEs in the European Union, which total almost 23 million and which comprise half of the EU economy and employ two-thirds of European workers, have an important part to play in economic and social cohesion,

G. whereas a new European energy policy is needed in order to cope with high energy prices, guarantee security of supply, and halt climate change,

1. Congratulates the EIB on its activity report for 2005, on its increased transparency to the public and on the improvement of its control systems; encourages the EIB to continue with its work in developing the European economy;

Strategy and activities

2. Welcomes the fact that the EIB has adopted the Lisbon Strategy objectives on growth and employment and welcomes the changes made by the EIB in its work with a view to achieving those objectives; considers that the question arises as to whether the EIB's resources are sufficient to achieve those objectives;

3. Notes that in the review of EIB strategy carried out in 2005, encouraging economic and social cohesion within the European Union continued to be the EIB's main aim; therefore calls for the EIB's activity in this field to focus on the least developed regions;

4. Urges the EIB, with reference to the Innovation 2010 initiative, to fund projects that are directly relevant to innovation; with regard to education and training, calls for the policy goal of the European Union to become a knowledge-based society to be fully supported, with a particular emphasis on innovation-related education projects, both in higher and basic education in order to improve Europe's human potential; supports the EIB in its efforts to bring less developed areas into the knowledge-based economy;

5. Congratulates the EIB on having achieved its aim of devoting between 30 and 35 % of its individual loans within the European Union to projects intended to protect or improve the natural or urban environment; notes that out of the total loans made within the European Union, 60 % were granted in relation to the urban environment (public transport and urban renewal), while only 20 % were intended for research into energy efficiency and the development of renewable forms of energy; urges the EIB, therefore, to distribute funds for environmental protection more coherently;

6. Welcomes the EIB's intention to draw up a new energy action plan incorporating the new EU energy objectives; calls on the EIB to adopt more ambitious financing objectives both for renewable energies and for programmes to improve energy efficiency, above all in the new Member States and in the SME sector, where there is more scope for improvement;

7. Congratulates the EIB on its role as a financial catalyst, above all in relation to loans in support of public-private partnerships promoting private sector participation in financing the Trans-European Networks; calls for an EU guarantee instrument to be developed specifically for Trans-European Transport Network projects in order to cover the risk that revenue might fall short of the expected levels in the initial operating phase; stresses the importance of improving the dimension of energy networks to and among Member States to facilitate the creation of the internal market for energy supply and distribution;

8. Considers that EIB activities should reflect the needs of an enlarged European Union; points out that the EIB does not have a permanent delegation in the Baltic Sea region, which would cover the Baltic States, Denmark, Finland, Sweden and EEA-EFTA countries;

9. Calls for greater consistency in the EIB's external mandate both with regard to the sufficiency of funds for the whole period of the new mandate and their distribution by geographical area; points out that the loans granted to Latin America are insufficient, representing only 2,5 % of those devoted to projects outside the European Union; welcomes the new initiative combining EIB loans with EU grant aid for regional infrastructure projects in Africa as well as other initiatives that support an African development agenda that must be developed on the basis of sustainability criteria, in environmental, social and economic terms; urges the EIB, in conjunction with global loans for Mediterranean partner countries, to implement technical assistance in order to help develop and reform the local financial sector;

10. Congratulates the EIB Board of Governors, which in 2005 made support for SMEs one of its five priority objectives; supports the EIB in its effort to develop financial instruments appropriate to the needs of SMEs, to the end that global loans to SMEs represent more than 50 % of total global loans every year;

Methods of operation

11. Welcomes the closer cooperation with the Commission in the new programmes which aim to increase the efficiency of expenditure thanks to the experience acquired by the EIB, in particular the programme for Joint Assistance to Support Projects in European Regions (Jaspers);

12. Points out that a range of new financial instruments managed by the EIB and the EIF will have a multiplier effect on non-reimbursable aid, and is delighted that the initiative for Joint European Resources for Micro to Medium Enterprises (Jeremie) has come into operation, since it could produce a multiplier effect of up to ten times the size of the Structural Fund budget through the operation of the EIF serving to turn subsidies into a range of financial products aimed at SMEs;

13. Considers that the new cooperation and financing arrangements must be evaluated carefully with a view to correcting any administrative obstacles that may be involved;

14. Points out to the EIB that its loans must not be a substitute, under conditions more advantageous to the intermediary financial institutions, for loans which in any event would have been granted by the private sector;

15. Calls on the Court of Auditors to ensure that the conditions governing the loans and guarantees involving EU budget resources granted by the EIB do not serve to enable certain privileged parties to benefit indirectly from unwarranted assistance when they could obtain financing on the market;

16. Calls on the EIB to conduct a detailed study on the real contribution of the EIB investment to regional development, once also analysed the effects of EU policies and to introduce appropriate indicators, as recommended by its own Operations Evaluation department;

17. Recommends that the EIB further increase the possibilities of access to its finance, above all for SMEs, by increasing the number of financial institutions with the appropriate expertise and lending capacities to support EU priorities, acting as intermediaries in each country, which at the same time would improve the conditions for the end recipients;

18. Recommends that in its next annual report, the EIB place special emphasis on its relationship with the banks which, at national level, specialise in granting loans to SMEs and recalls that good cooperation between the EIB and those banks can only be beneficial to the SMEs;

19. Considers that a combination of funds provided by the EIB with authorised State aid should be encouraged to benefit SMEs;

Transparency and performance

20. Calls on the EIB to explain more clearly its evaluation criteria when selecting projects for funding and to submit an evaluation of its operations in terms of economic growth and employment; recommends that the EIB publish its information on the investment projects in which it is involved, to encourage private investors to participate in the possible financing of those projects;

21. Recommends that the EIB lay down more clear-cut criteria to govern the ultimate allocation of its global loans; and calls on the EIB to establish a transparent procedure for determining and assessing how the loans have been used by intermediary banks, in particular with a view to ascertaining whether the quality of EIB loans really benefits the end recipients;

22. Calls on the EIB to ensure that its operational standards are consistent with international standards and best practices; and to establish a transparent participation mechanism to involve civil society organisations and other interested parties in the formulation of strengthened EIB social standards;

23. Calls on the EIB to set up a new environmental framework based on clear, binding and enforceable minimum standards, which would provide an opportunity for the EIB to make its values and standards clear to all stakeholders, including local communities;

24. Congratulates the EIB on developing its control system to give greater weight to ex-post evaluation of operations; welcomes the publication of a summary of evaluations carried out by the Operations Evaluation department; reiterates its request made in paragraph 14 of its resolution of 22 April 2004 on the activity report for 2002 of the European Investment Bank [1] that the EIB should provide information on failed projects, in order to learn from such failures;

25. Notes the EIB's intention to associate itself voluntarily with the establishment of an international solvency ratio (Basel II); calls on the EIB to communicate the methodologies applied and the constituent components of this ratio; calls for a study on the way that the application of Basel II is supervised;

Thursday 15 February 2007

26. Welcomes the EIB's focus on transparency, outlined in its Public Disclosure Policy of 28 March 2006;

27. Urges the EIB to continue to improve its communications policy; calls for the main contents of the EIB web page to be translated into all the EU languages;

28. Calls on the EIB to continue providing Parliament and the public an annual summary of measures taken to improve its performance, in line with Parliament's previous resolutions;

29. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission and the European Investment Bank.

— having regard to the Stern Review: The Economics of Climate Change, published in October 2006,

— having regard to Rule 45 of its Rules of Procedure,

— having regard to the report of the Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs and the opinions of the Committee on International Trade and of the Committee on Industry, Research and Energy (A6-0001/2007),

A. whereas oil-price increases have an impact on the EU as a net importer of oil, reducing the growth of gross domestic product (GDP), employment and investment, and increasing inflationary pressure and interest rates,

B. whereas higher oil prices would undoubtedly drive up the prices of other fuels, exacerbating the adverse macroeconomic impact of increasing oil prices,

C. whereas while previous oil price shocks were caused by major disruptions to the oil supply, the present oil price increase is triggered mainly by a substantial growth of demand for oil in Asia and the United States and geopolitical instability in the oil-exporting regions,

D. whereas uncertainties concerning the balance between supply of and demand for oil have further increased oil prices and the volatility of the market,

E. whereas cheap oil prices have framed the world economy for more than 50 years, and whereas the prospect of long-standing high prices already contributes to fundamental changes in the economy; whereas if no measures are taken, the proportion of Europe's dependency on energy imports may increase from 50 to 70 % between now and 2030, with 94 % of oil imported;

F. whereas any measures taken by the EU to reduce its dependence on oil imports must address climate change; whereas the above-mentioned Stern Review reasserts that the EU's energy package will be a key element of the combating of climate change; whereas the Stern Review also highlights the massive economic opportunities that could be gained by the EU if it took the lead in combating climate change,

1. Expresses its concern that in recent years, the development of oil prices has been characterised by major volatility and by an abrupt increase from a level of USD 12 per barrel before 2000, to USD 79 on 8 August 2006, curbing the trajectory of Europe's economic recovery; underlines the fact that the recent price increase is similar in real terms to changes that occurred in the previous phase of the mid-1970s to mid-1980s, and that there are additional underlying circumstances and challenges;

2. Believes that these perceptions have also been reinforced by fears about the adequacy of resources in the future, with some analysts predicting an imminent physical resource constraint while others, mainly within the oil industry, presenting a reassuring picture of oil reserves; points out that perceptions over future scarcity affect long-term market prices;

3. Notes that it is becoming increasingly difficult to find new oil sources and that each new barrel is more expensive in terms of exploration and production; further notes that huge investments in the oil sector are needed to enhance capacities for production and refining in order to cope with increased demand;

4. Notes the different nature of the present oil price increase compared to those that took place in the past, which were supply-side driven and transitory; whereas the present oil-price increase has a substantial element caused by rapidly growing demand such as China but also by high consumption in the United States, alongside uncertainties in oil-producing regions, and supply fall-outs caused by lack of investment in infrastructure; consequently the recent price increase has a substantially permanent component;

5. Is concerned that the demand for oil is rising not only in the energy sector but also in other sectors, such as the petrochemical sector; believes that oil should not be used for electricity generation;

6. Notes the highly diverging estimates and opinions concerning the remaining oil reserves and the time when the oil peak will be reached; urges in this respect continuing improvements in the data transparency on energy statistics, especially in respect of oil stock levels; underlines, however that Europe will increasingly have to meet the challenge of lasting high and volatile oil prices and the economic impact connected to them, and that new resources are tending to be smaller and more expensive to develop and are increasingly offshore, and the costs of exploration, development and production will rise, making it more urgent to switch to alternative energy sources and to develop energy-saving and renewable technologies;

Recessive effects

7. Underlines the tangible effect of oil price increases for the EU as a net importer of oil, in that they reduce GDP growth, investment, and employment, and increase inflationary pressure and interest rates;

8. Stresses that, depending on the differing degrees of oil dependency and production structures, the impact of oil price increases varies from one Member State to another and that the consequences are most strongly felt in countries that are highly dependent on oil imports, such as, on the one hand, the euro zone, in which GDP is estimated to have dropped by at least 0,5 %, and, on the other, the new Members States, due to the greater energy-intensity of their economies;

9. Is worried about the upward pressure of higher energy prices on consumer prices, increasing the harmonised index of consumer prices inflation to 2,3 % in the euro zone and the EU, points out the increase in industrial producer prices by 5,9 % in July 2006 in the euro zone while secondary effects of the surge in oil prices on wages continue to be largely absent with moderate wage increases; expresses its concerns about the negative effects of oil price increases on household demand due to reduced disposable income;

10. Expresses its concern about the social consequences of increased housing, heating and transport costs in particular with regard to the low-income, poor and vulnerable segments of the population, and urges Member States to adopt appropriate measures to ensure the affordability and access to these services in spite of the oil price increases, in order to ensure mobility and avoid social exclusion and pauperisation;

11. Notes that the ECB has already raised interest rates six times since December 2005, expresses its concerns about the increasing unpredictability for SMEs of the cost of loans and the negative impact on investment and employment in the EU; regrets that inflationary pressure due to the rise in oil prices, combined with possible second-round effects, might ultimately make monetary tightening inevitable;

12. Stresses the risks to growth that an increase in interest rates would pose, in the context of a fragile recovery, and points to the risks associated with changes in the euro exchange rate and with oil prices, these being factors which played a part in the weak growth seen in 2005, owing to their impact on household purchasing power; calls for reflection about the feasibility of and opportunities for the denomination of oil and oil derivatives in the euro zone in euros rather than of dollars;

13. Notes that uncertainty surrounding the future balance between demand and supply has created incentives for new players on financial markets, such as hedging or financial derivatives linked to oil or other energy prices; notes that it is recognised that in some cases these activities may have magnified trends unfavourably, but on the other hand they may contribute to adding liquidity to the market thus reducing volatility; suggests that appropriate ways for increasing transparency of these activities should be sought in order to address concerns about their ongoing evolution;

The transport sector

14. Notes that the impact of the oil price increases differs considerably from one sector to another, with the transport sector, which accounts for 56 % of total oil consumption in the EU, together with the housing sector, being those most affected, while other sectors have successfully reduced oil dependency through improvements in energy efficiency and changes in the fuel mix; stresses that those two sectors (transport and housing) constitute the first call on household expenditure, and that the oil price rise increases purchasing power inequalities, to the detriment of the lowest-income households;

15. Calls for a comprehensive EU strategy to phase out fossil fuels in the transport sector, which would lead to a progressive reduction in EU dependency on oil and the progressive use of clean energies for transport;

16. Believes that transport fuel supplies could be expanded by facilitating the production of unconventional oil and liquid fuels based on natural gas or coal where this is economically reasonable; supports the development and production of alternative vehicles and fuels, such as biofuels, hydrogen-fuel cell vehicles and hybrid vehicles; also supports efforts to find innovative solutions for the management of transport systems in general, including measures related to vehicle energy efficiency;

Balance of trade; global imbalances

17. Points out the adverse effect of the oil price increase on the balance of trade for oil-importing countries, in that it redistributes wealth to the oil-exporting countries and turns them into major players in the context of global imbalances and the recycling of petrodollars, already resulting in the accumulation of substantial foreign assets;

18. Welcomes the fact that the recycling of petrol dollars by the oil exporters has benefited the euro zone with a positive impact on investment from abroad and increased demand for euro-zone goods and services, which partly offsets the dampening effects of the oil price increases;

Competition

19. Recalls the urgency to ensure fair energy prices in domestic energy markets; notes in this context that energy markets remain national to a large extent and are dominated by a few companies, both private and public, which frequently also own the infrastructure; calls on the Commission and the national competition authorities and regulators to pay special attention to energy companies;

20. Calls for the completion of the internal energy market by undertaking measures to overcome the prevailing divergences as regards the powers of regulators, the absence of a European energy regulator to examine cross-border issues, the absence of a priority interconnection plan, grid rules, balancing and gas storage regimes;

21. Emphasises that unbundling the infrastructure from suppliers is essential for the proper functioning of national markets and the internal market, and for incentives to invest in infrastructure;

22. Notes, furthermore, that increased concentration in the internal market may aggravate existing distortions, thus requiring the improvement of Member States' and the EU's regulatory capabilities in order to guarantee consumer rights and compliance with EU energy efficiency objectives;

23. Calls on the Commission and the Member States to include a high level of energy efficiency among public procurement selection criteria; considers that in the context of the revision of the Community guidelines on State aid for environmental protection, steps should be taken further to encourage investment in energy efficiency and diversification measures;

Europe should act now

24. Stresses that if no measures are taken now, Europe's dependence on energy imports will increase from 50 to 70 % by 2030, of which 94 % will comprise oil imports, aggravating the negative impact of the oil price increases and volatility on Europe's economy;

25. Calls on the Commission, when assessing State aid, to take account of the need for investment in innovation generated by the energy context and to ensure that new aid does not result in distortions of competition;

Thursday 15 February 2007

26. Points out the necessity for massive investment in energy infrastructure and supply over the coming years, calls for an in-depth Community-wide debate on different energy sources, taking into account all costs related to energy production, storage, distribution, transport, consumption and supply security as well as safety and waste aspects and its contribution to climate change, in particular in regard to CO_2 emissions; calls on the Commission to engage in impact assessments on different energy sources and portfolio mixes according to these parameters;

27. Recalls its resolution of 26 February 2004, which already stressed 'the importance of reducing Europe's dependence on oil imports, which constitutes a heavy burden from the political and price volatility point of view', welcomed 'technology platforms such as the European Partnership for a Hydrogen Economy', encouraged 'further investment in the most cost-effective forms of renewable energy, which [would] reduce the volatility of the cost per unit of energy, increase the security of energy supply, be less harmful to the environment, and potentially trigger an industrial revolution similar to the IT-led industrial revolution in the US';

28. Underlines the fact that emerging and developing countries and those experiencing transformation are particularly negatively affected by oil price increases due to the high energy intensity and low energy efficiency of their economies and stresses the importance of the sustainable development agenda in the EU's foreign, trade and development policy;

29. Points out the potential of the promising markets for renewable energy and energy efficiency increasing technologies; stresses the positive growth and employment rates of the renewable energy sector; and warns against the risk of losing market leadership in environmental technologies to the United States and to highly skilled emerging economies; points out that CO_2 building restoration programmes are highly significant with regard to energy savings;

30. Notes that European sources of oil still exist; believes that maximising the exploitation of indigenous sources should be seen as an important (albeit temporary) means of countering the increasing volume of oil imported into Europe;

31. Points out the need to orientate energy infrastructure towards combined heat and power and decentralised energy production;

32. Calls on the Commission and the Council to elaborate a detailed plan to reduce the EU's dependence on oil imports and a shift towards clean energy; urges that measures be adopted to improve energy efficiency; recalls that energy efficiency is usually by far the cheapest way to cut carbon dioxide emissions and enhance energy security;

33. Welcomes the Commission's Action Plan for Energy Efficiency as a key contribution to saving energy and hence reducing energy dependency;

34. Emphasises the need for energy efficiency policies and actions to be addressed properly in the Structural and Cohesion Funds and the Competitiveness and Innovation Framework Programme [1]; welcomes the proposal in the Action Plan for Energy Efficiency to leverage private financing through these instruments;

35. Calls for an integrated EU emergency mechanism for the security of supply with an increase of the minimum oil stock in the EU from 90 to 120 consumption days, and to develop a minimum gas stock of at least 90 days; regrets, in this context, that the Commission did not propose increasing and sharing the emergency oil and gas stock within the framework of its integrated energy and climate change package of 10 January 2007;

36. Suggests that the weekly publication (based on data in the public domain, as in the United States) of European stocks of oil and oil products, and of imports and exports, all broken down by type of product (crude oil, petrol, diesel, heating oil and others), would give a better picture of the pressures on the world market, show up the level of European consumption, reduce the tendency of market operators to gravitate towards American stocks, and thereby help reduce the volatility of oil prices.

[1] Decision No 1639/2006/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 24. October 2006 establishing a Competitiveness and Innovation Framework Programme (2007 to 2013) (OJ L 310, 9.11.2006, p. 15).

37. Recalls its demand that multilateral banks and public financial institutions should create energy efficiency funds granting money for energy efficiency projects; takes the view that energy efficiency objectives should also be integrated into other sectoral policies, especially fiscal, transport and cohesion policy; believes that innovative financing schemes and contractual tools, such as micro-credit and joint ventures between private companies and municipalities, should be encouraged in order actively to involve local partners and decision makers;

38. Underlines the important role of the European Investment Bank (EIB) in promoting investment in clean energy; welcomes the EIB's commitment to strengthen its contribution to infrastructure investments, including energy security and renewable energies and trans-European networks, and the doubling of the share of investments in renewable energy projects from 7 to 15 %; stresses the urgency of a diversification of energy sources and the commitment of the EU to sustainable development and to its international commitment to fulfil the Kyoto Protocol; encourages the EIB to integrate the criteria relating to CO_2 emissions into its selection criteria and to adopt an even more ambitious target for renewable energy and energy efficiency projects;

Taxation

39. Notes the increase in tax revenues on energy due to recent oil price increases; underlines the importance of adequate fiscal policies including those in the housing sector, as a means of reducing economic dependence on fossil fuels, addressing climate change and creating incentives to increase investments in and discriminate in favour of energy efficiency, renewable energy and environmentally friendly products; stresses that tax systems should also adopt the 'polluter pays' principle;

40. Stresses that the transport sector accounts for 56 % of total oil consumption in the EU and is most affected by oil price increases; calls for a framework directive for energy efficiency in transport; stresses that a modal shift is an important means of diminishing oil usage; encourages the harmonisation of passenger car legislation, including an EU-wide harmonised CO_2 based vehicle taxation with certification and labelling procedures and fiscal incentives to diversify energy sources; calls for a comprehensive strategy to phase out the use of fossil fuels in the transport sector, and to promote the market penetration of low CO_2 emissions, the use of the latest technology biofuels or bio-hydrogen-fuelled vehicles; stresses that the introduction of biofuels must not result in the release of the automotive industry from its obligation to manufacture more economical vehicles which produce fewer pollutants;

Common energy policy: energy diplomacy

41. Welcomes the dialogue and cooperation of the EU with oil exporting countries to decrease uncertainties on both the demand and supply side, to facilitate investment and economic and energy diversification decisions on both sides, and to create a climate of trust and reliability;

42. Notes that energy policy, and in particular security of energy supply, must become an integral part of the EU's common foreign, trade development and security policies and calls for a common strategy to secure and diversify supplies and transit routes, assuring solidarity within the EU; suggests that partnerships and cooperation agreements with oil-producing regions be used to create a stable but open regulatory framework in supply countries, to foster investment in exploitation and transport infrastructure and to secure long-term supply;

43. Stresses the importance of including in the new energy diplomacy of the EU, a constructive dialogue with countries that are oil exporters, countries that are part of the transit route and all major consumers of energy, and, notably, emerging and developing economies on energy efficiency and energy conservation, with the aim of setting minimum efficiency standards for global goods, to develop solidarity in energy policy, and to fight against environmental pollution and climate change;

44. Recalls the crucial importance of ensuring security and sustainability in EU energy supply; stresses the twin role that adequate market regulation and energy diplomacy should play in creating a stable framework for the supply of energy;

Thursday 15 February 2007

45. Calls on the Commission to investigate measures to reduce the impact of peak oil on the citizens of the EU, including an analysis of policy proposals such as an oil depletion protocol, which would help ease the transition towards the elimination of the use of fossil fuels;

46. Welcomes the role played by the EU Emission Trading Scheme in providing incentives to reduce energy consumption; calls for the scheme to be extended to include the aviation sector; and calls for the Commission to play its part in building a global emission trading scheme;

47. Recognises that sustained higher energy prices will put pressure on production processes that rely on raw materials from a variety of geographically distant locations; calls on the Commission to provide a full analysis of the implications of higher energy prices and peak oil for trade flows as part of its work on trade and competitiveness;

48. Stresses the importance of fostering a well-functioning world market in oil and gas, in particular through WTO rules and guidelines; considers that such an approach would make it possible to make an important contribution to energy efficiency and thus reduce upward pressure on energy prices;

49. Stresses the necessity for more active involvement of the World Trade Organisation in energy policy and the need to work towards an agreement between the EU and the members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries with a view to keeping the increase of energy prices under control;

50. Calls for the establishment of a genuine Euro-Mediterranean energy market to be given a central role; notes with interest the desire expressed by the Commission, on the occasion of the conference on external energy policy held on 20 and 21 November 2006, to ensure that North Africa and the Middle East occupy an important position in its external energy policy, and hopes that these statements will be followed up by concrete action;

European Parliament resolution on the dialogue between the Chinese Government and Envoys of the Dalai Lama

The European Parliament,

— having regard to its resolution of 26 October 2006 on Tibet [1],

— having regard to its resolution of 7 September 2006 on EU-China relations [2],

— having regard to the statement made by the Presidency on 22 February 2006 that the European Union strongly supports the dialogue between the Government of the People's Republic of China and Envoys of His Holiness the Dalai Lama and hopes that both parties will be willing to address, in good faith, substantive issues in order to find pragmatic solutions which can contribute to a peaceful and sustainable settlement for Tibet that both sides can agree upon,

[2] OJ C 305 E, 14.12.2006, p. 219.

— having regard to the 15 December 2005 statement by Günter Verheugen, Vice-President of the Commission, on behalf of the Commissioner for External Relations, Benita Ferrero-Waldner, that the Commission hopes that a solution to the Tibet question will soon be found that is compatible with Chinese sovereignty and respects the Tibetan population, and that the only way of attaining this ultimate goal is by means of a peaceful process based on open and direct dialogue that is not subject to any precondition,

— having regard to the previous five rounds of dialogue between the Government of the People's Republic of China and Envoys of His Holiness the Dalai Lama, launched in September 2002,

— having regard to Rule 115(5) of its Rules of Procedure,

A. welcoming the commitment of the Government of the People's Republic of China and His Holiness the Dalai Lama to resolve the Tibet question through a process of dialogue,

B. whereas there are differences on substantive issues, and whereas in particular the two parties have been unable to reach a common understanding on the historical relationship between Tibet and China,

C. having regard to the concerns of the Government of the People's Republic of China for the unity and stability of China and to the European Union's adherence to a 'one China' policy,

D. having regard to the Dalai Lama's consistent statements that he is not seeking independence but genuine devolved autonomy for Tibet,

E. reaffirming that the common ethnic, linguistic, religious and cultural identity of the Tibetan people is to be respected and that and the aspirations of the Tibetan people towards a unified administrative system are to be encouraged,

F. whereas on 17 January 2007 in Beijing the negotiations on a new EU-China Partnership and Cooperation Framework Agreement officially began,

G. whereas the Dalai Lama has expressed the wish to make a pilgrimage to China and whereas the Tibetan Parliament in Exile has requested a meeting between the President of China and His Holiness the Dalai Lama which would build confidence between the peoples of Tibet and China as well as in the international community,

1. Urges the Government of the People's Republic of China and His Holiness the Dalai Lama, notwithstanding their differences on certain substantive issues, to resume and continue their dialogue, without preconditions and in a forward-looking manner that allows for pragmatic solutions to be reached which respect the territorial integrity of China and fulfil the aspirations of the Tibetan people;

2. Welcomes the laws and regulations on regional ethnic autonomy adopted by the Government of the People's Republic of China, but is concerned that many of these laws contain conditions that impede or undermine their implementation;

3. Calls on the Council, the Commission and the Member States to actively support the strengthening of the dialogue and, in the absence of tangible results on substantive issues and in consultation with both parties, assess what further role the European Union could play to facilitate a negotiated solution for Tibet, including through the appointment of an EU Special Representative for Tibet;

4. Calls on the High Representative of the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) and Secretary-General of the Council of the European Union to include in the annual CFSP report to Parliament information on the development of the dialogue between the Government of the People's Republic of China and Envoys of His Holiness the Dalai Lama in 2007 and thereafter;

Thursday 15 February 2007

Calls on the Commission to raise the question of Tibet and the resumption of talks between the two sides during the negotiations on the new EU-China Partnership and Cooperation Framework Agreement and report to Parliament on the development of the dialogue between the Government of the People's Republic of China and the Envoys of His Holiness the Dalai Lama in 2007 and thereafter;

6. Calls on the Council Presidency to adopt a declaration indicating how the EU could facilitate progress towards a peaceful and negotiated solution for Tibet;

7. Calls on the Council, the Commission, and the governments of the Member States to collaborate with the United States and other non-EU countries on efforts to facilitate the dialogue between the Government of the People's Republic of China and the Dalai Lama;

8. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the governments and parliaments of the Member States, the President, Government and Parliament of the People's Republic of China and His Holiness the Dalai Lama.

Humanitarian situation of refugees from Iraq

European Parliament resolution on refugees from Iraq

The European Parliament,

— having regard to its previous resolutions on the right of refugees to international protection,

— having regard to its previous resolutions on the situation in Iraq,

— having regard to the UN Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees of 1951 (the Refugee Convention) and to the UN Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees of 1967,

— having regard to the urgent appeal by the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) of 7 February 2007 to increase international support for those countries hosting refugees fleeing Iraq, as well as to the UNHCR Return Advisory and Position on International Protection Needs of Iraqis outside Iraq of 18 December 2006 and to the UNHCR document of 8 January 2007 entitled 'Supplementary Appeal — Iraq Situation Response',

— having regard to the Guiding Principles of Internal Displacement issued by the UN Secretary General's Special Representative on Internally Displaced Persons on 11 February 1998,

— having regard to Directive 2004/83/EC of 29 April 2004 on minimum standards for the qualification and status of third-country nationals or stateless persons as refugees or as persons who otherwise need international protection and the content of the protection granted [1] (the Qualification Directive),

— having regard to Rule 115(5) of its Rules of Procedure,

A. whereas violence and criminal activities in Iraq include armed robberies, kidnappings for ransom, harassment, the killing of persons involved in the political process or reconstruction activities, ethnic cleansing, sabotage attacks against civilian infrastructure such as electricity or oil pipelines and full-scale attacks involving indiscriminate bombs and/or other explosives against civilians, and whereas, as a result, hundreds of thousands of people are being forcibly displaced within the country and abroad, primarily to Jordan and Syria but also to Egypt, Lebanon, Turkey, Iran and further afield, in an upheaval unprecedented in the Middle East,

[1] OJ L 304, 30.9.2004, p. 12.

B. whereas many groups continue to suffer persecution in Iraq, particularly professionals, women, Iraqis employed by foreign contractors, the UN or other international organisations including non-governmental organisations, and ethnic and religious minorities, such as Christians, Jews and Mandeans; whereas internally displaced persons (IDPs) are frequently victims of human rights violations originating from ethno-religious differences, or of a political and criminal order; whereas the security of third-country nationals, stateless persons and particularly the approximately 34 000 Palestinian refugees and thousands of refugees from Turkey, Iran and Syria in Iraq has drastically deteriorated,

C. whereas the United Nations estimates that 1,8 million Iraqis are displaced within Iraq and up to 2 million Iraqis have fled the country,

D. whereas 50 000 people try to leave Iraq every month and whereas the neighbouring countries have restricted access for refugees to seek asylum, forcing many to return to Iraq or remain trapped at the borders,

E. whereas the refugees receive sparse humanitarian assistance from UNHCR and the International Committee of the Red Cross, but conditions for refugees and other displaced Iraqis are increasingly appalling, with limited supplies of water, food, fuel and medicines, and whereas humanitarian organisations are appealing for adequate funding to respond to the increased needs inside Iraq and in its neighbouring countries,

F. whereas several countries hosting Iraqi refugees are restricting entry, as well as imposing restrictive stay requirements, such as reducing the temporary protection regime (TPR) and/or making the renewal of their visas so difficult that most Iraqis quickly lose their legal status,

G. whereas the attitude of most Member States to accepting Iraqi refugees has been equally restrictive, with the exception of Sweden,

H. whereas, under customary international law, there is a legal obligation not to return refugees to persecution or serious harm, and to allow asylum seekers fleeing widespread human rights abuses and generalised violence to enter the relevant country, at least temporarily, in order to be screened for refugee status,

I. whereas Egypt, although not a border country, has been hosting a considerable number of refugees, and whereas Syria, which hosts a high proportion of the Iraqi refugees, no longer recognises the TPR, which was implemented until now without restrictions,

1. Urges Iraq's bordering countries to abide by their legal duty immediately to admit refugees, particularly those stranded at their borders and belonging to specially targeted minorities such as stateless Palestinians or religious and ethnic minorities;

2. Welcomes the recent UNHCR appeal to mobilise additional international support in order to fund its work for uprooted Iraqis within their country and in neighbouring States and for foreign refugees in Iraq; calls on the EU and the Member States and other international donors to respond to the UNHCR appeal in support of the programmes for Iraqi refugees and IDPs in Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Turkey and Iran, as well as Egypt; considers it as an extreme emergency and urges that a significant part of the EU budget earmarked for programmes with Iraq be allocated for this purpose;

3. Considers that the support of the international community is vital in easing the suffering of hundreds of thousands of Iraqi refugees and IDPs or those fleeing the country, and therefore asks the Commission and the Member States to support the UNHCR's protection efforts focused on minimum protection from detention and refoulement and non-penalisation for illegal entry; as well as access to education, adequate housing, basic health care facilities and other basic services for those inside and outside Iraq;

Thursday 15 February 2007

4. Calls on the many donor countries which have been reluctant to face up to a regional Iraqi refugee crisis to take into consideration the fact that the Iraqi authorities and the governments affected in the neighbourhood appear unable to fully cope with the crisis and to reconsider the necessity of providing financial assistance to help those host countries in order to share the burden of this refugee problem by offering third-country resettlement opportunities to those refugees;

5. Welcomes the holding of an international conference on addressing the humanitarian needs of refugees and IDPs inside Iraq and in neighbouring countries in Geneva on 17 April 2007; urges the Council, the Commission, the authorities in the region and the international community to fully participate in that conference and provide appropriate financial support;

6. Asks the Member States and the international community, as a demonstration of international burden-sharing, to contribute to the resettlement of Iraqi refugees and stateless persons, including the Palestinian refugees from Iraq stranded in the region;

7. Calls on Member States, while recognising the efforts deployed by the Swedish Government swiftly and fairly to determine the claims of Iraqi asylum-seekers, in accordance with the above-mentioned UNHCR Return Advisory and Position of 18 December 2006, and to fulfil their obligations under international and Community law to grant refugee status or subsidiary protection to those who are at risk of persecution or serious harm;

8. Recognises also the efforts made by non-border countries of the region such as Egypt to assist Iraqi refugees; asks this country to pursue its efforts in favour of the Iraqi refugees by keeping its border open and improving conditions for them; asks countries hosting Iraqis to respect their fundamental rights and ensure their access to basic services such as health and education;

9. Recognises the contribution of the regional Kurdish government in assisting Christian communities that are internally displaced;

10. Calls on the Iraqi Government, local regional and religious authorities and the Multi-National Coalition Forces in Iraq to take immediate steps to improve security for all the refugees and IDPs in Iraq and end discriminatory practices;

11. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council, the Commission, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, the Secretary-General of the Arab League, the Director-General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, the governments and parliaments of Iraq, Iran, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon, Egypt, Turkey and the member states of the Gulf Cooperation Council, and the Palestinian National Authority.

Guinea

European Parliament resolution on Guinea

The European Parliament,

— having regard to Rule 115(5) of its Rules of Procedure,

A. gravely concerned by President Lansana Conté's declaration of a state of emergency on 13 February 2007 following the general strike launched on 10 January 2007 by Guinea's trade unions and civil society concerning economic and social claims and the violent repression by security forces of a peaceful demonstration held on 17 January 2007 in Conakry,

B. concerned by the recent violence during which security forces clashed with protestors asking President Conté, who took power in a 1984 coup d'état, to appoint an independent Prime Minister and hand over all his presidential powers,

C. whereas President Conté has declared a 'state of siege', which includes a 20-hour-a-day curfew, a ban on processions, marches and demonstrations, as well as public and private meetings, and which authorises day and night searches, giving the army extensive powers to take 'all the necessary measures',

D. whereas violent repression by the army's special forces, in particular the 'Mobile Company for Intervention and Security' and the 'Autonomous Battalion for Presidential Security', has caused a large number of victims, whereas there are allegations of the presence of mercenaries and former guerilla fighters working as paramilitary government forces,

E. whereas President Conté's appointment of Mr Eugène Camara as Prime Minister on 9 February 2007 was not in accordance with the agreement of 27 January 2007 signed by the government and the unions, which called for a 'consensus Prime Minister' with extensive executive powers for a three-year transition period during which parliamentary and presidential elections would be organised, and has consequently led to continued violence and lawlessness throughout Guinea,

F. whereas since 2005 there have been several incidents in which Guinean security forces have fired on unarmed demonstrators, notably in June 2006, when the government responded to demonstrations against the rising prices of basic commodities with a brutal crackdown during which the police and soldiers gunned down at least 13 unarmed demonstrators,

G. whereas Guinea is endowed with gold, iron and bauxite, as well as fertile land and water resources, including fish stocks, which could have contributed to improving the population's living standards if democratic accountability had prevailed in the country,

1. Strongly condemns the disproportionate and excessive use of force by the Guinean security forces during the recent demonstrations in various parts of the country, which resulted in the death of many civilians, the wounding of several demonstrators and the detention of trade union leaders and others;

2. Stresses the importance of appointing a consensus Prime Minister, in accordance with the undertakings given by President Conté;

3. Calls for the establishment of an independent international commission of inquiry, overseen by the United Nations, to investigate the recent killings as well as past human rights abuses, and to identify those responsible and bring them to justice in order to put an end to this impunity;

4. Calls on the Guinean authorities to order the immediate release of all persons arrested during the demonstration without being properly legally charged and, if such charges exist, to ensure that such persons are given a prompt and fair trial, in which their procedural rights are guaranteed at all times;

5. Calls for individual and trade union freedoms to be respected and restored and for the authoritarian abuses which have marked President Conté's regime for 23 years to cease; calls for negotiations to be opened with civil society organisations and trade unions with a view to a negotiated settlement of claims;

6. Calls on the Guinean authorities to put an immediate stop to the killings and calls for a democratic transition towards a system corresponding to the aspirations of the Guinean people;

7. Calls on the Commission to envisage the political dialogue provided for in Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement;
