External relations

The work of the European Union (EU) in the area of external relations includes the negotiation of trade agreements, and cooperation on energy, health, climate and environmental issues, often in the context of international organisations such as the United Nations. It also operates European Neighbourhood Policy programmes in relation to its closest international neighbours.

Under the Lisbon Treaty, which came into force in 2009, there was a reorganisation of the EU's external relations work with the creation of the European External Action Services (EEAS), the European Union's diplomatic arm, and the post of High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy.

- Eastern Europe and Central Asia
- Middle East
- Latin America
- Asia
- Industrialised countries
- Agreements with non-EU countries
- Sectoral agreements
- European statistics
- Archived summaries

See also:
Foreign and security policy
Development
Education, training, youth, sport
Enlargement
Public health
Humanitarian Aid and Civil Protection
External trade
Human rights
Justice, freedom and security
Maritime Affairs and Fisheries